RAIDED A NEWARK COCKFIGHT.

Justice of Peace Went with Raiders and Fined Prisoners on the Spot.

Impromptu Jersey justice was dealt out in the attic of a building on the outskirts of Newark late Saturday night, when a score of East Orange and Bloomfield spectators at a cockfight were compelled to pay fines aggregating $250.

Using a barrel for a desk, Justice of the Peace Theodore Blauvelt of Newark fined the culprits, one by one, as they were hauled from beneath chicken coops and discarded household goods, where they had taken refuge in the hope of escaping capture.

The men had been rounded up in the "Old Stone House," on Bloomfield Avenue. Some one informed Col. E. S. Edwards, Secretary and agent of the State Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, that a cocking main was to be fought there, and he immediately took action.

Summoning Constable Teed of the Sheriff's office and Justice Blauvelt, Edwards and several officers of the society surrounded the building and watched the sports enter, singly and quietly. They passed through the barroom and disappeared somewhere in the hotel, which is conducted by Henry Morris.

Stationing some of the officers around the building, Constable Teed and the others entered the saloon, where the bartender was guarded, to prevent him from raising the alarm. Then a search of the building was begun. Creeping stealthily to the door of the attic, the officers beheld a cockfight in full swing. The spectators were so interested that the raiders were in the room before they were aware of their presence. There was a scramble for the doors and windows, but the sight of the raiders' revolvers prevented any one from attempting to jump.

Justice Blauvelt had had the necessary papers prepared, and justice was dealt out on the spot. Henry Morris, the proprietor, was charged with maintaining a resort where cockfighting was allowed and was fined $100. He only had $80 in his possession, and will pay the rest when the bank opens to-day. All the others gave fictitious names. They were each fined $10.

The first fight was between an East Orange and a Bloomfield bird. The latter was badly worsted. The roosters were each equipped with two-inch steel gaffs.

Wallace a Labor Arbitrator.

John F. Wallace, formerly Chief Engineer of the Panama Canal, has been selected as the third arbitrator in the dispute regarding wages between the Grand Trunk Railway and its engineers. Mr. Wallace has gone to Montreal, where a meeting will be held to-day. The other two arbitrators are Wallace Nesbit of Toronto and P. H. Morrissey of Cleveland of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers.

MANY MOTORISTS ARRESTED.

Fatal Accident Spurs Police in Westchester County to Action.

The killing of two aged women of New Rochelle by a reckless chauffeur caused the police of Westchester County to begin a vigorous enforcement of the speed laws. In Mount Vernon yesterday seven machines were caught in the police net.

The New Rochelle police, with the aid of a motor cycle which they have purchased since the accident, also made seven arrests. The drivers in Mount Vernon who expected to pay the fine and get an immediate release were disappointed, as Judge Simpson refused to hold a special term of court to hear their cases. The Judge set the cases for hearing this morning in the Mount Vernon Police Court.

Each prisoner was compelled to give a bond of $50 for his appearance or leave his machine with the police.

In New Rochelle Judge Van Auken adjourned the cases until this morning and compelled them to give bonds of $100 each for their appearance. Those arrested in New Rochelle were:

Henry Merk, 319 West 116th Street; Jacob Aylor, 329 Seventh Avenue; George Schottke, 352 West Forty-eighth Street; Lawrence P. MacKeene, 426 Amsterdam Avenue; Myron Flemming, 302 West Fifty-fourth Street; Frederick Englehard, Long Island City. Englehard is chauffeur for Frederick Southwick of New York, who gave as security his house in Manhattan, valued at $60,000.

Those arrested in Mount Vernon gave these names and addresses:

P. F. Smith, 627 West 145th Street; J. C. Rappleyea, 309 West Fifty-fourth Street; Milton Updike, 52 East Ninetieth Street; A. S. Lehman, cotton broker, 16 William Street, Manhattan; R. G. Collins, Pelham Manor; Thomas Rourke, 29 Inwood Avenue, Manhattan, and C. W. Weston, Jr., of 500 West 141st Street.

Mr. Weston was driving his own machine. He was in a hurry to keep a dinner engagement at Bronxville.

"Ant-i-wet" Ready Made Excels Custom Made.
Last October we issued a little volume introducing our "Ant-i-wet" specialties. Under the following caption we placed ourselves on record as follows:
"In Advance of the Tailor.
Usually comparisons of ready-made clothing are made with the custom tailor. Here we again deviate. The custom tailor caters to a small circle, and in his way does very well for men who have plenty of time, and an easy disposition to stand for three to four tryons and various alterations afterward, but the aggressive American,
Particularly the Busy Man, wants his clothes without delay."
WE fit you without discomfort or waste of time, and without the alterations that usually destroy the symmetry and elegance of the original design of a garment.
The claim made last October is carried out daily at this corner.

McCARREN MAY RUN AGAIN.

Reapportionment Plan Helps Him in His Senate District.

Senator Patrick H. McCarren may reconsider his determination not to run again for the State Senate. The Senator has been taking a peep at the reapportionment plan for the Brooklyn Senate districts, and he has found that it strengthens him in his district; hence his idea that he may run after all.

The Senator was at the Hoffman House for a while last night at a small dinner party. Later on he said that the new Judiciary bill for Brooklyn, creating the new Supreme Court places, would be introduced in the Legislature this week and would be passed before adjournment.

25 TAMMANY LEADERS DINE WITH THE MAYOR

Four-fifths of Them There, Although Murphy Stayed Away.

A CALL TO FIGHT ANARCHY

Warnings Sounded in ex-President Cleveland's Letter and in McClellan's and Wilson's Speeches.

If their presence at a Democratic Club feast at which Mayor McClellan was the chief speaker—and which Charles F. Murphy, the leader of Tammany Hall, declined to attend because the Mayor was to be Democracy's spokesman—is an indication that they swear fealty to the Mayor rather than to Mr. Murphy in the break between the two, then about four-fifths of the Tammany district leaders are following the Mayor.

Approximately this number of leaders did attend the Democratic Club's banquet in celebration of the birthday of Thomas Jefferson at the Waldorf-Astoria last night. Mr. Murphy, an invited guest, purposely absented himself. But even though Mr. Murphy was not there to contribute to the more or less perfunctory applause accorded the Mayor's speech, his brother, John J. Murphy, was present and mixed with the twenty-five district leaders who broke bread with the Mayor under invitations accepted several weeks ago.

Democratic politicians were on the watch when the guests had assembled to see how many district leaders would follow the Mayor and attend the banquet as an indication of their loyalty to him and how many would absent themselves as proof that they sympathized with Mr. Murphy. The count showed that twenty-five of them were present, three detained by illness, one absent because he never attends banquets, and eight, including Charles F. Murphy, purposely not there.

Those present were: Daniel E. Finn, leader in the First; Thomas F. Foley of the Second, Patrick J. Ryder of the Third, John F. Ahearn, Fourth; Timothy P. Sullivan, Sixth; Joseph F. Prendergast, Fifth; Florence J. Sullivan, Eighth; Frank J. Goodwin, Ninth; Julius Harburger, Tenth; William E. Dalton, Eleventh; Patrick Keenan, Sixteenth; Thomas J. McManus, Fifteenth; Thomas F. McAvoy, Twenty-third; P. J. Scully, Twelfth; Michael Garvin, Thirty-fifth; Nicholas J. Hayes, Thirty-third; Thomas O'Neil, Annexed; James J. Hagan, Nineteenth; John F. Cowan, Thirty-first; Frank J. Lantry, Twenty-second; George Scannell, Twenty-fifth; Thomas E. Rush, Twenty-ninth; Peter F. Dooling, Thirteenth; W. E. Sinnott Thirtieth, and John V. Coggey, Twenty-fourth.

Those purposely absent were John T. Oakley, Fourteenth; John F. Curry, Seventeenth; Matthew Donahue, Twenty-first; James J. Martin, Twenty-seventh; Isaac A. Hopper, Thirty-sixth; James Frawley, Thirty-second, and Eugene McGuire, Thirty-fourth. Dunn of the Twenty-sixth, Patrick Keahon of the Seventh, and Thomas F. Murphy of the Twentieth were ill, and Maurice Featherson of the Twenty-eighth remained away because he never attends formal banquets.

The announced purpose of the dinner was to call upon the Democrats to adhere to the principles of Thomas Jefferson in the party's policies, and no references were made to the local New York situation. The Mayor made a speech in which he warned Democrats that under Republican administration the country was being driven to conditions which encouraged Socialism, and he invoked the propagation of Jeffersonian principles to avoid this outcome.

About 600 guests sat down to dinner, and when the band played "Tammany" they got up again and cheered. The guests of honor were Woodrow Wilson, President of Princeton; ex-Attorney General Judson Harmon, Senator John M. Gearin of Oregon, the Rev. W. L. Robbins of New York, Senator A. C. Latimer of South Carolina, Senator William A. Clark of Montana, Gov. Edwin Warfield of Maryland, Justice Morgan J. O'Brien, Justice Charles H. Truax, Augustus Van Wyck, James A. MacDonald, August Belmont, Controller Metz, John D. Crimmins, Lewis Nixon, Herman Ridder, and Theodore W. Myers. Each of the Tammany leaders had two or three guests. Those of Thomas E. Rush were Eugene Hale, Jr., son of Senator Hale of Maine, and Payne Whitney.

John Fox, President of the club, began the speaking by reading this letter from Grover Cleveland:

> Princeton, April 11, 1906.
> The Hon. John Fox, President, &c.
> Dear Sir: I regret that it is impossible for me to accept the invitation of the Democratic Club of the City of New York to attend the banquet to be given on the 15th inst., in celebration of the one hundred and sixty-third birthday of Thomas Jefferson.
>
> While the career of the founder of the Democratic faith and his patriotic service as a teacher in the school of Democratic doctrine should at all times arouse in the hearts and minds of his followers reverent remembrance and warm appreciation, it is especially appropriate that the birthday of Thomas Jefferson should be celebrated with enthusiasm and in a spirit of Democratic hero worship. Those who profess to still follow the party standard, and which he first held aloft, may well congratulate themselves on the reviving influence of such an occasion, and on their claim of fellowship with such a hero.
>
> And yet the occasion would fall far short of its best and most important results, if it should not inspire its participants with increased and more intermined earnestness and activity in the promotion of the Jeffersonian beliefs and purposes, upon which rest the structures of sound, genuine, and beneficent democracy.
>
> These beliefs and purposes are eternal and unchangeable—fitted to every condition affecting our people's welfare and adequate to every emergency in our National life.
>
> The Democracy of to-day will best honor the memory of Jefferson by refusing to invent or borrow new nostrums or unfamiliar remedies for the cure of popular ailments—often demagogic and frequently purely hysterical. It will attain its highest mission of beneficence, will offer the surest protection to our people's rights and interests, and will best deserve the approval and support of our countrymen when it resents the suggestion that either time or circumstance can make obsolete the enduring principles which Jefferson laid at the foundations of the Democratic Party. Yours very truly,

SAY REBATES RUINED THEM.

Bohm Brothers, Big Equitable Agents, Forced Into Bankruptcy.

Julius Bohm and Rudolph Bohm, who for six years were the largest general agents in the city for the Equitable, filed petitions in bankruptcy yesterday. The firm of Julius Bohm & Brother severed its connection with the society last December, but Rudolph continued with the Equitable on a separate contract for another two months. In all they wrote $30,000,000 worth of business for the society, and in 1904 made a record of $9,000,000. When the insurance scandals broke out their business fell off four-fifths.

Among the reasons assigned last night by Rudolph Bohm for leaving the Equitable was the practice of agents in this city of giving large rebates. His firm, he said, enforced the rule against the practice since last September, but they found the competition of those who refused to comply with either the law of the land or the regulations of the society too severe to be met on straightforward lines.

Gage E. Tarbell, Second Vice President of the Equitable, in accepting Rudolph Bohm's resignation, said that if proper evidence was laid before him that any agent of the society was rebating he would immediately take steps to prevent it. Mr. Bohm said last night:

> What man is going to make an affidavit that he has broken the law, and the company would not accept any evidence but that. As a practical life insurance man I do not believe there is an agent in the business who has not in his time given rebates, and I do not believe the new laws proposed by the Armstrong Committee will prevent them being allowed in the future.
> Suppose I give you a rebate; you are not going to tell of it, when it is a misdemeanor for you to have accepted it, and the only way in which I can give information is by turning State's evidence against you, my accomplice in the illegal act.

Petitions in bankruptcy were filed yesterday by Julius Bohm and Rudolph Bohm, individually and as members of the firm of Julius Bohm & Brother, insurance brokers, of 13 Park Row. Rudolph last night ascribed their failure principally to unfortunate deals in real estate. He said that the Equitable, which is the largest creditor, is fully secured by the renewal commissions on the policies written by himself and brother. The amount owed to the society is $352,570.

The liabilities of Julius Bohm are $47,795, with assets of $4,628. Liabilities and assets of Rudolph are nominal. The liabilities of the firm are $387,138, with assets of $27,027, of which $209,558 are debts due, $2,469 are bills, and $15,000 stocks, pledged as security with Wolf, Kohn & Ullman, Moses Greenebaum, and the Jefferson Bank.

In addition to the $352,570 due the Equitable and secured on the renewal commissions, the Jefferson Bank is a creditor for $10,550, and Morris Katz for $960, secured by pawn tickets. The largest unsecured creditor is B. Frank Sadler, to whom $3,507 is due.

PACKERS BEAT RAILROADS.

Latter Charge Freight Was Falsely Billed—Millions Lost.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, April 16.—Railroad officials openly charge that the big packing corporations for years have been cheating the railroads by misstating the character of the goods they were shipping and by shipping heavier packages than the bills of lading called for.

They charge that a glucose company also took advantage of them, thereby reducing its freight bills by thousands of dollars a year, and that other big shippers in the East are doing things that have helped to diminish the revenues which the railroads ought to have received.

It has been estimated by the railroads that the packers alone beat the Eastern roads out of $150,000 a year. What they owe all the railroads out of Chicago is problematical, but is estimated at $5,000,000.

One of the schemes of the packers, it is said, is to pack in barrels or tierces chucks or boneless chucks, both of which are fresh meat, and subject to first-class rating. Over the top of these they sprinkle salt and then they mark the barrel or tierce "salt pork," which takes a much lower commodity rate.

The glucose company, it is asserted, got a switching road to bill its products as through freight from New York, thereby getting the proportional rate and cheating the railroads out of several thousand dollars. This deception was detected, and it is said the railroads forced the glucose company to settle by reminding it that the Inter-State Commerce Commission was looking for just such evidence.

LADRONES ATTACK MAOLOS.

Three Native Members of the Philippine Constabulary Killed.

MANILA, April 16.—The headquarters of the Philippine constabulary at Maolos, Island of Luzon, were attacked several days ago by a band of ladrones. Three native members of the constabulary and one ladrone were killed.

The affair creates no alarm here, where it is regarded as merely an incident of the effort to establish order in the islands through the employment of a native constabulary. Similar conflicts between local outlaw bands are of more or less frequent occurrence.

STERILIZED BETTING THE SAME AS THE OLD

Track Visitors Make Wagers in the Familiar Way.

POOLROOMS ARE HAMPERED

Telegrams Censored and Delayed at the Track—Dr. Slicer Pleased with the Result.

Betting conditions at Aqueduct yesterday, the opening day of the metropolitan racing season, were to all appearances precisely the same as in former years. There was the same line of bookmakers around the ring, the same method of posting odds, the same boards for the display of scratches, overweights, added starters, and jockeys. The $2 bettor was as welcome as ever, and if there was any attempt to curtail the operations of the plunging contingent it was not apparent.

The only innovations resulting from the agreement between the Jockey Club and the State Conference of Religions for the sterilization of betting concerned the sending out of racing news, and was aimed solely at the poolrooms, which, however, came out unscathed.

The Western Union Telegraph Company is no longer in control of the wires into the track. The Western Union sign has been removed from the telegraph office, at one end of the betting ring, and in its stead is a sign which reads "Bureau of Information and Investigation."

In the office was a Pinkerton man, who censored every message submitted, acting for the Jockey Club. Absolutely no advance information was sent out regarding the races, even the newspaper reporters being informed that it was not permissible, and the results of the different events were not forwarded until twenty minutes had elapsed.

There was no public telephone in the grounds, and the messages sent over the private telephone were censored, information concerning races being barred.

Officials of the Jockey Club and of the Queens County Jockey Club said plainly that the management of the telegraph lines had been taken over to prevent the transmission of news to the poolrooms. Robert Pinkerton, in charge of the policing of the track, said that everything possible would be done to hamper the poolrooms.

A watch will be kept on men leaving the track, and whenever it is found that a man is acting as a runner for the rooms he will be ruled off. There are numerous telephones near the track, and it would be easy to get all the information necessary at a cost of something like $54 admission.

The Rev. Thomas R. Slicer, who acted as agent for the Conference of Religions in its negotiations with the Jockey Club, had a report as to how the new plan had worked, and last night expressed himself as perfectly satisfied with the sincerity shown by the officials of the Jockey Club.

"The agreement entered into with me was lived up to in evry particular," he said. "If the poolrooms got any news it was not sent over the telegraph or telephone wires inside the track, and as time goes on and the runners working for the rooms are recognized and ruled off it will grow harder and harder for the rooms to get the information they must have to conduct their business."

The crowd that went to the track treated the prospect of sterilized betting as a joke, but when they reached the ground and lined up in front of the board on which the scratches, overweights, and entries are posted they saw that there was at least a grain of truth in the report that something was to be done.

The scratches for the first race alone were posted, with the overweights for that event. There was no list of scratches in the other events as there has been in the past, and inquiry developed the fact that a rule had been adopted by which scratches, overweights, and added starters were to be announced for each race only after the results of the race preceding had been announced. Everybody wanted to know whether there had been any withdrawals from the Carter Handicap as soon as they landed at the track, but nobody was able to find out until after the third race had been run.

Early yesterday morning Fred Rehberger, Secretary of the Queens County Jockey Club, sent the following message to the newspapers:

> On account of the discontinuation of the Western Union public service on the grounds of the Queens County Jockey Club all messages will be subject to a delay of about thirty minutes.

At the "Bureau of Information and Investigation" the telegraph blanks did not bear the name of the Western Union. On the face of the blanks were these words: "Send the following message subject to the terms and conditions on the back hereof, which are hereby agreed to." The conditions were thus stated: "It is agreed between the sender of the foregoing message and the Queens County Jockey Club that the same is accepted by said Queens County Jockey Club as the sender's agent without liability for the purpose of transferring the same to the Western Union Telegraph Company, subject to all the rules and regulations of said company and in particular to the terms and conditions of said company's regular sending blank."

Those who sought information as to the rules under which messages would be handled were referred at the window of the telegraph office to Mr. Pinkerton. Mr. Pinkerton said that the telegraph office would be so operated as to make it impossible for representatives of the poolrooms to send any advance information over the wires or to send out results for twenty minutes after a race had been run.

Herbert Barry of the firm of Davies, Stone & Auerbach was at the track in the capacity of counsel for the Jockey Club. He, too, declared that the Jockey Club would do everything in its power to keep the poolrooms from getting information.

The names of the jockeys were not posted for the first race, which was scheduled for 2:30 o'clock, until 2:05. By this time the thirty-minute limit prevented the sending out of the names from within the track. Would-be bettors, wandering about the ring and waiting for the names of jockeys, found themselves confronted by staring signs which read:

> Notice to the Public.
> The public is hereby notified that disorderly conduct of any kind, pool selling, bookmaking, or gambling of any character, is prohibited on these grounds.
> By order of
> THE BOARD OF STEWARDS.

10 KILLED IN CHURCH FIGHT.

Riot Among Greek Laborers in Arkansas—Troops Sent to Stop It.

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 16.—Rioting over an Easter celebration among a colony of Greek laborers at Gurley, Ark., caused the death of seven men Sunday and three more to-day. A number of others have been seriously injured. Up to this afternoon the rioting was still on.

The trouble started over the question whether the modern or the Greek Church calendar should be observed in celebrating the Christian festival. Whisky and beer had been received from Helena, Ark., forty miles away, and there was much drinking. There is no wire communication within twenty miles of Gurley, which place is the end of construction on the new line of the Memphis, Helena & Louisiana Railroad, on which road the Greeks are working, but a message was sent by handcar to the nearest telegraph office asking aid from Helena, the county seat.

Sheriff Kilchens responded with twenty deputies, but found the fighting beyond his control, and in turn appealed for aid to Gov. Davis early this morning.

The Governor ordered Capt. I. C. Myers and all available members of the National Guard at Helena to proceed to Gurley and stop the rioting. Capt. Myers and about sixty men left on a special train, but up to a late hour nothing has been heard from the troops owing to the difficulty of communication.

BLEW UP GAMBLING CASINO.

Night Attack on Resort at French Lick Springs, Ind.—Hotel Panic.

Special to The New York Times.

ORLEANS, Ind., April 16.—Unknown men blew up a portion of the gambling casino at French Lick Springs early this morning. Dynamite was used. A part of the building was badly damaged.

The sound of the explosion caused a panic in the French Lick Hotel, which is only a hundred feet from the casino. The 600 guests were awakened out of a deep sleep. Many of the men, believing that safe robbers were at work, seized their revolvers and rushed out to fight the supposed robbers.

The managers of the resort decline to discuss the explosion. The casino has been run without any opposition from the authorities, and there has been no reason, as far as can be learned, to fear any attempt to destroy the building. It is two stories high, surrounded by a wide veranda, and has many large plate glass windows.

The dynamite was thrown upon the roof of the veranda. A portion of the side wall of the building was blown in, and every window was shattered to fragments. A section of the porch roof was blown away.

At daylight a posse was organized, and men on horseback scoured the country about French Lick. No arrests have been made.

DIDN'T MEAN ME—STEFFENS.

Magazine Writer Disagrees with Muck-Rake Speech in One Particular Only.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, April 16.—Commenting upon President Roosevelt's "muck-rake" speech, Lincoln Steffens says in an article in an evening newspaper:

"If it is understood, the President's muck-rake speech will do good, but it was misunderstood when it was first delivered. That was at the speaker's dinner to the Gridiron Club in Washington, and the men who heard it then—statesmen, railroad men, bankers, and correspondents—all seemed to think that the President had hit at the magazine writer.

"And they rejoiced. Some of them laughed at me, saying the President had taken a fall out of me. But when I asked him about it the next morning he said he didn't mean me. And he told me some of those he did mean.

"I disagree with the President only on one fundamental point. He wants us to go on 'hunting' bad men; and he shows that he means individuals. The longer I live the more I feel that the individual is not so much to blame—not even the worst individuals, not even the 'best' citizens—as the system of corruption which has grown up about us, and which rewards an honest man with a mere living and a crook with all the magnificence of our magnificent modern life."

BROKER ACCUSED OF LARCENY

Thomas's Associate Was in N. & W. Forgery Case, Police Say.

F. Cranston Thomas, 38 years old, who gave his occupation as a broker but refused to tell the police his address, was locked up in Police Headquarters last night by Detective McConville on a charge of grand larceny. William H. Seamon, 155 North Seventh Street, Paterson, N. J., was the complainant.

Seaman, it is said, gave $1,700 to Thomas for investment after receiving a circular promising 25 per cent. profits. Then he lost sight of Thomas. He found him again in the Temple Court Building.

The police learned, they say, that Franklin Everhardt, who was manager of the F. Cranston Thomas concern at 150 Nassau Street, had been arrested by the London police in March last, together with Harry F. Simons, on a charge of forging and uttering four bonds of the Norfolk & Western Railroad Company, the same fraudulent transaction for which F. Augustus Seton is now awaiting sentence in the Tombs, and of which "Col." T. C. P. Colmey was convicted yesterday before Recorder Goff.

At the time the two men were arrested in London papers were found on them, Detective McConville says, which showed that they had been doing business in London under the name of the Mining Securities and Investment Company, and that F. Cranston Thomas was their New York agent. Two of the concerns in whose securities Everhardt and "Simons" were dealing were the United States Cereal Company and La Chivia Mining Company.

Four Children Bitten by a Dog.

Four children were bitten by the same dog last evening at 161st Street and Amsterdam Avenue. They were William Wall, 10 years old, of 511 West 165th Street; Thomas McGinnity, 11 years old, of 2,107 Amsterdam Avenue; Emil Katz, 8 years old, of 2,108 Amsterdam Avenue, and Alice Carter, 10 years old, of 2,064 Amsterdam Avenue. They were treated by Dr. Nouwelt of the Washington Heights Hospital, then going to their homes. Policeman Brady killed the dog.

A Smith Street car which left Coney Island at 1 o'clock this morning had twelve Italians aboard. At Avenue H they began to quarrel and the police were summoned. PARTY FOES JOINING ON RATE BILL PLAN

Bailey-Long Compromise Amendment May Solve Problem.

PRESIDENT'S VIEWS DEFINED

Wants Power of Injunction and Review by Courts Limited—Democrats to Confer.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—An agreement on the Rate bill is in sight—an agreement between the President's Republican supporters in the Senate and those whom he calls "my friends the Democrats." There is no talk, pretense, or attempt at agreement or compromise of any sort between the President's supporters, whether Republicans or Democrats, and the Aldrich group of Republicans who oppose him.

Conferences to-day had for their object the consolidation of parts of the Bailey amendment with the Long amendment. All day long Republicans of the stamp of Senator Long were conferring with Democrats who are supporters of Senator Bailey.

The proposition is for the welding together of so much of the Bailey amendment as prohibits suspensions of the orders of the Inter-State Commerce Commission pending litigation and so much of the Long amendment as limits the subjects reviewable by the courts to two heads. These are the question whether Constitutional rights have been invaded and the question whether the Inter-State Commerce Commission has acted in conformity with the rate law itself. All the indications to-night are that this will be the final form of the amendment.

Mr. Bailey told Mr. Long and the other Republican Senators who approached him on the subject that he had no objection to such an arrangement provided the words "fairly remunerative" were stricken out of the bill. He has contended that these words would compel the making of rates to pay dividends on watered stock.

Senators told President Roosevelt of Mr. Bailey's answer and he expressed a willingness to have "fairly remunerative" stricken out.

Mr. Bailey's amendment does not provide any broader court review than does Mr. Long's, although Messrs. Dolliver and Clapp and other Republican Senators have been contending that it did. At the same time the Democratic leader is not disposed to stand out on minor matters if an agreement can be reached otherwise.

As for the President's position, which has been the matter of so much misstatement and so much confusion, it may be well to state exactly what it is. He wants the maximum amount of limitation on the power of injunction that can be obtained, and he wants the minimum amount of review by the courts of orders of the commission. Anything which reaches these ends will meet his approval.

When it has been stated that he favors this or that amendment it did not mean that he was abandoning all other methods and taking a new and final stand to fight to the death for that particular proposition. For instance, he was reported as avoring the Mallory and Simmons amendments, both offered by Democrats. The Mallory amendment is practically the same as the Bailey amendment in limiting the power of injunction and interlocutory decree. It would be perfectly satisfactory to the President if the Bailey amendment is voted down. So would the Simmons amendment if the other two are beaten. But the Bailey amendment, in its anti-injunction feature, is his favorite.

The President stands to-day just where he did at the beginning of the fight in the Senate with one exception: He was in favor of restricting the review by the courts to the smallest possible compass. He is still in favor of that. At the beginning, while strongly desiring a restriction on the right of injunction as proposed by Mr. Bailey he doubted the constitutionality of such a proposition. Hence, for fear of having the act declared unconstitutional he did not want the provision inserted. Since the delivery of Senator Bailey's speech he has become convinced of the constitutionality of the plan, and he is now strongly in favor of it.

He has never been disposed for a moment to favor the Knox amendment or any of the other propositions advanced by that group of Senators. He has never entertained the idea of compromise with Mr. Aldrich. All his efforts toward an agreement have been in the direction of an understanding between Mr. Bailey's followers and those of Messrs. Long, Dolliver, and Clapp.

Whatever shall prove to be the most satisfactory and easily reachable arrangement to that end will be satisfactory to him, provided it restricts the power of injunction and limits the subjects reviewable by the court. He is, therefore, in favor of the proposition broached today to Senator Bailey by Mr. Long and other Senators of that group.

A few Democrats will vote against the Bailey amendment. Their number is variously estimated at from four to eight. Senators Culberson and Bacon are the only ones who are known to be certainly against it, but similar reports are current concerning Messrs. Morgan, Pettus, and others.

The Democratic Senators have decided to hold a conference either to-morrow or next day, which may clear up the situation.

Trouble Due for Department Heads.

The Bureau of City Betterment of the Citizens' Union is distributing a telephone card giving the numbers of all of the departments of the City Government for the use of those who have grievances. Instructions on the card say that if grievances are not attended to by the heads of departments the City Betterment Bureau should be called up.

WILL BINGHAM RESIGN?

He Says, "If It Isn't True It's a Good Story, Any Way."

The story that Police Commissioner Bingham is going to resign very soon because he had got tired of taking orders from Fire Commissioner O'Brien, was printed again yesterday afternoon. The reporters asked Gen. Bingham about it, and he made his reply in Italian, thus: "Si non è vero ben trovato," which, freely translated, is "if it isn't true it's a good story, anyway."

Gen. Bingham said later that there wasn't a word of truth in the afternoon newspaper's story so far as it intimated that Commissioner O'Brien had been interfering in his department.

AMERICAN WOMAN'S DARING.

LONDON, Tuesday, April 17.—The El Araish correspondent of The Daily Mail reports that Mrs. Laura Fitzgerald, an American, with an organized expedition, left Mogador on April 9 to explore the great Atlas Mountains in the region of the Gundafy Highlands.

The Atlas Mountains traverse Morocco, Algeria, and Tunis. In Morocco the loftiest summit is the Tizi-Tamjurt, 14,500 feet. This is about fifty miles south by west of the City of Morocco. Other lofty summits in the empire are the Tizi-Likumpt, 13,151 feet, and Miltsin, 11,430 feet.

ARMY OFFICER'S SUICIDE.

Under Guard as Insane He Leaps Into the Pacific Ocean.

HONOLULU, April 16.—Capt. Martin of the Light Artillery, en route home on board the United States transport Sherman, under guard as insane, jumped overboard during a storm on April 5, three days after the steamer left Nagasaki. His body was not recovered.

Capt. Martin went to the Philippines about three months ago.

CRASH IN FRONT OF WALDORF.

Electric Cab Hits a Car and Badly Frightens Passengers.

Passengers in an east-bound Thirty-fourth Street car were thrown into a panic late yesterday afternoon when an electric cab crashed into it in front of the Waldorf, smashing most of the windows. Six persons were slightly injured by broken glass, but none of them badly enough to be taken to a hospital.

Mrs. Katherine Fitzgibbons of 693 Second Avenue, fainted. She was carried into the Waldorf, where she was attended by the hotel physician and left for home. Miss May Muller of 330 East Sixth Street was also slightly hurt, as was George Keyes, the driver of the cab.

COMBINE AGAINST REBATES.

Pennsylvania Insurance Companies Will Dismiss Guilty Agents.

HARRISBURG, Penn., April 16.—All of the fifty-nine life insurance companies doing business in Pennsylvania have filed a written agreement in the Insurance Department of Pennsylvania pledging themselves to dismiss any agent or employe who violates the law prohibiting the giving of rebates.

DROWNS IN AIDING BROTHER.

Philip Karl, 13 Years Old, Loses Life—Younger Lad May Die.

A boy was drowned in an attempt to save his younger brother yesterday afternoon in the Bronx River, just south of the Bronx Park Police Station, and the younger boy, who is in Fordham Hospital, may also die.

The older, Philip Karl, 13 years of age, of 1,346 Park Avenue, with the younger, John, 11 years old, went out in a boat with Samuel Rosenfeld of 32 Second Street shortly before 4 o'clock. John fell overboard and Philip plunged in to save him. He managed to get hold of him, but the younger lad struggled and weakened his brother's grip on him. Rosenfeld, seeing their peril, dived in to help them, calling the while for assistance.

Capt. Daly of the Bronx Park Station heard the call, and rushing to the waterside, jumped in and swam toward the lads. Philip had disappeared, and Daly dived repeatedly before he could bring the younger boy to the surface. Philip Karl's body had not been found last night.

AMERICANS AT VESUVIUS.

Police Prevent Daring Tourists from Climbing to Observatory.

NAPLES, April 16.—The condition of Mount Vesuvius is unchanged to-day. The volcano is still surrounded by a thick cloud of smoke, but ashes have almost ceased to fall.

Many Americans, including passengers of the White Star Line steamer Cretic and the North German Lloyd steamer Barbarossa, visited the Vesuvius region during the day. The police and carabiniers tried hard to prevent some of them from going up to the Observatory, saying that it was not safe.

Prof. Matteucci this morning said that while all danger appeared to be over the normal condition of the volcano would not be re-established for several weeks. Bodies are still being exhumed from the ruins at Ottajano and San Giuseppe.

PHILADELPHIA, April 16.—The Citizens' Permanent Relief Committee to-day placed in the hands of Mayor Weaver the sum of $2,000 for the relief of the sufferers rom the eruption of Mount Vesuvius.

Mrs. Jaycox Critically Ill.

PATCHOGUE, L. I., April 16.—The condition of Mrs. Jaycox, who is the wife of Supreme Court Justice Walter H. Jaycox and who went into convulsions last Friday on learning of the nomination of her husband to his high office, is still extremely grave. A short time before Mr. Jaycox's nomination to the vacancy made through Justice Smith's death Mrs. Jaycox underwent an operation. There is still a chance for her recovery.

MINERS SHOT DOWN IN BATTLE AT JAIL

Deputies and Firemen Use Rifles, Bayonets, Hose.

4 DEAD, 1 DYING, 20 HURT

Mob Arming with Rifles and Dynamite to Renew the Attack—Authorities Rushing Reinforcements.

Special to The New York Times.

JOHNSTOWN, Penn., April 16.—In a battle between Deputy Sheriffs and striking miners from the Berwind-White Company mines at Windber, eight miles from this city, this evening three men and a boy were killed, one man was fatally injured, and a score or more men were wounded. One house was almost destroyed by the fury of the mob, and the strikers immediately assembled with guns and dynamite, threatening to blow the town of Winber off the map.

Fully 5,000 men were in the mob, and they were opposed by about 100 Deputy Sheriffs, armed with rifles, and by the Windber Fire Department, which drove the mob back with streams of water from the fire hose. Gov. Pennypacker has been appealed to for aid, and Troop A of the State Constabulary, stationed at Greensburg, was due here on a special train at midnight, but at last accounts was held up by a wreck.

The trouble began at 5 o'clock this afternoon. A mass meeting of the strikers was being held in an open field near the Berwind-White works. The men have been on strike since April 1, when they were brought out of the mines by a crowd of union men from Lilly and other surrounding towns, who paraded into Windber and demanded that the Berwind-White men join the union.

About 3,000 of the 5,000 men employed in the mines came out at once. Since that time heavy accessions have been made to the ranks of the strikers and the mines were almost idle. A number of assaults have taken place on men who wanted to work, but the strike has been a complete failure. This afternoon at the mass meeting it was decided to return to work, but the men were in an exceedingly ugly mood.

S. W. McMullen, Chief Deputy Sheriff of Somerset County, walked down to the meeting about 5 o'clock to see what was going on. His friends advised him to stay away, as the miners have a grudge against him. He had scarcely arrived at the meeting before the entire audience had turned on him and was driving him up the road toward Windber. Sticks, stones, and lumps of coal were hurled at him, and for safety he rushed into the house of Charles Davis, one of the City Councilmen. The mob surrounded the house, tore off the weather boarding, broke down the porches, smashed the windows, and almost pulled the house from its foundations.

Sheriff Bigley was at the mines in charge of the Deputy Sheriffs on guard there. With a large force of deputies, armed with rifles and bayonets, he rushed into town and drove back the mob, arresting about twenty of its members. The men arrested were placed in the borough lockup.

About 7 o'clock this evening a mob of 5,000 men came roaring up the road from the mines to the lockup. They were led by Paul Zills, a Polish miner. He urged them to attack the jail and the force of deputies gathered about it. The deputies fought them back with bayonets and the firemen with the hose, and finally Sheriff Bigley ordered the deputies to fire.

At the first volley several of the crowd fell, and the leader, Zills, was shot through the heart. Two other foreigners who have not been identified were also killed. George Kester, aged 12, who was in the crowd, was shot in the abdomen, and died. Eugene Delaney, Chief Engineer of the Berwind-White Company, who was fighting with the deputies, was shot and stabbed and cannot live. Charles Wagner, a company draftsman, was also seriously injured. Charles Stizak, a foreigner, was shot through the leg. Fully a score of others were shot, but their comrades hurried them away in the darkness. Fifteen or twenty injured men were picked up, and are being cared for in a temporary hospital.

All the families living near the jail have moved out to-night as the mob is gathering outside the town and it is feared will dynamite the place. The men are all experts in the use of dynamite and the mob is now thoroughly aroused and is arming itself with rifles and sticks of the explosive.

An appeal has been made to Johnstown, and as many of the police force of that city as can be spared will be sent out to-night. Officers are also coming from the Cambria Iron Works, and it is believed by morning 500 armed and disciplined police officers will be on the ground.

The great fear now is that the mob will set fire to the immense coal works of the company, as many threats are being made. All the guards have left the mines, as they are needed in the city for the protection of the jail. Every citizen who is able to carry a gun has been impressed by the Sheriff as a deputy. The Fire Department is in readiness with the fire hose, and the use of this during the fight was really what saved the day, as the mob could not withstand the tremendous pressure of water from the plugs.

DYNAMITE USED IN RIOTS.

Eight Men and Two Women Shot or Stabbed Near Wilkesbarre.

Special to The New York Times.

WILKESBARRE, Penn., April 16.—Rioting among the foreigners in this valley and fights with constables late last night, early this morning, and again this afternoon resulted in five men and two women being shot, three men stabbed, and two places dynamited, while the State police were twice called out to aid the local authorities after they had been attacked and driven off by the mobs.

The most serious trouble was in Georgetown, near this city. There, after the store of John Lasko had been dynamited last night because he had refused credit to men rendered idle by the suspension of mining, a mob paraded the streets, smashed all the street lights, fired revolvers, and attacked and stabbed Felix Stancheck and Alexander Lasko, neither seriously, however. Constables Cotter and Sunday, who tried to disperse the mob, narrowly escaped with their lives.

The mob rescued a prisoner the constables had taken and opened fire upon the officers from scores of weapons. The constables retreated, firing until their revolvers were emptied, and then ran. In this general shooting Joseph Witkoski was shot and badly wounded, his wife was shot in the hand, Mrs. Stanley Gregoff in the head, and two unknown men received flesh wounds. The State police charged the rioters several times before they were dispersed and captured several prisoners.

This evening the constables were again attacked by a crowd of men and women, beaten and driven away. The State police again responded and arrested several rioters, including two women. All have been held under bail or locked up.

To-night aged James McNeil, his wife, and their son-in-law, David McGowan, an engineer at the Franklin Colliery, were brutally beaten by a number of men who attacked McGowan as he returned from work.

Last night at Pittston Giuseppe Rossi shot Joseph Giglio and his son Frank in a drunken quarrel, and Michael Palkovitch was seriously stabbed in a fight at Plymouth.

HOCKING VALLEY MINES OPEN.

PITTSBURG, April 16.—Chairman Francis L. Robbins of the Pittsburg Coal Company announced to-night that all the Hocking Valley, Ohio, mines, except those of the Sunday Creek Company, had started to work this morning, the operators and miners having concluded and signed the inter-State and district wage scales. The mines in operation represent an annual production of 3,750,000 tons of Hocking Valley coal, half of the entire Hocking output, and employ 6,500 men.

The following clause, which was attached to the Hocking agreement, was given out by Mr. Robbins:

"Whereas, We, the operators, having signed the 1903 scale and the above rules and conditions, have signed the same with the understanding that the United Mine Workers of Sub-District No. 1, District No. 6, will make no different agreement with any other operator or company operating in this district."

Commenting on these matters Mr. Robbins said:

"Resumption of operations in the Hocking field is in line with the Indianapolis agreement to reaffirm the 1903 scale, and we have been ready to operate our Ohio mines since April 1. We have orders for our entire output of Hocking Valley coal, which will enable us to give steady work to employes. This is the beginning of the end of the 'stand-patters' in Ohio."

Mr. Robbins will go to Chicago the latter part of the week to take up the Illinois mining situation.

Soft-coal operators and miners of the Pittsburg district met in this city to-day to discuss additional demands made by the miners and arrange a number of technicalities which were not explicitly included in the agreements to sign the scale of 1903. The meeting will cover a period of several days, and when adjournment was taken to-night no conclusions had been reached and no statement was given out.

WASHERIES STARTING UP.

Old Men Applying to the Companies for Work, It Is Said.

It was announced yesterday on behalf of the anthracite operators that the coal-carrying companies are beginning to start their washeries in order to get small steam sizes of anthracite out.

As the suspension of work, ordered by President Mitchell and the other officers of the anthracite district, included the men employed at the washeries, this might be looked on as the beginning of an effort to break the strike. The operators, however, say that they are not attempting to mine coal and that the men are coming back to work at some of the washeries voluntarily. On behalf of the anthracite operators' committee of seven the following statement was made yesterday:

"A number of the washeries will be started to-morrow, and a number would have been started to-day, but for the fact that to-day is regarded as a holiday in the mining regions. More washeries will be opened next day. The Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Company has had its washeries running for some days and is turning out 6,000 tons of washery coal every day. The Delaware & Hudson and the Erie Companies have also begun to run their washeries. No attempt is being made to mine coal, but the washeries are being started on account of the scarcity of the small steam sizes.

"More of the anthracite held by the companies is also being released. The Lehigh Valley Company is sending 15,000 tons a day to market, and the Reading Company at the end of last week gave orders to its agents to ship coal freely to market. Most of the men who are applying at washeries for work are the old men who went out on strike. The companies are making no efforts to get them. They came voluntarily."

It was also stated that the operators when they make their formal reply to Mitchell's last proposition will leave it to be understood that the miners can have the operators' first offer to continue at work three years longer under the award of the Anthracite Strike Commission as an alternative to the operators' last proposition. When Mitchell left the Jersey Central Building after the conference with the operators last week he was apparently under the impression that the first offer had been withdrawn, and that the new proposition of the operators was the only one they would entertain.

HEARINGS ON ELEVEN BILLS.

Street Opening Measure the Only One Opposed Before the Mayor.

Public hearings were held in the Mayor's office yesterday on eleven bills which have passed the Legislature and are before Mayor McClellan for his action. One bill only was of sufficient public interest to bring out speakers for and against it.

This was the bill drawn by ex-Assemblyman E. M. Bassett, to lessen the cost of street-opening proceedings to the city, to prevent long delays, and to give property owners the opportunity to deal directly with the Corporation Counsel after that official has set a price that the city is willing to pay for the property needed. The bill was opposed before the Mayor by John H. Judge, John C. Shaw, Truman H. Baldwin, and H. G. Andrews. They declared the measure was an injustice to property owners, as it left them without power of appeal. They said the delays complained of were due generally to the city departments, and not to the lawyers or the Commissioners named in the condemnation proceedings.

Mr. Bassett and Michael Furst spoke for the bill. They admitted it contained defects, but declared it to be a great improvement over present conditions. Controller Metz filed a brief in favor of the measure, saying the city has paid $2,000,000 in two years in costs of street openings. No action was announced by the Mayor.

AGED SPINSTER'S SUICIDE.

Took Precaution Against Being Interrupted in Hanging Herself.

Special to The New York Times.

MIDDLETOWN, N. Y., April 16.—Miss Elsie Harding, 60 years old, went into the attic of her home here Sunday afternoon and hanged herself with a clothes line from the rafters.

Miss Harding lived with another spinster of the same age. They were regular attendants at the Baptist Church. Sunday afternoon Miss Harding said she would not go to church and asked her companion not to disturb her on her return from church.

The friend returned from church and not seeing Miss Harding went to bed at dark. This morning she searched the house and found Miss Harding hanging from the rafters.

The new quotations, which took effect to-day, are as follows: Ohio State test refined oil, 9½ cents; water white Ohio State test, 10½ cents; varnish makers and painters' naphtha, 12½ cents; deodorized stove gasoline, 13½ cents; 74 to 76 degree gasoline, 16½ cents; 86 degree gasoline, 19½ cents; 87 degree gasoline, 20 cents; 88 degree gasoline, 21 cents.

"Orchestral music" does not mean symphonies, overtures and other classics only; it means all music. What more delightful than an orchestral rendering of a Strauss waltz or a light opera selection?

The Orchestrelle

is a musical instrument, resembling somewhat in appearance an upright piano. It reproduces, however, orchestral music in the home with all the varied coloring and contrasts of tone obtained from the strings, brass, woodwind, of the orchestra.

Everyone can play it, artistically, whether musical or not.

The notes are sounded without thought on the part of the player; but the soul of music—tone, time, and orchestration are entirely subject to the player's will. Controlled by simple, easily manipulated means, complete musical expression is plainly indicated for the non-musician; such indications, however, are not necessarily clung to by the musician, who is free to voice his individual reading.

TONE QUALITIES of the Orchestrelle

Heretofore, the Orchestra, a collection of many instruments, has been the only means of obtaining variety of tone. Now, the Orchestrelle, a single instrument, possesses the different tonal qualities of the orchestra and thus can adequately reproduce orchestral effects.

The distinguishing voice of each instrument depends not so much upon its mouthpiece or its strings, as upon the shape of the instrument itself, which makes the acoustic cell or air chamber, in which the tone is formed. This is graphically illustrated by the expert "imitator" who so closely duplicates any sound by changing the form of his mouth and throat.

In the Orchestrelle, the characteristic tones of the different instruments are approximated by reproducing their characteristic acoustic cells. The interior is a perfect maze of air chambers of diverse sizes and shapes. The tonal quality of this many-voiced instrument is extremely beautiful. There is nothing like it in the realm of music, excepting only the orchestra itself.

Only by hearing the Orchestrelle can any adequate conception be had of its possibilities. You are cordially invited to Aeolian Hall at any time for that purpose.

We will, however, send some very interesting literature upon request.

The range of prices of the Orchestrelle brings it within the reach of almost every home. Moderate monthly payments can be arranged.

STOWAWAY MURDERED AIDING GIRL TO ESCAPE

SHE WAS TO BE DEPORTED

He Got Her Ashore and, in Struggle with Men on Pier, Fell, Mortally Stabbed.

Enrico Giletto of Milan lay dead in the Morgue in Brooklyn last night. His sweetheart, Angelina Farmelli, of Naples, is held a captive aboard the Florio Line's steamer Lazio, now in the Erie Basin, Brooklyn, for repairs. He had given his life for her, and gladly. His last words in the Long Island Hospital Saturday morning, just before he expired, when Detective Corraro came to take his dying deposition, were:

"I died to protect her. My mother is the Señora di Grande Norma Cassarti, No. 1 Piazzare Tingalia, Milano. Tell her."

He had been stabbed with a stiletto while he fought two Italian enemies to save from their grasp the Neapolitan lass that he loved. Giletto, it is said, came to this city from Parmi, Tenn., about the time that Angelina Farmelli was due to arrive here on the Lombardi. It is said that an enemy of his race was close on his heels all the time. Whether this enemy loved the Neapolitan girl and committed the murder because of jealousy is not definitely known.

The girl arrived on March 22 on the Lombardi. She was examined by the surgeons on Ellis Island, and it was found that she had a weakness of the eyes which would compel her deportation.

Giletto had come to this country with the boyish intention of discovering a gold mine and making a great fortune. His family in Milan took no stock in his adventurous dreams when he was at home, and he ran away. He had seen the hardest part of a foreigner's life in this country, and was fighting his way back to his home when he reached New York penniless and found that the Lazio was the next steamer homeward.

He determined to stowaway on board. He watched his chance and hid himself below. On board, about to be deported, was his sweetheart. Crawling from his hiding place after the Lazio had passed Sandy Hook, Giletto found her and she provided him with food and water while he still hid.

The Lazio was only twenty-four hours out, when her propeller shaft broke and she was helpless. She caught a tow and was brought back to port, her Captain ordering her into the Erie Basin, where she could go into dry dock and have the necessary repairs made.

The Lazio was no sooner in the lower harbor than the news reached the Italian quarters of Brooklyn and Manhattan that she had turned back and the friends and relatives of hundreds of homeward-bound Italians gathered at the pier in Erie Basin to find out what was the matter.

Angelina Fannello was quick to see her chance. She told Giletto that if she could ever reach the shore again they could easily get a start West, which would soon put them away from the reach of the immigration officials. She had brothers living in Los Angeles and they would go there.

There being a heavy fine for allowing a deported immigrant to escape, the girl was locked in a room below the deck when the ship began to dock. As she was being led to this room Giletto was discovered as a stowaway. He told of his love for the Neapolitan girl and was allowed to see her before he was put ashore.

In the few moments they talked he told her that if she could wriggle through the porthole of the stateroom he would manage to reach her and get her ashore. The ship docked at night, and in the rush and excitement of the work of docking the Lazio last Friday night Giletto managed to get in the shadows covering that part of the deck from which he would have to work to rescue his sweetheart.

Leaning over the deck rail of the vessel he saw her leaning out below. He got a rope, fastened it on deck, and, leaning far over, reached one of her extended hands. He tugged with the strength of desperation and got her clear of the port hole. In a moment she grasped the rope and slipped to the wharf. He was soon after her.

After the steamer had been berthed, her Captain discovered that the deported girl had escaped and that the stowaway had disappeared. He gave orders to the watchmen on the pier to allow no one to leave until he had found the runaways.

The two, hand in hand, sought the darkest corner of the pier while this search was on.

Giletto told Detective Corraro on his death bed that just as they seemed about to slip by the watchmen two men jumped from the darker shadows upon them. One of them grasped the girl. A moment later Giletto fell with a mortal wound.

There was a group of five Italians surrounding the prostrate body over which the girl bent weeping when the police arrived. All were arrested. Yesterday it was learned that all of them were employed on the ship and had been engaged in the hunt for the fugitive girl. They were discharged from custody after an examination in private by the detectives.

Besides saying that he died defending his sweetheart Giletto would give no details of the motive back of his murder. He was faint from loss of blood when Corraro talked with him, and besides his brief declaration that he was dying for the sake of the woman he loved and that he wanted his mother to know of his death, he would say nothing.

of the Penal Code." This is the section referring to poolselling and bookmaking.

At 2:05 o'clock, when the names of the jockeys went up, the books began business, and the last doubt as to the fate of bettors within the track inclosure went glimmering. There were the same slates, the same crews, and the same readiness to handle bets of any size, from $1 on the "deadline" up. The regular custom of recording bets and paying them off by badge number was adhered to.

After the first race the scratches were posted for the second and the same scenes were re-enacted. Between the first and second races three men with field glasses were noticed in a house just outside the track, below the first turn, which commands a view of the finish line. It was possible to determine the winners from this point, however, even with the most powerful glasses, only when there were open finishes.

Officials of the National News Company, which supplanted the Western Union in supplying a racing service to the poolrooms, announced that they were prepared to fight the race track owners and clubs to a finish and had engaged Howe & Hummel to represent them. J. H. Payne of Covington, Ky., is President of this company, and David Mitchell, formerly Superintendent of the racing department of the Western Union, is its general manager. They contemplate applying for an injunction compelling the Western Union to handle their messages from the track, but, inasmuch as the wires are leased, to all intents and purposes, to The Jockey Club, and the tracks have a right to regulate matters within their grounds, it is difficult to see how such a proceeding would benefit them.

"Of course the Jockey Club is on the level in prohibiting the transmission of racing information from the tracks," said one of the National News Company men. "Why shouldn't they be? The harder they can make it to get a bet down in a poolroom the more money they will derive from admissions. It isn't a case with them of decreasing betting, but of making those who want to bet pay tribute to the tracks."

There were no betting commissioners in the grand stand, and the only chance a woman had to get a bet down was through some acquaintance.

The Rev. Dr. Slicer said last night that the Jockey Club had proved its sincerity, and that if the city authorities, including the District Attorney and the Commissioner of Police, acted with the same earnestness poolrooms would soon be a thing of the past.

"That is what I am working for," he declared. "Gambling is not a poor man's game, and the further I can remove the opportunity of betting from the immature and irresponsible who frequent poolrooms, the greater the service I have done."

POOLROOMS GOT NEWS.

Most of It by Telegraph, Owners Say —Runners a Blind.

The poolroom men said they got remarkably good news service yesterday, considering that it was the opening day of racing at the local tracks. There is usually a hitch on the first day in transmitting news to the poolrooms. Such rooms as depended entirely on ticker service for advance betting were inconvenienced, but they accepted bets with the stipulation that they were to be paid in accordance with morning newspaper closing prices.

The majority of the poolrooms, however, those that are controlled by the so-called syndicate, not only got racing results promptly, but also managed to get advance information as to weights, jockeys, scratches, and first and second betting. They declared that they got the information by telephone from runners at the track, but the rooms in some way got most of their information by telegraph. When players asked how they did it the managers smilingly replied:

"By wireless."

Of course that was a joke. They admitted as much later in the day when they posted the names of the jockeys, the weights and the track odds for the Carter Handicap.

"The Jockey Club meant to do the poolrooms," said the owner of one Harlem room, "but any time the poolroom men of New York cannot find a way to beat out the Jockey Club I'll retire from business. Dough will do anything. To keep up the pretence that the poolroom men were being shut out they employed runners to carry out messages from layers at the track to telephone to the rooms of New York. The layers who own New York rooms, of course, had many things they wished to say to their managers and these things were sent outside the track and then transmitted by telephone to New York.

"Just how we got the regular results and the weights, jockeys, and scratches I can't tell you, as it would queer the game. Then we should invent something else.

"The poolrooms of New York are not going to shut down, no matter what anybody says. No poolroom in New York could exist a day if the public did not want it to exist. I personally believe we should get out boldly and declare ourselves. If we are arrested we will keep the police busy, and finally tire them out making arrests. That is what I believe should be done by the syndicate members. They will find that if they do business in the open folks will become accustomed to it, and won't mind it, while if they do it on the sneak they will have sneaky detectives after them all the time."

Another Harlem poolroom keeper was less defiant.

"I don't think it does anybody any good to antagonize the police or the reformers," he said. "The police are with us if the reformers will only let them alone. All we can do is to transact business with folks we know, and take no chances with outsiders. I know one man who could solve the problem if all the poolroom interests in New York would stand by him, but while the majority are willing there is a sufficient number of independent rooms to spoil any arrangement he might make. They should get together. I can see very little hope for any man who declares that he will fight the reformers. Fool them, has always been my motto, and the way to do that is to bar from the poolrooms every person who is not personally known to the proprietor."

The first news from the track to reach the poolrooms was received at 2:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon. It consisted of the entrics for the first race at Aqueduct, naming twelve horses, with the weights, jockeys, and the opening betting. The second message gave the closing betting, and the third gave the name of the winner, the second horse, and the third. But in none of the poolrooms was there any "call" of the races.

To-day, the poolroom men thought, things might not go so smoothly.

MYERS TO SHUT POOLROOMS.

Police Will Pay the Bill If He Gets Evidence.

The Rev. Dr. Cortland Myers, instead of backing down from the position he took in several letters which he wrote to Mayor McClellan and to Police Commissioner Bingham, picked up a challenge yesterday which Third Deputy Police Commissioner Matho threw down. He said he would take up the task of getting evidence against the poolrooms and gambling resorts he had named if he were paid. He made this offer at a hearing before Magistrate Finn in the Jefferson Market Court, where the clergyman had been summoned by the Third Deputy to tell what he said he knew about poolrooms.

"Your Honor," he began, "I desire to say this. I have as President of the New York Society for the Enforcement of Criminal Law received certain information about the places which I named in my letters to the Mayor and the Commissioner. As I have stated here, I have no legal evidence against these places. I have merely a belief. To get the legal evidence requires at least two detectives to go to these places. It requires a considerable expenditure of money. We have proved that we can get the evidence. We convicted fifteen such offenders in Brooklyn. But it cost money. I think it cost something like $7,000."

"I am officially deputized to tell you that the department will see that you are reimbursed for any expenses you may incur," said Mr. Mathot coolly.

"All right," said Dr. Myers, as quick as a wink. "I accept that offer. Why, we have proved it only recently, in the case of a place on Dey Street. We can get evidence with ease, but the offenders seem to laugh at the police."

"Have you the evidence in this case on Dey Street?" asked Mr. Mathot.

"We have," answered Dr. Myers.

"Where is it?"

"The detectives are outside."

"Have them brought in," demanded Mr. Mathot.

They were brought in. Before this Herman E. Lewis, who said he represented the firm of Backus & Lewis, had told Magistrate Finn that he desired to say, to save time, that Dr. Myers had no direct or personal knowledge of violation of the law in the places mentioned. He added that he did not see how Dr. Myers could help to convict the poolroom keepers.

Magistrate Finn, however, decided that Dr. Myers would have to submit to some questions.

Mr. Mathot then drew out the fact that although the counsel of the society, John Walker, knew most about the evidence, he was not present, and that the Superintendent, Joseph A. Britton, who, according to Dr. Myers, also knew a great deal about the evidence, was also absent. Dr. Myers said that the reports made to him were in the possession of his society, but Mr. Mathot could not get any clear statement from him as to how he could get at them. At last Mr. Mathot demanded that the two detectives who had got the evidence in the Dey Street poolroom be brought in. They said they were George Dunbar and William Moore, connected with the Ascher Detective Agency.

Only Dunbar was put on the stand. He had not revealed a single name, and had not gone beyond testifying that he had bet twice on two horses and lost $2 each time, when Dr. Myers said that he was due to officiate at a funeral. The hearing was then adjourned until Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

AMERICAN ATHLETES ARRIVE

Most of Those Injured on the Steamer Are Recovering.

NAPLES, April 16.—The North German Lloyd steamer Barbarossa, from New York, having on board the American athletes who are entered to compete in the Olympic games which begin at Athens on Sunday, April 22, got here at noon to-day. Her arrival was the signal for a popular demonstration of welcome, as she had on board the Duke of Orleans, who boarded the steamer at Gibraltar, which brought the Duke and Duchess of Aosta and many other notabilities to the pier, where a band played the Italian and French national anthems.

The Americans landed soon after the Barbarossa's arrival. Some of them visited the scenes of desolation in the vicinity of Mount Vesuvius, but the majority of the athletes, accompanied by the manager, practiced running, jumping, &c., in order to test their condition after the sea voyage.

The men who were injured while crossing the Atlantic, with the exception of James S. Mitchel and Harry L. Hillman, Jr., of the New York Athletic Club, have recovered. Mitchel's arm is still in a sling, and may interfere with his competing, and Hillman's left leg is still bandaged. The latter is improving, and he expects to start at Athens.

All the men were in good spirits, and insisted that the accidents would not appreciably affect the strength of the team. Hillman's injured knee is still slightly discolored and swollen. It was treated by Dr. Guituren of the New York Athletic Club, delegate of the United States to the Medical Congress to be held at Lisbon, who happened to be on board. The doctor massaged the injured part, which greatly assisted in limbering the joint and restoring the strength of the tendons.

Mitchel suffered the most from the sea voyage, remaining in bed three days after his dislocated left shoulder had been set by the ship's surgeon. He was able to go about with the rest of the American party. Although he continues hopeful of making a showing at Athens and says he certainly will try for a prize, the other members of the team fear that Mitchel is badly handicapped. Referring to the injuries sustained by Mitchel and himself, Hillman said:

"Only six out of thirty-two of us were struck by the wave and four of these six are again in fine trim. Only Mitchel and myself are slightly ailing. My right knee is bandaged and a little stiff, but it has been greatly improved by massage treatment. I hardly think it will interfere with my running. I took a practice jog on deck yesterday without any pain and had easy jogs to-day without difficulty. I hope to be entirely fit in a few days. The main drawback is the interruption of practice."

COLLEGE MATE HIS ACCUSER.

Yale Graduate Charged with Stealing a Watch—The Police Puzzled.

A puzzle for the police is the case of John F. Castano, Vice President of the Eden Construction Company, who was charged in the Harlem Court yesterday with having stolen a gold watch from his old college chum, William Taylor of 252 West 129th Street.

Castano, who is said to be a man of good means, waived examination and was held in $1,000 bail for trial. He was locked up for a while, as there was no one in court to go on his bond.

The watch, which was valued at $50, is, according to Taylor, a family heirloom. He said he would not part with it for many times $50. Castano and Taylor were room mates at Yale, and were graduated in the same class. Last week they attended a game of baseball at the Polo Grounds between the Yale team and the Giants. On the way home Taylor found that his watch had disappeared, and accused Castano in a joking way of having taken it. The latter denied angrily that he had taken the watch, and the two parted abruptly.

Taylor reported the matter to the police. Last Friday the watch was found in a Harlem pawnshop. The pawnbroker was questioned closely regarding the man who had pawned the watch, and on the strength of his description Castano was arrested at his home, 50 West 140th Street. In court he refused to make any statement and simply waived examination. He intimated, however, that a serious mistake had been made, and that those who were responsible for it were going to suffer.

OLD HOTEL MAN A SUICIDE.

Clarke Once Kept a House Famous Among Harlem Fishermen.

A. P. Clarke, who years ago was well-known at Kingsbridge as the proprietor of a hotel which was a favorite resort of crab fishermen, and who shot himself in the Hotel Raleigh, 665 Broadway, on Sunday night, died yesterday morning at St. Vincent's Hospital.

Twenty years ago Clarke derived a good income from his trucking business in Hudson Street. In 1891 he invested his money in a hotel at Kingsbridge. At that time the Harlem River was full of crabs, and the place was a rendezvous of those who loved the sport of catching them. But with the erection of factories and the consequent contamination of the river the crabs disappeared and so did Clarke's patrons. Finally he was compelled to abandon the hotel.

letter, and also a letter from Senator John T. Morgan of Alabama, in which Gen. Morgan said:

"The birthday of Jefferson will yet be celebrated in China unless Americans shall unworthily abandon the principles of democratic government crystalized in his teachings and given to us in the priceless legacy of the Constitution of the United States."

The Mayor got a cordial reception when he arose.

"There is a spirit of disorder and lawlessness," he said, "sweeping around the world, a spirit which masks under the names of Socialism, Communism, and Collectivism, but which has for its object the subversion of existing law and order, and ultimately manifests itself by the flaming torch and red flag of anarchy. Nation after nation has met it, and in panic has fallen back and temporized. That spirit is with us in the United States to-day, taking advantage of conditions brought about by our opponents.

"Under Republican rule in the Nation government has been persistently misused for the enrichment of the few and for the oppression of the many. First under the protection of special laws, and then, as recent disclosures have shown, without the countenance of law at all, the people have been plundered, until a field has been plowed and harrowed, ready for the sowing with the seed of diseased thought. And the sowers who sow the seed, without conscience or thought of consequence, are men armed with the most powerful weapons for the deliberate perversion of humanity. With the single ambition of personal elevation to feed their monstrous vanity, they would not only wreck the party to which they claim allegiance, but would without scruple place upon this country the curse with which every civilized nation in Europe has been struggling for a decade in Europe has been struggling for a decade. And these men—God save the mark! —call themselves Democrats.

"The wave of anarchy which is sweeping toward us is foreign to our institutions and foreign to our thought. We can break it if we will. If it ever overcomes us, it will be because we have succumbed without a struggle. Republican greed is largely responsible for the general discontent in this country, of which anarchy has been quick to take advantage.

"Democracy must make the fight," continued the Mayor, laying emphasis upon his words amid applause. "Thomas Jefferson has placed within our hands the weapons with which to make it. We can accomplish nothing by timidity or weakness or concession. We must not copy the methods of the party in power. There is nothing hopeless in the situation, but we should be worse than fools if we ignored it, or even minimized it. It is serious, extremely serious. It is dangerous, very dangerous. But if the fight is gallantly waged, and if the forces of honesty are rightly led, the common sense of the American people is bound to assert itself, and that common sense will cause Americans to throw away forever the unhealthy fallacies of anarchy and reassert in all its honesty and virility the clear-sighted hardheadedness of the American character," concluded the Mayor in making reference to the coming State campaign.

"Remember, gentlemen," said the Mayor, talking of the State campaign, "that there is something more involved in the great contest to be waged in this State six months hence than the transference of power and patronage from one party to the other; remember that there is something more involved than the election of any particular candidate. Remember that the country is at stake.'"

When the applause greeting the Mayor's speech had subsided President Wilson of Princeton talked on "Thomas Jefferson." He said that some of Jefferson's opinions constituted a definite programme of practical policy, while others were a part of a philosophy of politics which had come to him from his reading and from the spirit of his time.

"We are too apt to think of Jefferson as a literary politician endowed with an uncanny gift of contriving popular issues, organizing parties and directing campaigns," continued President Wilson. "We do not often enough see him as what he really was, a typical American of his region and generation. When it came to a profession of practical political doctrine Jefferson declared his belief in as little government as possible. He believed that such little government as there was could be better contrived and conducted under the eyes of the people themselves than at a National capital.

"But to bring the subject up to date is to state the end which we are interested in; the realization of the rights of individuals and an impartial development of the people's life. The present maladies of our politics will not be cured by tenets; they can be cured only by a new spirit of candor, of honor, and of devotion to the general interest. It is not even new laws that we need, but a new spirit in the enforcement of existing laws, an enlightened and purified intention. The infection of such a spirit will more surely clear our thinking and reform our affairs than the action of Legislatures and the decisions of courts.

"We should also act," concluded President Wilson, "as those who are lovingly familiar with the simpler, plainer sides of American life—the sides upon which virtue shows robust and unsophisticated, ready to take the shocks of circumstance. We, too, should see the plan of the Nation's life as a widening process, full of vigor and promise only if free and natural, full of danger if narrowed by the preferment of any particular set of interests. We should believe in the capacity of a free people to see their own interest and follow it when told the truth and given leave to choose disinterested counselors. We, too, should be idealists, never growing weary of earnest protestations of right and comprehensive views of human liberty."

Judge Harmon spoke on the "Essentials of Democracy," declaring that the Democratic Party preferred prevention to cure. He charged that President Roosevelt had laws to punish depredations of trusts and combinations and the enjoyment of special favors through rebates and otherwise, but that none but desultory attempts had been made to enforce them. He said that what the President and his followers were trying to do was to mend a state of things for which the Republican leaders were themselves to blame. Senator eGarin talked on "Jefferson and the West."

MURPHY WAS IN TOWN.

Just to Show He Could Have Attended the Jefferson Dinner.

Charles F. Murphy returned from Atlantic City yesterday, and appeared at Tammany Hall to emphasize his presence in the city and his refusal to attend the Democratic Club's Waldorf-Astoria dinner because Mayor McClellan had been assigned to speak on "Democracy." He asserted, however, that he had done nothing to prevent others from attending the dinner.

"Every member of Tammany Hall is free to do as he pleases," said Mr. Murphy. "I do not care to attend the dinner myself, but that is no reason why I should expect others to stay away."

"Then you would not call it an unfriendly act for any district leader to attend the dinner?" he was asked.

"Certainly not," replied the Tammany leader. "In fact, my own Eighteenth District will be well represented. As for my reasons for non-attendance, let it be sufficient that I do not wish to go."

TO BUILD MONUMENT TO BOOTH'S MEMORY

COMMITTEE OF 100 NAMED

$6,000 Raised, Though Work Has Scarcely Started — May Erect a Statue in Gramercy Park.

A movement which will doubtless assume National importance was started yesterday at a meeting of the Players' Club, at 16 Gramercy Park, for the erection of a monumental memorial to Edwin Booth.

It is now thirteen years since the great actor died, yet up to this time no steps have been taken to commemorate visibly and fittingly his achievements and fame. This fact was commented on not long ago by a little group of men prominent in literature and the arts as they were assembled one evening at the Players.

In that comment the present movement found its source.

At yesterday's meeting of the club ex-Justice Joseph F. Daly presided, in the absence of John Drew, the club's President. The object of the meeting was set forth in an address by David A. Munro. Bronson Howard, the dean of American dramatists, also addressed the meeting.

It was unanimously voted that a committee of 100 be appointed to take the movement in charge and carry it to a conclusion. This committee, which will include many of the best-known figures in the literature and the art of this city and country, will soon be organized and an executive or working committee will be named to manage the details of the project.

Among the members of the club who were present yesterday and who contributed to the unanimous vote in favor of the scheme were Francis Wilson, David Warfield, John Blair, Barton Hill, Albert Bruning, J. H. Beurimo, Daniel Frohman, John W. Albaugh, Willard L. Metcalf, Gen. Rush C. Hawkins, Evert J. Wendell, Thomas J. Hallowell, Jr., E. M. Welch, Raymond Hitchcock, and Charles H. Genung.

This letter was read from Mrs. Ignatius Grossmann, the daughter of Edwin Booth:

> Mrs. Grossmann having been apprised of the generous project on the part of The Players to erect a statue in memory of her beloved father, Edwin Booth, begs to express her deep appreciation and to assure The Players of her sympathetic approval of their really noble effort to thus commemorate her father's artistic achievements, as well as his personal virtues. Mrs. Grossmann hopes that The Players may meet with the success their worthy undertaking merits.

Though no especial efforts had been made before yesterday's meeting, nearly $6,000 has already been subscribed toward a Booth memorial. No definite sum has been determined upon as the goal toward which the committee shall strive. It is thus far only decided that the memorial shall be designed and erected on a scale of dignity and beauty, which shall be in reasonable harmony with the fame and achievements of America's greatest actor. This means, of course, an undertaking of great moment, but one that will not be beyond the grasp of the men who will be named to carry it to a conclusion.

The form which the memorial shall take has not, of course, been determined. Various plans have been suggested. The one that appears to find most favor so far is that the monument, whatever it may be, shall be erected in Gramercy Square, within the park, or possibly set into the park fence, so as to face the Players' Club, of which Edwin Booth was the founder, and to look in fact upon the very windows behind which the great tragedian breathed his last.

But the only thing as yet actually determined is that the memorial shall be built and the complexion of the Committee of One Hundred. The names of those constituting this committee will be announced as soon as they have accepted their appointment.

T. P. Fowler Back.

Thomas P. Fowler, Chairman of the Fowler Investigating Committee of the New York Life Insurance Company, returned from Europe yesterday on the White Star liner Republic. He has been abroad for two months. Regarding insurance matters, Mr. Fowler said:

"For the last two months I have not even thought of insurance, and do not expect to for the next two or three days. Then I may have something to say. My trip abroad was for pleasure only, and had nothing to do with insurance."

Mr. Fowler knew nothing of the recent troubles in the anthracite region, and did not appear to be concerned about them, although he is President of the New York, Ontario & Western Railroad, a coal-carrying road.

NO INTER-STATE DIVORCE, SUPREME COURT HOLDS

New York Courts, Reversed in 1901 Decision, Now Upheld.

STEP BACKWARD, SAYS BROWN

Harlan, Brewer, and Holmes Agree with Him—Connecticut Decree is Invalidated.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—That a divorce valid in all States cannot be given by the courts of a State in which only one party to the marriage resides, was the rule laid down by the United States Supreme Court to-day.

Justice Holmes declared that in making this decision the court directly reversed itself. He pointed to Atherton vs. Atherton, decided in 1901. In that case the New York courts refused to recognize a Kentucky divorce decree on the ground that the wife lived in New York and was not under the jurisdiction of the Kentucky courts. The New York courts were reversed, with only two Justices dissenting. In the case of John W. Haddock vs. Harriet Haddock, decided to-day, the New York courts denied the jurisdiction of the Connecticut courts, because the wife lived in New York. With four of the nine Justices dissenting, the New York courts are upheld in this case.

The Haddocks were married in 1868 and the husband asserted he had been an unwilling participant in the ceremony. He left his wife immediately after the ceremony, and in 1881 got a divorce in the State of Connecticut, where he resided. In 1882 he was married again. The New York courts held the second marriage ceremony to be illegal, decreed the first wife to be still the legal wife and directed Haddock to pay her an annuity of $780.

That finding was sustained by to-day's decision, which held that Mrs. Haddock was without the jurisdiction of the Connecticut Court.

Stating the Federal question to be that as to whether the Constitution of the United States had been violated by the New York court in failing to give due faith and credit to the decree of the Connecticut court granting a divorce to Haddock, Justice White proceeded at great length to show that such had not been the case. He asked:

"Is a proceeding for divorce of such exceptional character as not to come within the rule limiting the authority of a State to persons within its jurisdiction, but, on the contrary, because of the power which Government may exercise over the marriage relation, constitutes an exception to that rule?"

He then laid down the proposition that "where the full faith and credit clause is invoked to compel the enforcement in one State of a decree rendered in another the question of the jurisdiction of the court by which the decree was rendered is open to inquiry," adding that "if there was no jurisdiction either of the subject matter or of the person of the defendant the courts of another State are not required to enforce such decree."

"Under the rule contended for," he says further, "it would follow that the States whose laws were the most lax as to length of residence required for domicile as to causes for divorce and to speed of procedure concerning divorce would in effect dominate all other States. In other words, any person who was married in one State and who wished to violate the marital obligations, would be able by following the lines of least resistance to go into the State where laws were the most lax and there avail of them for the severance of the marriage tie and the destruction of the rights of the other party to the marriage contract, to the overthrow of the laws and public policy of the other States.

"Thus the argument comes necessarily to this, that to preserve the lawful authority of all the States over marriage, it is essential to decide that all the States have such authority only at the sufferance of the other States."

Justice White made an analysis of decisions in inter-State divorces as rendered in the various States, declaring that they refute the assertion that the preponderance of such cases is favorable to the contention that the States give full faith and credit to the divorce decrees of other States.

Justice Brown writes a dissenting opinion, which is concerned in by Justices Brewer and Harlan. In concluding it he says:

"I regret that the court in this case has taken what seems to me a step backward in American jurisprudence, and has virtually returned to the old doctrine of comity which it was the very object of the full faith and credit clause of the Constitution to supersede."

Justice Holmes in a separate dissenting opinion says: "I think that the decision not only reverses a previous well-considered decision of this court, but is likely to cause considerable disaster to innocent persons."

He then quotes at some length the case of Atherton vs. Atherton, which he says is reversed by to-day's decision.

The case of Peter Lee Atherton vs. Mary G. Atherton was in many respects similar to the one decided to-day. Mrs. Atherton, who had lived in Clinton, N. Y., before her marriage in 1888, left her husband in Louisville in 1891, and returned to Clinton. Her husband obtained a decree of divorce against her in 1893 in Louisville on the ground of abandonment. His wife then brought a suit in the New York courts and obtained a divorce from bed and board and an order for her support. The case was carried to the New York Court of Appeals, and it decided that the Kentucky decree was void as against the wife.

The United States Supreme Court, in a decision handed down April 15, 1901, reversed the decision of the New York courts. It was set forth that every rule of the Kentucky law was followed in giving notice to Mrs. Atherton of the action against her, and the opinion by Justice Gray said in conclusion:

"The wife not being within the State of Kentucky, if constructive notice, with all the precautions prescribed by the statutes of that State, were insufficient to bind her by a decree dissolving the bonds of matrimony, the husband could only get a divorce by suing in the State in which she was found, and by the very fact of suing her there he would admit that she had acquired a separate domicile and would disprove his own ground of action that she had abandoned him in Kentucky.

"The result is that the courts of New York have not given to the Kentucky decree of divorce the faith and credit which it had by law in Kentucky, and that therefore their judgments must be reversed."

HOUSE PASSES BANK BILL.

Would Permit Larger Loans to One Person—Surplus for Loans.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The House to-day by a vote of 193 to 7 passed the bill which adds the surplus of National banks to their capital stock for loan purposes and also provides that 20 per cent. of the capital stock may be loaned to one person or concern. National banks now cannot loan to exceed 10 per cent. of their capital to any one concern.

Mr. Shartel of Missouri, who called up the bill, said the banks were demanding the legislation and the necessity for some such relief had been pointed out by every Controller of the Currency since the inauguration of the National banking system.

Mr. Gillespie of Texas said the bill was in the interest of the large borrower and against the small borrower.

Mr. De Armond of Missouri thought the legislation was in the interest of the bankers and not the people.

Mr. Pujo of Louisiana said that "should this legislation be enacted it would add to the legal lending volume about $44,000,000, as the surplus is now some $442,000,000."

NO SHOPPING CONSCIENCE.

So Mrs. Nahan Says in Advising Traveling Americans.

The American girl abroad may eat chocolate if she will with the hearty co-operation of the Consumers' League, but she must order her Paris gowns in good season. Mrs. Frederick Nathan, the league's President, told the American girl in the person of the Daughters of Indiana all this at the meeting of their club yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Astor.

"I can always tell an American when I am abroad," said Mrs. Nathan, "for the first thing she does in a railroad carriage is to take out a little package of chocolate and begin to nibble it. To-day I have learned that there are six different kinds of chocolate that are on the white list of the Consumers' League of Switzerland, and all those kinds she may nibble with an easy conscience, for the employes are properly treated. I received the list this morning, and I am going to read the names."

Mrs. Nathan told a story at which not all the Daughters smiled. It was about a little boy who was leaving the home where he had spent all the years of his young life. He said good-bye to every one and everything, to the shopkeepers, to the horses and cows, and even the chickens. Then as he was taking his last look at his old home from the windows of the train he suddenly remembered the Being whose eye, he had been told, had been ever upon him here to see if he was a good or a bad little boy. With this last thought in mind he waved his hand and cried:

"Good-bye, God, I am going to Indiana."

"Many woman, it would seem," said Mrs. Nathan, using this as an illustration, "when they start out to make purchases wave their hands and say: 'Good-bye, God, I'm going shopping,' for they leave their consciences at home.

Robert Hunter, who is an ex-Indiana man, told a story about his native State. It was one of George Ade's, given at a dinner in Chicago.

"'I shall never go back on Indiana,' Mr. Ade told the Chicagoans, speaking with dignity and decision. Chicago courteously clapped a thundering applause.

"'Nor back to it, either,' concluded Mr. Ade.

"I think, when I see all these Indiana women here, that there are a good many other Indiana people who echo that sentiment," said Mr. Hunter.

Mrs. Albert Salinger told of the public-school lectures, which she said belonged to the new preventive philanthropy. Rudolph E. Reuter played two solos on the piano. It was the Daughters of Indiana President's Day yesterday, and many club Presidents were guests. Miss Mary Garrett Hay presided.

STORY OF A UNION KILLING.

Walking Delegate's Pistol Did the Job—Victim's Iron Bar Useless.

The trial of Michael J. Farley, a walking delegate of the International Wire, Wood, and Metal Lathers' Association, who is charged with killing George Tully, a member of the Enterprise Steamfitters' Association, was resumed yesterday before Justice O'Gorman, in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court. James Hewlett, a foreman of the Metal Lathers' Association, who was with Farley in the building at 135th Street and Lexington Avenue when Tully was shot to death, testified yesterday that he had seen the steamfitter pick up a heavy iron bar just before Farley fired at him.

John West, another member of the Steamfitters' Association, who was with Tully, testified that some time after the quarrel began Hewlett was heard to say to Tully:

"If you don't keep quiet I'll do you."

Whereupon Farley said, according to West:

"I'll do him right now."

West testified that Farley pulled his revolver and fired as he spoke, and that Tully did not pick up the iron bar until after the first shot had been fired.

TAMMANY ELECTS SACHEMS.

Day Made the Society's Treasurer in Peter F. Meyer's Place.

Two new sachems and a new Treasurer were elected by the Tammany Society last night. Joseph P. Day was elected Treasurer to succeed Peter F. Meyer, resigned. Meyer was one of the "Croker Old Guard," while Day is a stanch supporter of Charles F. Murphy and lives in Murphy's Eighteenth Assembly District. He is a real estate auctioneer, as was Mr. Meyer.

The new Sachems are Daniel F. Cohalan and William Dalton, succeeding, respectively, the late Thomas J. Dunn and Justice Victor J. Dowling of the Supreme Court. Cohalan is a lawyer of 273 Broadway, and lives in the Thirty-second Assembly District, of which Senator James J. Frawley is the Tammany leader. Dalton is the leader of the Eleventh District and an old Croker follower.

The other Sachems, who were re-elected, are John F. Ahearn, John Fox, Asa Bird Gardiner, Randolph Guggenheimer, Louis F. Haffen, Patrick Keenan, Charles F. Murphy, Daniel F. McMahon, George W. Plunkitt, John J. Scannell, and Timothy D. Sullivan. Thomas F. Smith was re-elected Secretary, Bryan P. Henry Sagamore, and John A. Boyle Wiskinkie.

Most of the Tammany district leaders were present, and many of the men who attended left just after the meeting to attend the Jefferson dinner of the Democratic Club.

Chairman Shonts Returning.

Leon Pepperman, assistant chief of the Washington office of the commission, sailed from Colon for New York to-day on the steamer Colon. Shonts went to the Isthmus principally to see R. P. Schwerin, Vice President of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, to arrange some matters pending with that company. He has been on the Isthmus about a week.

FOOD.

A WOMAN DOCTOR

Was Quick to See That Coffee Poison Was Doing the Mischief.

A lady tells of a bad case of coffee poisoning and tells it in a way so simple and straightforward that literary skill could not improve it.

"I had neuralgic headaches for 12 years," she says, "and have suffered untold agony. When I first began to have them I weighed 140 pounds, but they brought me down to 110. I went to many doctors and they gave me only temporary relief. So I suffered on, till one day in 1904 a woman doctor told me to drink Postum Food Coffee. She said I looked like I was coffee poisoned.

"So I began to drink Postum and I gained 15 pounds in the first few weeks and am still gaining, but not so fast as at first. My headaches began to leave me after I had used Postum about two weeks—long enough I expect to get the coffee poison out of my system.

"Now that a few months have passed since I began to use Postum Food Coffee I can gladly say that I never know what a neuralgic headache is like any more, and it was nothing but Postum that cured me. Before I used Postum I never went out alone; I would get bewildered and would not know which way to turn. Now I go alone and my head is as clear as a bell. My brain and nerves are stronger than they have been for years." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason. Read the little book, "The Road to Wellville," in pkgs.

THE OLD PUTNAM HOUSE IN THE SHERIFF'S HANDS

KNOWN AS SUICIDE HALL

Notables Who Have Thronged Its Corridors in More Prosperous Days—House May Reopen.

The surviving members of the Old Guard of the Putnam House have been disconsolate for a week. A man from the Sheriff's office has been camping on the doorsteps of the ancient hostelry at Fourth Avenue and Twenty-sixth Street since last Tuesday, and the furnishings are to be sold at auction to-morrow. Never, in the half century of its history, has the hotel been so nearly closed.

The announcement in the judgment roll, published last Wednesday, that Anderson, Charles A., owed Rosendahl, Albert, $283, meant nothing to the old fellows who have visited the lobby of the Putnam House every morning for the last twenty, thirty, and forty years to read their papers and exchange comments on current topics.

All of the real "old timers" in "little old New York" know the Putnam House. It was not famous just because it stands across the way from Madison Square Garden. The latter is a comparatively recent institution, and one of the "old timers" said last night that it is at least fifty-one years since Lawrence Kerr started a "beanery" on the corner.

"Why," said the old-timer, "there was nothing but a railroad station over there then. I guess it was the New Haven's old station."

But when the Garden became the great showplace, the show staffs—freaks, athletes, six-day bicycle riders, and the rest—all stopped at the Putnam House. Some who didn't sleep in the house took their meals there, and a dozen years ago citizens of an inquiring turn of mind used to go into the restaurant just to watch the bicycle riders eat.

The place has grown more desolate for a week, and last night the climax was reached. All of the old employes had gone away. Eugene R. Falck, who has run the barber's shop for a good many years, brushed off an old-time customer after shaving, borrowed a pencil, and wrote on a large sheet of yellow paper which he pasted over a lookingglass:

"This barber shop will move around the corner to-morrow."

From the outside the famous old bar looked just the same as it did on a Sunday morning more than a decade ago, when the Raines bill became a law. The shades were up, lights burned dimly within, and bottles glistened behind the bar.

"Nothin' doin'," said the Sheriff's man on the doorstep. "Looks good, but I don't believe there's a drink in the joint."

The hotel office was almost as dim as the bar; most of the lights were turned out, and two brand-new clerks were behind the desk. The register was illuminated by a tolerably strong light. A gray-haired woman walked in and, depositing a suit case on the floor, wrote her name in the book. She hailed from East Orange, N. J. The bellboy of the remaining two who did not wear a uniform marched forward grinning, and, picking up the suit case, carried it to the room assigned to the woman. He returned in a moment and said:

"She wants to go to another hotel."

"Bring the suit case down here and keep it till she pays for the room," said one of the new clerks.

"Aw, what's the use?" said the boy. "There ain't nuthin' in it."

A lonesome black and white cat wandered into the restaurant, but there were no eatables in sight. There was a spoon on one table, a napkin on another, and a water glass on a third. Three groups of pictures remained on the walls of the office. One group was made of steamboat and railroad advertisements, the second lent color to the desolate scene with representations of famous race horses of by-gone days, while the third group was composed of florid advertisements of champagne.

The old hotel gained a good deal of notoriety in its day on account of the frequent suicides there. Sometimes it was called "Suicide Hall," and again "Suicide Hotel." Leonard Kerr, the son of Lawrence, succeeded to the management many years ago, but Charles A. Anderson, had been in charge for some time. Rosendahl, who got a judgment against Anderson, is a cigar dealer. John L. Martin of 314 Madison Avenue said last night that he is the President and principal stockholder in a holding company which now controls the property. He says that the hotel will be continued, but under a different style and management.

TWO CHINAMEN DEAD OF GAS.

Plumber Almost Killed Trying to Save Them from Poisonous Fumes.

Two Chinese laundrymen met a horrible death yesterday in the Fort Hamilton section of Third Avenue, Brooklyn, and William Dunn, a plumber, who tried to rescue them, was taken to the Norwegian Hospital unconscious. He had inhaled the same deadly gas which killed the Chinamen.

John Kee and Cho Chung were ordered a short time ago by the Board of Health to do away with a stagnant pool which had formed in the yard behind their laundry at 9,208 Third Avenue. Yesterday afternoon Joe Kee took a shovel and began to fill in the hole.

It is believed that when he threw the earth into the pond, which had an average depth of eight feet, the disturbance liberated poisonous gases. He was overcome, and fell into the stagnant water. His cries attracted his partner, Cho Chung, who, running to his assistance, found his partner, Joe Kee, apparently drowning.

Chung ran to the edge of the pond and held out his hand to Kee. Whether he was dragged into the pond by Kee or was overcome in his turn by the poisonous fumes from the bottom of the pool is not known. William Dunn, a plumber of 9,210 Third Avenue, hearing the cries of the men, ran into their yard and saw both Chinamen struggling in the water.

The plumber shouted to a man in the street to bring help and then ran toward the pond. When he was within six feet of the edge of the pond he was suddenly overcome and fell unconscious. The man in the street to whom he had called apparently thought it was a fire and sent in an alarm which brought Engine Company 142 to the place. The police reserves also arrived. They found Dunn face downward on the ground and the Chinamen, lying in comparatively shallow water.

The unconscious plumber was carried to the street and a surgeon from the Norwegian Hospital was summoned. The bodies of the Chinamen were fished from the pond with the aid of long hook poles. Joe Kee and Cho Chung were both dead. Dunn was taken to the hospital, where it was said last night that he would probably recover.

ST. NICHOLAS SOCIETY HAS A PAAS FESTIVAL

300 Eggs, Laid in Baskets of Course, for the Members.

BIG NEWS FROM KANSAS

One of Her Statesmen Says That His State Produced the Original Yellow Dog.

The stewards of the Saint Nicholas Society have been trying for a considerable time to educate an intelligent hen to the point of laying an egg with a handle like the Jersey hen recently on record. The object of this somewhat unusual endeavor was not explained by President Austen G. Fox to the society when it gathered for its annual Paas Festival at Delmonico's last night, but he made record of the good intentions of the hen, which had so far made progress in her education as to lay all her this year's Easter Monday eggs in very neat baskets with handles—so that all the diners might carry them home without danger of having an accident in a coat-tail pocket.

The Saint Nicholas hen was prolific. She had laid an egg for each of the 300 who came to the Paas Festival. And in honor of the family triumph, the society rooster did a little Paas celebrating himself and perched proudly atop a weather vane in the centre of the guests' table right in front of President Fox. He was flanked by a pair of rabbits at either end. They balanced themselves on two big yellow pumpkins, the memory of the harvest time that was celebrated last Fall.

But there is among the sons of Saint Nicholas a custom seeming queer to those not to the manner born, and the same hen-educating stewards are its principal exponents. Last night they all marched out between the courses, as if between the acts at a theatre, and returned with much pomp of liveried negroes and blare of trumpets.

Yet the Paas Festival is by no means a dry one, as the Congressman from Kansas said when he came to speak. He feared even that his departure from the drought of his native State into this land flowing with cocktails and extra dry might unsettle the thoughts that he had mustered for his extempore remarks.

When the St. Nicholas folk got through eating they bade Philip Campbell, Representative from Kansas, speak to them. This he did, and he told one thing which interested the Dutchmen greatly. It was the origin of the Yellow Dog. When first seen the beast was trotting along beneath a Kansas prairie schooner which the Hon. Mr. Campbell described. The rest of the outfit consisted of a cow with one horn, a horse with one eye, some stovepipe, a plow, mattress, man, woman, and about five children. From such an origin came the State which has since produced, according to the Congressman, mostly hot air, grasshoppers, and reformers.

Editor John McElroy of The National Tribune of Washington, D. C., said he admired the Dutch, but he was grateful that there were not more of them. He wanted some of the good things of the world for his kinsmen, the Scotch, and for the other peoples.

"Why," said the Washington editor, "we cannot take a railroad trip without paying tribute to the uncrowned Dutchman who is King of the transportation system of the United States, and every time we light a lamp it burns in honor of another uncrowned Dutch potentate of the Standard Oil, who is dividing up the world like another Caesar, and getting more tribute from it than all the twelve Caesars put together. While we are forced to admire him, we cannot be sufficiently thankful that he wasn't born triplets.

"Into whatever town we may go we will find a man with a Van in his name owning the best block on the best corner, dozing his Sunday mornings in the best pew in the church, holding mortgages on his neighbors' property, and at last sleeping away the centuries in the coziest, shadiest lot in the cemetery."

Some of the Dutchmen, permanent and temporary, who attended the festival of Paas were Justices Blanchard and Vernon M. Davis of the Supreme Court, and ex-Judge Mortimer C. Addoms; Judge Holt of the United States Circuit Court, H. Rieman Duval, Frederick H. Eaton, Stuyvesant Fish, Col. William Jay, Gordon Macdonald, Charles F. McKim, F. W. Rhinelander, George L. Rives, Beverley R. Robinson, Bronson Winthrop, and John C. Wilmerding.

TILLMAN AFTER BANKS.

Introduces a Resolution for Inquiry Into Campaign Gifts.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—When the Senate convened to-day Mr. Tillman introduced this resolution:

Resolved, That the Committee on Finance be directed to inquire whether or not the National banks have made contributions in aid of political committees, and if so, to what extent, and why the facts have not been discovered by the Controller of the Currency; and whether or not such contributions have been embezzlements, abstractions, or willful misapplications of the funds of the banks which call for restitutions and criminal prosecutions.

Said committee is also directed to inquire whether or not the National banks of Chicago have recently engaged in transactions beyond their lawful powers in connection with the recent failure of a bank in that city, and whether such failure involved illegalities and crimes; and also to inquire whether the National banks in Ohio have been in the habit of paying large sums of money in a secret and illicit manner to the County Treasurers of Ohio as a compensation to said Treasurers for making deposits of public money with such banks; and to report the facts to the Senate and the opinion of the committee whether any legal proceedings should be instituted on account of the transactions disclosed, and whether the public interest requires any amendments of the existing National banking laws.

Mr. Tillman asked for immediate consideration of the resolution, but under objection it went over.

The Unattachable Goslin.

Justice Clinch of the Supreme Court granted an attachment for $10,150 yesterday against Alfred R. Goslin, in favor of Whitney & Stephenson of Pittsburg, Pa., growing out of the sale of 200 shares of stock of the New York Electric Brake and Coupler Company, a New Jersey corporation, during 1899. The suit was begun in June, 1903. Goslin disappeared on March 27. The police would also like to attach him—to a cell in the Tombs.

GORKY'S COMPANION GOT $1,500,000 FOR REVOLT

Then Merchant Who Gave It Killed Himself, Russian Says.

GOVERNMENT MADE HIM FLEE

Identity of Morosoff Not Established—Gorky Still Hiding—No Action to Deport Him.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 16.—Maxim Gorky's reception in the United States is giving the Russian Government considerable concern. A high official made this statement here to-day:

"In listening to Gorky the American people should understand that he is not a Liberal or a reformer, but a revolutionist pure and simple. He is certainly a writer of talent, perhaps even a genius, and much that he says regarding the conditions in Russia doubtless is true, but it should be made clear that his object is not reform but revolution.

"Mme. Andreieva, who accompanies him, is not his wife. She also is a revolutionist, and M. Mosoff, one of Moscow's merchant princes, gave her $1,500,000 for the revolutionary cause. When the Government last Summer got proof of this fact M. Morosoff was allowed to take twenty-four hours to leave Russia or stand trial here. He fled to Paris, where he committed suicide in chagrin."

M. Sawa Timofeivitch Morosoff of Moscow, who was known as "the Russian Cotton King," was prominent in the Liberal movement last year, and it is possible that the dispatch refers to him, although no report of his leaving Russia or his suicide has come to this country. It was he who, immediately after the "Red Sunday" massacre of Jan. 22, 1905, publicly accused the Grand Duke Sergius, who subsequently was assassinated, of having embezzled funds donated to the Red Cross Socity. M. Morosoff also offered to give bail for Gorky when the writer was arrested on the charge of conspiring against the Government. In March, 1905, M. Morosoff published a call for a meeting of leading business men in Russia to make representations to the Government regarding the menace of the political situation to the trade and industry of the country.

Gorky's whereabouts was carefully hid from the public yesterday. H. Gaylord Wilshire had a cablegram for him and didn't know where to deliver it. Leroy Scott, another friend of Gorky, denied himself to interviewers, and sent the message that he knew nothing about Gorky. Abraham Cahan declared he had learned nothing and was likely to hear still less. Only L. E. Miller, editor of Die Wahrheit, could throw any light on the whereabouts of the missing author. He said:

"Gorky is cut off from the whole world. Only one man knows where he is, and he is under oath not to divulge the secret or even that he knows it. To those who have necessary business with Gorky he communicates through a third party. All I know is that Gorky has not left the city, and I do not think will do so, but his quarters of to-day will not be his quarters of to-morrow."

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The question of the marital status of Maxim Gorky has not been officially brought to the attention of the Department of Commerce and Labor, nor is it known here what steps, if any, are being taken by the Immigration Commissioner at New York. It was said to-day at the Bureau of Immigration that the matter would be investigated if complaint was officially made that Gorky's companion is other than his legal wife. The officials here feel satisfied that if the case is one warranting official action the Immigration Commissioner at New York has ample authority to act.

RUSSIA'S LATEST LOAN.

British Financial World Will Welcome Signature of Contract.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.
[Copyright, 1906.]

LONDON, April 16.—The Times in its City article to-morrow will say:

"The signature of the contract for the new Russia loan will be welcomed by the financial world when it resumes business after the holidays, since it implies that the great operation, the expectation of which has to a certain extent checked other enterprises, will now be dealt with promptly.

"The loan is larger than recently was expected, being 2,250,000,000f., ($450,000,000.) Paris gets 1,120,000,000f. London 330,000,000f., Austria 165,000,000f., Holland 55,000,000f., and half a milliard is reserved for Russia. The fact that New York will not participate is doubtless due to the present preoccupation of American finance, and is perhaps little to be regretted, since in its subscriptions to our war loans and those of Japan, New York has shown itself more ready to realize than retain its holdings.

"The absence of Berlin from the list of subscribing centres, it is believed, will stimulate subscriptions in London. German subscribers are likely to apply heavily here, so that the loan may be expected to bring a large amount of foreign money to this market in the form of subscriptions from the Continent, while the terms of the contract do not permit Russia to withdraw the proceeds in gold."

SENATE FIGHT OVER MORMON.

Dubois Objects to the President's Appointment of a Bishop.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The distribution of Federal patronage in Idaho between Gentiles and Mormons was aired in an executive session of the Senate to-day in an effort by Senator Heyburn to have confirmed the nomination of Bishop F. M. Winters as Postmaster of Montpelier.

Objection was made by Senator Dubois because Winters, a Mormon, is to displace J. L. Underwood, an ex-Union soldier and the only Gentile Federal office holder in a Gentile city. Senator Dubois protested against a disposition of the Administration to "saddle" Mormon officials on Gentile communities.

The nomination went over under the objection.

Mr. Crumpacker stated that the bill met the recommendation of Secretary Taft. It was passed by a vote of 217 to 27.

ODELL SURE OF VICTORY IN REAPPORTIONMENT

23 Out of 36 Leaders Will Vote for His Plan.

THAT OR NOTHING WILL GO

If the Odell-Halpin Scheme Fails to Pass the Legislature, No Other Can.

Chairman Odell of the Republican State Committee got twenty-two of the Republican district leaders together last night at the State Committee headquarters in the Fifth Avenue Hotel and indorsed the Odell-Halpin plan for reapportioning New York County's Senate districts. In addition to the twenty-two leaders who attended one other out of a total of thirty-six, sent word that he would stand by the action of his fellows and support the Odell-Halpin plan against the Parsons plan.

The conference of the leaders lasted more than two hours, but at no time was there any disagreement between those present. They included Richard A. Van Cott, E. H. Healey, Smith Pine, Charles K. Lexow, John H. Gunner, Samuel S. Koenig, Ambrose O. Neal, Charles B. Page, John P. Windolph, Frank V. Raymond, Louis J. Hoeninger, Joseph Hackett, William T. Ten Eyck, Lemuel E. Quigg, (for Theodore P. Gilman,) Joseph Levinson, William Halpin, Abraham Gruber, Jacob Newstead, James E. March, Edward Lauterbach, (for Bainbridge Colby,) and Samuel S. Strasbourger.

Under the Odell-Halpin plan, as adopted, three certain Republican Senate districts are laid out for Manhattan and the Bronx, each with a certain 2,500 Republican plurality on a basis of the Higgins vote in 1904. One district covers the section now represented by Senator Saxe, another the district of Senator Page, and the third the district which Senator Elsberg represents at Albany. The plan does not go into the details of the new Assembly districts, but maps them out in a tentative way, which leaves almost all of the present district leaders undisturbed. The details of the Assembly apportionment would be worked out immediately after the passage of the Senate apportionment by the Legislature, so it would be placed before the Board of Aldermen by which the Assembly district lines will be fixed.

While Chairman Parsons of the Republican County Committee is left in a hopeless minority in the Executive Committee, composed of the district leaders, the Odell forces are not unprepared for a fight in that committee when it meets Thursday afternoon, and for a further battle in the County Committee, which meets on Thursday evening. Last night lists of the County Committee members were consulted at the conference, and the leaders checked off the names of the men they felt sure would support them against Chairman Parsons. The result was pleasing to the Odell-Halpinites in the conference and State Chairman Odell was assured that, should County Chairman Parsons fight the issue out on the floor at the committee meeting, the Odell plan would be certain of success.

From the Parsons camp there were renewed threats last night that the matter would be taken to the Legislature as a court of appeal, and the lawmaking body urged to back the Roosevelt-Higgins combination against Odell to the extent of turning down the Odell-Halpin apportionment plan, even though it have the indorsement of the Republican County Committee. In such an event, however, it was asserted by the Odell contingent, no apportionment at all would go through the Legislature at this session, thus leaving matters as they now stand for another year.

FEDERAL OFFICIALS IN BUFFALO GRAFT EXPOSE

Postmaster Greiner and Collector Murray Both Indicted.

BRIBERY AND GRAND LARCENY

Greiner Accused of Giving $5,000 Bribe to County Officials—$28,870 Paid on Bogus Warrants.

Special to The New York Times.

BUFFALO, April 16.—Seventeen indictments in the cemetery-armory graft cases were reported by the Grand Jury to-day, two Federal office holders, Postmaster Fred Greiner and Fred O. Murray, Collector of Customs, recently appointed, being among those indicted.

Ansley Wilcox, friend of President Roosevelt, inspected the indictment against Greiner and Murray this afternoon. He declined to state whether the inspection was at the request of the authorities at Washington. Greiner and Murray have pleaded not guilty and demand speedy trials. They may ask for a suspension from Federal duties pending disposal of the indictments against them.

Fred Greiner has been Postmaster of Buffalo for nearly five years, and Fred O. Murray is the recently appointed Collector of Customs. Greiner was indicted on the charge of bribing three Supervisors by the payment to them of $5,000, and Murray is accused of grand larceny of $28,870 from the county while he was Deputy County Treasurer.

Both men appeared in court and gave bail in the sum of $10,000 each. The three other indictments in the cemetery matter were against Robert S. Woodburn, formerly Clerk of the Board of Supervisors and now secretary to Representative William H. Ryan; John H. Stock, a former Supervisor from Cheektowaga, and Bernard J. Pitass, former Supervisor from the Eleventh Ward in this city and now a member of the Board of Aldermen from the same ward.

The specific charges against Greiner are that he paid a bribe of $5,000 to John H. Stock, a Supervisor in 1901, for votes for the purchase for $80,000 by the county of the old North Street Cemetery for a site for the new armory for the Sixty-fifth Regiment. Greiner was attorney for the cemetery.

It is stated that Greiner was held up for the bribe. The Supervisors banded together and declined to vote for the purchase until they were paid. The $5,000 bribe is said to have been divided between Stock and former Supervisors Byron D. Gibson and William B. Jackson, who are indicted for receiving the bribe.

Murray is accused of the grand larceny of $28,870 paid on fraudulent warrants to Rowland J. Conover, a contractor who removed bodies from the cemetery. Conover, who is charged with counting single bones as bodies, has been convicted and has confessed to the Grand Jury.

The contract for the removal of the bodies from the cemetery was secured by R. J. Conover. He was to receive $15 for each body raised and reinterred in another cemetery. It was charged that the county was mulcted in the sum of $100,000, and Conover was convicted on a charge of grand larceny. Former County Auditor John W. Neff was jointly indicted with Conover, but has not yet been tried.

In Conover's trial evidence was given showing that the bones found in single graves were divided into several parcels, which were buried as separate bodies. Since his conviction Conover has appeared before the Grand Jury, and, it is reported, laid before it evidence which has involved several members of the Board of Supervisors and some prominent political leaders.

Greiner and Murray, alleging their occupation of public office and liability to removal or suspension, will demand trial before the other accused, who are now in office.

TO DEEPEN NIAGARA RIVER.

Power Company Would Save American Falls and Get Power, Too.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—A plan to retain the beauty of Niagara Falls and yet permit great power to be taken from the Niagara River, was presented before the House Committee on Rivers and Harbors to-day on behalf of the Niagara County Irrigation and Water Supply Company. The occasion was a hearing on the Burton bill to preserve the falls.

The Niagara Company has a State charter, authorizing it to take an unlimited quantity of water from the river for the development of power.

H. L. Cooper, in charge of the engineering features of its plant, presented a plan to increase the amount of water going over the American side of the falls, and at the same time permit the use of such water as his company would need. This plan was to lower the bed of the river for a short distance above the falls, and so draw water from the Canadian side. He explained there could be no objection from Canada, as the treaty now in force provides for an equal division of the water, and the Canadian side now has greatly over half the flow.

Engineer M. A. Viel explained that while his company had a right to unlimited use of the water, it contemplated using but 17,000 cubic feet per second. From this 450,000 horse power could be developed. Industries which would depend on this power, he said, would furnish employment to 228,000 men and yield in gross annual products $514,000,000.

FREE ALCOHOL BILL PASSES.

House Votes 224 to 7 for It—Wood Alcohol Opposition.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The House to-day by a vote of 224 to 7 passed the Free Alcohol bill.

Mr. Payne of New York explained the provisions of the measure. He said it provides that denatured domestic alcohol may be withdrawn from bond without the payment of an internal revenue tax for use not only in the arts and industries, but for fuel, light, and power. The bill provides for its denaturing—that is, making it poisonous so that it cannot be used as a beverage or medicinal purposes.

AFTER THE HEARST WORKERS.

Indictments Expected Soon for the Forging of Nomination Petitions.

The Grand Jury began yesterday to look into the alleged forging of the petition by which William Randolph Hearst was nominated for Mayor on the Municipal Ownership ticket last year as well as the forging of other petitions in the same city campaign. The only witness examined was Timothy D. Driscoll, a Hearst organizer, who was closely questioned about the manner in which the petitions were arranged for.

It was said yesterday that several indictments will be returned before the end of the week, and that these will affect several Assemblymen and Aldermen, as well as some of the Hearst workers "higher up."

This Surplus of

China and Bric-a-Brac

Presents the Greatest Values in Months.

ALL OF THIS CHINA AND BRIC-A-BRIC was imported for this season. There is an immense variety and a great quantity. Yet the stock altogether was but the little balance left to George Borgfeldt & Co. after that great importing house had wound up the season's business.

We bought the stock from Borgfeldt at half price and less. We are offering it now at HALF PRICE AND LESS.

It is so various that it is hard in any one advertisement to give descriptions of everything. But we can say that there is much here to suit every taste; that neither this Store nor any other store can sell finer wares at the full prices, and that prices now are half and less than half. Here is just a hint:

Austrian Vases.

Many might sell these as Vienna so perfectly has the decoration been copied. The styles are varied and graceful, the color a dark blue overlaid with gold in lace effect and having a Vienna like panel on the sides in well executed figure groups.

25c. Printed Chiffon Batiste, 12½c.

SOME OF THE PATTERNS are exactly like dainty foulards—especially the gray suiting effects. This is a mercerized cotton fabric, cool and soft as only Batiste can be, yet desirable for street wear because the close weave of the fine threads makes the materials untransparent.

One of the best manufacturers in America made it to sell at 25c. a yard. The good colors, distinctive printings and lustrous mercerized finish make it most like pretty Summer silk of any cotton fabric we have had to sell as low as ....12½c.

Pink and Blue Pumps and Ties Are Taking the Town by Storm.

HALF THE CHARM of possessing a dancing frock has been in pretty silken hose and satin slippers to match. Now one may have just as dainty slippers that exactly match the Summer gingham or dimity—only the material is fine, light canvas, and the cost is far less than that of satin slippers.

A well known maker told us about these canvas Pumps and Ties months ago—gave us the chance to be the first Store in Brooklyn to show them. We ordered 500 pair; but when we saw the reception they met with, we hurried to wire duplicates and triplicates of the first order.

Here's the description:—Short, pointed toes, a low cut to show instep arch and embroidered stocking; small, high Cuban heels and a wide ribbon bow. Pink, light blue and white a-plenty—and anybody who wants lavender or green or navy may have them in ten days' time at the same low price of..........$3.50

More have come to fill up the gaps the Easter buying made. They are the dependable Loeser "Innovation" sorts, perfect in fit and style. These new 1906 models have all the snappy touches seen usually only on higher priced Pumps and Ties. Yet the price is the regular "Innovation" price of $3.50 a pair

YOU ARE SIMPLY PUTTING OFF THE EVIL DAY when you place in cold storage furs already infested with moth-eggs.

The eggs won't hatch during the storing season and during that period the garment will be safe. But the eggs will hatch as soon as the garment is removed into the warm atmosphere of your home. The ravages of one worm will ruin a valuable fur.

Nothing but the thorough cleansing we give furs with our vacuum process can be counted on to remove not merely the dirt and dust but all insects and eggs.

Our cold storage rooms are without doubt the most thoroughly equipped for fur-protection in the world.

The price we charge for storing covers full insurance against moths, fire and burglary.

IMMIGRATION RECORDS ALL BEATEN THIS WEEK

Total Arrivals by Next Saturday Put at 45,000.

25,534 ARE ALREADY IN

850,632 Foreigners Entered This Port in 1905—Number for 1906 May Reach 1,000,000.

When the United States Bureau of Immigration on Ellis Island closed its examination of immigrants last night 5,233 aliens had been examined in the course of the day and there were still on ships in the harbor awaiting examination 18,301 more, with the certainty that the 18,000 would be increased by 1,907 more by noon to-day. The whole makes a record unapproachable in the history of immigration at the Port of New York.

In addition to the great throng here already as many more are expected this week, and midnight Saturday next the greatest week in the history of immigration to the United States will be at an end. There is not an official on Ellis Island who believes that all the immigrants will have been examined and passed on by that time.

Early yesterday morning the entire Ellis Island force of Inspectors, doctors, and examiners were at their posts, and then began one of the hardest day's work in the history of the service, even if at nightfall the number received on the island was about 1,000 below the record day's work. This day was almost exactly one year ago, when on April 13, 1905, 7,300 immigrants were landed on Ellis Island.

The ships relieved of their steerage passengers yesterday were the American liner St. Paul, the Cunarder Umbria, the Italian liner Equita, and the Celtic of the White Star Line. With the exception of the Equita the passengers were nearly all of the English-speaking races. The Equita's quota was in the main part Italians. When the Inspectors quit work there were still over 1,200 aliens on the island who had been detained for various reasons for further examination.

Commissioner Watchorn and Assistant Commissioner Murray both declared that these are record-breaking times on the island. Mr. Murray said that even if no more ships arrived in the meantime, it would tax the force on duty to pass those already in port by next Friday. Of the vessels that got in yesterday, none of whose steerage passengers was examined, the Cunarder Carpathia brought the largest number, the persons in her third-class compartments totaling 2,197. The French liner Bretagne brought nearly 1,500, and it was necessary on that vessel to berth them in the saloon apartments, in the dining rooms, and every other available space that could be found. This liner brought only third class passengers.

Some of the vessels that got in Sunday, whose passengers will be taken to the island to-day, are the French liner La Champagne, the Hamburg-American liner Bluecher, the Columbia of the Anchor Line, the North German Lloyd Gneisenau, and the Italian liner Citta di Genova. The steerage arrivals on the vessels in yesterday will not be examined until Sunday's arrivals have been disposed of. These vessels are the new Holland-America liner Nieuw Amsterdam, the Red Star liner Zeeland, the Republic of the White Star Line, the Cunarder Carpathia, the Hamburg-American liners Prinz Oskar Moltke, and the Algeria, and the French liner La Bretagne.

Despite the enormous number of arrivals, Ellis Island was less picturesque yesterday than usual. The Equita was talked about a good deal, owing to the fact that with the exception of about a dozen all her thousand and odd passengers were men.

Before this week the record week was the one that ended March 31 last. That week 30,706 immigrants arrived on the island. This week's total will be at least 15,000 greater. The record month is May, 1905, when 114,173 aliens got in, while in all 1905 850,632 foreigners entered the United States via Ellis Island. The indications are that 1906 will establish a much higher record, one estimate placing the expected total very little short of 1,000,000 people.

The vessels that have arrived this week, with their hailing ports and the number of steerage passengers brought over, are:

St. Paul	Southampton	844
Umbria	Liverpool	765
Celtic	Liverpool	2,393
Bluecher	Hamburg	1,649
La Champagne	Havre	951
Columbia	Glasgow	756
Citta di Genova	Naples	1,251
Equita	Naples	1,231
Gneisenau	Bremen	1,042
Total		9,882

The vessels that arrived yesterday were:

Nieuw Amsterdam	Rotterdam	1,983
Zeeland	Antwerp	1,468
Prinz Oskar	Naples	1,105
Carpathia	Naples	2,197
La Bretagne	Havre	1,449
Republic	Naples	2,508
Algeria	Marseilles	1,033
Moltke	Naples	1,145
Total		12,890

Reported by wireless yesterday was Among the other vessels due this week are the White Star liner Oceanic, the the Kaiser Wilhelm II. of the North German Lloyd Line from Bremen, which is bringing 782 more. This makes a grand total of new immigrants that will have arrived in the Port of New York this week by noon to-day of 23,534.

Cunarders Caronia and Campania, the American liner New York, the French liner La Savoie, the Italian liners Marco Minghetti and Ravenna, the Scandinavian-American liner United States, and the Hamburg-American liner Batavia.

BIG INRUSH OF FOREIGNERS.

March Immigration 70 Per Cent. Greater Than in March, 1904.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—The total immigration to the United States from all countries during the month of March, 1906, according to a statement issued by the Immigration Bureau to-day, was 133,245, or an increase of 70 per cent. over March, 1904. The number arriving in March, 1905, is given as 126,932.

The number debarred during the same month was 659, an increase of 40 per cent. over 1904. The Russian immigration to this country during March, 1906, was 24,202, an increase of 75 per cent. over 1904. In March last year 16,318 Russians came in.

AUTO AS FIRE ESCAPE.

It Wasn't Successful and Three Men Were Injured.

An automobile was used as a fire-escape at a blaze in the five-story flathouse 210 East 122d Street yesterday afternoon, but it proved a failure. Policeman Meyerstrich of the Ninth Precinct, who was off duty and walking up Third Avenue, accompanied by his wife and Policeman Wetmore of the East 126th Street Station, who saw the blaze, tried to lower the iron ladder from the first-floor fire-escape. They could only just reach it.

A packing box was brought, but this was not high enough. In the meantime the smoke filled the hall of the building, and the tenants rushed to the windows, calling for help.

Then an automobile approached and Wetmore had an idea. The car was driven up on the sidewalk directly under the fire-escape. Then, climbing up on the seats, the two policemen and Chauffeur Farrell worked desperately to wrench loose the ladder.

Suddenly the ladder gave way and fell with a crash, throwing the two policemen and Farrell to the sidewalk. Meyerstrich was picked up unconscious, with his left leg broken, while Farrell and Wetmore were badly cut and bruised. The firemen soon got the automobile out of the way, ran ladders up the front of the building, and took several women and children to the street.

Fireman Edward A. Mashbell of Engine Company No. 35 was made unconscious by smoke.

The cause of the fire is unknown and an investigation will be made.

"HANG THEM ALL," SAYS FOLK.

Missouri Militia Arresting Leaders of the Springfield Mob.

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFEILD, Mo., April 16.—More than one hundred bench warrants were issued to-day for members of the mob which lynched and burned three negroes in the public square on Saturday night. The warrants were served by the State militia now on guard here, and four men charged with being leaders in the mob were arrested this evening. Two of them are in jail and two have been released on bail.

Six companies of militia are patrolling the city. Adjt. Gen. De Armond and Gen. Clark will direct the rest of the arrests, acting under orders from Gov. Folk, and will place the prisoners in the county jail, which will be guarded by the troops.

Prosecuting Attorney Patterson, after a long telephone conversation with the Governor, announced that he would prosecute every member of the mob apprehended, for murder in the first degree. Deputy Sheriff J. D. Mack gave Patterson the names of twenty-five men who he was certain were in the mob. Other names were obtained from the Sheriff and the Sheriff's wife and strangers in town.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., April 16.—Gov. Folk before departing for St. Louis this afternoon said: "Every man who had anything to do with the murder of those negroes at Springfield should be hanged. I am going to make an example of these men that will prevent any recurrence of such outrages in Missouri. The statue of the Goddess of Liberty will have no right to stand in the public square of Springfield until justice has been done."

INDICTED FOR AUTO KILLING.

John B. Rodgers, Jr., and Chauffeur Held on Manslaughter Charge.

The Westchester County Grand Jury, which completed its session at White Plains yeesterday, found two indictments each for manslaughter in the second degree against John B. Rodgers, Jr., owner, and John Johnson, chauffeur, of the automobile which ran down and killed Mrs. Betty Kuchler and her sister, Miss Stein, while the aged women were returning from church at New Rochelle on Sunday, March 18. One of the indictments against each man is for the killing of Mrs. Kuchler and the other is for the death of her sister. Each offense is punishable with a maximum sentence of twenty years in prison.

Johnson is already under $10,000 bail, and his employer will be arrested on a bench warrant and will have an opportunity to give bond for an equal sum. In addition to the criminal actions, it is said the Kuchler family will bring a civil suit for $100,000 damages.

Contrary to expectation, the jury did not hand down a presentment against reckless automobilists in general. It was explained afterward that this was not done because the jury took the ground that the various cities and villages had their local ordinances to protect them, and if they did not enforce them it was their own fault.

MORTGAGE TAX RETURNS.

Collections in This City for Three Months Total $211,790.

City Chamberlain Patrick Keenan has sent a check for $105,895 to the State Treasurer at Albany as the State's half of the revenues collected in the city in the first quarter of the year under the mortgage tax law.

The collections amounted to $211,790, of which half goes to the State and half to the city. Manhattan furnished the biggest part of the collections, amounting to $150,955 for the quarter. Of that total in Manhattan $78,000 was collected in January.

WILL CALL WOODBURY FIRST.

The Aldermen Will Begin the Street Cleaning Inquiry To-morrow.

Chairman Max S. Grifenhagen and the members of the Aldermanic committee to investigate the Department of Street Cleaning held a meeting yesterday afternoon at the law office of William M. Ivins, counsel to the committee, at 27 William Street. It was decided to hold the first public session of the investigation to-morrow morning at 10:30 o'clock, in the Aldermanic Chamber at the City Hall, with Commissioner Woodbury on the stand.

The committee will sit on Mondays, Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays from 10:30 A. M. to 2:30 P. M., until the investigation is completed. It is expected that the examination of Commissioner Woodbury will occupy two or three days and that a like time will be required to examine Deputy Commissioner Gibson. Bowers & Sands will act as counsel for Commissioner Woodbury and William Rand, Jr., for Capt. Gibson.

Receiver for St. Urban Rents.

Justice Newburger of the Supreme Court appointed Meyer Stern receiver of the rents of the St. Urban apartment house, a twelve-story building, on the southwest corner of Central Park West and Eighty-ninth Street, pending a suit brought by the Central Park Realty Company against Peter Banner and others to foreclose a second mortgage of $100,000.

THANKSGIVING PSALM

A Rhythmical and Grateful Chant.

A teacher in a Terre Haute public school joins in the chorus:

"Teaching is a business which requires a great deal of brain and nerve force. Unless this force is renewed as fast as expended the teacher is exhausted before the close of the year. Many resort to stimulating tonics for relief.

"For 3 years I struggled against this almost complete exhaustion, getting what relief I could from doctor's tonics. Then in the Spring of 1903 I had an attack of la grippe and malaria which left me too weak to continue my work. Medicine failed to give me any relief, a change of climate failed. I thought I should never be able to go back in school again."

"I ate enough food, (the ordinary meals, white bread and vegetables,) but was hungry after meals.

"I happened at this time to read an article giving the experience of another teacher who had been helped by Grape-Nuts food. I decided to try Grape-Nuts and cream as an experiment. It was a delightful experience, and continues so after a year and a half of constant use.

"First, I noticed that I was not hungry after meals.

"In a few days that tired feeling left me, and I felt fresh and bright, instead of dull and sleepy.

"In three months, more than my usual strength returned, and I had gained 15 pounds in weight.

"I finished the year's work without any kind of tonics—was not absent from duty even half a day.

"Am still in the best of health, with all who know me wondering at the improvement.

"I tell them all, 'Try Grape-Nuts!'" Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

BANK SUES FOR DRAFT BASED ON FORGED CHECK

Seaboard National Demands $2,000 Paid on Its Account.

THE POINT OF LAW IS NEW

Will Be Carried to United States Supreme Court, No Matter How the Suit Results.

A banking suit involving a point so unusual that it has never before been considered in this State, and possibly not in the United States, is being tried before Justice Leventritt in the Supreme Court. The Seaboard National Bank of this city is endeavoring to recover from the Bank of America $2,000, the amount of a draft on the Seaboard Bank cashed by the Bank of America, returned through the Clearing House to the Seaboard Bank, and then discovered to have been indorsed with the name of a firm which really exists, but which it is alleged is fictitious so far as the check is concerned.

Charles E. Rushmore of the law firm of Stern & Rushmore, who represent the Bank of America, said yesterday that, inasmuch as a parallel case had never been before the courts, it would be carried to the United States Supreme Court, no matter what the decision might be in the lower courts.

The case is based on transactions which began in Pittsburg. An employe of the Babcock Lumber Company of Pittsburg took to the Federal National Bank of Pittsburg what purported to be a check for $2,000 signed by the company. He exchanged it for a draft on the Seaboard National Bank for the same amount. He had this draft drawn to the order of Carroll Brothers, and indorsed "Carroll Brothers" upon it. There is such a firm in Pittsburg.

The employe of the lumber company next deposited the draft in the Mellon National Bank of Pittsburg. The latter bank sent it to the Bank of America for collection. It was indorsed, passed through the Clearing House, and returned to the Seaboard Bank, where it was paid.

The officials of the Seaboard National Bank then discovered that the original check was forged, and that the indorsement on the draft was also forged. Carroll Brothers denied that they had indorsed it, or that it concerned them in any way. It is alleged, therefore, that the indorsement "Carroll Brothers" was merely a fiction, as was also the purchase of the draft from the Seaboard National Bank.

Suit was then brought against the Bank of America. Lawyer Rushmore says that it has been held that a check made payable to a fictitious person is equivalent to a check made payable to bearer, and therefore a protection to any one paying the face value of the check. The same rule, he contends, applies to a check payable to a fictitious person as to one payable to bearer, and that therefore the Bank of America is not liable.

A question of law arose as to the intention of the lumber company's employe in using the name Carroll Brothers. The defendant holds that in using this firm name the forger used it fictitiously.

The defendant maintains that the Seaboard National Bank and the Federal National Bank of Pittsburg are the parties to settle the question of responsibility, and that the Bank of America is not a party to the issue.

The case will be concluded to-day.

BROKER'S HOME ROBBED.

Mr. Lancaster Thinks He Heard the Burglars Early Yesterday Morning.

N. D. Lancaster, a member of the New York Stock Exchange, who lives at 24 East Fifty-seventh Street, notified Police Headquarters yesterday that goods worth $3,000 had been stolen from his home on Sunday night.

Mr. Lancaster thinks now that he heard the burglars in the house early yesterday morning, but the police found no traces left by any one on the doors or windows.

GIRL BARBERS NEVER WINCED.

Gas Meter Below Blew Up and Firemen Came, but They Shaved On.

With razors poised or lightly tracing wide paths over the necks and jaws of their patrons, the young women employed as barbers in the Brooklyn Female Tonsorial Parlors, at 25 Willoughby Street, never for an instant lost their nerve last night when there was an explosion under the place and the firemen rattled up and began stretching lines of hose and playing streams of water on the burning basement.

Any ordinary man barber would have made a pretense of stropping his razor to get to the window to see what all the din was about. But there was no curiosity in that corps of women shavers. They stuck to the stubbly jaws of their patrons and never once flinched.

So soothed were the patrons by the passage of soft hands around their chins and around their necks that in the chairs there was no uneasy wriggle or writhe till there came the cry "Next!" and the patrons were out of their chairs.

So was the fire by that time. The alarm was sent in on account of the misbehavior of a leaking gas meter in the basement. A plumber attempted to fix it, carrying a lighted candle. The leaky meter resented the approach of the flame and exploded.

Thirty years ago I made my first public appearance at the Centennial Exposition at Philadelphia. I was a stranger then. People took away specimens of my writing as curiosities. Today everybody knows me and these specimens fill the mail cars.

Every one of my thirty years has been a year of progress—both in quality and sales. The year 1906 is emphasizing my supremacy—my sales for the first quarter breaking all existing records.

Today I am the oldest and still the newest. Not that I was first am I best, but that I am best am I first. I am the product of the second generation of Remington artisanship. My New Models represent the experience of the old combined with the progressiveness of the new. In my present form I embody all the qualities which have made me famous—plus improvements so fundamental as to create a new standard of typewriter work.

ALCOHOLISM IS A DISEASE

The causes for alcoholism are legion. Indulgence, social surroundings, the need of stimulant to an overworked brain and a thousand other conditions may have installed the craving in the victim's system.

The result is always the same; an insidious physical disease, that gradually but steadily saps the manhood, the vitality, the brain and the will power until the final degradation of acute dipsomania is reached.

How many men to-day are saying I could stop if I made up my mind to it—and then not stopping?

Call such men drunkards and you insult them. Yet down deep in their own hearts is the ever present recognition of the fact that a power greater than that of will or moral sense is growing steadily within them.

It is a disease—this alcoholism. Remain blind to this fact; keep on regarding alcoholism as moral obliquity and there is little hope for reform. Awake to a realization that alcoholism is nothing more nor less than an abnormal condition of the physical being and set about sincerely to find relief in scientific treatment and there is certainty of regeneration and of returned normality. The is an absolute cure for alcoholism and drug addiction. It strikes at the very root of the disease by alleviating the abnormal condition of the system and destroying the craving for liquor or drugs. The strictly ethical lines upon which it was founded and has since been carried on have given it a standing both with the public and the medical profession held by no other similar institution.

12 to 48 HOURS

There is no detention from business, no suffering, no injections, no bad after effects.

JERSEY CITY SEES A REAL POLICE PLAY

CHIEF MURPHY'S OWN PLAY

Real Reformed Truant in It—Real Coppers, and, of Course, They Do Business Like This.

The newest drammer, written by Benjamin Murphy, Chief of Jersey City's Police, had what the Chief called its premiere last night in the Bijou Theatre, in Jersey City. It was a howling success. Yards and yards of red, white, and blue cheesecloth trembled with the applause.

The programme described the entertainment as a whole as a "grand high-class vaudeville entertainment given under the auspices of the Police Mutual Aid Society." The society to get the receipts. The entertainment is to be given all this week, and every night the Chief's new drammer will serve as a curtain raiser to the rest.

It must be recorded that in the entertainment the appearance and performance of Brandon and Kelly, a wiggling negro girl and a thick-set negro boy dancer, brought forth more applause, if possible, than did the drammer. There were other numbers, but they don't count except as providing a satisfactory setting for the whole.

The Chief's one-act piece, written this year in accordance with his plan to write one drammer annually to educate the people as to what really goes on in a police station, is modestly entitled, "Scenes in a Jersey City Police Station." It is not a thriller. In fact, there could be detected in it considerable repressed and reserved strength.

The curtain rises on the station of the Second Precinct. Who is that sitting behind the desk scratching on the blotter, with not a hunch to his back nor a cigar in his mouth? That is Nick Toppin, Sergeant in charge. Who are those men sitting in the room seen in back through a door? They are reserves. They are not shooting craps nor playing poker; they are playing checkers and chess and "Authors."

Enter Capt. John Kelly of the Second Precinct, and in full uniform. Even he hasn't a cigar in his mouth.

"Anything special?" he asks Sergt. Nick Toppin.

"Nothing new, Sir," answers the Sergeant, still writing as if he had fifty prisoners.

Enter patrolmen, sauntering in to go on duty, saluting Sergt. Toppin with natty little motions of white-gloved hands before going to the back room. Every one of their coats is buttoned; their white gloves are lovely.

Suddenly there comes in a telephone message. It is from Policeman White on post, and he has just caught a porch climber leaving the house of Mr. Old, manifestly no relation to E. F. C. Young, but nevertheless one of the richest men living on the Hudson County Boulevard. Of course, though, the audience doesn't know that at the time. They just see the reserves going out to help White bring his prisoner in.

A fire alarm in the station rings realistically here, to fill in the gap, furnishing the only thrill of the "drammer." Also, a little boy who had been arrested for playing truant appears. The audience is thus enabled to see exactly how a little boy and a policeman walk up to a desk.

The name of the truant with the dirty face is taken, whereupon Sergt. Toppin asks him if he doesn't know that it is not only illegal, but also pernicious to play truant from school. It is wildly rumored in Jersey City that Thomas Devinne, who plays the part, was utterly reformed in Jersey City by having been once arrested. Nobody knew in the audience last night what answer he made to Sergt. Toppin, but it is presumed that he said:

"Me fadder is dead an' me mudder takes in washin'. An' de society woman tolt us she was goin' to take de baby away so I could go to school an' wouldn't have to 'tend to it. I didn't want to, but, Cap, I do now, 'cause I want to learn to read an' write an' be a cop some day."

This, which is what the Chief's drammer says he should say, softens the heart of Capt. John Kelly, who orders that the boy be sent home with his mother, to be in the Juvenile Court Saturday morning.

Now comes Policeman White with his porch-climber, (in private life Acting Policeman Patrick Kelly.) The porch climber swings his shoulders and acts otherwise as a rude porch climber would do. Sergt. Toppin takes his sullen pedigree, which says he is John Line of 29 Bowery. White declares that the people in Mr. Old's house heard the porch climber at work, and instead of getting excited and telephoning Police Headquarters to know why they didn't get better protection they blew a police whistle. The porch climber ran and White caught him.

"I'm a traveling man, Sergeant," says Line, "and I was running after the other fellow."

Then Detective Sergt. William E. Robinson, right-hand man of Chief Murphy, saunters in with his natty gray suit neatly pressed. He takes one look at Line's face.

"Ha!" he says.

He takes a second look, ejaculating "Ha! ha!" Then he tells Sergt. Nick Toppin that they have in the house the porch-climber's picture, which has just come from their Paterson Bureau.

Of course then Line sees it's no use, and he sayls so frankly.

Sergt. Nick Toppin calls out the reserves from their little games of checkers and chess, telling them to look closely at "one of the cleverest crooks in the country." The piercing glances turned upon poor Line of the Bowery must have hurt him. White searches the prisoner before he is taken back to the cells. He looks into the hatband of the awful criminal, whereat the audience yells. But he doesn't feel the legs of Line, in which no end of things might have been hidden.

The rest of the time allotted to Chief Murphy's drammer before the incoming of Brandon and Wiley is given to the drill of the outgoing relief. Twenty-four men with keys held in their left hands and their hats all on straight walk round and round the station before going out on post. When they did go out, the long red strings on their brand new sticks were fairly blown by the storm of applause.

The author of the new drammer was behind the scenes. Though not called on for a speech, he bore his honors modestly. The people had been taught to see what really goes on in a police station, and then applause was his own reward.

LAWYER CONKEY ARRESTED.

Charged with Obtaining More Than $5,000 by Forgery.

Harry J. Conkey, a young lawyer, living at 1,883 Bristow Street, in the Bronx, was arrested last night and locked up in the Morrisania Station on a charge of forgery. The arrest was made on complaint of Frank L. Hilton, Secretary of the Trust Company of America, who alleged that Conkey had obtained from the trust company more than $5,000 on checks to which the name of Arthur B. Wallace had been forged.

Detective Sergts. Barlow and Duncan of the Bronx Detective Bureau arrested Conkey at his home at 7 o'clock. According to them, Conkey had been attorney for the Wallace estate, in the Bronx. On Aug. 24 last, the detectives said, Conkey obtained $200 on a check to which, it is alleged, the name of Arthur C. Wallace had been forged. On thirteen other forged checks, the detectives said, Conkey had collected $4,850. On Sept. 1, when Conkey married, the detectives said he obtained $250 on a check to which the name of Kate M. Wallace had been forged. Then he went to Palm Beach.

A week ago Arthur B. Wallace sent his bank book to the Trust Company of America to have it balanced. It came back with the fourteen canceled checks, which are said to have been forged. Conkey will be arraigned to-day.

PERJURY BILL PASSED.

Another Insurance Bill Goes Through Senate—More Bills Signed.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 16.—After three hours of debate between Senators Grady and Armstrong, the Senate to-night passed the insurance bill which amends the Penal Code relative to perjury by a vote of 28 to 16.

Senator Grady contended that he had seen nothing in the insurance investigation that called for such a stringent measure, which affected the liberties of 8,000,000 people.

Senator Elsberg said he saw that the bill in its present shape was a very dangerous measure, especially as it might apply to parties to an action on pleadings, where contradictory defenses were set up.

The Governor to-day signed two of the insurance bills, those relating to the Equitable situation and providing that policy holders may become Directors of stock companies whether or not they are stockholders, and the one relating to political contributions. So far five bills have been signed.

The big bill is a special order for Wednesday, and is the only one yet to be passed.

3-CENT FARE BILLS VETOED.

Gave Children Reduced Rate—Unconstitutional, Says Higgins.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 16.—The Governor to-night vetoed the Cullen-Keenan bill providing that street railways in Kings and Queens Counties shall carry school children on their lines at a maximum rate of 3 cents. The Governor says that while the bills originate in a laudable desire to lighten the burdens of the people who have children of school age, they are disapproved because he deems them unconstitutional.

Attorney General Mayer, when his attention was called to the veto to-night, said that notwithstanding the Governor's statement he yet deemed the bills constitutional.

Mr. Mayer gave a written opinion to the Assembly Committee on Railroads several weeks ago, holding that the Legislature had full and legal powers to make such laws.

BRACKETT BILL VETOED.

Provided That Corporations Must Pay for Stockholders' Suits.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 16.—Senator Brackett's bill, amending Section 130 of the Civil Code relative to costs in an action, was vetoed by the Governor to-night.

The bill provides that in so-called stockholders' action the expenses incurred by the plaintiff in the prosecution and his costs shall be fixed by the court and shall be paid by the corporation defendant, in whose right and for whose benefit the action is brought. The Governor says that the bill creates an arbitrary exception to the general rule, and would permit the attorney for the successful plaintiff to divert the entire recovery and more from the corporation to himself.

"Although realizing that the Governor can do no wrong," said Brackett, "I am of the opinion that he has been extremely ill-advised, and therefore I shall endeavor to have the bill passed in spite of his disapproval."

HOPPER STEPS DOWN.

Hendrick Now Leader of the 31st—He Booms T. M. Osborne.

Isaac A. Hopper gave up the Tammany leadership of the Thirty-first Assembly District last night, and Peter A. Hendrick was elected in his place. Mr. Hopper said he wanted to get out to attend to business matters, and was glad to see a young man take the reins.

The crowd that attended the meeting in the Harlem Democratic Club was enthusiastic all through the meeting. They cheered loudly when Mr. Hendrick said Thomas M. Osborne of Auburn would be a good man for Governor.

Mr. Hendrick is a lawyer and is personal counsel to Charles F. Murphy.

AMMON HIS OWN LAWYER.

Argues Habeas Corpus Proceedings Before Justice Keogh.

Special to The New York Times

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., April 16.—Col. Robert Ammon, the "520 per cent. man," who is serving a term in Sing Sing Prison for his connection with the Miller syndicate, is following in the footsteps of "Al" Adams, and trying to regain his freedom through habeas corpus proceedings, based on the new law, which requires indeterminate terms to expire in the Summer months.

Ammon pleaded his own case to-day before Justice Keogh, claiming there was an error in his sentence similar to the one found in the sentence of Al Adams at the time Justice Keogh restored freedom to the policy king.

"You have made this application half a dozen times," remarked Justice Keogh, as Ammon began his argument.

"Ah! that's just it," replied Ammon. "Now, if your Honor please, I would like to review the whole case."

Justice Keogh suggested that this would take too long, and asked that briefs be handed in on Saturday.

FAKIRS' PICTURE SHOW OPEN TO PUBLIC TO-DAY

It Contains Many Amusing Burlesques and Imitations.

PRIZES FOR THE PARODISTS

The Best and the Worst Each Rewarded—Costume Ball to End the Exhibition.

American Artists, Beware!
For we're the Fakirs Bold,
That tread where others never dare,
And mysteries of art unfold.

This effusion is the caption on a poster shown at the annual exhibition of the Society of Infernal Fakirs, which opened with a private view last night in the galleries of the Art Students' League, in West Fifty-seventh Street.

The fakirs are versatile young art students, who give a burlesque picture show every year following the exhibition of the Society of American Artists. The proceeds derived from the show, auction of posters, and costume dance are devoted to league scholarships.

This year many amusing "take-offs," cartoons, and clever imitations are on view.

George De Forest Brush, Hugo Ballin, Childe Hassam, and Kenyon Cox are favorite targets for the shafts of the merciless fakirs in the present show. Childe Hassam's $500 prize picture of "June" is caricatured by two nude female figures, one adjusting a corset to her companion. "Susanna at the Bath," by Hugo Ballin, evidently appealed to the humor of the fakirs, for they have burlesqued this picture in several instances.

"Mother Reading to Children," by George De Forest Brush, is also caricatured in several ways, usually to the accompaniment of a bottle of soothing syrup. Kenyon Cox, who is represented in the society show by a single example of still life, "Study of a Wild Goose," is imitated by a real live goose labeled "'Still Life,' by Bunyon Sox."

Samuel T. Shaw, the artists' friend, distributed $50 in prizes to the successful fakirs. These were awarded as follows:

First prize of $25 for the best fake, to Robert Harshe for his burlesque of Charles C. Curran's "Portrait of Four Brothers"; second prize of $15 to John Carlsen for his fake of a portrait of W. D. Sargent by C. E. Polowetski, and third prize to Paul Rohland for his fake of "Mother Reading to Children" by George De Forest Brush.

In the competition for the best posters by the fakirs the first prize went to Arnold Haupt and Rowland Crampton for their poster "Fakir's Show," representing a long-haired fakir in hot pursuit of a society artist. The second prize was awarded to an unknown fakir for his poster "Auction," depicting a slave dealer and two slaves at the auction mart. One of the best posters in the lot, entitled "Stung," received the third prize. This was by J. D. Gleason, and bore the legend, "The Gentle Art of Making Enemies." The judges were instructors in the League, and the Hanging Committee was composed of fakirs.

The judges awarded the honor of composing the worst fake in the collection to Lionel Strauss for his "Girl with Red Hair," a fake of Ben Ali Haggin's painting of "A Young Woman in Black."

Another clever fake was fashioned after David Karfunkle's "The Poet." It represented a poet stranded on the beach as depicted by Quincy Scott, with this poetic inscription:

Broke, broke, broke,
On thy cold, wet sand, O Sea,
It's a damp, chilly pose,
For I've hocked my clothes,
They will never come back to me.

The exhibition of the Infernal Fakirs will be open to the public to-day, to-morrow, and Thursday. The auction sale will be held on Thursday night, and the annual costume dance will take place Friday.

Hendrick Hudson Ready for Engines.

The hull of the new steamer Hendrick Hudson of the Hudson River Day Line, which left the Thomas S. Marvel shipyard, at Newburg, on Saturday, arrived in Hoboken yesterday. She will be taken to the shops of the W. & A. Fletcher Company, where her machinery will be installed and finished otherwise. THE CHILDREN ENJOY Life out of doors and out of the games which they play and the enjoyment which they receive and the efforts which they make comes the greater part of that healthful development which is so essential to their happiness when grown. When a laxative is needed the remedy which is given to them to cleanse and sweeten and strengthen the internal organs on which it acts, should be such as physicians would sanction, because its component parts are known to be wholesome and the remedy itself free from every objectionable quality. The one remedy which physicians and parents, well-informed, approve and recommend and which the little ones enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects, is—Syrup of Figs—and for the same reason it is the only laxative which should be used by fathers and mothers.

Syrup of Figs is the only remedy which acts gently, pleasantly and naturally without griping, irritating, or nauseating and which cleanses the system effectually, without producing that constipated habit which results from the use of the old-time cathartics and modern imitations, and against which the children should be so carefully guarded. If you would have them grow to manhood and womanhood, strong, healthy and happy, do not give them medicines, when medicines are not needed, and when nature needs assistance in the way of a laxative, give them only the simple, pleasant and gentle—Syrup of Figs.

Its quality is due not only to the excellence of the combination of the laxative principles of plants with pleasant aromatic syrups and juices, but also to our original method of manufacture and as you value the health of the little ones, do not accept any of the substitutes which unscrupulous dealers sometimes offer to increase their profits. Please to remember, the full name of the Company—CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.—is printed on the front of every package. In order to get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine only. For sale by all reliable druggists.

GIANTS ARE BEATEN AGAIN

Champions Unsteady and Fail to Gauge Lush's Pitching—All Teams Play To-day.

Only two games were played in each of the major leagues yesterday, but to-day all the teams will be engaged for the first time this year. At American League Park yesterday the Greater New Yorks played an errorless game in the field against the Bostons, and, wielding the bat with good effect, won in the ninth inning by a score of four to three. At Washington the champion Athletics had another interest tussle with the Washingtons, and the Philadelphians scored their second victory by five to three. In the National League the world's champions suffered their second defeat out of four games played at the hands of the Philadelphia team, while the Chicagoans failed to win their fourth game from Cincinnati.

AMERICANS IN LEAD AGAIN.

Bat Out a Victory Against Boston in the Ninth Inning.

With the score at three runs each, and in a finish replete with strong and safe batting, the Greater New York team in the ninth inning yesterday won the second game from the ex-champion Bostons by a score of 4 to 3. The interesting twelve-inning game of Saturday served to whet the appetite of the "rooters" to the extent that the team to be successful in the meeting yesterday would have to contest every inch of ground, and they were not mistaken in their conclusions. It was a battle royal from start to finish, and when it came to the pinch the New Yorks went to the bat with confidence and scored a popular victory. Moriarty, the ex-Toledo player, took the place of La Porte at third, the latter being ill, and he acquitted himself well. The game was played for the relief of the Mount Vesuvius sufferers, and the money will be turned over to the local committee to-day.

At least 5,000 persons were present, and they were loud in the praise of the work of both teams. Only one fielding error was committed throughout the game, and that was a fumble by Ferris in the first inning. With the exception of the first inning, the Bostons were entirely at the mercy of "Doc" Newton. They made but four hits in all, two in the first and two in the sixth inning. In the last inning, although the left-hander showed no signs of weakening, he was succeeded by Le Roy, the Indian. The latter did not make a very encouraging start, giving Stahl his base on balls.

Then the Bostons began to take desperate chances. Stahl was directed by Manager Collins not to lose any time in stealing second base, and the runner made a dash for the base. Kleinow dropped the pitched ball, but he got it in time to Elberfeld to throw Stahl out, much to the latter's chagrin. Parent also got first on called balls, and he, too, proceeded to steal at the earliest possible moment. He reached second on a wild pitch and attempted to make third on the same play, but Kleinow recovered the ball in good style, and by a swift and accurate throw caught Parent at third by a small margin. The Boston short stop protested vehemently, but Umpire Sheridan's decision was regarded as just. All depended now on "Buck" Freeman, a dangerous batsman, but after two balls and two futile attempts to hit Le Roy, he was called out on strikes.

Elberfeld was the first batsman for the New Yorks in the ninth inning. He made a clean hit to centre field, and was followed by Chase with a fine double to left. It was Williams's turn now, but the best that he had done against Dineen was a fly to right field, which was captured. In this instance, however, he sent the ball to left field, scoring Elberfeld with the winning run.

Keeler made the first run for the local team in the first inning on Ferris's fumble, a steal, and Elberfeld's single. Chase tallied in the fourth on a hit that dropped between Parent, Stahl, and Godwin, but which put Elberfeld out at second. Williams advanced Chase on an out, and Conroy scored the runner by a safe hit. Kleinow hit safely in the eighth, stole second, and by a sacrifice of "Eddie" Hahn, who batted for Newton, the New York catcher reached third. Dougherty's fly to centre enabled Kleinow to score.

Two doubles in succession by Collins and Stahl gave the Bostons their first run, and two bases on balls, a long fly, and a sacrifice tallied Grimshaw in the fifth. Two singles and a sacrifice in the sixth produced the last run for the visitors. The score:

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 16.—Washington made two hits and two runs off Dygert in the first inning of to-day's game with Philadelphia, and then Waddell went to the rescue, allowing but three hits, struck out eight men and allowing but one run in the remaining eight innings, the victors winning by the score of 5 to 3. Sudhoff was batted out of the box in three innings, Kitson finishing the game and was hit hard. The Philadelphians played another errorless game, while the local team's one misplay resulted in a run. The batting of Schreck was the feature. The score:

GIANTS COULD NOT BAT.

Made Only Four Hits Off Lush and Were Beaten, 4 to 2.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 16.—A mighty shout from more than 14,000 throats announced that the Philadelphians were victors over the world's champions from New York in the final contest of the first series by the score of 4 to 2. In bellowing forth its approbation at the game's termination, the big crowd also paid tribute to one of the most sensational catches that has been seen at the Philadelphia Ball Park this year.

With men on third and second bases and two out, Devlin caught one of Lush's curves on the end of his bat and sent it speeding far into left field. Simultaneous with the crack of the bat, Magee sprinted with the flying ball. It was a stern chase. Every spectator held his breath. The result of a hard-fought contest depended upon the left fielder's fleetness and accuracy in judging the ball. If he should fail to make the catch, two runs would cross the plate, tying the score, and the batter would reach third. If he should reach the ball and hold it, the local players would win a great victory. With the ball descending over his shoulder, and running at top speed, Magee threw up both hands, pulled down the white sphere, and, never slacking his great speed, the big left fielder continued until he had disappeared in the door of the clubhouse, in far centre field. It was then that the crowd stood up and made the welkin ring.

The pitching of Lush was a paradox. He was wildly effective, striking out ten men, allowing but four hits, but giving eleven men bases on balls. Had the champions been able to hit his speedy curves with any effect they would have won an easy victory. In every inning but the second New York had men on bases, but could not take advantage of the wildness of Lush by connecting safely with his delivery. Fifteen men left on bases tell the eloquent story of the effectiveness of the young left-hander when a hit meant runs, and also the sharpness and certainty of his support.

Each team scored in the first inning. Bresnahan, New York's first batsman, got first on called balls. Browne's ground ball should have been easily fielded by Gleason, but he fumbled it badly. Both runners were advanced a base by Donlin's sacrifice. McGann scored Bresnahan on a long fly to right field, and Browne landed on third. Mertes reached first on called balls, and had no trouble to steal second. Dahlen, however, waited too long and was called out on strikes. The champions did not tally again until the sixth inning. Mertes, the first batsman, was retired by Doolin. Dahlen was placed at first on called balls. Devlin followed with a hit, the first made by the team. Gilbert was easily put out, but Ames got first on four bad balls. Dahlen was forced home on Bresnahan's base on balls, but Browne struck out. This ended the champions' run-getting.

For Philadelphia a fumble by Devlin placed Thomas on first base in the first inning. Gleason got his base on called balls, and Sentelle sacrificed. Magee followed with a hit to Ames, and Thomas was put out at the plate. Gleason landed at third. Titus came to the rescue with a good hit to left field, scoring Gleason. The local men won in the sixth by scoring two runs, after Bransfield had been retired. Doolin was placed at first on called balls and got to third on Dooin's high ball to right. Lush batted to Dahlen, who hit Doolin with the ball at the plate and the runner tallied. Dooin was caught at the plate on Thomas's hit, and while Thomas was stealing second Lush scored the winning run. The score:

STADIUM BILL BEFORE MAYOR.

Technical Objection Filed, but Columbia Confident of Success.

The legislative bill authorizing the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of this city and the Trustees of Columbia University to enter into an agreement whereby the ground between 116th and 120th Streets and underlying the Hudson River may be filled in to form an athletic field for Columbia University, was up for a hearing before Mayor McClellan yesterday afternoon, and a technical objection that it is unconstitutional was lodged with the Mayor by those who are opposing the project. Gustavus T. Kirby, representing Columbia University, appeared formally for Columbia, but no answer was made to the brief which is to be filed with the Mayor. Mayor McClellan took the matter under advisement, and will announce his decision shortly.

The bill has to be submitted to the Mayor in regular course before going to the Governor for his signature. It has passed both houses of the Legislature, and if it meets with the approval of Mayor McClellan and Gov. Higgins, full authority is granted to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to enter into an agreement with the Columbia authorities whereby the work may progress. The Columbia officials seem perfectly confident of the approval of both Mayor and Governor, and believe that no trouble whatever will be met with in reaching an agreement with the Board once permission and power are formally granted them.

It will then be necessary to secure the approval of the Secretary of War before the project can be carried out as planned.

NEW YORK HORSES WIN.

Judge Moore Gets Four at Boston in Opening Day.

BOSTON, April 16.—The opening of the Boston Horse Show this afternoon and evening attracted a great crowd, brilliantly arrayed, to Mechanics' Pavilion, filling its galleries and boxes to overflowing and surging about the tanbark ring. Twenty-two classes were judged during the day, the best known exhibitors in the country appearing. Interest centred principally in the clashes between Judge Moore, Eben D. Jordan, and Reginald Vanderbilt, in which Judge Moore won first honors, taking four blues, with the Jordan string well rewarded.

A. Henry Higginson of Lincoln, Mass., had the honor of capturing the first blue ribbon of the show for thoroughbred stallions with his Montebank. Then Peter B. Bradley's Border Knight won the blue ribbon for trotting stallions.

Judge William H. Moore scored his first win with Berkeley Bantam and defeated the Jordan and Vanderbilt entries in the novice harness class for small horses with King Forest. The Jordan entry was second, while the Vanderbilt horse was unplaced. Judge Moore continued his winning gait by capturing the blue in the novice class for medium-sized horses in harness with Fakenham Princess, the Jordan entry being placed third.

J. W. Harriman of New York won the blues in the two saddle classes judged during the afternoon, while Judge Moore took his fourth blue in the class for pacers.

Fordham Tackles Yale To-morrow.

Much interest is centred around the game that will take place to-morrow afternoon at the Polo Grounds between Fordham and Yale. Fordham for the last two years has been the victor over the New Haven team, winning by a large margin. The local boys, while not up to their midsummer form, have shown marked improvement the past week. No other Fordham team has had the good fortune of having so many graduate players interested in its behalf as this year's nine. Louis Hartman, Captain of last year's team, has been with the team for a week, and has done much to improve its condition. Thursday Fordham will meet Syracuse University at Fordham Field.

French Athletes at Athens.

ATHENS, April 16.—The French athletic team, which is to participate in the Olympic games beginning here on April 22, arrived in this city to-day. The athletes were cordially greeted.

Notes of the Thoroughbreds.

A special meeting of the Stewards of The Jockey Club, held yesterday, acted on a petition in favor of Jockey Harry Baird, whose license was revoked at the Brighton Beach Summer meeting last season, and under an agreement with W. H. Snyder, restored the boy to the privilege of riding conditionally. The conditions are that Baird, who is under contract to Mr. Snyder, shall ride for no other stable than that of his employer, and that he shall remain under Mr. Snyder's personal care. His trouble with the authorities arose as the result of suspicious riding and the bad company that the boy kept.

Every horse that won a selling race at the Aqueduct track yesterday was bid up three "boosts," adding $3,000 to the race fund and the fund for disabled jockeys. Diamond, the first winner, was bid up to $2,300, an advance of $800 over his entered price. Tiling, winner of the Ozone Stakes, was bid up to $2,000, an advance of $1,000 over her entered price, by "Joe" Marone, and Broadcloth was bid up to $2,000, an advance of $1,200 over his entered price. The horses in each case were bid in by their owners for the usual $5 advance.

Jockey Harry Cochran, reinstated by the Stewards of The Jockey Club last week, had his first mount in two years on a Jockey Club track yesterday, when he was put up on J. R. Keene's two-year-old filly Economy in the closing race.

Aside from Roseben's victory, the most interesting feature of the race for the Carter Handicap was the performance of the horse Southern Cross, a fifteen-thousand-dollar yearling three seasons ago, and a horse which so persistently refused to train that last Fall he was weeded out of the Sydney Paget Stable and sold for $450 to W. H. Snyder. Southern Cross broke down twice in the two seasons that A. J. Joyner trained him, and as he seemed to be hopeless, the stable decided to get rid of him. Trainer Snyder, an old-time trotting horseman, took a chance with him, and managed to patch him up to the extent that he was one of the star performers at New Orleans, and now bids fair to worry high-class handicap horses on the metropolitan tracks.

Herman Radtke, the twenty-five-thousand-dollar apprentice jockey recently secured by Trainer J. W. ("Bub") May for Paul Rainey's Tippah Farm Stable, made his debut on a New York race track yesterday on his employer's filly Toots Mook. His riding encouraged Trainer May to invest $600 to win and a similar amount place on the filly. Radtke's first ride thus netted May about $3,000, as Toots Mook ran second. Radtke then rode up to something like his Western form in the second race and landed his first winning mount in New York in a canter on Clark Griffith.

The apprentice jockey Garner, in the stable of John A. Drake, led the riders at Aqueduct yesterday with a record of two winning mounts, riding Broadcloth for Mr. Drake and Tiling for the Palestine Stable.

AUTO CLUB WILL FIGHT OBJECTIONABLE BILL

MAY BE ANOTHER HEARING

Motorists Oppose Payment of Fees as a Tax—Little Relief for Manufacturers.

Samuel M. Butler, Secretary of the Automobile Club of America, started for Albany last night, to confer with Senator L'Hommedieu regarding the provisions that the automobilists claim were to be inserted in his Automobile bill, and which, when it passed the Senate last week, were found lacking. It is expected that the bill will be taken out of the Committee on Revision early this week, and it will then be introduced into the Assembly. If the required changes are not made by that time, the New York State Automobile Association will take steps to defeat the bill in the Assembly.

Charles T. Terry, who appeared at Albany during the hearing on the bill two weeks ago, representing the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers, and also aiding the State Association, said yesterday that another hearing might be held this week.

"The automobile interests that favored the bill do not believe they have been squarely treated in this matter," said Mr. Terry, "and before any more support is forthcoming positive assurance must be given that the provisions as agreed upon will be carried out. I am informed that Senator L'Hommedieu states that he is willing to incorporate in the bill all the provisions agreed upon two weeks ago, but we want to be sure of it.

"Personally, I did not favor the bill from the beginning. The taxation plan seemed particularly unfair, as it practically singles out the motor users for special, or class, taxation. The officers of the State association, however, were willing to accept this provision provided the word 'tax' was eliminated from the bill. The real tax was to appear as an additional registration. Senator L'Hommedieu, however, has allowed all of the taxation features to remain. The old registration fee of $2 will remain the same, but it was agreed that the extra registration, or tax of $1 for every 500 pounds, should be cut in two, making the fee on the basis of weight but 50 cents per 500 pounds. This has not been placed in the bill, and several provisions providing for the collection of the fee have also been left out. The bill, however, even in its present unsatisfactory form, does provide that all fines collected in enforcing the automobile law are to be applied for the maintenance of good roads."

The present automobile law permits a manufacturer or dealer to secure an omnibus number for his stock cars, but a different number has to be secured for each type of car. Several manufacturers and agents keep from two to half a dozen styles of cars, all of the same name, but varying in horse power. In the revised L'Hommedieu bill it had been agreed that one number should cover all cars of the same make, but this provision has also been left out of the bill.

President Dave Hennen Morris of the Automobile Club of America said yesterday that the Governors of the club felt that the L'Hommedieu bill in its present shape was so detrimental to the best interests of automobiling in this State that every possible effort would be made to secure the proper remedies, and to this end Mr. Butler had been sent to Albany to keep watch of conditions there and report to the club, so that some concerted action may be taken at an early date if necessary.

Montgomery Stake for Broomhandle.

MEMPHIS, April 16.—The Spring race meeting at Montgomery Park opened to-day under favorable conditions. The feature event on was the Montgomery Handicap at five and a half furlongs, which was won by Broomhandle. After a short delay at the post the field was sent away to a good start, with Dr. Gardner in front. At the three-quarter pole he dropped back and gave way to Hyperion II. Broomhandle turned wide at the stretch and went to the outside of the track. With a magnificent burst of speed Broomhandle passed the judges' stand a winner by half a length. Lady Navarre, in a driving finish with Rapid Water, got second place by a head.

Schooner Atlantic Homeward Bound.

The Kaiser Cup winner, the yacht Atlantic, is homeward bound from Gibraltar, and is expected to arrive in New York about the middle of May, from which date she will be anchored off Larchmont and carry the Commodore's flag on all occasions when the club is officially receiving at its anchorage. Commodore Wilson Marshall left the boat at Naples and went to Paris, and is expected to sail from Havre and reach New York about May 10, before the formal opening of the club. The 90-foot cutter Isolde is being refitted preparatory to raising the flag of Vice Commodore Fred M. Hoyt, while Howard Willetts, the club's Rear Commodore, has chartered the auxiliary schooner Tekla, from which he will fly his flag.

Big Wrestlers Are Matched.

John Piening, the Graeco-Roman wrestling champion of America, will meet Fred Beell of Wisconsin at the Grand Central Palace on April 24. The men will wrestle mixed style until a fall is secured. George Bothner, the lightweight champion, and Harvey Parker will also meet on the same night. The pair will wrestle one hour, unless a fall is secured before that time, and a decision will be rendered on points. The winner of the Piening-Beell match will be matched with "Tom" Jenkins for the championship of America.

EIGHTEEN PAGES,

HALFWAY REFORM.

The Chamber of Commerce Committee upon Reform of the Currency is circulating twenty-seven questions the answers to which presumably will be influential upon its action. So far as the questions can be supposed to indicate what the committee is thinking about, it would seem that it is working toward the abolition of the Sub-Treasury system, an increased issue of banknotes, possibly by a few banks instead of by all, the institution of branch banking, and the introduction of a system of rediscounting for smaller banks by a large central institution. All these are approved banking customs, and the grafting of them upon our system would alleviate some friction from which we now suffer. The reforms indicated, however, relate to details, not to principles, and they leave untouched the basic evils in the situation.

For example, there is not the slightest indication that the committee contemplates the abolition of the greenbacks, a form of fiat currency, or forced loan, whose creation is excused only by the necessity of war, and whose preservation in times of peace and prosperity is indefensible by those who think that principle is a better reliance than expediency. If a like necessity should ever recur, the field occupied by the existing notes could not be occupied anew. To that extent our Government's war power is crippled, apart from the consideration that the existence of the notes is objectionable upon principle. And there is affirmative evidence that the committee is considering the preservation of a bond-secured currency. The arguments against it will not be recapitulated, for the unanimity of condemnation is well-nigh complete. If there is anything upon which financial critics are agreed it is that it is wrong to redeem paper in paper, and that assets are a better banking basis than debts, even Government debts, except in a limited degree. There can be but one explanation of the committee's course along such lines—it deems established errors too strongly intrenched to be disturbed. It is singular and not agreeable to find the committee resulting from Mr. SCHIFF's motion working along lines so different from those indicated by his criticisms of our system. Mr. SCHIFF was far less wedded to the National bank system.

THE MISSOURI LYNCHING.

If the Sheriff at Springfield, Mo., had acted with the promptness shown by Gov. FOLK, and in the spirit expressed by Gov. HAGERMAN of New Mexico, the community would not have been disgraced by the mob murder of two men, declared by the only competent witness to be innocent of the crime charged to them, and of a third against whom there is no evidence. So soon as he could legally act, Gov. FOLK put the militia into the town and restored order and sent an Assistant Attorney General to aid in the prosecution of the leaders of the mob. What Gov. HAGERMAN said was this:

> Such a lynching as took place in Springfield under a Statue of Liberty, with the police helpless, could not have occurred in New Mexico. Our mounted police are men who would take no account of the odds against them in enforcing the law. It would be a lasting disgrace to a Sheriff in the Territory to have a prisoner taken from him by a mob, as it is to have a prisoner escape.

Fearless policemen and a public opinion that condemns a Sheriff who surrenders a prisoner to a mob, these are the elements of essential safety from the outrages of murderous mobs. It is not a sectional matter. We have only too many cases of heinous offenses of this sort in all parts of the Union; we came near to having one in the Bronx on Saturday night. A crazy, bloodthirsty mob may gather at any time and place; but if it is met by a courageous police and honestly condemned by an intelligent public opinion, it can be foiled. For a mob is always as cowardly as it is cruel and the certainty that the first man to act will be shot down holds it in check.

TRIFLING WITH DANGER.

The relaxation in the credit situation must be welcomed, and yet it must also be regretted that it comes in a manner to mystify foreign markets in close relation with our own, and to amuse and annoy local observers. No attempt can be made to explain to foreigners what The London Times calls the "eruption of the American Vesuvius." No Englishman—and few Americans—can be made to understand why the financial world should learn on Saturday, too late for use until the following week, what the Treasury had done on Thursday to affect the conditions of universal credit. And presumably Secretary SHAW will neither join nor appreciate laughter at the idea that his acts have no speculative significance. To sober thinkers it is annoying to have 30 per cent. money made a laughing stock. There were great possibilities for good in its sobering effect, but when a similar situation recurs those who have survived, perhaps to be slaughtered upon another day, will be wondering what is the game this time, and from what unexpected and illogical source relief will come, as it came before.

It is impossible not to welcome the additions to our meagre stock of the basis of bank credit, but it is accompanied by facts which are less welcome. There are responsible sources of opinion which regard the stringency as artificial, and there are others who regard the relief from the stringency as no less flagrantly artificial. It has not seemed to us that a situation enduring through months, and affecting hundreds if not thousands of banks in every section of the United States, could be manipulative, and we have no sympathy with those who impugn the motives of the Treasury's action. But we do regret that the Treasury did not see fit to announce its intention before it acted upon it, and that it acted in a manner open to the charge of favoritism. Why should facilities for importing gold be given to National banks alone, not to say to favored banks? If the Treasury assumes to lend Government money for one use, why may it not lend it for other uses, and if upon one sort of collateral, why not on others? If the Treasury is assuming to correct the exchange market, why should it not provide a portfolio of maturities falling in at opportune times? In short, if the Treasury is going to act as a bank, why not provide it with banking facilities? There is logic enough, and the Secretary might be trusted to find the law for it. It is a pity to have such a situation dealt with by a dodge or an expedient supported by a false analogy to sound practice.

THE MERCHANTS' ASSOCIATION AND THE TARIFF.

Mr. HENRY R. TOWNE, Chairman of the Executive Committee of the Merchants' Association, has sent to Mr. C. A. MOORE, President of the American Protective Tariff League, a specific denial of certain allegations as to the action of the association with reference to the tariff, the substance of which is contained in the statement that the association is "working to break down the American tariff system." No one, we think, familiar with the membership and organization of the Merchants' Association would pay much attention to such an assertion. The following paragraph from Mr. TOWNE's letter recites some facts in this connection:

> The membership of the association includes domestic manufacturers, merchants, importers, exporters, bankers, lawyers, and other professional men. Alone, of business organizations here, it has expended large amounts of money to prosecute and punish under-valuers of imported goods, thereby protecting domestic manufacturers. It has promoted amendments to the Customs Administrative act, framed to protect equally and fairly the domestic manufacturer, the honest importer, and the United States Government. Its records are open, and its methods are clean.

The trouble with the extreme protectionists is that they cannot see that the tariff is not completely and perpetually right and sound. They cannot understand that a man may be, as, we infer, Mr. TOWNE is, a manufacturer believing that protection contributed to the building up of our industries, and yet in favor of revision, and convinced that the tariff as it is is harmful to the permanent interests of many of those industries. There are many thousands of men like Mr. TOWNE, and in the long run the protectionists will have to reckon with them.

HOOK MOUNTAIN.

Hook Mountain on the Hudson is in danger of destruction by quarrymen. The Inter-State Palisades Park bill, providing for the extension of the park from Piermont to Stony Point, would save this scenic monument. Real estate dealers and property owners in the vicinity of Hook Mountain, Nyack, and Haverstraw, as well as all defenders of the undefaced Hudson, are interested in the bill's passage. The beauty of the Palisades is a permanent asset. Opposed to this substantial and abiding interest is the blasting political influence of the quarriers.

Since this Inter-State Park extension involves no financial outlay, why should the Finance Committee of the Senate fail to report upon it favorably? Why should the Ways and Means Committee of the Assembly, to which the bill has been recommitted after a favorable report, still fail to present it for passage?

Perhaps the Hon. GEORGE R. MALBY, Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Senate, and the Hon. SHERMAN MORELAND, Chairman of the Ways and Means Committee of the Assembly, would be willing to explain.

THE IMMIGRATION "FLOOD."

The would-be emigrant who was denied transportation in the Ark and is reported to have predicted that "there would not be much of a shower, anyway," undoubtedly treated a serious subject with levity, but many modern scientists hold that the Flood was local and that the irreverent weather prophet was in a measure justified by the facts. In like fashion we may venture the opinion that Commissioner WATCHORN is not so rash as he seems when he says that the flood of immigrants pouring upon our shores constitutes "no cause for alarm." He adds that "we need all the able-bodied willing workers we can get," and he points out that of 5,000,000 emigrants leaving the shores of European countries, 4,200,000, or 84 per cent., "were able-bodied men and women between the ages of 14 and 44." Mr. WATCHORN further remarked of the Slavs and Poles who have driven the Irish and Welsh miners from the anthracite coal fields, that to-day 585 of their sons are in our colleges and universities.

Certainly the two facts here alluded to are of immense importance in connection with the question of immigration—the need of the country for increased population of the right sort and the marked, the marvelous advance in the character of the second generation after immigration. These are not the only facts to be considered, but they can never safely be forgotten in acting on the matter. Another point of extreme importance is the obvious necessity of enforcing thoroughly and intelligently the restrictions now placed on immigration before we proceed to increase them. Neither the amount nor kind of provision for enforcement is now adequate. We should have a larger and better organized system of inspection at our ports, and we should extend that system more widely and make it more efficient abroad, before we undertake radically to change the conditions of admission to the country. When we have done this, and when we have done all that can be done for the suitable distribution of immigration, it will be time enough to talk of higher bars for exclusion.

MAXIM GORKY'S DISILLUSION.

An ancient sage said that he would rather live in a community in which nothing is lawful than in a community in which everything is lawful. MAXIM GORKY comes from a country in which nothing is lawful. It has seemed to him that he came to a country in which everything is lawful. He has discovered his terrible mistake, a mistake ruinous to his hopes of serving effectively the cause which he has crossed the Atlantic to promote.

This is not a Government, he discovers, under which everything is lawful. It is a Government of laws, of laws which are in the last analysis conformed to and inspired by public opinion. But there are acts and practices not perhaps condemned by law, but under the ban of public opinion, upon the perpetrators of which public opinion acts automatically, decisively, and with no appeal. He has placed himself under that ban. Society has promptly avenged itself upon him for a social offense. No policeman or soldier was invoked to visit upon him the penalties of this unwritten law. The law executed itself, through a number of agents of whom no one had any other motive than his personal interest. And he finds himself, as a result, relying upon the private hospitality of residents of New York who are less scrupulous than their neighbors. He is in fact undergoing the punishment of precisely that government by public opinion which he has come to this country for the purpose of helping to establish in his own.

Marquis SAIONJI, Japan's Premier, comes of a line of Premiers and Ministers of State, his family being comparable with England's House of Westminster. J. TAKEGOSHI, M. P., who has been intimately associated with SAIONJI, characterizes him in the April Contemporary Review as a politician and cultured reformer. He helped overthrow the Shogunate, studied for fifteen years in France, and returned to Japan at 33 a pure Parisian. He is a Liberal of the European type. He was among the first of the nobles to introduce Western knowledge in Japan, has been its representative in Austria and Germany, held the portfolio of Education at home, and before he became First Minister to the Crown helped in the upbuilding of the radical Constitutional Party. His drawing room is called a salon, and he is often styled "grand seigneur" by Tokio people.

According to Gov. CUMMINS, in his speech reported yesterday, > the man who controls the legal and political departments of the Burlington Railroad in Iowa sat down one night with a stenographer, and when the sun arose the next morning the capital of the corporation had been doubled without the expenditure of a single dollar.

It will come to some as a surprise that capital can be created so easily. The creation of capital stock is indeed all too easy, but the markets have a way of putting a price upon watered stocks which squeezes most of the water out. We prefer Speaker REED's treatment of this topic to Gov. CUMMINS's. If Gov. CUMMINS alleged facts it would be well to require publicity in order that investors might not be deceived. But no legislation can put and keep value in stock, nor make investors wise in their ventures. After the Government has done its full duty there will always remain room for individual judgment, with a penalty for error. Bad reasoning is a poor basis for good legislation.

It deserves to be put upon record that at last labor has made a proposal for which labor will not "stand." A building having been erected with union and non-union labor indiscriminately, the walking delegates proposed as a preliminary to lifting labor's ban upon the enterprise that the building should be torn down and erected anew with exclusively union labor. The debate which followed elicited the remarks by unrelated trades that the proposal was "ridiculous," a "perfect farce," "absolute nonsense," and more to the same effect. That is our own opinion, which it is agreeable to find supported by opinion which labor itself will not repudiate. Many who are open minded to every legitimate demand of labor are also opposed to what Premier BANNERMAN called a "privileged proletariat." If labor is to have license to demand that everything into which non-union labor enters shall be destroyed the prospect is serious, or would be serious were it not for signs of sanity in a welcome but unexpected quarter.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Muck-Rakes and Square Deals. Rarely indeed has a phrase traveled as fast and as far as has "the man with the muck-rake," dug by President ROOSEVELT from BUNYAN's rich mine of vivid characterizations and applied by him to certain writers for the cheaper periodicals. It has been instantly accepted all over the country, which is evidence enough that it sums up a very widespread feeling of resentment and reaction, but before the President congratulates himself too warmly upon the success of his inspiration he might well give a thought or two to the question whether in fastening this title where he has his ideal of the "square deal" to everybody has been attained. The clear implication of the words is that the writers whom he scolded have devoted all their energy and time to the exposure of corruption and of criminals. As a matter of fact they have done no such thing; as a matter of fact they have been builders of reputations at least as much as they have been the destroyers of them, and by far the most important as well as the most numerous memories left by their articles in the minds of people who have really read the articles instead of the angry comment excited in circles where they hurt are of men declared good, not of men declared bad, of citizens who fought for the right, not of scoundrels and thieves. The names that these so-called muck-rakers have really fixed in the minds of the public are those of FOLK, of LA FOLLETTE, of FAGAN and COLBY, and a dozen more, big and little, of the same type. Most of us have to think twice or thrice before we remember that there was a BUTLER in St. Louis and an AMES in Minneapolis, and after they have been recalled the only other notorious personalities are those that were notorious long before this series of "exposures" began. So it is very far from true that this work has all been destructive, all been a calling of attention to filth and wickedness. On the contrary, as it seems to some of us, exactly that has been done which the President, with his beautifully balanced sentences, says should be done—that is, evil has been attacked with a constant care to recognize virtue wherever it was to be found. And always there has been the heaping of assertion on assertion that evil was weak and virtue strong, that there was no excuse for despair, and that good government could be had whenever and wherever the people wanted it and were willing to work for it. Indeed, so much of injustice is there in this sudden shout against "the man with the muck-rake" that President ROOSEVELT would not waste a few minutes if he devoted them to asking himself if he has done more, in giving the phrase its enormous circulation, than provide with a desperately needed battle cry those who for the best of reasons fear any continuance of the work of investigation.

"Honor" Put to a Hard Test. After trying various devices for "getting around" the law which forbids the playing of Sunday baseball for an admission fee, the managers of the Brooklyn Club have hit upon the scheme of putting "collection boxes" at the entrance to their grounds and of contenting themselves with what would-be observers of the game voluntarily place therein. There is something beautifully —or shockingly—dominical about this latest subterfuge, and, according to report, it worked fairly well on the first trial. In the first place, the puzzled police made no arrests, and, in the second, the receipts were—considerable. Just how large they were has not yet been revealed, or what proportion they bore to the attendance, but on the whole the confidence of the managers in their public seems to have been justified. Not everybody who entered "contributed" even a button, and it was observed with deep regret that several, after depositing a quarter, betook themselves to fifty-cent seats. The large majority did give something, however, and to some extent, presumably sufficient to warrant a continued trial of the plan, the desired end of getting admission fees without a too obvious pretense of not taking them was obtained. It remains to be seen whether the opponents of Sunday sports of the commercial sort will long be foiled by this extension to baseball of one of their own ideas—an idea, by the way, which they themselves exploit in a manner not infinitely different, since it is done by them sometimes to supplement and sometimes to replace the pew rents at which many look slightly askance. There is some doubt, too, if the "contributions" will long keep up after it becomes generally known that whoever will may enter the grounds, and even the most comfortable of the stands, without paying a cent or encountering any remonstrance more serious than a reproachful glance. The plan tests something more than honesty; indeed, a sophist might easily figure out that he was serving the cause of virtue by passing these contribution boxes with averted head.

Goodness and Happiness. Dr. FAGNANI of the Union Theological Seminary expressed on Sunday the opinion that "Be good and you'll be happy" should be changed to "Be happy and you'll be good." The transposition proved highly acceptable to the People's Institute, but that is an audience of long demonstrated ability to digest doctrines which "distress" diners accustomed to a less varied fare of novel dishes, and we suspect that the doctor would not everywhere have been applauded as he was in Cooper Union. We base the suspicion on the other suspicion that, easy as it is to find fault with the exhortation which he said he had long found wearisome, it would be no more difficult to pick flaws in the substitute he suggested. The common assumption that happiness follows and results from goodness is true only after one has made a lot of preparation for it in the way of definitions adroitly formulated, but the same thing can be said for the statement that goodness will follow and result from happiness, and really there does seem to be a larger element of the voluntary in being good than in being happy. To nobody is it quite absurd to say, "Be good," while to many it would be the height of absurdity to say, "Be happy." Taken just the way Dr. FAGNANI meant it, of course his phrase, if not exactly true, contains a lot of truth, but about as much can be claimed for the one to which he objects. To the unassisted and uninspired eye, however, many good people seem to be unhappy and many people apparently happy show all the outward signs of badness.

TAXATION TO LIMIT FORTUNES.

Newspaper Comment on the President's "Personal Conviction."

From The Chicago Tribune.

The President's denunciation of the men who amass enormous fortunes "by keeping just within the line of law honesty" and then try to compensate for misconduct in making fortunes by charity in spending them, is not unlike the language of the magazine writers whom he dislikes, although he gives no names. The suggestion that not only these fortunes, but also others more honestly gained, should be subject to taxation in such a way as to prevent their inheritance or transmission in their entirety will meet with theoretical approval.

From The Philadelphia Press.

It is significant that the speech, which was widely advertised as a denunciation of the writers who have been exposing evils in magazines and special articles, turns out to be an approval of all these efforts that are governed by the necessary care for truth.

It is even more remarkable as an indication of the trend of the times that the same speech is made the occasion for the most radical proposition ever made by a President of the United States, namely, a progressive tax "so framed as to put it out of the power of the owner of one of these large fortunes to hand on more than a certain amount to any one individual." Much is to be said on this proposition when it comes up for actual debate. The vital point at present is that the speech, which was expected to be reactionary, develops a progress which to the corporate class will seem little short of revolutionary.

From The Springfield Republican.

If there be those who thought the President was moderating his views of corporate aggrandisement and swollen individual possessions, they will now be forced to revise their impressions, for in this suggestion we have the most practically radical proposal which has as yet come from Mr. Roosevelt in relation to the great problem of startling inequality in the distribution of the product of our industrial society.

From The Baltimore Sun.

The proposition to levy an inheritance tax and to limit the amount of the great fortunes which may be bequeathed by American multi-millionaires far exceeds any proposition which the statesman delving in the curiosities of Democratic literature could reasonably hope to discover.

If President Roosevelt continues to advance on similar economic lines it may not be long before all that is left of Mr. William J. Bryan's platform of 1896 will be taken from the Democratic "muck heap" by the aggressive gentleman now in the White House and transferred to the storehouse in which the President keeps his political convictions. In fact, Mr. Roosevelt has made such vigorous use of his rake that about all he has left on the Democratic "muck pile" is Mr. Bryan's 16-to-1 theory.

From The Philadelphia Record.

Mr. Roosevelt proposes that the community shall in some way condemn what its laws sanction and prescribe the extent of private fortunes. But it is only a private opinion, and the President does not stop to work out details before throwing it off to startle the community. No man with heavy responsibilities of state ever used his mouth more imprudently.

From The St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The President notes that this is a time of great unrest, and he would meet the issues with truth and courage. He advances the idea that the transmission of vast accumulations of property to a single heir might properly be subject to a repressive National tax, and that it might be well to place all large corporations under National supervision. These are large conceptions, and not likely to decrease the unrest at a time when other important questions are more immediately in hand.

From The Philadelphia Inquirer.

President Roosevelt's suggestion that it may ultimately become necessary to undertake the dissipation of great fortunes by a use of the taxing power is not likely to be followed by the adoption at any early date of the remedial measures which he indicates as appropriate, but it will serve to concentrate the public attention upon one of the problems of the day, and it will certainly provoke a widespread discussion which will hardly fail to be interesting, and which may be profitably illuminative. There is no doubt that the subject is one with which the public thoughts have for some time been increasingly exercised.

Gorky and the Immigrant Inspector.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

When aliens are not examined as the immigration laws provide, either aboard the ships or at Ellis Island, it is no fault of Maxim Gorky that he was permitted to land in violation of the present immigration laws. As he is so well known, the public at large can most plainly see how easy it is for aliens of less importance to evade the law. Gorky is said to have answered the questions asked by the immigration Inspector aboard the ship, but he had a much harder task to pass the test to gain admittance to some of our hotels in this city. Those hotel men have at least the respect for their guests that the immigration officials fail to have for the immigration laws provided for those who practice polygamy. D. D. D.

New Topmasts.

From The Pittsburg Dispatch.

Never in the history of Spring traffic in and about New York Harbor have so many brand-new topmasts been seen on sailing craft of all descriptions as this year. Scarcely a sail carrier, from oyster boat to full-rigged ship, has been shunted about the harbor for the last two weeks which did not show from one to two lofty sticks shining in all the splendor of new dressing and in marked contrast to the dingy and weather-beaten masts which held them aloft. They are a "shining" commentary on the havoc played by Winter gales among all classes of shipping along the North Atlantic Coast. Capt. Nicholas Reilly of the Ellis Island Ferry counted in a single day this past week fifty-three sailing vessels on which were forty-seven new topmasts, some vessels having two, others only one. He made a note of it in his log and has been trying to figure what the total loss to sailing vessels in lofty spars has been on the basis of forty-seven to fifty-three.

Mme. Bernhardt's Alligator.

From The Chicago Evening Post.

To the courtesy of the Bernhardt press advertising bureau we are indebted for the conclusion of Madam's famous alligator hunt in the Louisiana bayous. It appears that Madam gave a performance in the afternoon, played again at night, and departed on the hunt at 4 in the morning full of determination and strange Gallic exclamations. We are reliably informed that she "killed an alligator and twenty birds," perforating the alligator's eye at the first shot. The birds were eaten at a subsequent memorial banquet, but the alligator has been skinned and, in some way not as yet given out, will be worked into the performance of "Tosca" next Monday night. In spite of this accessory there will be no extra charge for the opening performance.

Advantage of Dying a Union Man.

From The Chicago Evening Post.

When you reflect that as a union man you can get a hundred-dollar casket for $35, you will see the advantage of joining a union in time to profit by the consideration. You will enjoy the further advantage of a coffin, a hearse, and two carriages, all for $50, with the gratifying assurance that the procession will not be stopped or delayed on the way to the cemetery. There is a good deal in this for people who are timid, retiring, nervous, and averse to public demonstrations.

THAT "BANK OF BANKS."

No Reason Why the Clearing House Could Not Exercise the Function.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your views as to the impracticability of establishing a great bank in New York, expressed in the editorial "A Bank of Banks," undoubtedly represent the views of most New York bankers. It would be regarded as a monopoly with special privileges not granted to banks now in existence, and opposition on this ground alone would be sufficient to prevent its establishment. Besides, it is not necessary, for its chief function of regulating the interest rate could be just as well performed now by the New York Clearing House if it were disposed to take concerted action. This body has the power to select a committee whose duty it would be to recommend a minimum rate of interest on call loans from week to week to protect cash reserves, just as the Bank of England does. The Clearing House, of course, could not compel its members to observe such a recommendation, but its observation by the larger and leading banks would compel the others to the same course at the penalty of losing standing and business by the opposite course.

As it is now some of the larger banks and institutions never advance their loan rates beyond 6 per cent., giving the preference, of course, to regular customers, and there is no reason why this course should not be followed by all the banks.

Because existing custom has so long prevailed it is accepted as incurable, but the recurrence of excessive rates in prosperous times compels attention to a defect in our banking methods which will drive business away from New York if it is not speedily remedied. Action by the Clearing House along the line suggested could be promptly taken and is well worth a trial.

The Lord and the Passengers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Among a numerous company on board a transatlantic steamer recently there happened to be an English lord. As in the case of so many of his class, if you had not known he was a lord you would never have suspected it. However, this is not the point. What I want to draw attention to is the effect he produced upon his fellow-passengers. The English were evidently awed and spent most of their time on deck in furtively observing his lordship. His every action possessed for them seemingly an intense interest, as if he were some superior being from the clouds.

As for the Americans, the effect upon them was mixed. There was no apparent indication of awe, but the ladies were all simply wild to get introduced, and when they did the way they be-lorded that lord was a caution. The men, for the most part, seemed uncomfortable and rather avoided the titled one. Especially were they averse to addressing him as "My Lord," and indeed one breezy citizen from the West insisted on calling him plain "Mister." The ladies voted this awfully rude, and said the man had no manners. VOYAGEUR.

Church Services Not Well Advertised.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Permit me, through you, to return my thanks to those of your readers who replied so promptly and explicitly to my inquiry. Their information was put to immediate use.

I should like to offer, most respectfully, a suggestion to the clergy of New York City. The churches here are not sufficiently advertised, and it is much too difficult a matter for any one, particularly a stranger, to find out about the Sunday and weekday services held in them.

Every theatre and vaudeville house in New York is fully advertised every day in every newspaper, but so far as I can learn only a comparatively few church notices are published, and those in only two newspapers, and on Saturday.

How can the churches hope to have even a "fighting chance" against "the world, the flesh, and the devil," in the shape of the vaudeville shows, sacred concerts, &c., unless they will at least advertise as liberally as these?

EPISCOPALIAN.

New York, April 15, 1906.

As She Is Spoke.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An American man presents his compliments to Mme. Maxwell. He begs leave to ask if she is sure that the young English person was correctly quoted in the "further comparisons" of Sunday, the 15th inst. Mme. Maxwell cites her as saying: "The letters are very different from the English ladies', are they not, Madam?"

An American man suggests that this young person, if she was the real thing, said "different to" instead of "different from." He desires in conclusion to thank Mme. Maxwell very sincerely for her kindly and illuminating comparisons of international manners and customs, and he hopes that she will be able to prolong them indefinitely for the benefit of all who are capable of learning to discriminate.

Subway-Elevated Transfers.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I noticed in a recent issue of THE TIMES a letter advocating an exchange of transfers between the Subway and elevated at Broadway and Sixty-sixth Street.

I wish to indorse this suggestion, as such a convenience would be much appreciated by residents of the Bronx and Harlem.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your article in to-day's TIMES entitled "Libraries and Manners" meets with my entire approval. Mr. Carnegie needs no defenders, but the Mayor in question evidently needs the lesson in manners which you have given him. FAIR PLAY.

MINISTER FROM CHINA ANGERS CONGRESSMEN

IS NOT DIPLOMATIC USAGE

State Department Informed of Foreign Official's Comment on Action in Lawmaking Body.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—What may easily develop into a further complication in the already somewhat unsettled relations between this country and China has been contributed to the situation by Sir Chentung Liang-Cheng, the Chinese Minister.

By the publication of the proceedings at the hearings before a sub-committee of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs it has been made known that Sir Chentung has violated that rule of diplomatic usage which prohibits a Minister from commenting on matters of legislation pending before the lawmaking body of the country to which he is accredited.

The Chinese Minister has not only taken a hand in the discussion of the Foster Chinese Exclusion bill, now pending in the House Committee on Foreign Affairs, but he has indulged in some remarkable criticism of Representative Denby of Michigan, a member of the committee. The matter has been called to the attention of the State Department.

Sir Chentung in effect accused Mr. Denby of inventing certain statements made to the sub-committee at one of the hearings, in which Mr. Denby said that Chinese officials in China were in part responsible for the attempts of Chinese to enter this country fraudulently. These statements the Chinese Minister characterized as the "emanation of a fertile imagination rather than a trustworthy judgment founded on cold facts."

Members of the Committee on Foreign Affairs were astounded when they learned of Sir Chentung's action, and other Representatives spoke of it with surprise and indignation.

When Silas D. Webb, President of the China and Japan Trading Company, was before the sub-committee, Mr. Denby asked Mr. Webb this question: "Do you think China has any particular right to object to the serious construction put upon the certificates which are brought here by intending immigrants when every one of those certificates, if fraudulent, is fraudulent with the knowledge and connivance of a Chinese official?"

In the subsequent colloquy Mr. Denby explained that every certificate was first passed upon by a Chinese official, who could not possibly have been deceived if he made proper investigation. "But," said Mr. Denby, "I have seen a bundle of those certificates which were received at a United States Consulate signed in blank by the Chinese officials, and which had a fixed market value. Is that not absolute evidence of the fraud of the Chinese officials?"

"Under the present system," continued Mr. Denby, "a certificate is subject to the most careful scrutiny, and it must be. Otherwise there would have been a traffic in bringing in illegal Chinese which would have enriched thousands of officials, and our country would have been overrun with them as if there had been no exclusion law."

Mr. Ford was present at the hearing when Mr. Denby made this statement, and on April 7 he wrote to Sir Chentung about it. The Chinese Minister replied at length under date of the following day. He recapitulated the charges of Mr. Denby, and then said: "During the three years I have been in this country as the diplomatic representative of the Chinese Government, no case of this character has ever been brought officially to my notice, to the best of my recollection. The inference is, therefore, plain that Chinese officials cannot be blamed for frauds of this kind. Consequently, I consider the intimation of Mr. Denby that but for the vigilance of the immigration officers there would have been a 'traffic in bringing in illegal Chinese which would have enriched thousands of officials, and our country would have been overrun with them if there had been no exclusion law' as an emanation from a fertile imagination, rather than trustworthy judgment, founded on cold facts."

At the hearing on April 9 Mr. Fassatt, a member of the sub-committee, said that the committee "had abundant evidence of the fact that they do sell these papers to Chinese laborers."

Mr. Foord, who was present, at once interrupted. "The Chinese Minister absolutely and positively denies this," he said, "and I desire to present to the committee this letter."

With that the letter of Sir Chentung was filed, but no member of the committee read it at that time or paid any attention to it, and it was not until the stenographic record had been extended and printed that they found out what the Chinese Minister's letter said. Then there was astonishment and wrath.

Mr. Denby to-day issued this statement: "My statements were based on facts and fair inferences. Every assertion can be easily proved. The Minister's statement is painfully, though I hope unintentionally, misleading. First, he says that only 527 persons have received certificates from Chinese officials during the period under review. The records of the Bureau of Immigration show conclusively that during the period referred to 895 applicants bearing certificates issued in China by Chinese officials presented themselves at various ports in the United States. Will the Minister admit that the 368 certificates not reported to him were fraudulent? He becomes the best witness in proof of my assertion."

It was hands-across-the-sea at the Hudson shortly before 11 o'clock last night. Previous to that the noble bird of freedom had screeched, the British lion had roared, and Fate with the aid of two Simon Pure American dramatists had effectually stepped into to say nay, nay, to any possible sort of an Anglo-American alliance. But there are times when even Fate goes down before young, loving hearts, and one of those times is when William H. Crane takes a hand in the game.

Mr. Crane did that again last night, and, incidentally, he cast his own heart at the feet of a dashing young Irish widow, after he had apparently sighed for her in vain through three of the four acts of "The American Lord."

Needless to say he got the widow; needless to add that he deserved her, too, for in a Crane play—a typical Crane play—where the actor is all geniality and self-sacrifice and sturdy American honesty, any other issue would place fate in the churlish attitude of not knowing a good thing when she saw it, and of not rewarding virtue, when by all the rights and rules of the game virtue most positively deserved to be rewarded.

"The American Lord," for which Charles T. Dazey and George H. Broadhurst stand sponsors, is a typical Crane play, and that is tantamount to saying that it is a pleasant play. It reveals the actor in his most agreeable lights, permits him to do what he does best, and, lest we be understood as casting any reflections, let it be said at once that that best involves the exhibition of a very great deal of artistic resource and variety as well as mere personal charm.

To simply say, then, that the authors have taken Mr. Crane's measure would be to put something of a slight on him, for to what they have provided he undoubtedly adds much out of his ripe storehouse of experience; and yet, to be just to his authors it must be said that much that he does would be possible only in such a medium as they nave given him. In short, the actor fits the play, the play fits the actor, and authors and actor combine in this case to provide a very agreeable entertainment.

Much more than that one cannot say for "The American Lord." Its central idea is not new. An American, with narrow provincial notions as to all things British and hostile to the nation and its customs, suddenly discovers that he is himself the heir to a British title. After a brief mental struggle he consents to visit his estates.

There he at once seeks to graft New World ideas an Old World stock, with consequent misunderstanding of his motives on the part of a conservative English nobleman, whose estate joins his own. Matters, as may be presumed, are further complicated by the love affairs of the younger members of both families, and by the more sober but no less tantalizing October passion of the American lord for the widowed sister of the Englishman, with whose resentment he is chiefly confronted.

About this pivotal idea, however, several complications are made to revolve with a considerable display of skill. One is never in doubt as to what the outcome of each of the complications will be and the methods by which the successive knots are to be disentangled seldom fail to disclose themselves before the dramatists have accomplished their part, but somehow one gets interested in the story, in the people, and especially in the man who sacrifices a seat in Congress in order to have a try at reforming the Britishers, but is ready to come back home after learning that "their way is not our way, that our way is not their way, and that when all is said and done there is something good in both."

Another actor than Mr. Crane, one feels, would not necessarily be able to carry all this off so unsuccessfully, but with him in the central rôle it all qualifies as agreeable, very agreeable entertainment.

He has, too, the advantage of a supporting company that, in several cases, cleverly supplement his own efforts. John Nesbit, for instance, plays a negro servant with far more than the ordinary suggestion of reality, a bit of genuine humor and once a touch of something very like real sentiment.

With less opportunity John Nesbit succeeds in giving individuality to a very brief rôle, playing a Scotch steward with a burr that is so closely identical with the real thing that one imagines he could qualify for membership in the Caledonian Club and never a question asked. Edgar Norton, too, with very slight opportunities does excellent work, and George F. Devere brings a mellowed, authoritative touch that is just right to the part of a British legal factotum.

George E. Riddle, as the English Lord, in appearance and playing leaves much to be desired. Miss Hilda Spong, generally regarded as an estimable actress, apparently labored with the idea last night that it was absolutely necessary to be strenuous at all times in order to be effective.

She put her Irish dialect on and off with the most amazing disregard of consequences. Rosalind Coghlan has fallen into a habit of speaking in a manner that is either a copy or an unfortunate, unconscious imitation of Margaret Dale. In either case she should make haste to amend it, for, as in Miss Dale's case, it is both affected and unpleasant.

It is a sort of transfer of a suggestion of the Irish charm of Mr. Chauncey Olcott to a region of evening clothes. The idea is not a bit bad. One Charles Toden, who has been a cabman, has come into a Baronetcy. Having no money to maintain his state he runs his ancestral hall as a Prysdo. That permits the introduction of a very freakish company, the assorted ladies of which are kept interested by the blandishments of Rudolph Barrington, the transferred Olcott. Only Rudolph doesn't sing. Of course Rudolph is married, and his wife turns up. Not only that; she kindly consents to pose as a widow, his sister-in-law, and enhance the complications. For, as all the women flock after Barrington, so all the men flock after Mrs. Barrington.

Some really funny situations occur, most of which are spoiled by the utter failure of the authors and of the actors to convey even remotely a drawing room impression, even a health resort drawing room impression. The English accents in particular are "feahful." There are some would-be venturesome speeches and ditto business which, though clumsily done, invite the only hearty laughter in the show, except that which is furnished by a really striking fancy ball tableau at the end.

THE PEOPLE'S CHORAL UNION.

A Fine Performance of "St. Paul" Given in Carnegie Hall.

The People's Choral Union makes little disturbance of the surface of the musical waters during the Winter, but its annual concert in the Spring never fails to show that this great body of enthusiastic singers has been working hard and has accomplished most impressive results. It gave its concert last evening in Carnegie Hall under Frank Damrosch's direction, singing Mendelssohn's "St. Paul." The chorus shows little falling off in numbers: there could not have been fewer than 800 last evening, and their serried rows fill the platform of Carnegie Hall, and fill it with a splendidly balanced body of singers. There is no lack of tenors here, and such an array of them—singers all, they are—might well inspire most other choral societies with envy. Nor is there any lapse in the enthusiasm and devotion of these singers. It is twelve years now since this organization was first formed to carry on its weekly Sunday afternoon rehearsals in Cooper Union from October to April, and the fire of the zeal that was kindled in the breasts of these wage earners who found a new world of beauty and inspiration in the great classical choral works has never grown dim.

The singing of this great body of choristers has all the impressiveness that comes from great tonal weight and volume. It has also a remarkable elasticity and precision that can rarely be obtained from numbers so great. For a body of voices that are not submitted to careful selection the tonal quality has many points of excellence. Its enunciation of the text is singularly clear. In everything it does the chorus shows its admirable discipline, its intelligence, its mastery of the music it undertakes, and it sang "St. Paul" in a way that was really memorable in most of the qualities that go to make up a fine choral performance.

The value of it was chiefly in the chorus. The solo singers were Mrs. Mihr-Hardy, soprano; Miss Janet Spencer, contralto; Cecil James, tenor; Frank Croxton, baritone, and E. A. Jahn, bass. Of these Miss Spencer alone was fully equal to the demands of the music that fell to her share. She is a singer whose voice gains in beauty and whose style shows the unfailing results of intelligent musicianship and right methods. The New York Symphony Orchestra played the orchestral accompaniment, and Frank Sealy played the organ.

"ARMS AND THE MAN" REVIVED

Arnold Daly made his reappearance here this season at the Lyric Theatre last night in a revival of George Bernard Shaw's comedy "Arms and the Man." The piece was first played in this country by Richard Mansfield at the Herald Square Theatre in 1894, at which time Beatrice Cameron (now Mrs. Mansfield) was the heroine. Others in the cast at that time were Walden Ramsey, Henry Jewett, Mrs. Rankin, and Amy Busby.

In the performance last evening Mr. Daly played the rôle of the Swiss soldier, Captain Bluntschli, a soldier of fortune who has taken service with the Servians because war is his trade and Servia is nearer to him than Bulgaria. In this rôle the actor made a favorable impression. He was generously applauded, and the audience called for a speech at the end of the second act. Mr. Daly expressed his thanks in a brief address.

As Raina, Chrystal Herne shared honors with the star, and was warmly applauded after her scene in the second act. Others who pleased were Aubrey Boucicault as Sergius Saranoff, Dodson Mitchell as Major Petkoff, John Findlay as Nicola, Isabelle Urquhart as Catherine, and Bijou Fernandez as Louka.

"THE OPTIMIST" PRODUCED.

A Comedy That Has a Problem Is Seen in Washington.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 16.—"The Optimist," a four-act comedy by Sydney Rosenfeld, was produced for the first time to-night at the Columbia Theatre before an audience which gave several genuine curtain calls and made Mr. Rosenfeld make a speech.

Comedy though it is, it is a problem play, though a light one. The problem is which is the correct view of life and morality, the lax and easy view of man or the narrower view entertained by woman. Twenty years before the play begins this difference in their theories of life and morality had caused Alice Wendell to break her engagement with Norman Grey.

Throughout the play the two contend for the right to influence the life of Alice's impressionable young brother Jack. The man's view wins in a fashion, so far as impressing Jack is concerned; but the author leaves the problem unsolved.

J. H. Gilmour was Norman Grey and Miss Lizzie Hudson Collier was Alice. The young brother was played by Wallace Eddinger. Miss Charlotte Walker was an actress who was one of Grey's instruments in the education of the younger brother.

At the New Amsterdam Theatre last night the Easter offering was "The Free Lance," a new comic opera by John Philip Sousa and Harry B. Smith which has not been heard until now in New York. The authors are said to have meant the piece as a return to genuine old-fashioned comic opera, in which fun and music are wedded, and not merely flirting with each other.

In this particular case both contracting parties come to the ceremony in high spirits and make a jolly evening's work of it. There is an emperor of somewhere or other who thinks he can do anything from writing grand opera to running a continent. He does it all by proxy. His taste is so exquisite that he can not bear the idea of a standing army of men, so he has regiments of beautiful Amazons that he can take some pleasure in reviewing.

Over against the Emperor's land of Braggadocia is the Dukedom of Graftiana. The Duke is a fire-eating, swash-buckling son of thunder who chews nails and maintains an army of handsome young giants.

By grace of the plot the Duke has a son, Prince Florian, who is to marry the Emperor's daughter, the Princess Yolande. The young people have not met. Rather than marry a man she has never seen the Princess runs away and changes places with a goose girl, Griselda. Prince Florian runs away, too, rather than marry a girl he does not know, and changes clothes with a goatherd, Siegmund Lump.

The Duke and the Emperor make the best of a bad business and try to fool each other with a goose-girl Princess and a goat-keeping Prince. Meanwhile, of course, the real Prince and Princess fall happily in love in the fields.

Griselda and Siegmund happen to be married anyway, so everything balances beautifully. But when Siegmund finds that his promised royal bride is just plain Griselda he has a moment of natural disappointment. "Every time I'm invited out to dinner," he sighs, "I always get just what I have at home."

The Duke and the Emperor try to borrow money of each other. Neither has any, which brings on war. At the border line between the two kingdoms the man-army faces the lady-army across a pretty green hedge. The man-army threatens to surrender. Each ruler makes Siegmund his proxy for the fight. Siegmund, finding himself fighting on both sides with nobody else in sight, winds up the war, and everybody falls into couples for the final curtain.

A large audience spared no effort to show its approval of the piece. Upon Joseph Cawthorn, as the brigand goatherd, fell most of the funmaking responsibilities, and his songs, "Hair," "The Mystery of History," and "Conundrums" were tirelessly encored. Nella Bergen as the Princess won hearty applause by her songs, notably "Three Love Stories" and "The Carrier Pigeon."

The most decided hit of the evening was Jeanette Lowrie in the rôle of the flaxen-haired goose girl. Her song, "The Goose Girl," proved one of the best in the piece.

Albert Hart as the Duke, Felix Haney as the Emperor, and George Tallman as Prince Florian won their share of approval.

The lines of "The Free Lance" are full of chuckles, the costumes are pretty, the music has the characteristic Sousa touch and go—and something more.

At the end of the first act there is a march, "On to Victory," sung by the whole cast. Last night Mr. Sousa conducted this number himself. The audience gave him six curtain calls for his pains, and insisted on a speech. The composer refused to tell anything more serious than a joke or two.

"Clansman" Audience in the Wings.

Part of last night's audience in the Broadway Theatre, Brooklyn, viewed the performance of "The Clansman" from the stage wings. At 7 o'clock all seats were sold. At 7:30 the standing room sale ceased, and soon afterward the fire officials announced that unless the aisles were cleared of the standees the curtain would not be permitted to go up. To obviate this, the persons who were standing were invited to go on the stage to witness the performance from the wings.

MRS. JOHNSTON HONORED.

Founder of Little Mothers' Aid Association Gets a Loving Cup.

Mrs. Alma Calder Johnston, founder and honorary President of the Little Mothers' Aid Association, had a reception at the "Happy Day House" of the association, 236 Second Avenue, yesterday afternoon. The old Canda mansion, which the Little Mothers occupy, was filled with guests, at least 400 of them who came to shake hands with the founder of the organization, listen to an interesting musical programme, and take tea in the big salon on the second floor of the house.

Mrs. Clarence Burns, President of the association, presented to Mrs. Johnston a loving cup bearing an inscription showing that it was given "by her associates and coworkers, with love and esteem, and in recognition of her years of devotion and service to the uplifting industrially and socially of the needy children of wage-earning mothers in our community."

Mrs. Johnston began the work of the Little Mothers in her own home in Stuyvesant Square sixteen years ago, when she became interested in the little girls of the neighborhood who came to sit in the park with their small brothers and sisters. The work grew until it was found necessary to take a small flat, then half a house, the whole house, and now the association has bought the Canda mansion for its headquarters, and has four branches in different parts of the city and a Summer home at Pelham Park.

SOUTHERN CROSS SECOND

The New York racing season opened in a style that was as sensational as it was satisfactory to the biggest crowd ever gathered on the Aqueduct track yesterday, when the first great handicap stake of the year, the $10,000 Carter, was won in a desperately fought finish by the record-holding sprinter Roseben, a short nose before Southern Cross, a horse fresh from a triumphant campaign on the Winter tracks of the South. In every way the opening was extraordinarily successful, and the results achieved were popular to a degree that could have been exceeded only had one more post favorite finished first, five of the six events on the card, including the big prize of the day, going to the public favorites.

Roseben's victory, however, put the supreme touch to the gratification of the betting crowd when he struggled home in a whipping fight against Southern Cross, and just lasted long enough to win by a few inches from his seasoned opponent, which at the finish was gaining inch by inch on the public favorite. Through the last quarter of a mile, and until the horses actually had passed the winning post, it took all the skill and strength of the veteran jockey Lucien Lyne to keep Roseben in his place in front, for condition plainly told against the great sprinter in the final strides.

The field that ran for the race was worthy of the fixture's new dignity, and the crowd that witnessed the contest was in keeping with the race, the twelve thousand visitors who packed the clubhouse and grand stand and overflowed on the lawn including more turf notables than ever before attended an opening day at Aqueduct. The reorganization of the Queens County Jockey Club has served to give the club and its Aqueduct track a new standing, however, and among the men who were on hand yesterday were many who in years past practically ignored the track.

Some of the turf notables present were August Belmont, Chairman of The Jockey Club; Harry Payne Whitney, R. T. Wilson, Jr., F. R. Hitchcock, Cornelius Fellowes, Philip J. Dwyer, J. H. Bradford, Sydney Paget, J. B. Brady, W. M. Scheftel, E. R. Thomas, Patrick Keenan, Jesse Lewisohn, H. K. Knapp, T. P. Sullivan, "Abe" Hummel, Congressman Timothy D. Sullivan, Andrew Miller, Newton Bennington, Charles Gates, John A. Drake, Patrick H. McCarren, and Larry Waterbury.

The crowd was entirely too large for the limits of the Aqueduct equipment, and something approaching an accident was a result of the overloading of a stairway on the lower part of the grand stand during the running of a race. The policeman on guard at the steps was unable to prevent the rush of men for places from which they might see the horses over the heads of the people on the lawn, and the stairway broke down under the combined weight of nearly a hundred struggling men, and let them down with a jolt. The fall was not great enough to do any serious harm, but several individuals were bruised and scratched in the scramble to escape from the crushed timbers of the stairway.

The "big" betting ring held eighty layers, of whom fifty-four were members of the Metropolitan Turf Association, while ninety independent layers had places in the back line. The rule which obtained last season of an open ring again was in force, and the Metropolitan Turf Association bookmakers shared the privileges of the front lines with outside layers in an "open" ring, but the arrangement seemed to be satisfactory to every one.

Until just before the running of the Carter, the withdrawals from the race were not announced, in keeping with the plan of trying to prevent the sending of news out o the inclosure to poolrooms, and this operated to prevent early betting on the big handicap. The announcement of the withdrawals showed the field short of five of the seventeen horses originally named to start, Ram's Horn, of the Williams entry, being scratched in favor of his stable mate, Phil Finch, while Rebo, Battleaxe, D'Arkle, and Ballotta were the other non-starters. One horse, J. H. McCormick's Grenade, with 105 pounds, was added, this bringing the field up to thirteen runners, with Roseben the top weight and favorite throughout the betting.

A great volume of money went into the ring on Roseben, this later being credited in a large part to D. C. Johnson, owner of the horse. Roseben's support, at all events, was sufficiently strong and steady to keep the price against the champion sprinter down to about 5 to 2, the highest price reached being 3 to 1 for but an instant, and the horse going to the post at 11 to 5, though Whimsical was backed from 4 to 1 down to 7 to 2, Ormonde's Right from 5 to 1 down to 7 to 2, and Southern Cross from 15 to 1 down to 10 to 1.

Roseben was the first horse of the field to warm up and his appearance as he galloped through the stretch in front of the stand provoked an outburst of cheering. The crowd greeted the better known of the other horses in generous style, but Roseben's fame and popularity seemed solidly established. Though he had made an effort to reduce to ride at the weight allotted to Whimsical, 103 pounds, Jockey Hildebrand was compelled to declare three pounds over, and T. J. Gaynor, Whimsical's owner, decided to put him up rather than trust to a substitute at that late hour. In the case of Southern Cross, Owner W. H. Synder did make a substitution by putting up Baird, just reinstated after nearly a year of idleness, thus letting go the jockey who had been engaged to ride the horse.

Roseben led the parade past the stand, and was the first horse to break out of the line and into a gallop when turned to go to the starting post at the seven furlongs near the far turn. The horses lined up, with Whimsical on the rail and Southern Cross on the extreme outside, Roseben having the outside position next to Southern Cross. The horses hung at the post for about five minutes, and then broke to a good start, in which Belmere, Green Room, and Whimsical were the quickest to move. The field strung out at once, Whimsical showing in front with Belmere for just an instant, and then being passed again, while Roseben, from the first jump, went on with a splendid rush for a position, and, racing as if only called on to run a quarter, went to the front with a fine burst of speed, and in the opening furlong took the lead and drew clear of his opponents.

Belmere fell back when Roseben rushed past him, and Green Room, Whimsical, and Red Knight took the places following Roseben and trailed close on the favorite around the first turn, to which point Southern Cross, which rapidly made up the ground he lost at the start, was fourth. On the turn, Southern Cross went on after Roseben, and, passing the intermediate horses, took second place at the head of the long stretch, followed by Whimsical and Red Knight, Whimsical losing a little ground on the turn in a jostle with the horses just beside her.

Roseben went wide into the stretch, seeming still in hand to that point, but there Southern Cross began to gain on him, and, though the latter was the first of the two to be driven to the whip, he still clung to Roseben's hips, and, beginning the last quarter, brought Roseben to a drive. Well inside the quarter, both Roseben and Southern Cross were whipping, as were all the horses behind, Southern Cross gaining to the last sixteenth pole, where he was abreast of the favorite.

Roseben plainly was distressed, but Lyne put up his whip for a few strides, and then brought it into play again, just as Southern Cross looked to have the race won, Roseben then again taking the lead by a neck. From that point to the winning post both horses were whipped, Roseben hanging on with great courage, and though he was tiring and stopping, kept his head in front to the finish and won, desperately pressed, by a nose from Southern Cross. The others of the field were beaten off when the fight between the first two began. The time of the race was 1:26 2-5, the fractions being 0:13, 0:24 2-5, and 0:36 1-5, no fractions being taken after the horses turned into the stretch.

The second stake race of the programme, the Ozone, resulted in the only defeat of a favorite in the course of the afternoon, the Palestine Stable's Tileing, a Hastings filly, that started at 8 to 1, winning on the post by a head from Bertmont. Diamond, a strong favorite, won the first race, ridden out, after making most of the running, and Broadcloth, in a fighting finish, took the fifth race. The other winners, Clark Griffith in the second race and De Mund in the last, simply romped away from their opponents. Summary:

ATHLETIC EVIDENCE ALL IN.

Decision on Joyce-Castleman Cases Expected Next Week.

The cases of the Athletes Joyce and Castleman were closed yesterday before the special committee appointed by joint agreement between the Amateur Athletic Union and the Irish-American Athletic Club to adjudicate the differences. No decision was rendered, the evidence being taken under advisement and a verdict promised within a fortnight. The indications within the committee room when the summing up was made were that Joyce would necessarily be completely exonerated, but that Castleman would as surely be convicted, though whether he will be termed technically guilty of a violation of rules entailing suspension, with a recommendation of reinstatement; be declared to have willfully offended the spirit of the rule, or actually be declared a professional, remains to be seen.

All three members of the sitting committee were in attendance, Gustavus T. Kirby representing the Intercollegiate Association, P. J. Walsh representing the Athletic Protective Association, and Dr. Luther H. Gulick representing the Public Schools Athletic League. Bartow S. Weeks presented the case of the Registration Committee of the Amateur Athletic Union, and Daniel F. Cohalan the Irish-American Athletic Club and the accused athletes, and President Conway of the Irish Club was in attendance. There were no further witnesses examined.

In summing up, Bartow S. Weeks declared that Joyce, a member of the Irish-American club, had competed at Boston on July 4, 1905, in spite of the fact that he was extensively advertised to appear at games at Celtic Park.

In the Castleman case Bartow S. Weeks presented a succinct summary of the evidence, stating the committee must decide whether Castleman had professionalized himself by (1) accepting wages or a position at Paul Smith's in payment of athletic services; (2) playing on a team with a professional named Johnson; (3) playing against the Malone team, partly composed of professionals, in which were Washburn and Lynch, the Brown College players who were paid; (4) competing for salable articles of jewelry in violation of rule not suitably inscribed; (5) competing in games in violation of rule where more than three prizes were given in a single event. Castleman had also laid himself open to suspension by (1) competing in unsanctioned and unrecognized games on July 4, 1904, at Pittsburg, and on June 27, 1905, at Elmira, and (2) by competing against unrecognized athletes.

CURE DEFEATS SCHAEFER IN BILLIARD TOURNEY

Slosson Has Only Clear Record for the Championship.

CUTLER BEATS MORNINGSTAR

"Wizard" Jacob Schaefer lost his place last night as a leader for the international billiard championship honors. He was defeated by Louis Cure, the French expert, by the score of 500 points to 380. As the result of this contest George F. Slosson, the "Student," remains the only one of the seven competitors who has not lost a match in the tournament in progress in the Madison Square Garden concert hall. The cue work of Cure was exceptionally brilliant, while Schaefer's lacked steadiness as to continued scoring. In the afternoon Albert G. Cutler defeated Ora Morningstar 500 to 459, thus winning his first game.

As an opener Schaefer sent the balls racing around the table for 7 counts of a pyrotechnical character. The Frenchman, Cure, then indicated that he was in the most perfect stroke that he has shown in the tournament. He brought the ivories to close range, and then as deftly and as delicately as his opponent nursed them along for 49 carroms. He miscalculated a shot and the balls aligned on the rail, so that his run was brought to an end by a difficult bank shot going astray.

Awakening to the fact that the Frenchman was in rare good form, Schaefer lost no time in the next inning in bringing the globes into close proximity. Under his gentle touch they began to respond with celerity. The greater portion of the time he held the balls on the line, and, moving them lightly to and fro, Schaefer rapidly kept the balls carroming for a total of 95, and then missed a bank shot by three inches.

Schaefer followed this good bit of carromic manipulation by playing so thinly that when he accomplished the count he barely rubbed the ivories together, while his misses, especially of his strong and favorite massé shots, which twice took unexpected twists, were inches out of the way. This allowed the Frenchman to slowly overhaul Schaefer, and in so doing when he needed the count most it brought out his sterling sportsmanship. On his sixth turn at the table Cure bunched the balls for a perfect nurse, and the crowd settled back, preparing to witness a long run. At the twelfth count Cure made self-acknowledgment of a foul and that 11 was his actual result for the inning. For a moment the spectators, Referee McLaughlin, and even Schaefer could not understand why Cure had ceased to shoot. When it was explained there was a deafening outburst of cheering and applause for Cure, who acknowledged the prolonged demonstration by smilingly bowing and waving his hand to the crowd.

Cure's reward for his fair play spirit came to him on his eleventh turn at the table. Schaefer had missed three times in succession, and the last left a fine set-up for the French contestant. The result was a dazzling array of close-range carroms and some tensely manipulated nursing, which added 75 to his string and placed him in the lead, at 203 to Schaefer's 146.

In trying to get a run started Schaefer caused the balls to break badly on his next turn, and lost all control of them after his thirty-fourth count. The intensity of the contestants was reflected by their small daughters, who sat in boxes on either side of the balcony, and the crowd, becoming aware of their presence, laughed and smiled as alternately Leonie Cure or little Marie Schaefer led in the cheering and applause.

Schaefer appreciated the condition of things on his next turn, and he fairly rattled off 119 carroms of the sort that electrified the crowd and caused them to cheer wildly. The last section of this run was a partial nurse in the unlimited centre panel, which he varied with clever play to the rail. This brought about a double freeze, which the "Wizard" overcame by a long bank. His cleverest shot was a double drive across the table, in which he made the balls spin with reverse, and which brought them into one of the corner squares at the head of the table.

This run was not sufficient to keep Cure behind, and as Schaefer failed to back it with double figures, Cure three innings later advanced to the front with 98, which totaled his score 333 to the "Wizard's" 318. Schaefer broke down badly and found all of the holes around the balls, while with a fine cluster of 66 the Frenchman passed within his final hundred points, and backing this run with 14 and 37, he led Schaefer by 457 to 333 at the close of the twenty-second inning.

Schaefer brought the globes under control for a nurse on his following turn, lost them in the centre panel, and then terminated his promise of a run at 47 by a bumping miss-cue. As the balls bumped for a total of 3 for Cure and then for a zero for Schaefer the latter complained that the ivory globes had become chilled by a draught of cold air, and asked that the doors and windows be looked after. But if this was the cause of their rebellious action Cure overcame it on his next time at the table, for by a masterful bit of ball-to-ball shooting he completed his string with a run of 40, leaving Schaefer 120 points behind at the end. The summary:

Cure—49 5 3 2 39 11 0 6 11 2 75 8 2 1 21 98 1 1 5 66 14 37 8 40. Total, 500 points; average, 20 20-24; high runs, 98, 75, and 66.

Schaefer—7 95 4 5 1 10 22 2 0 0 0 34 119 0 12 0 5 1 2 0 6 1 47 0. Total, 380 points; average, 16 2-24; high runs, 119, 95, and 47.

Referee—Edward McLaughlin.

A cold and draughty room prevented any attempt at close play in the afternoon match, in which Albert G. Cutler, the ex-amateur of Boston, defeated Ora Morningstar by the score of 500 points to 459. From the beginning the ivory globes bumped and rolled off so that there was a long period of dullness, which was relieved when the Bostonian, by a sequence of close-range play of ball to ball, put together 146, and but for a slight overdraw to the cushion he had the balls in such position that the spectators were expecting him to make a new record run. Up to the counting of this run Morningstar had held to the lead. He used a method of keeping the ivory globes rolling across the end rail of the table from side to side. Once he appeared in for a long inning, with the balls in excellent position, on his fifteenth turn. He was gradually attaining the nurse, when on his sixteenth shot his cue ball missed the white completely, although by a hair's breadth. Morningstar disputed the decision of Referee McLaughlin and audibly protested, but there was no change of the ruling.

The score stood 350 to 281 against him as Cutler advanced to the green plateau for his twenty-seventh turn. He had previously experienced so many bad breaks that he was past his first fifty carroms before he dared to coax the balls together. Then he followed Morningstar's method, and by playing in and out of the end squares counted 146 before missing on a short follow to the cushion. Morningstar came up rapidly at the end, but he was not steady enough to defeat Cutler, who won his first match of the tournament. The summary:

Cutler—16 14 31 4 14 26 11 2 0 0 2 2 1 0 1 2 9 0 15 9 38 6 55 15 4 4 146 1 1 22 26 0 17 3 3. Total, 500 points. Average, 14 10-35. High runs, 146, 55, and 38.

Morningstar—2 0 57 0 31 8 71 0 0 19 0 6 5 0 2 0 0 29 5 2 3 29 23 15 3 45 0 19 2 36 35 0 1 14 2. Total, 459 points. Average, 13 4-35. High runs, 71, 57, and 45.

Referee—Edward McLaughlin.

MORE BILLIARD CHALLENGES.

Sutton Posts Forfeit to Meet Winner of Present Tournament.

Billiard challenges promise to be plentiful as a result of the international championship, George Sutton yesterday posting his forfeit to meet the winner of the tournament now in progress in the Madison Square Garden concert hall. George F. Slosson desires to challenge William F. Hoppe again for the eighteen-inch balk-line, one count in balk, championship, for which the veteran recently met the youthful holder. As Hoppe declared only last week when Jacob Schaefer approached him that he will take advantage of the fifteen-day acceptance, and the sixty days to play if challenged, this might possibly bring Slosson into a cross fire of defending at 18.2, and challenging at 18.1 within a few days of each other. According to the terms of the conditions of the two balk-line championships the double challenging would bring the matches between July 1 and 15.

Slosson shares with Schaefer the position of a favorite for the title now being competed for. Should he win he will at once defend against Sutton, and the match, which will be one night of 500 points, will be played in the Metropolitan Opera House. In the event of Slosson's failing to gain the 18.2 honors, he will at once rechallenge Hoppe for the 18.1 title, and endeavor to arrange for a match at the earliest possible date.

The billiard followers now agree that Hoppe is destined to take third or fourth place in the finish of the present meeting.

ENGLISH BALLOONIST COMING.

Patrick Y. Alexander, one of the best known balloonists in England, is due to arrive in New York this week. He has made several ascensions, and has witnessed nearly all of the big aeronautical flights that have taken place in Europe within recent years. Mr. Alexander is a man of means, who has made the subject of ballooning his hobby for half a dozen years. When the Aero Club of America was founded Mr. Alexander was asked to become one of the charter members, and he promptly consented. He stated at that time that he was anxious to investigate the progress of ballooning in America, and a few days ago he wrote the club Secretary saying he was about to sail for New York. Mr. Alexander is known through Europe for the rapidity and shortness of his visits, and that characteristic will be illustrated in his present trip, for he states that he will only remain one week.

The English balloonist will be met by a delegation of Aero Club members on his arrival, and if arrangements can be made the club will endeavor to have Mr. Alexander give a talk on his experiences before sailing for home next week.

THE FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Irregular; Call Money Rates, 3@5½ Per Cent.

Engagement of $1,100,000 Gold—Demand Sterling Advances Sharply.

Prices at the opening of yesterday's stock market were substantially higher than at the close on Saturday and advanced through the morning session under the influence of the recovery of surplus reserves by the banks, the announcement of further gold engagements, amounting in all to $1,100,000, and moderate purchases made here for London, although the London Exchange itself was still closed in observance of the Easter holiday. Whatever discussion there was of President Roosevelt's suggestions regarding the limitation of personal fortunes through some form of taxation and of Federal control of corporations engaged in inter-State business was unattended by any collateral operations in the stock market. The favorable money developments of the week's close provoked very little outside buying and shortly after the noon hour traders who had purchased stocks heavily in the closing days of last week began to realize their profits, and in a market so narrow as that of yesterday this selling movement, slight as it was, led to declines of a point or more throughout the list of active stocks and left prices at the end of the day fractionally below the Saturday level. The largest advances in the morning's movement were made by Amalgamated Copper, Union Pacific, and the Hill shares, the speculation in the Copper shares deriving encouragement from expectation of an increase in the present dividend at the Directors' meeting on Friday. Of these issues, however, only the Great Northern and Northern Pacific stocks were able to retain any part of their earlier gains during the afternoon recession. Of the coal stocks, Reading drifted toward a lower level, Erie held firm, and Delaware & Hudson rose 1½ points and retained its advance. Pennsylvania was strong from the opening to the close of business, as were the Steel issues and a number of specialties, including the Ice securities, American Locomotive, Pressed Steel Car, and the Chicago Great Western common and preferred B shares. One feature of the trading, which has also been noteworthy in previous markets, was the concentration of business on the decline.

Outside of the announcement of another engagement of gold in London for import, the developments of interest in the money situation were a gradual easing in the rates for both call and time funds, call money being in good supply around 4 per cent., and time money at 5½ per cent., and an advance in the foreign exchange market, which carried demand sterling up some 70 points over the closing quotations of last week. A call of 10 per cent. on the underwriters of the recent $100,000,000 American Telephone and Telegraph Company bond issue matured yesterday, and although a large portion of the payment had to be made here there was not the least reflection of this in the money market. Owing to the operation of Secretary Shaw's plan for deposits of Government moneys equal in amount to gold engagements, the banks gained heavily from the Sub-Treasury, that institution having lost to the banks $15,130,000 since Friday. On routine transactions outside of these deposits the banks are also gaining from the Sub-Treasury. Other matters of interest yesterday were the publication of the foreign trade figures for March, disclosing the heaviest exports and imports ever returned for this season of the year, the imports of $113,625,000 also constituting an absolute record, and the compilation of the returns of local banks under the Controller's call, where light is thrown on the recent money disturbance by the disclosure that withdrawals of bank and trust company deposits since Jan. 1 totaled $40,000,000, this drain comparing with $26,000,000 in the same period of 1905.

Depository for Toledo Bonds.

The Columbia Trust Company, it was announced yesterday, has been made the depository of the bonds of the Toledo Railway & Terminal Company by the protective committee which was formed last week. D. S. Mills, trust officer of the Columbia Trust Company, is Secretary of the committee. A meeting will be held at the offices of the trust company to-day.

STANDARD CORDAGE READY.

Following Its Election the Company Is Prepared for Business.

The Standard Cordage Company, which is the ultimate result of three reorganizations of the old Cordage Trust, in which millions of dollars in water have been squeezed out of the stock, prepared to begin operations by the election on Saturday of the officers: Charles Wilson, President; E. C. Butler, Vice President, and James B. Clews, Charles E. Orvis, L. L. Gillespie, Charles Wilson, and William J. Wollman members of the Executive Committee.

President Wilson has been for thirty years connected in an official capacity with the Fitler Cordage Company of Philadelphia, from which concern Mr. Butler also comes to the new company.

The Standard Cordage Company has bought in the best plants of the defunct trust, and is prepared to begin manufacture immediately.

RECEIVER FOR BELT LINE.

Chicago Terminal Transfer Company in Charge of Federal Court.

CHICAGO, April 16.—John N. Faithorn, President of the Chicago Terminal Transfer Company, which operates a belt line around Chicago, was to-day appointed receiver of the company in bonds of $100,000 by Judge Kohlsaat of the United States Circuit Court.

The receivership was not contested, and comes as an indirect result of the suit brought some time ago against the corporation by some of the bondholders. It has become necessary for the company to elevate its tracks, and to erect some new buildings, and it was believed that this work could be done to better advantage under a receivership.

BUTTERICK STOCK DECLINES.

Butterick Company stock fell on the Stock Exchange yesterday from 53 to 40 on a sale of 1,600 shares. The stock has been listed on the Exchange for several months, but has not been active. The decline yesterday was caused by the liquidation of a small amount of the stock on a very narrow market. The selling was generally believed to have been prompted by the expectation that the annual report of the company will make a very unfavorable showing owing to the losses incurred by the concern as a result of the printers' strike.

Treasurer Wilder of the Butterick Company said yesterday that the strike of the printers, which began last Fall, cut heavily into the company's earnings in the last quarter of 1905, but that despite these losses the company had earned its dividend for that year.

The earnings during the first quarter of this year, he said, had also been affected to some extent, although not as heavily as those for the last three months of 1905. The strike is now over, and the earnings of the company, Mr. Wilder said, have become normal. He was not aware of any special interest in the company, he said, which was disposing of its stock, and said that he knew of no reason for the 13-point decline which occurred on the Stock Exchange yesterday.

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

Demand for Steel Rails Still Heavy—Large Pig Iron Purchases.

The demand for steel rails continues on as large a scale as ever. The Tennessee Coal and Iron Company, it was reported yesterday, has had orders for steel rails in sufficient quantities to cover its whole output for 1907. It was said yesterday that one of the important railroad interests of the Northwest had offered to take all the steel rails which the Tennessee Coal and Iron Company can produce next year. The Tennessee Company, which manufactures rails by the open-hearth process, expects to add largely to its rail capacity this year, so that it will be able to produce in 1907 a much larger tonnage than in 1906. Rogers, Brown & Co. report that a large amount of pig iron has been bought within the past few days. A representative of that firm said yesterday:

> There has been a considerable tonnage of pig iron purchased during the past few days, the buying movement evidently having commenced. Southern furnaces having made large sales, are very firm on their prices for future business, and Northern furnaces having about all the orders they can fill for this quarter and no stocks of iron in their yards, are holding up prices for shipment during the last half of the year.
> Consumers are requesting increased shipments on their present orders, and will necessarily have to purchase more iron sooner than they expected. Considering all conditions, we look for a very large demand for all kinds of iron, which may cause prices to advance.

BREAKS TRADE RECORDS.

The Country's Foreign Business in March Greatest for the Month.

The country's foreign trade in March exceeded all previous records for that month. The statement issued yesterday by the Bureau of Statistics shows that the exports increased $8,543,913 over March, 1905, while imports increased $3,193,878. These increases bring the exports of the month up to $145,522,342 and imports up to $113,625,066. The preponderance of exports over imports, which amounted to $31,897,276, show substantial increase over the record for 1905, but has been exceeded three or four times in the past ten years. The record difference was in March, 1898, when the exports exceeded the imports by $51,058,313. For a number of years past the exports and imports during March and the excess of exports compare as follows:

The record for nine months ended with March also exceeds all previous figures. The comparison of exports with imports this year for the nine months with those of previous years is as follows:

	Exports.	Imports.	Excess Exp.

The imports of gold in March amounted to $5,625,529 and the exports to $4,618,627. For the nine months the imports of gold amounted to $43,994,873 and the exports to $25,809,499.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

A special meeting of stockholders of the New Amsterdam National Bank has been called for May 14 to act on a proposition to increase the bank's capital from $500,000 to $1,000,000.

SPECIAL DEPOSIT PLAN ONLY FOR EMERGENCIES

But Shaw Is Indifferent to Criticism for Aiding the Banks.

LONDON RETALIATION FEARED

Some Say the British May Not Discount Bills Readily Since the New Gold Import Scheme.

Secretary of the Treasury Shaw, who on Saturday announced the steps which he had taken on Thursday to facilitate gold imports, stayed in the city over Sunday and visited the Sub-Treasury again yesterday. In the morning he conferred with several bankers, including James Speyer, James T. Woodward, President of the Hanover National Bank, and James A. Blair. It was said that he talked over with them the plan he had adopted to enable the National banks to get gold abroad in times of monetary stringency such as existed last week.

It was learned that Secretary Shaw said very positively that the action which he had taken last week should not be regarded as establishing a definite policy of the Government, but rather as an expedient to be employed when special occasion arose. He explained to the bankers that the special deposits of Government money with the National banks to facilitate gold imports would not be resorted to under normal monetary conditions, but only when there appeared to be need of bringing relief to the money market.

Secretary Shaw was emphatic in expressing the opinion that last week's situation was an urgent one, and that he had adopted the best means to meet the situation. The Secretary expressed himself as indifferent to the criticism of those who complained of his action, since he had accomplished the desired result.

Shaw Criticised.

The steps taken by the Treasury Department to facilitate gold imports were discussed from many points of view yesterday. Private bankers were inclined to take the position that the Treasury Department was really favoring the National banks at the expense of private bankers. Some of them insisted on the point that it was unfair, at least, to make the plan adopted by the Secretary apply to engagements which had been made before Thursday, when he authorized the special deposits to facilitate gold imports.

In some quarters the opinion was expressed that the announcement of the facilities offered by the Treasury Department ought to have been made known publicly so that all National banks could have profited by these special deposits to arrange gold imports. It was suggested, however, that the delay which occurred in the public announcement of the plan which had been adopted by Secretary Shaw was due to a desire to prevent knowledge of the arrangements reaching London in advance of the actual engagements of gold by the banks which were attempting to get the precious metal in that city and thus frustrating the plan.

Some international bankers took the view yesterday that the London market was likely to resent the methods by which gold was ordered last week and expressed the fear that London would refuse to discount American bills as much as that market has been doing recently. One international banker said that in effect New York had been playing a game with London without London's being advised of the conditions. He expressed the opinion that it was a very smart way of getting the gold, but that London bankers had hardly had a fair chance in the contest.

Bank Got $1,100,000.

The National Bank of Commerce announced yesterday that it had got $1,100,000 from the Sub-Treasury against an engagement of gold of that amount under the plan announced by Secretary Shaw on Saturday. In this transaction the Bank of Commerce is acting for one of its depositors whose name was not given by the bank. It was understood among bankers, however, that the engagement of gold against which the Bank of Commerce had drawn money from the Sub-Treasury was made by Belmont & Co. Yesterday was a bank holiday in London, and that interfered with operations between this city and London. It was generally believed that the engagement announced by the Bank of Commerce had actually been arranged last week.

At the Hanover National Bank, which on Saturday obtained $2,000,000 from the Sub-Treasury to facilitate the engagement of gold abroad, it was said yesterday that the bank had not yet been advised that it had actually got the gold which it was trying to import.

Money was relatively easy yesterday, both for call and time loans. Five and one-half per cent. was the highest call rate, and from that the rate declined to 2½ per cent. Time money was quoted at 5½ to 5¾ per cent. for one month and at 4¾ to 5 per cent. for other periods up to six months. Foreign exchange was strong. Demand sterling rose to 4.8575, an advance of 70 points. At the close the rate was 4.8560.

BANK DEPOSITS DROP.

The synopsis of the condition of the National banks of New York City, compiled in answer to the recent call for the condition of the banks on April 6, was issued yesterday by the New York Clearing House. It shows a large decrease in deposits compared with the January condition of the banks and the condition at this time a year ago. Loans also show a very heavy falling off. Compared with the January call the New York City National banks on April 6 held $79,709,300 less deposits, and compared with a year ago the deposits show a falling off of more than $176,000,000. The cash held by the National banks on April 6 was $35,915,600 less than on Jan. 29.

The loans of the New York City National banks now stand at $690,799,000, and deposits other than those of banks and trust companies are $511,854,400. The deposits of banks and trust companies amount to $380,738,800. Specie, legal tenders, and cash items total $215,245,200.

*Increase.

The buying movement that was so pronounced in the copper shares Saturday was again in evidence at the opening, which was active and higher. North Butte was the particular feature, advancing nearly 2 points on commission house buying. At this point realizing orders came in, and the price was forced below 90. Amalgamated, Bingham, United Copper, Quincy, Parrot, and, in fact, the whole copper list was strong and showed good gains in the early trading, but later in the day reactions set in that brought prices down to below opening quotations. There was considerable stock offering on the decline, and the closing was weak and at around lowest figures of the day.

500% in Five Months.

That is what the people who bought the stock of the Copete Mining Company at its lowest have made. The stock first went up on its merits from $2.50 to $15 a share. Then on account of causes which are well understood, but which had no relation to values, it gradually dropped to fifteen cents a share. These causes now being happily removed, the stock seems to be going back again on its merits to high-water mark, and it is by no means certain that it will stop even there, for the merits of the enterprise are likely to be shown to be great enough to warrant a much higher price.

The COPETE CONSOLIDATED COPPER COMPANY is organized to continue and complete the work begun by the Copete Mining Company, and its stock is likely to increase in value even faster than that stock, for it shares equally with that company all the profits of the COPETE enterprise and has other and most important sources of income and profit besides.

The COPETE is one of the largest, most famous and best endorsed copper properties in North America, and the stock of the COPETE CONSOLIDATED COPPER COMPANY is believed by many shrewd and successful investors to be the best copper investment on the market to-day.

Full particulars will be given and prices quoted on application.

STEEL MEETING PEACEFUL.

No Comment on Management's Course—Retiring Directors Re-elected.

The annual meeting of the United States Steel Corporation was held at Hoboken yesterday. Usually great interest is taken in these meetings by the holders of the company's securities, but yesterday's gathering was entirely uneventful.

It was the first time in the history of the company that the annual meeting was not made the occasion for numerous inquiries by individual stockholders, and was the first time that the meeting closed without the management receiving either blame or commendation. A substantial majority of the company's $868,000,000 of capital stock was represented, almost entirely by proxy, there being few individual stockholders present. Among the holders of the United States Steel Corporation's shares are a great many women investors, but only one woman attended yesterday's meeting.

All the retiring Directors were re-elected. The meeting of the board which will choose the officers for the coming year will not be held until to-day week. So far as known, no important changes are likely to occur in the official staff.

Following the annual meeting of the Steel Corporation itself, meetings were held of the stockholders of all the subsidiary companies and nearly all the retiring Directors were re-elected. Practically the only changes were those in the board of the old American Tin Plate Company, which was rearranged to permit the holding of the company's regular meetings of Directors at Pittsburg instead of New York. This was done by electing Pittsburg men to replace several New Yorkers.

Perhaps if Secretary Shaw's plan to facilitate gold imports had been made public a few days sooner less gold would have been obtained and the money market situation would not have received the relief it needed. At least exchange might have advanced enough to offset the saving of interest in transit. Interest on the gold in transit was a very important item, with money ruling at 20 to 30 per cent. in this market. To assume that the delay in making the announcement was intended to favor certain banks is to ignore the simpler motive. A banker who had no direct interest whatever in the transaction said yesterday: "What Wall Street needed was gold, and thanks partly to Mr. Shaw and partly to the success with which his plan was concealed until the results had been made sure of our money market has been relieved."

***

The latest phase of the unending discussion of banking and currency reform is bringing out ideas. A gentleman of long and varied experience with the workings of the existing system, seeing it from the point of view of a practical Wall Street man, contributes the following: "Various suggestions are in circulation on the subject of the formation of a Central Bank, which should have the power to regulate money rates. The idea seems to be growing in favor, provided such a bank would not be under the control of any one Wall Street faction. To overcome this difficulty, it is suggested that such a bank be formed with a capital furnished by banks and trust companies, each subscribing a percentage of its capital and surplus, and that the Board of Directors be composed of one representative from each of the subscribing institutions, to be either its President or Vice President. This would give the direction of the bank into the hands of the same kind of management as the New York Clearing House, would insure conservatism and prevent any Wall Street faction from obtaining control. Let this Central Bank have the right to issue a special currency to its subscribing institutions at 6 per cent. and a commission of ½ of 1 per cent. for each six months. This would have the effect of bringing out the currency in time of need and insure its retirement when the demand ceased. This currency should be allowed to count as part of the reserves of banks and trust companies. This institution should be given preference for Government deposits, and similar central banks might be organized in other cities, like Chicago, St. Louis, San Francisco, and New Orleans. Let Government deposits be placed only in these banks. This would put an end to charges of favoritism."

Hayden, Stone & Co. of Boston, whose opinion on "coppers" is highly estimated, are putting out a bull circular on Butte Coalition, the stock which represents the mining properties taken over from Mr. Heinze.

There has ceased to be any talk about the "Heinze crowd" in coppers.

While American Ice securities were advancing yesterday Butterick Company stock, which is commonly referred to as a Morse stock, broke 13 points on transactions amounting to only 1,600 shares. It broke in this manner: 100 shares at 51, 100 at 49, 100 at 47, 100 at 45, 100 at 41, 1,000 at 40. Following the sale of 1,000 shares at 40 a request was sent in for a quotation on the stock, and it was reported: "40 bid; 56¼ asked." The stock has never been active in the market, but it is said to have been pretty widely distributed in fractional amounts among small and inexperienced investors. This break in Butterick stock yesterday recalled something that once happened in Ice—the old stock. It broke suddenly some 15 points or more under sales of only a few hundred shares, with no apparent reason. Afterward it was officially explained that the incident was due to the temporary absence of the specialist. It was nevertheless an unfortunate incident, for a number of banks immediately threw Ice stock out of their loans. A security which depends entirely on a specialist for its market is not the kind of collateral that banks care to have in the loan envelopes. The specialist might die abruptly, or go out to get shaved, or for a drink, and there would be nobody to answer for what might happen during his absence.

Officials of the United States Rubber Company are evidently taking an active interest in the Rubber Goods Manufacturing Company. Samuel P. Colt, Lester Leland, Anthony N. Brady, and John J. Watson, Jr., all of the United States Rubber Company, have just appeared in the Directorate of the Rubber Goods Manufacturing Company. Of the present Rubber Goods Manufacturing Company's board, six members are also Directors of the United States Rubber Company.

The recovery which was in progress at the close of business on Saturday carried over the week's end. The market made a very buoyant opening and was broad and active for an hour at a moderate advance over last week's closing prices. After that the activity declined, and the market became irregular. Transactions in the first hour exceeded 300,000 shares; in the second hour they fell considerably below 200,000 shares; in the third hour they fell below 100,000 shares, and in the fourth to about 60,000. In the last hour the trading jumped to 200,000 shares, but a good deal of this final activity was at the expense of values. Immediately after delivery time—2:15 o'clock—a brisk selling movement started, and sharp recessions occurred in the stocks that had been bought most aggressively in the first hour. Throughout the day there was evidence of heavy speculative realizing on the bull side. Such selling was to have been expected. The recovery from the low prices of last week had amounted to 8 points in Amalgamated Copper, nearly 7 points in Union Pacific, and 2 to 4 per cent. through the general list. It was remarkable that the market took stocks so readily off the hands of speculators, considering the highly professional nature of the previous buying and the absence of much general or outside buying.

The recovery in prices since the middle of last week has greatly reduced the short interest, and there has been no corresponding increase of commission house business to take its place. It might be argued, therefore, that the market's technical position has been somewhat weakened. Brokers reported yesterday that borrowers had been returning a lot of stocks. The outside response yesterday morning to the market's improvement was perhaps a little disappointing to bullish speculators, but brokers had not favored buying stocks on top of so rapid a recovery. On both Friday and Saturday they discouraged buying and advised their clients to wait for reactions. The increase of general commission business yesterday, therefore, was very moderate.

***

An operator who made an experimental demonstration yesterday in a well-known low-priced stock declared that the response he got was in every way encouraging. He is convinced that the commission houses can be induced to take part in the market if the leadership is trustworthy and the initiative is taken in the right stocks. He believes strongly in the low-priced stocks, in which as a class the commission house element, he thinks, will trade much more freely than in the high-priced stuff. He finds, too, that this market's foreign following is partial to the low-priced stocks, and would trade in them where it would not respond to activity in stocks that have had greater advances.

***

The United States Steel stocks behaved yesterday in a very satisfactory manner. The common stock got up above 44 for the first time since the selling done in expectation of a coal strike. Traders say that Steel common looks right for another movement. Its recovery of 5 points from the low price of March has been very gradual, and there has been no such activity as would ordinarily indicate distribution. Owing to the enormous volume of this stock its movements are ponderous and slow. Usually it takes several weeks for an advance to get under way, but once it has started in earnest its impulse is tremendous. It is a stock in which the public would trade, if it would trade in anything, besides which its leadership is highly beneficial to the general list, appealing to a larger body of speculative sentiment than the leadership of any other security. Some very confident bulls predict that Steel common will sell at 50 during the Summer. The buying of the Steel shares up to this point has evidently been very strong. It has been of the same character as that which invariably heretofore has been associated with sustained bull movements.

***

One of the strongest stocks in the market in the last hour yesterday was Pennsylvania, which advanced while the general list was reactionary.

The Street has made up its mind that the Amalgamated Copper dividend will be increased. It is still uncertain, however, as to how much of an increase it should expect. If the real bull campaign in Amalgamated Copper is still to come, as many well-informed persons seem to believe, then an increase to more than 7 per cent. at this time is unlikely. It has been the policy of the Amalgamated Copper Directors to raise the dividend slowly, holding out the prospect each time of increases yet to come. The prospect of an increase is a stronger bull argument in the hands of speculators than the fullest realization. Thus if the dividend were increased on Thursday to the rate of 7 per cent. the Street would begin at once to anticipate an increase to the rate of 8 per cent., just as it began to anticipate 7 per cent. as soon as the dividend had been increased to 6 per cent., whereas, on the other hand, an increase at this time from 6 per cent. to 8 per cent. would be a shameful waste of speculative ammunition.

Curb Market Firm in a Day of Light Trading.

Mackay Companies and Chicago Subway Continue Strong—Most Trading in Mining Shares.

While curb trading was sluggish yesterday and the total of sales small, what market there was showed consistent firmness. Mining shares absorbed the bulk of the day's activity, but interest continued in the Mackay Companies stocks, Chicago Subway and others of the industrials and railroads which have been prominent in recent markets. Mackay common sold 3,100 between 65 and 65⅝, closing at 65⅝, and 1,800 of the preferred sold between 73⅛ and 73¼, closing at 73¼, the opening. Chicago Subway closed at 56⅝ after selling 5,700 shares.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

PHILADELPHIA, April 16.—There were periods to-day when the local market acted as though a repetition of old-fashioned boom was about to be inaugurated. Stocks became strong under active bidding; then the scene changed, and there were long intervals of extreme dullness. Commission houses generally complained of lack of orders, so that the spurts referred to evidently came from operations of the floor traders. As a rule, however, prices were fractionally above Saturday's level until late in the day, when they eased off in sympathy with New York. General Asphalt preferred was off a point, and Pennsylvania Salt 1½, while Wilkesbarre Gas and Electric established a new high record by advancing 1½ points, to 60. These movements were exceptional, fluctuations in other parts of the list being less than 1 per cent.

Total sales, 26,194 shares.

TWO MONTHS' RECORD

PITTSBURGH BULLFROG

MINING CORPORATION, LIMITED

EVERY MINE IN THE BULLFROG DISTRICT that had the surface indications has made good when properly developed.

WE MAKE NO PROPHECIES—but if the next two months show as rapid progress as the last two (and we believe they will do better), the stockholders of this corporation will have a MINE—and a big one.

THE FIRST WORK DONE was about 1,000 linear feet of trenching from 4 to 6 ft. deep across the ground at both ends of the property. Feb. 17th a vein five feet wide was uncovered on the north end of the Sapper claim. Feb. 22nd a second vein, 7 feet wide, was uncovered on the Sapper, 85 feet from the first one. Three shafts are now down on this claim; one 25 feet deep, one 32 and one 40 feet deep. Strong indications of a known parallel vein to the Shoshone having been found on the Cora claim, another shaft has been started there, from which we hope for good reports at an early date.

OUR MAIN SHAFT, a double-compartment, 4½x8½ ft. in the clear and thoroughly timbered, has been sunk on the south end of the Canton claim. This shaft is in the SAME FORMATION OF QUARTZ AND WHITE TALC that identifies the Montgomery Shoshone vein everywhere, and that carries the highest values in the Bullfrog district; and with LESS THAN TWO MONTHS' WORK is now down EIGHTY feet. It is proposed to sink to 150 feet before cross-cutting.

NOT A PROPERTY IN THE DISTRICT has been more energetically developed than the Pittsburgh Bullfrog; in fact, the work of our engineer, G. B. Bailey, E. M., Ph. D., has aroused the admiration and been the talk of the entire district.

TWO FULLY-EQUIPPED BLACKSMITH SHOPS, one on each end of the property, have been built, with bunk house, dining room and kitchen for the accommodation of the 30 miners now at work; and more men are being added as the work advances. Both shops have been connected by meter with the Rhyolite Water Company's pipe line, which crosses the properties, so that we do not have to haul water. A private auto road across the properties has been constructed, and connection made with the main road to Rhyolite. A 25 h. p. hoist has been installed at the Canton shaft, and a diamond drill has been purchased and is now on the way to the properties.

ASSAYS HAVE RUN AS HIGH AS $138 GOLD to the ton, with averages of $20.80 at 20 ft. depth, when the shafts had not even gone through the cap rock, under which the large ore bodies and high values are always found. With railroad connection, $10 ore can be worked at a profit.

THE LAS VEGAS RAILROAD will reach the properties by the 15th of May, if not before—thus giving us exceptional transportation facilities.

SINCE OUR DISCOVERIES on the Sapper claim, the Schwab and Helvetia people have taken up properties 1,200 yards north of it, and are developing same, as they are satisfied the Shoshone belt goes through their lands; this means that the Shoshone belt is both north and south of us, and consequently must be in our ground.

IN VIEW OF THESE FACTS, OUR STOCK IS WORTH MORE THAN THE PRESENT PRICE, AND IT WILL THEREFORE ADVANCE TO 55 Cents Per Share On and After April 21st.

IT COSTS MONEY TO MAKE A MINE; but we shall make a mine out of this property, for the ore is there. All the indications, and all the development work done so far, prove it.

WE HAVE ONLY TOLD YOU in all our statements what we believed; thus far our beliefs have been MORE than realized; AND WE NOW BELIEVE ABSOLUTELY THAT EVERY PITTSBURGH BULLFROG STOCKHOLDER IS GOING TO RECEIVE AS GREAT RETURNS ON HIS INVESTMENT AS ANY NEVADA MINE EXCEPT COMSTOCK HAS EVER PAID.

SUBSCRIPTIONS MUST BE ACCOMPANIED by check to the order of this corporation for the entire amount of shares desired, at 45 cents per share. No subscription accepted for less than 100 shares. All mail orders to secure stock at 45 cents must bear postmark not later than April 21st, 1906.

AS BOTH our preceding issues were largely over-subscribed, we advise reservations by telegraph, which may be made at our expense, remittance to follow by NEXT MAIL.

BOARD OF ESTIMATE AND APPORTIONMENT.

Public notice is hereby given that at a meeting of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, held March 30, 1906, the following petition was received:

To the Honorable, the Board of Estimate and Apportionment:

1. That your petitioner is a street surface railway corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, having filed its certificate of incorporation in the office of the Secretary of State of New York on the 29th day of July, 1905, for the purpose of constructing, maintaining, and operating a street surface railway in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York.

2. That your petitioner desires to obtain from the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of The City of New York its consent to and a grant of the right, privileges, and franchise to use a portion of Bowne Street, in the Borough of Brooklyn, City of New York, for street railway purposes, and for the construction, maintenance and operation of a single track street surface railway upon and along the surface of said Bowne Street, a description of such proposed railway being as follows: Beginning at a point southeast of Imlay Street, where it will connect with the track of the New York Dock Company, and running southeasterly along Bowne Street to and into the property of J. H. Williams & Co., on the easterly side of Richards Street, the entire length of said road not to exceed nine hundred feet, together with the necessary connections, switches, sidings, turn-outs, turn-tables, cross-overs, and suitable stands necessary for the accommodation and operation of the said railroad by the overhead system of electricity, or other power lawfully employed by connecting railroads, all in the Borough of Brooklyn, City and State of New York.

3. Your petitioner further shows that there is no adequate means of transportation provided between the termini of the proposed railroad, and your petitioner believes there is a public demand for the construction and operation of this proposed railroad, and that such construction and operation will be a public convenience and benefit, the said railroad to be used for freight only.

Wherefore, your petitioner prays that the notice of the time and place when and where this application will be first considered be given, pursuant to provisions of Section 92 of the Railroad Law, and all other laws applicable thereto, and that consent or grant be given in the form of an ordinance subject to the laws and ordinances applicable thereto, and upon terms and conditions to be fixed in accordance with the provisions of the Greater New York Charter.

JAMES H. WILLIAMS.

Sworn to before me this 23d day of February, 1906.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT—Wheat opened at a decline of ¼c under quite general selling. Although the foreign markets remained closed, the foreign statistics were cabled with bearish results. American statistics had an uncertain, if not a bearish, leaning. The detailed statement of The Daily Market Record of Northwestern Spring wheat supplies, based on returns from its correspondents, shows 27,750,000 bushels in farmers' hands, exclusive of seed, 5,750,000 bushels in country elevators, 23,414,000 bushels at Duluth and Minneapolis; total, 68,014,000 bushels. Milling requirements, based on actual consumption of 1905, are 61,000,000 bushels; shipments out, 8,500,000 bushels. No. 2 red, 90c, elevator, and 90¾c, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 88⅝c, free on board, afloat.

CORN—Corn dropped ¼c at the opening, May contracts under a momentary pressure selling off to 53⅝c, but there was a quick rally to 54⅛c—representing a ⅝c rise on May only, July and the later positions not being in demand. The May advance was on talk of contemplated renewed manipulation and heavy buying by the Armour contingent. Not only was the local May corn position considered strong, but strong probabilities of a Chicago May deal were hinted, an outcome made the more possible by the depleted and depleting stocks, Chicago alone losing 916,000 bushels during the week. The market for corn futures here closed firm and practically at the top. Exporters took no corn. The cash property was easier, but nominal. No. 2 corn, 57c, nominal, in elevator, and 54¾c, nominal, free on board afloat; No. 2 white, 55¾c, and No. 2 yellow, 55¼c, nominal, free on board, afloat.

MANY ODD VOUCHERS FOR THE MUTUAL LIFE

PAID CABMAN $150 A MONTH

He Is Called "Goodspeed"—"Plants" and Excursions for Women Paid For, Too.

The digging that has been going on in the records of the supply department of the Mutual Life Insurance Company, over which Andrew C. Fields used to preside, has turned up more queer vouchers that hardly find explanation in any of the known purposes to which the department was put under the McCurdy régime. It appears that the end is not yet by any means.

Vouchers for the traveling expenses of Richard A. McCurdy on various trips about the country are among those which have recently come to light. In the investigation of the Armstrong Committee similar payments were found to have been made on account of the trips of Robert H. McCurdy as general manager of the company after his appointment to that place a couple of years ago. These ran in some instances as high as $500 a week for young Mr. McCurdy alone. On no less liberal scale, according to the new evidence, were the trips of the elder McCurdy. The vouchers are in most instances signed by John K. Duer, who was Richard A. McCurdy's private secretary for many years. It is intimated that legal proceedings for the recovery of the money may concern Mr. Duer.

What appears to have been the salary of the hackman who brought the elder McCurdy from the Liberty Street Ferry to the Mutual Life Building is shown by many vouchers made out to "William Goodspeed" at the rate of $150 a month. They are entered as "cab hire" and in the case of the voucher for March, 1904, at least, an additional allowance of $45 is made for extra work. Details of these expenditures are quite as meagre as in the case of the traveling expense vouchers.

There are also vouchers made out to Alexander McClelland, a brother of United States General Appraiser Charles P. McClelland, whose name figured in some of the legal service vouchers of the Mutual and other companies produced at the investigation. These indicate payments of about $150 a year for several years on account of "furnishing plants for the court," by which is meant, according to the understanding of things in the Mutual Building, the interior court of that structure.

Summer excursions for the women employes of the Mutual were also financed through the Mutual's supply department, according to other vouchers recently brought to light. These excursions were conducted as recently as the Summer of 1905, according to one payment of $200, which appears to have been made last June. The Mutual's investigators have hitherto been unaware of this form of entertainment.

WASHINGTON LIFE CHARGES.

Indictments Expected Soon — Deficit Turned Into an Apparent Surplus.

The investigation of the affairs of the Washington Life Insurance Company prior to its reorganization was completed by the Grand Jury yesterday. Several indictments are expected to-morrow or Thursday. It is supposed that they will charge forgery in the first place, and possibly perjury.

The reports made by the company's principal officers to the State Insurance Department on Jan. 1, 1904, are expected to furnish the basis for the charges. An examination by the State Examiner in 1904 brought out the fact that 1,500 policies, representing $450,000 in liabilities, had been dropped in December, 1903, and reinstated in the first weeks of January, 1904.

By eliminating them from the report, an actual deficit of $80,000 was turned into an apparent surplus of about $200,000. At that time the President of the company, William A. Brewer, Jr., was drawing a salary of $26,000, while his son, Graham Brewer, was getting $10,000 as Secretary.

INJURED AERONAUT HERE.

Israel Ludlow, inventor of the Ludlow aeroplane, who was injured by falling 200 feet from his machine at Atlantic Beach, Fla., on Saturday, was brought to this city yesterday.

Immediately after the accident, which left his lower limbs completely paralyzed, the aeronaut was put on a cot and sent north on a train over the Seaboard Air Line. He was met in Washington by his mother and his brother Charles, who came on with him to Jersey City, where he arrived about 7 o'clock yesterday morning.

The injured man was immediately taken in an ambulance to Roosevelt Hospital, where he was put in a private ward under the care of Dr. Brewster and the hospital staff.

After a thorough examination, Dr. Brewster said that either a clot of blood was pressing on Mr. Ludlow's spinal cord or a vertabra had been fractured. Another consultation was held last night, in which Dr. Virgil P. Gibney, a specialist on diseases of the spine, participated.

It was the general opinion of the medical men that, while Ludlow would probably recover, he would be paralyzed in his lower limbs for life. The patient has not lost consciousness except in sleep since the accident happened.

Mr. Ludlow was accompanied on the trip to this city by Dr. Perry and Miss Low, a trained nurse, both of St. Luke's Hospital, Jacksonville. An earlier train brought Charles Hamilton, the Texas aeronaut, who fell from a Ludlow aeroplane two weeks ago, but escaped practically uninjured. He said that he could not understand how Ludlow received his injury, as the kite usually subsided gently when it met with an accident.

Great sympathy for Mr. Ludlow was expressed by the members of the Aero Club, who feel grateful to him for the active part which he took in the search for the body of Paul Nocquet. Among the numerous persons who met the train at Jersey City were Dr. Julian P. Thomas and Dr. Post, both of the Aero Club.

Dr. George L. Brewer and several other physicians held another consultation over the injured man last night. After the consultation Dr. Brewer refused to make any statement concerning Ludlow's condition. It was said at the hospital, however, that Mr. Ludlow had not improved any since arriving there, and that his condition was serious.

MORE POLICE TRANSFERS.

Bingham Assigns Inspectors Reinstated by the Courts to Duty.

Police Commissioner Bingham transferred eight Captains yesterday afternoon and assigned to duty two Inspectors who had been retired by Commissioner McAdoo during his term of office, on the grounds of physical disability, and were reinstated by the courts. The assignments were:

Inspector Thomas L. Druhan; Eleventh Inspection District, Brooklyn.

The transfers were:

Capt. John Buchanan; Rockaway Beach Station to Sub-station Harbor Squad, East 122d Street.

Capt. Herman Shlottman; Elizabeth Street Station to command of Harbor Squad.

Capt. Robert A. Tighe; from Harbor Squad to Rockaway Beach Station.

After making public the assignments and transfers, Commissioner Bingham said that they were made "for the good of the service," and that he had no comments to make.

To make room for the reinstated Inspectors, Commissioner Bingham was forced to send Acting Inspectors Connor and Gallagher, whom he was trying out, back to the command of precincts. He kept both men in Manhattan. These four moves made the other transfers necessary, except in the case of Capts. Thompson and McGlynn. The latter goes back to a precinct which he formerly commanded for some time.

NEW RINK OPENED.

Devoted Exclusively to Roller Skating —Has Big First Day.

The Metropolitan Roller Rink, one of the biggest establishments of the kind in this country devoted exclusively to roller skating, was opened to the public for the first time yesterday afternoon. The rink is in the middle of the block on Broadway, between Fifty-second and Fifty-third Streets. According to the management it has the finest floor for roller skating ever built in the United States.

Judged by the first day's attendance the rink is going to be a success and most of the 2,500 people who paid admission believe that roller skating is again about to become one of the popular forms of amusement in this city. Last night the doors had to be closed five times, and despite the efforts of the management to accommodate everybody, at least 400 had to be refused admission.

The attendance in the afternoon was over 700, while last night the ticket sellers said that they had disposed of 1,700 tickets. Music was furnished by a band of twenty-five pieces. The rink is to be open every day from 1:30 to 5:30 and from 8:30 to 10:30 P. M.

MOTHER AND CHILD.

Let the mother take Scott's Emulsion for the two; it never fails to benefit them both. One can eat for two, but nourishing two is a different thing. It calls for a degree of internal strength that the average woman lacks. People of luxury are not very strong by habit; overworked people are weak in some functions from exhaustion or their surroundings. Scott's Emulsion can be depended upon to overcome such conditions. It is a wonderful food for a mother and child.

UNIVERSAL TRANSFERS SOME DAY, BUT NOT NOW

WOULD CONGEST TRAFFIC

President Vreeland Says the Change Should Not Be Made Until New Subways Are Built.

In view of the widespread comment on the bill introduced in the Legislature by Assemblyman Quinn for a universal transfer system between all car lines in this city, including surface, underground, and elevated roads, the traction officials were asked yesterday for a statement of their feeling toward the bill. They are against it, not because they do not want to see a universal transfer system adopted eventually, but because they say they consider that the time is not yet ripe for it.

President Vreeland of the Metropolitan Street Railway Company and Vice President E. P. Bryan, the operating head of the Interborough said yesterday that the result of giving transfers at every point would seriously cripple the service and make the conditions of travel many times as bad as they are now.

Both the operating and financial heads of the street railway lines in this city regard the universal transfer system as inevitable. They are not against it because it brings a loss in net revenue, for the establishment of nearly every new transfer point has demonstrated that it materially increased the amount of travel; they are against it because, they hold, it would cause endless confusion and delay. President Vreeland said:

> There is no doubt that the law making it compulsory to give free transfers at all points from and to the elevated, Subway, and surface car systems would lead to the most serious discomforts to passengers. The operating officials of the various systems should have control of the regulation of traffic so as to afford the public a great many more advantages than are possible under the present system.
>
> By reason of the operation of the law on rigid lines, rigidly interpreted, there are thousands of passengers every day who crowd the Broadway and other main lines who could be more comfortably transported and brought with greater speed to their destinations by the use of lines less crowded. The traveling public and the truckmen crowd Broadway while other lines of travel north and south, such as Second Avenue, Eighth Avenue, and Ninth Avenue, would be much more convenient.
> Before it was made impossible to travel in opposite directions on the same transfer, more than 100,000 passengers a day rode from the east side over to Broadway, then up Broadway, and then back again to the east side. They could have gone direct by way of Second or Third Avenue. They blocked travel and brought discomfort to thousands of persons besides themselves.
>
> The question of transfers is one of operation, and if the operating officials of the various roads were authorized to regulate the flow of traffic, the result in added comfort and quickness would, I am sure, be appreciated by the general public.

Thus it appears that the operating officials, rather than the street railway financiers, are the persons who stand out against more transfers. The financiers say they are always anxious to broaden the transfer system, for it increases the revenue, but the operating men object, because the additional crowds make it difficult to move the cars.

When asked for his opinion on the advisability of a universal transfer system Vice President Bryan of the Interborough said:

> For many years the citizens of this city have been fighting for a rapid transit system which would carry passengers from the downtown district to Harlem or the Bronx quickly. If universal transfers were put into effect now the Subway would be so jammed that the movement of trains would be impeded, the public would be subjected to much discomfort, and traffic in general would be seriously delayed.
>
> The Subway is now operated, in the morning and evening "rush" hours, at its full capacity, and no matter what law is passed compelling free and universal transfers, we cannot carry more passengers on the trains at those times.
> In the Subway the question of stairways, of platform space, and of train capacity must be carefully considered. To crowd the platforms more than they are now would result in conditions every day such as now occur if, for any reason, an express train is delayed for ten or fifteen minutes. No matter how many persons crowded to the platform, we couldn't carry any more passengers than we carry in the rush hours now.

Not long ago, President Vreeland made an experiment of his own to demonstrate the public habit of using Broadway to the exclusion of the other streets. The Metropolitan Company sent some of its trucks to the lower east side, with orders to return to the upper east side. Without being directed to take any particular route, the truckmen, with one accord, drove over to Broadway, then up Broadway, and then east again through Fifty-ninth Street. Thus they went two or three miles out of their way for no apparent reason.

The operating officials say the course of these truckmen is the course of the public. Now Broadway, with cars following one another at half-block intervals, is the only line that is run to its full capacity. More cars could be put on Second and Third Avenues if the public showed a demand for them, but no more can be run on Broadway in the rush hours.

Before the Court of Appeals decided against it in the transfer cases, the Metropolitan Company could turn some of the travel to the less busy lines by refusing transfers from certain crosstown lines to Broadway. If they had the power under the law, the operating officials say, they would return to this plan of distributing the crowds.

It is the professed intention of the traction companies to establish a universal transfer system ultimately. What they are waiting for is to get such a complete system of subways that the passengers would not be overcrowded. Another step toward universal transfers, they say, is the lengthening of the local platforms so that local trains can consist of eight cars each. The Interborough has already asked permission from the Rapid Transit Commission to make this change.

ITALIAN SPY SENT TO PRISON.

Emanuel Brodisi, a former Italian secret service man who was sent here by his Government to keep track of the Anarchists, was sentenced to eight years in Sing Sing by Judge Cowing in General Sessions yesterday.

Brodisi seems to have gone wrong almost as soon as he landed here. The police say that he was arrested on suspicion several times before he was caught and convicted of burglary for stealing jewelry worth $3,000 from Schumann's Sons' store at 937 Broadway.

NEW ATLANTIC LINER IN PORT.

Holland-American Ship Nieuw Amsterdam Here on Her Maiden Voyage.

The new Holland-American liner Nieuw Amsterdam reached Hoboken after her maiden passage across the Atlantic yesterday afternoon. The ship, which is the largest flying the Dutch flag, as well as the best passenger vessel yet built for the New York-Rotterdam trade, resembles outwardly the other Holland-American ships, having, like them, a single striped funnel and four masts. She is 615 feet long, has a beam of 68½ feet and a depth of 48 feet. Her registered tonnage is 71,250, and her displacement is 30,200 tons.

The passenger accommodations on the new liner are modern in every particular. There is a Dutch smoking room, with decorations consisting of views of New Amsterdam, when what is now New York was a Dutch settlement. A Japanese tearoom is also artistically furnished. The social hall is furnished in the Empire style, and will surely be one of the most popular apartments on the new ship.

The saloon passengers have a walking space on the promenade deck of 8,200 square feet. The liner has accommodations for 450 first, 250 second, and 2,500 to 3,000 steerage passengers. The ship has twin screws and is designed to make the voyage from New York to Rotterdam in nine days. She is equipped with the Marconi system of wireless telegraph.

"Col." Colmey Convicted.

"Colonel" T. C. P. Colmey, alias "Kid" Murray, was convicted in General Sessions yesterday of uttering a forged Norfolk & Western 100-share common stock certificate. He may get ten years in prison. He is already under sentence to serve four years and six months for selling a worthless railroad bond.

KILL HIS SAVINGS BANK BILL

He Accuses Malby of Obeying the Behest of "The Man You Call Master."

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 17.—Senator Page's bill to repeal the law taxing the surplus on the reserves of savings banks was definitely killed in the Senate to-day. Incidental to the action on the bill was presented the spectacle of a Republican majority voting almost solidly to kill a measure introduced by a Republican Senator, that had been incorporated in the Republican platform in the State election two years ago, which the Governor had twice urged in his message and concerning which he had sent a special message.

Senator Page was worked up to a high pitch of wrath when he saw that his position was hopeless and he turned on Senator Malby and openly accused him of acting at the behest of "the man you call your master," and trying to rob him (Page) of any honor that might attach to the passage of such a measure, to which the Republican Party and the Democratic Party as well had been pledged.

The matter brought to the fore again the fight between Page and Odell and demonstrated that the Newburg man has more friends in the Senate than had been suspected. Page's speech made it clear that the New York Senator knew he was being disciplined for his anti-Odell attitude.

There is a bill similar in character now under consideration in the Committee of Taxation and Retrenchment which was introduced by Senator Foley, and Page charged Malby with trying to humiliate him to the extent of killing the bill of a Republican and trying to pass a bill of similar intent introduced by a Democrat. Throughout the voting the Democrats voted solidly with Page, and only a few of the Republicans gave him support.

One of the remarkable features of the proceeding was that the Senate voted against reconsideration of the vote by which the bill was killed, and Senator Foley remarked that in the twelve years in which he has been in the Senate this was the first time that such a courtesy had ever been refused to a Senator on either side. It is usually a simple matter of form.

The bill came up first in Committee of the Whole, when Senator Lewis, Chairman of the Committee on Taxation and Retrenchment, moved to strike out the enacting clause. Lewis made a long speech against the bill, and was supported by Brackett, Malby, and Cassidy. Page alone spoke for it on its merits, and pointed out that the party was pledged to it solidly. The motion to strike out finally prevailed, 18 to 15.

Then Page began to jockey for delay. After the Committee of the Whole had risen he moved that the Senate refuse to concur in the committee report. This brought about another lengthy debate, during the course of which Senators Elsberg and Saxe said that while they opposed the bill in form and on principle yet they and the party were pledged to it, and they must vote with its supporters. The report of the committee was agreed to, 21 to 16.

Page tried another tack after Elsberg had given him the hint that such an important measure should lie over until there was a full attendance and every Senator could have an opportunity to record his vote.

Malby opposed this, for as the Senate stood he had matters in his own hands. He denied that either the party or the Governor were pledged to the bill, and demanded that it be dispatched without delay. Page moved to consider the vote by which the Committee of the Whole's report was adopted and to lay the motion on the table, where it could be called up to-morrow. The motion to table was lost by 21 to 15. Then Page moved to adjourn, and was beaten again. Finally the motion to reconsider was put, and as the Senator from New York stalked up and down the floor of the Senate like a caged tiger and Malby laughingly sneered at him, the motion for reconsideration was lost by 24 to 16.

That settled Page's bill for good and all.

"I want to thank my Republican colleagues for their extreme courtesy," said Page when it was all over. "I understand that the Senator from the Thirty-second [Malby] does not desire to give me any consideration, and if he and his supporters and the man he calls master, who has exacted a promise from you to do this, can derive any satisfaction from it, he and they are welcome to it. You are welcome to any satisfaction you may get from a scheme to rob me of the credit of this measure and put the credit in the hands of a Democratic Senator. I wish you much joy in your bargain."

ALBANY, April 17.—The Court of Appeals to-day affirmed the judgment of the courts below and sustained the position of the State Department of Education in the famous Lima school case, affecting the power of the State Department of Education to forbid the wearing of nun's or other religious garb by a teacher in any public school.

NO THIRD TERM—WATTERSON.

Suspects Roosevelt Is Trying to Build a Party on Wrecks of Old Ones.

LOUISVILLE, April 17.—Henry Watterson, in the Courier-Journal to-morrow, will deal exhaustively with that part of President Roosevelt's speech on Saturday in which he referred to the necessity of a tax on wealth.

"The utterance of the President," Mr. Watterson will say, "is just as radical, just as far reaching, and just as pertinent as that of President Lincoln, when he said: 'I believe this Government cannot permanently endure half free and half slave.'

"As slavery was the menace of the Union in 1858, is money its menace now? As slavery built up an oligarchy in the South, is money building up a plutocracy in the East? Just as it was true that the Government could not endure half-free and half-slave, is it true that if the Government does not destroy the plutocracy, the plutocracy will destroy the Government?

"What can he now be driving at; where is his objective point? There will not be wanting those who will accuse the President of a scheme to wreck both parties and to build a party of his own.

"Can such thoughts have been running through the Roosevelt fancy? Let us hope not, because there stands a third-term tradition, and woe to him who believes that it is not deeply rooted in the minds and hearts of the great body of the people, the very bedrock of Democratic and Republican government, their safeguard against absolutism. It will not do for Mr. Rousevelt to tamper with this.

"The country will want to hear from the gentleman from Nebraska. Mr. Bryan has the floor."

TWO MORE KEARSARGE DEAD.

Admiral Evans Appoints a Court to Investigate the Accident.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Two more deaths were reported to the Navy Department to-day as the result of the explosion on the battleship Kearsarge last Friday.

A cablegram was received from Rear Admiral Evans, Commander in Chief of the Atlantic Fleet, stating that Frederick Thomas Fisher, chief gunner's mate, died on Sunday night, and that James S. McArdle, electrician, first class, died yesterday.

Fisher was a resident of San Francisco. His next of kin is given on the records as Miss Minnie Fisher, (sister,) Buckworth Rectory, Huntingdon, England.

McArdle was a resident of New York. His next of kin is his sister, of St. Thomas, Guelph Convent, Ontario.

Admiral Evans has arrived at Guantanamo on his flagship, the Maine, and has cabled that he has appointed a court of inquiry consisting of Rear Admiral Brownson, Capt. Ingersoll, and Lieut. Commander Bradshaw to investigate the accident on the Kearsarge. Lieut. Commander Harrison will act as Judge Advocate.

LOBBYING FOR THE CONGO.

Consul General Whiteley's Effort to Prevent Investigation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—It developed to-day that Sir Chentung Liang-Cheng, the Chinese Minister, is not the only "international lobbyist" as one of the members of the House designated them to-day. James Gustavus Whiteley, Consul General of the Congo Free State, has been mixing up in the discussion of a resolution pending in the House Committee on Foreign Affairs and doing his best to prevent it from being reported to the House or adopted.

The resolution aims at some sort of an investigation by the United States into the allegations of inhuman cruelty in the Congo. The fact that there has never been the slightest chance that it would receive any considerations at the hands of the committee has not kept Mr. Whiteley from making himself very active in opposition.

Members of the House scouted the idea that anything would be done about it. They take it that the publication of the breach of etiquette of the Chinese Minister will have a sufficient tendency to check such interference. Mr. Denby will probably take an early occasion to make a few remarks in the House about Sir Chentung's criticism, and the incident will close with that.

MINERS AWED BY BAYONETS.

Streets of Windber Strongly Guarded by State Constabulary.

JOHNSTOWN, Penn., April 17.—Windber's streets to-night are bristling with bayonets of State Constabulary, who are maintaining the order that was brought out of the rioting and chaotic conditions that prevailed for several hours last night, but it is feared that there will be another outbreak to-morrow, when the funerals of the mob victims are held.

The prisoners arrested last night, and charged to-day with rioting, have been transferred from the Windber lock-up to the county jail at Somerset by Sheriff Begley, with a corps of deputies. The entire town to-night, as well as the Berwind-White Coal Company's mines, are closely guarded, and all who go in or out of the town must pass the scrutiny of the State Constabulary.

DR. CRAPSEY'S ANSWER.

BATAVIA, N. Y., April 17.—The trial of the Rev. Algernon S. Crapsey of the Protestant Episcopal Church on charges of heresy was called before the Ecclesiastical Court at St. James's Parish house here to-day.

Dr. Crapsey's answer was read by Representative Perkins as soon as the proceedings were under way. He admitted that he preached the sermons contained in his book entitled "Religion and Politics," but denied Specification 2 of Charge 1, which sets forth that in a sermon he expressed his disbelief in the virgin birth of Christ, &c. He said he taught or declared no statements except which were contained in Holy Scriptures and what may be considered as true. In conclusion, he denied the right of the Diocese of Western New York to consider his case.

500 IN FIVE INNINGS NEW BILLIARD RECORD

Sutton's Average Is 100, Doubling Previous Scores.

WINNER RUNS 234 UNFINISHED

Hoppe Had Only 118 Points When Sutton Terminated Match in Fifth Inning.

George Sutton created a new world's record average last night of 100 for 18.2 billiards. He also counted the record high run of the present international championship tournament by completing his string of 500 points with an unfinished cluster of 234 carroms. Incidentally he left William F. Hoppe, the youthful 18.1 champion, with only 118 points on his string, thus administering to that aspirant for new honors in this meeting his second crushing defeat.

The sensational cue manipulation of Sutton was accomplished before the largest gathering of spectators that has assembled in the concert hall of the Madison Square Garden since the meeting began. Their applause and enthusiastic cheering when Sutton attained 200 on his final run, and upon his remarkable victory, have never been equaled in this country. At the 200th count Sutton was engaged in a delicate nurse within the confines of the unlimited centre panel. The cheering of the spectators continued for five minutes, and after bowing his acknowledgments Sutton walked over to Hoppe's chair and filed his cue tip, allowing the noise to subside before continuing at the table. The previous record average was 50, and was held by Vignaux for a match of 500 points. Cure, playing in the present tournament, holds the record high run of 255 for this style of billiards.

In striking contrast to the night match was that of the afternoon, in which George F. Slosson continued his line of victories by defeating Albert G. Cutler by 500 points to 346. This contest was long drawn out, and the winning average was only 14 24-34.

The opening lay-off shot fell to Hoppe in the night match, and he gathered 11 carroms in various portions of the table before missing a difficult shot to the bank. Sutton's dangerous skill was amply demonstrated when he took his first turn and rapidly accumulated 128 as the result of his effort. Up to the ninetieth count of this run Sutton manipulated the ivory globes for ball-to-ball billiards. The warmth of the room contributed to the perfect rolling of the balls, and allowed Sutton to keep them under perfect control even when playing one-ball-dead drives of the most difficult and brilliant character. So sure and skillful was Sutton's work that only once was it necessary for him to use the massé stroke. Upon the ninety-first count Sutton began to nurse the ivory spheres, and, while he was as delicate-handed as Schaefer, he was deliberate and calculating. His handling of the cue and balls was the acme of gentleness at this stage, and brought about a kiss shot on the rail which was the gem of the deftly played collection. Finally his softness of touch led to his undoing, for a cushion shot failed to reach and caused his retirement.

Hoppe indicated no timidity as he took his second turn against such a lead. The young 18.1 champion began from a perfect leave. With the opportunity to nurse at hand it was immediately evident that he had improved his stroke to a marked degree since his defeat by Slosson last Saturday night. He held the balls at his command within the spaces until he had counted 50. The next shot presented a simple two-cushion shot, but Hoppe elected to play it by an uncertain one-cushion carrom, which went astray by inches, and again the young player fell as he did last week on account of his propensity to play the wrong shot.

Delicate nursing was overdone by Sutton on his following turn, and the result was that after putting together 14 the next carrom failed to connect, and again Hoppe was enabled to begin from a perfect leave. The younger player prettily led the ivories along the head rail and spaces for a total of 53 before failing as he had done in the preceding run by misgauging a single cushion carrom. He left the balls badly spread, and in an endeavor to bring them together on his opening round-the-table shot Sutton missed the red by the barest fraction of an inch. The leave offered Hoppe a difficult cushion carrom, but his cue missed, and Hoppe took his seat.

Two shots of his inning drew the balls together for Sutton, and then there was a flashing, scintillating sequence of carromic jewels, bits of nursing strung together, with dazzling drives around the table, which was ended at 124 by a massé in which the cue ball took on more than the required amount of twist and missed by a hair's breadth. Hoppe followed with 4 poorly worked out, and Sutton came back to the table.

Again Sutton was compelled to set the ivories rolling about the table at the beginning of what proved to be his last inning. A number of difficult cushion shots and a heart-breaking spread draw caused some ticklish manipulation before the globes gently came together in the upper left-hand square. These shots only too clearly demonstrated the skill of the bulky billiardist and his absolute resourcefulness and mastery. When once they were within his certain control Sutton never lost them. He was blessed with two fortunate kisses along the end rail, but his shots were sure, and when he attained his one hundredth count there was a big demonstration. Straight through the second hundred Sutton continued the delicate nurse, showing no tiring of the arm and wrist and at all times being a perfect judge of speed whenever it became necessary to send either the red or the white to the cushion. At the end of his second hundred the cheering and applause were so prolonged that Sutton walked over to Hoppe and laughingly joked with the young champion as he attended to his cue tip. There was not much joking left in Hoppe, for he was taking his defeat to heart, and he did not make any response to his opponent.

At the two hundred and eleventh count Sutton spread the balls, and a bad break placed them along the side cushion. A difficult and uncertain draw became necessary, but Sutton's execution did not fail him at the critical moment. He made the shot and counted steadily to the end, finishing a phenomenal contest with an average that doubled the previous world's record. The summary:

Hoppe—11, 50, 53, 0, 4. Total, 118 points; average, 23 3-5; high runs, 53, 50, and 11.

MOB MENACES PROSECUTOR.

Official Forced to Leave Oolitic, Ill.—Town Council Intimidated.

Special to The New York Times.

BEDFORD, Ind., April 17.—The town of Oolitic, four miles northwest of here, last night was in possession of a mob that caused Harry France, Assistant Prosecuting Attorney, to flee for his life, the mob giving him twenty-four hours in which to leave town.

The mob also forced the Town Board to reassemble and compel Henry Sutton, the Town Marshal, to resign his office.

A dispute had arisen over the money left by William Etheridge, who died on Saturday at France's home, where he had been boarding. It is also alleged that France refused to allow Etheridge's body to be prepared for burial in his house and applied epithets to the dead man. He was arrested by Marshal Sutton on a charge of using profane language, and was fined $1 and costs.

This further enraged the townsfolk, and soon a hooting mob surrounded the Town Hall, demanding that the Council discharge Sutton, which was done.

Then the crowd headed for the home of France. They were met at the door by Mrs. France, whom they told that if her husband remained in Oolitic longer than twenty-four hours he would be lynched.

Mr. France came to Bedford.

BARNES INQUIRY SECRET.

Senate Sub-Committee Decides It Cannot Summon Witnesses.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The Senate sub-committee that is to investigate the incident at the White House, when Mrs. Minor Morris was ejected by the direction of Assistant Secretary Barnes, met and discussed its course of action to-day. The committee decided that all its sessions and the examinations of witnesses should be secret.

The power of the committee to summon witnesses was gone over in detail, and the three members came to the conclusion that they could not compel the attendance of witnesses and would therefore issue no summonses, but rely on the voluntary statements of those who desired to get the facts before the committee and the Senate. The sub-committee will report to the full Committee on Post Offices and Post Roads, and depend upon the instructions of the committee for further action. This action practically throws the decision in Barnes's favor, as four of the six witnesses of the Mrs. Morris affair are White House reporters and have no desire to endanger their jobs. They will not go before the sub-committee until they are summoned. One of the remaining witnesses saw only the brutal manner of the two policemen, and cannot connect Mr. Barnes with the affair directly by any knowledge of his own.

Senator Tillman will endeavor to get the Senate in executive session to adopt a resolution authorizing the sub-committee to send for persons and papers and compel the attendance of witnesses.

REWARD FOR BRAVERY, DEATH

Life Saver, Dying in California, Now Begs to Come Home.

Special to The New York Times.

BLUE POINT, L. I., April 17.—Slowly dying from consumption developed while saving shipwrecked sailors on the coast here a year ago, Frank B. Raynor has vainly appealed to the Government he served for money to return home and pass his last days among relatives and friends.

It was in February of 1905 that Raynor while bringing ashore those on board a stranded vessel became exhausted from exposure. Consumption followed, and he went to Pasadena, Cal., where it was hoped his health might be restored. Last February his year's extension of pay expired, and when he realized his poverty his condition rapidly grew worse. He sent appeals to the Government for funds to pay his traveling expenses home, but they were refused. His companions in the life-saving service, who have learned of his condition, are now raising a fund which will be forwarded to him that he may return here.

Raynor was one of the most popular men in the life-saving service. He has received a gold medal for conspicuous bravery in saving lives. His case has excited widespread interest and sympathy.

CINCINNATI PROBE ILLEGAL.

Court Holds Senate Cannot Investigate the City Officers.

CINCINNATI, April 17.—The State Senate had no authority to institute the investigation of the public offices of Cincinnati and Hamilton County, as carried on by the Drake Committee. This decision was handed down by the Court of Common Pleas in this city to-day.

The decision was rendered in the case of Thomas J. Davis, cashier of the First National Bank in this city, who refused to testify before the Drake Committee and was arrested. A writ of habeas corpus was secured, bringing the prisoner before the Common Pleas Court.

The decision says in part:

"The Court is of the opinion that the power asserted herein is judicial and not legislative; that the Senate had no authority to authorize the investigation as set out in the resolution; that the committee, therefore, had no lawful authority to require the petitioner to testify; that the resolution, subpoena and warrant were in like manner void for want of jurisdiction, and that his detention was without any lawful authority."

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 17.—Senator Thomas H. Schmidt, the Cleveland member of the Drake committee, said to-day that the committee intends to go ahead with its investigation as though Judge Smith's decision had not been rendered, and that an appeal from the decision will be taken.

C. E. HUGHES SELECTED TO PROBE COAL TRUST

Alexander Simpson, Jr., Also Retained by Department of Justice.

TRUST MUST PRODUCE BOOKS

Investigation Made Possible by Supreme Court Decision Permitting the Examination of Accounts.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Attorney General Moody to-day gave out the following statement:

Charles E. Hughes, Esq., of the New York bar and Alexander Simpson, Jr., of the Pennsylvania bar have been retained by the Department of Justice to take under consideration all the facts now known, or which can be ascertained, relative to the transportation and sale of coal in inter-State commerce; to advise what, if any, legal proceedings should be begun, and to conduct, under the direction of the Attorney General, such suits or prosecutions, if any, as may be warranted by the evidence in hand and forthcoming.

The general subject for some time has been under consideration by the department. It is believed that sufficient evidence has been developed in the investigations of the Inter-State Commerce Commission and otherwise to warrant the employment of counsel under the provisions of the Appropriation act of Feb. 25, 1903, authorizing the employment of special counsel and agents in proceedings of this nature. An important element in arriving at this conclusion is the recent decision of the Supreme Court in Hale vs. Henkel, holding that the Federal Government has the right, under legal proceedings, to examine the books and records of corporations engaged in inter-State commerce.

The Department of Justice refused to add a word to this statement. The result of the Inter-State Commerce Commission's investigations will be turned over to Mr. Hughes and Mr. Simpson for their examination.

The most striking point in the statement is the suggestion that the coal companies will be compelled to produce their books. There has been some criticism of the Government for not proceeding against the coal trust. The fact is that the nature of the evidence secured by the Inter-State Commerce Commission was not enough to make success certain unless the books could be examined, and prior to the decision in Hale against Henkel the right of the Government to examine the books had not been established.

The case of Hale against Henkel is known as the Tobacco Trust case, and furnished the basis for the Supreme Court's decision in the paper trust cases also. Its applicability to the coal combination is not doubted by the Government.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 17.—Alexander Simpson, Jr., said to-night that he was not prepared to say anything about his appointment as counsel for the Government in the coal investigation. Mr. Simpson is one of the leaders of the Philadelphia bar. He is regarded as an expert in legislation, and is frequently consulted in the drafting of bills for legislative enactment.

Charles E. Hughes said that he had nothing to add to the statement given out by the Department of Justice last night.

RETIRED BROKER A SUICIDE.

H. H. Ackerman Shoots Himself—Wife Finds His Body.

Henry H. Ackerman, a retired broker, living at 454 Fiftieth Street, Brooklyn, got up from the dinner table about 7 o'clock last evening and said to his wife:

"I'm going up stairs to transact some important business. If anybody calls, tell him I'm not in."

"All right," replied Mrs. Ackerman. "Hurry down stairs again."

Mrs. Ackerman waited for two hours for her husband to come out of his room, and then went in to find out why he didn't appear. She found him lying dead on the floor. Dr. Baumgard of the Norwegian Hospital said that Ackerman had shot himself through the head and had died instantly.

Ackerman's father died about four years ago, leaving him independently wealthy.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., April 17.—Two vicious dogs got into the deer pen at Cedar Court on the estate of Otto H. Kahn last night and killed eight deer and maimed several others. The dogs were found in the runway this morning by the caretaker and were shot. How they found a way in is a mystery. There is a high wire fence surrounding the court making it impossible for a dog to jump over. Mr. Kahn has thirty deer in the garden, which he prizes highly.

She had two sons, Fred and Charles. The latter quarreled with his mother and brother recently and left home. He replevined the herd of cattle as his property. The cattle were re-replevined by Mrs. Dorman and her son Fred. Judge Scott ordered that the cattle be sold and the proceeds divided among the three claimants. Mrs. Dorman believed that the cattle would bring at least $1,000.

DYNAMITE USED TO FIND BODY

Two Explosions in Bronx Park Lake, but Without Result.

Two one-pound charges of dynamite were exploded yesterday in the small lake in Bronx Park in an attempt to raise the body of Philip Karl of 1,846 Park Avenue, the boy who was drowned there Monday afternoon while trying to save his brother John.

The explosions threw a column of water twenty feet into the air, together with mud, sticks, leaves, and dead fish, but the body did not appear.

A large crowd in the park witnessed the firing of the charges. The police warned away all those in boats on the lake from the spot. Search for the body will be renewed.

POLICEMAN HAD STOLEN GEMS

Sent to Him by His Sister, Whose Mistress Was Robbed.

PHILADELPHIA, April 17.—Through the arrest of Policeman James Bowers of this city, on a charge of receiving stolen goods, a $5,000 jewel robbery at the home of Mrs. Francis Riley, at 50 Morningside Avenue, New York, was cleared up.

Detectives in this city learned that Bowers had pawned two valuable rings. The policeman said the rings were sent to him through the mail from New York. The detectives learned from the Post Office officials that they had been sent by Mrs. Minnie May Nixon, a sister of Bowers, who was employed as a servant by Mrs. Riley. One of the rings was marked with the initials of Mrs. Riley.

MINERS' DEMANDS AGAIN REFUSED BY OPERATORS

ALTERNATIVES STILL OPEN

Men May Accept Employers' Latest Proposal or Continue Agreement—Operators Seem to Expect a Strike.

The anthracite operators' committee of seven met yesterday afternoon in the Jersey Central Building and replied to the latest proposal of the miners' committee which was submitted by President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers last week. The reply reiterates the refusal of the operators to consider the miners' offer.

There is nothing in the letter to indicate whether or not the operators' latest proposal is still open to the miners, but it was stated on behalf of the operators' committee last night that it is still open, as well as the alternative offer to continue for three years longer the agreement under the award of the Anthracite Strike Commission, which expired at the end of March.

The fact that the operators have begun to run their washeries and are preparing for all emergencies is thought to indicate that they look for a strike. When they last parted from Mitchell and his committee there was nothing in the conditions under which the meeting adjourned to prevent them from beginning to mine coal, or attempting to do so, if they so wished. In their reply to the miners' committee they draw attention to the fact that Mitchell ordered the suspension of work in the anthracite districts pending negotiations.

OPERATORS' LETTER.

"To Mr. John Mitchell and others, Committee of Anthracite Mine Workers:

"Gentlemen: In 1902 you assented to the proposition of the operators that 'all questions at issue between the respective companies and their own employes, whether they belong to a union or not,' should be decided by the Anthracite Coal Strike Commission; accordingly the award of the commission covered and decided all such questions. Therefore, we have heretofore proposed to you that the relations thus established by arbitration be continued for a term of three years—the same period as that fixed by the strike commission. This offer you have rejected.

"Your present proposition is that all relations between every employer and his employes shall be fixed and controlled by a single instrument. Originally you suggested that this should be a form of contract with the 'United Mine Workers of America'; now you suggest that it shall be with your committee as 'representatives of the anthracite mine workers.' Inasmuch as the authority and standing of your committee as representing any one depend wholly upon its designation by a convention of the United Mine Workers as the representatives of that body, it is clear that the change proposed is not substantial but merely formal and raises no new question. This is evident also from the fact that your proposition contains numerous provisions for action by 'the organization' and 'the district officers' of the United Mine Workers of America.

What the Miners Ask.

"This proposition restricts production by strictly limiting hours of labor and providing that no miner can work in more than one chamber or have more than two laborers; it seeks to equalize wages with reference merely to the name of the employe's position, and not at all to his capacity or the work which he actually does; it provides that no new veins or collieries can be opened without an arbitration as to wages and that no contract of employment can be terminated without an arbitration; it makes the employers the agents of the union to aid in leving upon the wages of the employes the dues fixed by the union; it provides for increase in wages and rates of payment which would approximate 21.6 per cent., and would increase the cost of the domestic sizes of coal about $1.20 per ton, and it suggests diluting the present Conciliation Board into three boards having co-ordinate powers. It provides still further that the arrangement proposed shall continue in force merely for one year.

"The above provisions, other than those regarding wages and the adjustment of complaints, concern radical and fundamental principles in reference to the management of the business which are vital to its success. These questions have all been settled by the award of the Strike Commission, which has established the existing conditions.

"So far as concerns the matter of wages and adjustment of complaints, we have offered to submit to the members of the Strike Commission the question whether any changes in conditions have occurred since the award of the commission requiring that the award should be modified as to those matters, and if so, how it should be changed. Those are the only subjects in regard to which you have made the least suggestion that conditions have changed since the award of the commission, and as to these no facts in support of that suggestion have been made public.

"But the claim for a change in the existing relations must obviously rest upon some change in conditions since those relations were all established by arbitration. You have rejected this proposition of arbitration. You now propose that it shall be submitted to the Strike Commission to decide whether the terms contained in your amended proposition, which are stated above, shall be adopted.

Would Revise Every Issue.

"In other words, you seek to have every subject which has been already settled by arbitration reconsidered, and every issue retried which was settled by the Strike Commission three years ago, pursuant to the President's injunction 'to endeavor to establish the relations between the employers and the wage earners in the anthracite region on a just and permanent basis, and as far as possible to do away with any causes for the recurrence of such difficulties as those which you have been called upon to settle.'

"You say that 'it is not a sufficient answer to say that because a question was arbitrated three years ago, the same question would not be a proper subject for investigation at this time.' If any new facts have arisen in the meantime, these might properly be investigated. Nothing new is suggested to us in your communications. But it can scarcely be seriously claimed that questions already fully considered shall be re-examined because one of the parties thinks it may upon a rehearing secure a different decision. If that were so, controversy would never end. Indeed, in the present case you propose that in order to make an arrangement for only one year's duration the Strike Commission shall re-examine questions which it took six months to decide.

"To resume, the fundamental principles regarding the conduct of this business have all been established by the Strike Commission. No reason is suggested why they should be retried. As to the only matters regarding which you have made the least suggestion that conditions have changed, we have suggested that the existence and effect of such change be considered by the strike commission, and that its award be in force for three years, so that political considerations may have as little influence as possible upon these business questions.

The Blame for Stopping Work.

"You are responsible for the suspension of work. There was no good reason for ordering the men to stop work pending our negotiations, which had been delayed by you, especially in view of the fact that we were willing to continue to pay the wages fixed by the Strike Commission.

"We have no other suggestions to make than those contained in our former propositions, and we regret that you have declined both of them. We have nothing further to offer.

"Your respectfully,
"GEO. F. BAER,
"E. B. THOMAS,
"DAVID WILLCOX,
"W. H. TRUESDALE,
"MORRIS WILLIAMS,
"J. B. KERR,
"J. L. CAKE."

It was learned yesterday that the anthracite operators, in case of the expected strike, will see that public travel is not interfered with for lack of a supply of coal. The Interborough Rapid Transit Company, it is estimated, uses 2,000 tons of coal daily in the Subway and elevated railroad power houses. In order to protect the public from inconvenience in traveling the operators are sparingly doling out anthracite to the dealers.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 17.—The International Executive Board of the United Mine Workers of America began a special session to-day at the Claypool Hotel to consider questions that have arisen out of the strike situation in the bituminous districts. President Mitchell said he had received no reply from the anthracite operators to his last proposition for adjusting the differences in the anthracite districts by arbitration.

PREPARING TO OPEN MINES.

Imported Miners in Scranton District —Old Hands Returning.

Special to The New York Times.

SCRANTON, Penn., April 17.—The Erie, the Delaware & Hudson, and the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Company, all of which have been cutting coal on a small scale at some of their collieries since the miners' suspension order went into effect, are preparing to go into the work more extensively.

The Erie will make its strongest efforts at the Barnum and Forest City mines. The Delaware & Hudson Company will try to work the Grassy Island colliery at Olyphant and one of its collieries in Carbondale. Nearly two carloads of imported workers, most of whom are negroes, have been sent to Carbondale for No. 1 Mine, No. 3 Shaft, and the Racket Brook Washery. The force of men at the Lackawanna's Bellevue colliery is increasing, and it is understood that twenty-five of the old employes who are dissatisfied with the suspension order went back to work to-day.

The Lackawanna Company is not importing any men, but expects that a large number of the old miners will return in a short time. Many of the foreign speaking men are restless, feeling that they should be working when no strike has been ordered and the miners and the company men are at work.

PHILADELPHIA, April 17.—The situation in the anthracite coal regions is perplexing. While quiet has been universal throughout the hard coal field it is difficult to forecast what effect the reply of the operators to the miners' latest proposition will have upon the latter. The miners almost to a man have signified their intention of standing by President Mitchell, but at the same time the operators have been quietly preparing for the operation of their mines.

That the mine owners contemplate an extended strike is evident from the fact that three-score of coal barges belonging to the Philadelphia & Reading Company, which were used in the hard coal trade between Philadelphia and Eastern ports, were to-day ordered out of service. Throughout the lower hard coal fields the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron Company is building barracks around its collieries.

THAYER SOLD HIS COAL STOCK

BALTIMORE, Md., April 17.—At the Inter-State Commerce Commission's inquiry to-day into the alleged community of interests between the railroads and the coal and oil business of the country, Fourth Vice President Thayer of the Pennsylvania Railroad said that he was the owner of stock in certain coal companies, but that he had obtained his holdings at a time when he was not connected with the railroad company.

Francis I. Gowen, counsel for the Pennsylvania Railroad, conducted the examination of Vice President Thayer, whose testimony was evidently intended to rebut the statement of Capt. Alfred Hicks of Pittsburg, President of the Allegheny Steel Company and an officer of several large coal companies, to the effect that certain Pennsylvania Railroad officials received stock in various coal mines at nominal prices, and received large dividends on this stock.

Mr. Thayer said that he first went to work for the Pennsylvania Railroad in 1881, and that he left it in 1889. He then went with a coal concern in Philadelphia. He invested $10,000 in the stock of three coal mining companies, the Avonmore, Pine Run, and Gilpin. He became an official of these companies, and took an active part in their management.

"In 1892," said Mr. Thayer, "I returned to the service of the Pennsylvania Railroad. I resigned my positions with the coal companies, but retained my stock.

"When I went back to the railroad I was a division freight agent, and had nothing to do with the making of rates on coal, and didn't see any impropriety in retaining my stock. When I became Fifth Vice President, in 1903, I determined to make an effort to sell this stock, simply because, having something to do with rates, I wanted to be absolutely free. I found it impossible to sell, however. Last Fall, when I became Fourth Vice President, with entire charge of the coal traffic, I determined, at any sacrifice, to part with this stock. I found a purchaser in December, before there was any talk of this investigation. Before he could raise the money, however, this matter of an investigation came up, and I then told him all negotiations were off, that I would not sell in the face of an agitation like this. Later I consulted with a friend of mine, a man of high ideals, and he advised me to sell anyhow, and I did."

When asked as to the ethics of the case of a railroad official holding stock in a company from which the railroad bought goods, Mr. Thayer replied:

"It depends on how much stock he holds and how much the company has to do with the railroad. I would not hesitate a minute to hold stock in the United States Steel Company, because it is so big, and the business we do with it so small, and there are so many railroads serving it, that my personal actions in any event could have but little influence upon it."

The witness said, in answer to a question, that the Pennsylvania Railroad had not given a rebate since 1900.

HONOR FOR FRANKLIN.

PHILADELPHIA, April 17.—In the presence of a gathering of persons distinguished in the arts, science, literature, and many branches of education, the four days' celebration in this city of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of Benjamin Franklin was formally opened in Witherspoon Hall to-night, when a reception was given to delegates from societies and institutions of learning in all parts of the world. Many of the delegates are men who have received high honors and decorations, and as they filed into the hall wearing their orders or their academic robes and took their seats they presented a brilliant scene.

The celebration is in charge of the American Philosophical Society for Promoting Useful Knowledge, founded in 1743, of which Benjamin Franklin was the first President. Besides the reception of delegates and invited guests, formal addresses of felicitation from societies and educational institutions in Europe and America were read, and Andrew Carnegie, Lord Rector of the University of St. Andrews, conferred the degree of Doctor of Laws upon Miss Agnes Irwin, Dean of Radcliffe College, who is a great-granddaughter of Benjamin Franklin.

Following the address of welcome the presentation of addresses took place. A cordial reception was extended to Sir George Howard Darwin of the University of Cambridge, who brought from that institution an address in Latin.

Andrew Carnegie, as the Lord Rector of the University of St. Andrews, presented the address of that institution. In doing so he said that St. Andrews had conferred a degree upon Franklin in 1759 and that he had been charged to say that in looking back over five centuries of its history St. Andrews found no greater satisfaction in any action it had taken than in the honoring of Franklin at that time.

Other universities and societies which presented addresses were the University of Oxford, the University of Glasgow, the University of Edinburgh, the Academy of Sciences of Paris, Harvard University, the Royal Society, London; the University of Berlin, Yale University, Princeton University, Columbia University, the Royal Institution of Great Britain, the Royal Philosophical Society of Glasgow, and more than 100 other institutions in Russia, Spain, Italy, Holland, Australia, Ireland, Finland, and many of the States in the American Union.

IMMIGRANTS POURING IN.

About 5,000 Landed Yesterday—20,000 More in Harbor.

Ellis Island is still the busiest place in New York. Nearly 5,000 more aliens were passed yesterday, and there are nearly 20,000 more in ships in the harbor awaiting examination. There are eight more liners due to-day. They are the Oceanic, Caronia, Weimar, Citta di Palermo, Marco Manghetti, Ravenna, Breslau, and Sicilia, and all of them are crowded with immigrants.

The vessels in yesterday—the Kaiser Wilhelm II., Francesca, and United States—brought 3,425 steerage passengers, while the vessels expected to-day will bring more than twice as many.

While Ellis Island is having its troubles the steamship companies are having theirs in caring for the thousands still on board ships, who cannot be accommodated at Ellis Island for several days to come. Expectant relatives haunt the Battery from sunrise to dark, and many go alongside the ships in rowboats.

TEN YEARS FOR JERSEY BOY.

Justice Mahlon Pitney, sitting in Newton, Sussex County, N. J., on Monday, sentenced Edward Carmody, 16 years old, of Sussex Borough to ten years in the Rahway Reformatory as a punishment for having shot and instantly killed a playmate, John Haggerty, the eight-year-old son of Dr. and Mrs. John D. Haggerty, of Sussex. The shooting was on March 2.

The defense contended all along that Carmody was mentally deficient if not actually weak-minded. The parents of the child are dead.

POOLROOMS CUT OFF FROM RACE TRACK NEWS

MONDAY'S LEAK IS STOPPED

With lines drawn closer and ingress and egress at the Aqueduct race track more restricted than on the first day of the meeting, officials of The Jockey Club yesterday plumed themselves on what they asserted was a virtual victory in their fight to prevent the transmission of racing information to the city poolrooms. Outwardly there was little change from the conditions of Monday but for the fact that there were fewer poolroom men present and that they made no special effort to send racing news to their employers.

Beginning the day the Pinkerton policemen on guard at the gates denied admission to men who had been identified Monday as agents or correspondents of poolrooms, and in half a dozen cases detained the men for a time at the gates. There were no formal arrests, however. For the rest of the afternoon the Pinkerton men watched suspected persons to detect and prevent signalling by persons inside the track enclosure to poolroom correspondents outside. No signalling was done, however, so far as the police were able to discover.

Jockey Club officials believe that some of the telegraph operators employed by The Jockey Club's "Bureau of Information and Investigation," which is the successor to the Western Union Telegraph Company in the race track telegraph service, are in collusion with the poolroom men. New operators may be called for. Racing news to the newspapers was delayed on Monday for the purpose, officials believe, of causing protest from the publishers and compelling the restoration of the old service to the newspapers. If this were re-established it would be easy for the poolroom men to steal the information they need.

News Service a Mere Pretense.

As matters now stand the poolrooms can do business in only a small way, and with a flimsy pretense of a news service. Without knowledge of the withdrawals and some idea of the track betting, a former poolroom man now interested largely in racing, said none of the larger poolrooms would dare to accept any large bets for fear of the trickery to which they would be liable.

The news that the poolrooms have received so far, Robert Pinkerton, who has charge of the policing of the race tracks, says is only a flimsy pretense. Mr. Pinkerton stated that he had detectives in four of the biggest poolrooms in New York and Brooklyn on Monday, and again yesterday to watch the service that was received, and all these had reported to him that the information came so late and was so untrustworthy that no business was done.

The race-track betting went on in exactly the same manner that it did on the first day of racing in New York this year, and the conduct of racing affairs arranged on the first day was continued. All advance information of withdrawals from races, jockeys, and overweights was withheld. The scale on which the jockeys are weighed before riding was taken from the ground floor of the jockey house and put on the second floor. This made the isolation of the riders more complete than on the first day, when the boys weighed in in plain sight of the crowd, thus giving the opportunity for men familiar with racing colors to learn in advance of the official announcement what their mounts were to be.

Reporters Used Telephones.

In view of the delay to which newspaper messages were subjected on Monday, the reporters for nearly all the afternoon newspapers abandoned the telegraph for telephone service, and all the telephones about the race track were pressed into use for the newspapers. Two afternoon newspapers hired a house behind the paddock, overlooking the race track. This house contains two telephones. Its use by the reporters shut out the poolroom men. Another newspaper used a telephone half a mile away and sent a messenger to and fro in a carriage.

The effect of further restrictions at the race track was plainly evident in the poolrooms. Yesterday the rooms couldn't get even the scratches in the events at Aqueduct. In most of the rooms more business was done on the Western races than on those close at home. The service from the West was complete. When the matter of getting a bet down on an Eastern race came up, though, it was quite different.

Poolroom men, from the Bronx to the downtown district, were kept busy explaining that there was a hitch somewhere and promising patrons that "everything would be all right in a day or so." They did little business, and were evidently much perturbed over the situation. After a delay which averaged thirty minutes they received the names of the placed horses and what purported to be the odds, but most bettors chose to take the odds as printed in the newspapers. There was no advance service of any kind.

Poolrooms Won't Close.

"Naturally we won't close up," said a man who operates a big place in the Forties. "But we expect to lose a lot of business. The Jockey Club can't close our doors. That's up to the police, and just now they don't seem inclined to be troublesome. All this talk about the poolrooms being forced to close is just what the police want. It makes it easier for them to keep their eyes closed. To this extent the action of The Jockey Club is a help instead of a hindrance, but we can't hold our customers unless some scheme is framed up to secure advance information."

When the matter of turning over the Western Union lines to The Jockey Club was first mentioned to the company President Clowry is said to have regarded the suggestion as a joke. He soon found out that the proposal was serious, and it was put to him in such a way that he had no choice but to accept. The Postal Telegraph Company would be glad to get into the tracks, it is said, and this fact was not forgotten in the negotiations between the turf authorities and the Western Union's head.

The Rev. Dr. Thomas R. Slicer is confident that the poolrooms are having a harder struggle than at any time since Phil Dwyer started his war against them. Those were the days when telegraph poles commanding a view of the Dwyer track were at a premium, and when a man, having entered the track, couldn't get out until the last race had been run.

"From reports which have reached me," said Dr. Slicer, "I am confident that there is not a single poolroom which is getting race track odds in time to permit the handling of bets."

BINGHAM TOLD OF POOLROOMS.

He Says in Reply That They Have Been Open Before.

Commissioner Bingham was told by reporters yesterday that many poolrooms were doing business as a result of the opening of the Aqueduct race track, and he was asked if he had given any instructions for closing them.

"Well, I don't suppose that I am the only Commissioner who ever had poolrooms opened up on me," replied the Commissioner.

He was also asked his reason for transferring Capt. James McGlynn from the Kingsbridge Station to the West 125th Street Station, and if he was aware that McGlynn had been for the greater part of the McAdoo administration at the very station to which he is now transferred, and that it was said he had been transferred because of the number of poolrooms in the district.

"If you leave a man where he is, you get criticised," remarked Gen. Bingham; "if you move him you get criticised. One hardly knows what to do."

He was asked if the transfer had been made at the request of a politician.

"No it hasn't," he replied.

A reporter told him that he had knowledge that information was furnished from the race track yesterday afternoon to a poolroom which was in full operation not far from Police Headquarters.

"I am doing the best I can," replied the Commissioner.

When he was asked if he intended to give money to the Rev. Cortlandt Myers to get evidence against poolrooms, and if so, how much, he said:

"I haven't decided yet whether to give him anything or not."

Chief among the changes in the Senate districts of New York County which will be laid before the Republican County Executive Committee to-morrow for acceptance is the complete elimination of the district now represented by Senator Bernard F. Martin and the carving out of a new district in the Bronx to make up for it. This new district will be made up of the greater part of the present Thirty-fifth Assembly District and the present Annexed District.

This is under the Odell-Halpin plan, which commands the support of twenty-three of the thirty-six members of the Executive Committee. Many of its details became known yesterday in advance of submission to the Executive Committee at a formal meeting.

The Senate district now represented by Senator Fitzgerald will be so made over that it will contain what now are the Sixth, Tenth, and Fourteenth Assembly Districts, and a part of the present Eighth District. The Eighth Assembly District will be wiped out and Florence J. Sullivan, the Tammany leader, and Otto Rosalsky, the Republican leader, will be put in the present Twelfth District, so that they will have to put up leadership fights respectively against P. J. Scully and Jacob Newstead. Congressman Sullivan will run for the Senate again in this district this Fall, having definitely decided to quit Washington.

There will be a decided making over of the Senate District now represented by Senator Riordan. The new district will contain the present First, Second, Third, Seventh, Ninth, and a small part of the Fifth Assembly Districts. The First and Third will be thrown into other districts, however, so that Daniel E. Finn and P. J. Ryder on the Tammany side will have to fight with Thomas F. Foley for their leaderships.

Senator Samuel J. Foley's Senate district will be made up of the present Fourth, Twelfth, and Sixteenth Districts, with a part of the Eighth. Senator Grady's district will be made up of the present Eighteenth, Twentieth, Twenty-second, and Twenty-fourth Assembly Districts, of which the Twentieth District will be wiped out on the Assembly list. To Senator Marks will be given the present Twenty-sixth, Twenty-eighth, and Thirtieth Districts, while Senator Elsberg will get the banner Republican district made up of the northern part of the present Fifth and the whole of the present Twenty-fifth, Twenty-seventh, and Twenty-ninth Districts.

The present Twenty-fifth will be wiped out and the Senate District cut into three complete Assembly districts, so that George F. Scannel on the Tammany side and Herbert Parsons on the Republican side will have to contest for their leaderships, respectively, with Joseph Prendergast and Richard Van Cott.

Senator Quinn will get a new district, made up of the present Eleventh, Thirteenth, Fifteenth, and Seventeenth Districts; Senator Frawley will get a district made up of the present Thirty-second and Thirty-third, such parts of the Twenty-first as are between 110th and 116th Streets, Seventh and Eighth Avenues, and such parts of the Thirty-first as are between Fourth and Seventh Avenues and 110th and 116th Streets.

Senator Saxe will get a new district carved out of the northern end of the Nineteenth District, containing the Republican votes, the bulk of the Twenty-first, and part of the Twenty-third. His new district will lie entirely north of Seventy-second Street.

Senator Page will get most of the Thirty-first and most of the Twenty-third Districts, and a new Assembly district will be carved out in this district to allow the creation of a new district leader. Senator Hawkins will get a new district to be made up out of the Thirty-fourth District and a part of the Thirty-fifth, in which Senate district three Assembly districts will be carved out.

Under the Parsons plan, the district leaders who would have been wiped out were Merwin in the First, Levenson of the Fourth, Newstead in the Twelfth, Pegnam in the Fourteenth, Van Cott in the Fifth, and Newman in the Thirtieth, on the Republican side, and Finn, Ahearn, Scully, Oakley, Prendergast, and Sinnott of the same districts on the Tammany side.

Chairman Parsons of the Republican County Committee announced last night the appointment of this Finance Committee: Otto T. Bannard, Chairman; Gherardi Davis, John H. Hammond, Townsend Wandell, John Reisenweber, Marshall J. Dodge, Edwin O. Holter, Charles A. Berrian, Goelet Gallatin, Newbold Morris, Marvyn Scudder, W. Holden Weeks, Walter T. Rosen, Samuel Thorne, Jr., and John H. Iselin. The committee will hold its first meeting on April 20.

HAD EIGHT PAIRS OF GLOVES.

Daun and Another Brakeman Arrested Because of Freight Robberies.

Two New York Central brakemen were arrested last night charged with being suspicious persons, and knowing something about the robberies in freight yards on the upper west side in the past few months.

The prisoners describe themselves as Robert Daun of Kingston, N. Y., and Van Buren Golden, boarder at the Railroad Young Men's Christian Association, in West Seventy-seventh Street. Detectives Coleman and Devanny arrested Daun first. Daun had eight pairs of gloves in his possession, which the police say were probably part of a lot stolen a week or so ago. Daun said he got them from Golden.

A razor was found on Golden, which the police say was one of a consignment stolen a month ago.

The police say that since February about $15,000 worth of goods has been stolen from the freight yards.

COAL POCKET COLLAPSES.

And Its 800 Tons Choke Up the Mott Haven Canal.

With a crash that was heard for blocks a huge four-story coal pocket on the west side of the Mott Haven Canal, near 188th Street, collapsed about 3 o'clock yesterday morning.

Between 800 and 1,000 tons of coal fell into the canal, which is narrow at that point, blocking it completely. The pocket, which was built three years ago, is owned by Olin J. Stephens, President of the North Side Board of Trade. A loaded coal barge was lying alongside the pocket, and it was completely buried in the avalanche of coal.

According to Mr. Stephens, the accident was due to the weakening of the foundations of the pocket by the softening of the ground, the most serious part of it being that it carried engine boiler and hoisting machinery with it. The damage is estimated at between $8,000 and $10,000. All of the coal can be recovered.

HEPBURN BILL'S CHANCE IMPROVES IN SENATE

Majority, for Rate Regulation, Disagree on Amendments.

REVERT TO HOUSE MEASURE

President Invites Senator Carter to Take an Active Part in Winning Over Republicans.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Senator Carter of Montana was called to the White House to-day and invited by the President to take an active part in the leadership of the Administration forces in the Senate. Hitherto all the activity shown by the President's friends in the Senate has been on the Democratic side. The Republican supporters have been drifting along, spending most of their time in criticising each other and the Democrats.

Mr. Carter is energetic and aggressive, and his active participation in the fight is expected to produce results. Upon returning from the White House he went at once into conference with Senators Allison, Allee, and Burkett, and was with them most of the afternoon. Both Allee and Burkett are regarded now as more surely inclined to the President's side than they were before.

The reluctance of the President's Republican supporters to agree to anything that the Democrats propose is bringing nearer the possibility of the passage of the unamended Hepburn bill. A clear majority of the Senate is for the limited court review, but there is no majority for any one amendment. If all the amendments are beaten there are at least 60 Senators, or two-thirds of the Senate, who will vote for the bill as it stands.

The Senators of the Aldrich faction proclaim that they have not lost a vote, but they have, and from the beginning they have not felt strong enough to allow a vote to be taken.

The bill could be passed in a minute if the President's Republicans would agree to put Senator Knox's two words, "and lawful," into the court review amendment. Many of them admit that they do not see for themselves what harm it would do, but the fact that Aldrich, Elkins, Crane, Kean, and all that crowd are fairly crying for it makes friends of rate legislation suspicious. They regard Knox as a much greater lawyer than any of themselves, and are afraid of him.

A Senator who has the confidence of the President, and is one of those who are trying to bring about an agreement, said to-day:

"Within sixty hours I expect that you will see something like an agreement or the promise of one. By Saturday night we shall know what is to be done."

The Democrats will meet in caucus to-morrow afternoon, and the Republican managers to-night agreed to adjourn early to-morrow in order that the Democrats might have plenty of time to exchange views.

The members of the Judiciary Committee almost to a man are determined to oppose the Bailey amendment. They take this position now not so much because they think it is unconstitutional as because they object to it on political grounds. They have before them the demand of the organized labor of the country that the power of the Federal courts to enjoin be limited, and if they support the inhibition of the right to enjoin in the case of railroads, they must support it in the case of the labor unions. This objection does not weigh a hair with the President, but it weighs a ton with the Republican Senators.

The Senate now especially desires to hear Senator Spooner. Of all the Senators, he has pursued a course that they regard as worthy of great confidence. Senator Knox has weakened himself somewhat as a leader. The Senate knows that he traveled alongside the President for months as his adviser on rate legislation, and even was regarded by the President as his trustee in the Senate as to the court-review amendment, but when it came to putting in concrete words the ideas that had been discussed Senator Knox framed an amendment that the President and Attorney General Moody at once held to be altogether prejudicial to the public. From that moment Knox was definitely lined up.

Senator Spooner has not been one of the President's advisers on rate legislation. He has not been listed either way. He has taken high middle ground on the law as he sees it. The weight of his argument from such a coign of vantage must continue to be effective among his fellow-Senators.

BANKS' CAMPAIGN GIFTS.

New York Banker Makes a Suggestion to Aid Investigation.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—In the Senate to-day Mr. Tillman called up his resolution directing the Senate Committee on Finance to enter upon an investigation of the question of campaign contributions by the National banks and after he had spoken at length the resolution was referred to the Finance Committee.

In the course of his speech Mr. Tillman read a letter from a New York banker suggesting that the auditor of the Republican National Committee should be called to give testimony concerning the contributions to the Republican fund of the last campaign. Mr. Tillman said that he would not confine the inquiry to the Republican Committee, but would extend it to the Democratic Committee.

THE COOK RAMPANT

Annie Smith of 133 West 113th Street, cook in the family of Solomon Bernheimer, at 76 St. Nicholas Avenue, went out on Monday afternoon and sought liquid relaxation from her duties. When she returned, in time to prepare dinner, she was a cook rampant.

Attracted by crashing dishes and equally startling language, Mrs. Bernheimer went into the kitchen to remonstrate. The cook charged on her, and she withdrew. When Mr. Bernheimer arrived dinner was not ready. Mrs. Bernheimer was in tears, and the cook was still smashing things in the kitchen.

"You must go in there and discharge her," said Mrs. Bernheimer. Her husband, not without qualms, advanced into the kitchen, but Annie repulsed him, too. Then, armed with a frying pan and a knife, she drove the Bernheimers out into the hall.

FEARS FOR FAR EAST TRADE.

Cannot Keep Those Markets, Declares Congressman McKinlay.

Congressman Donald E. McKinlay of California, who was a member of Secretary Taft's party in their trip to the Far East, was the guest of honor and principal speaker at the dinner of the New York Credit Men's Association last night at the Hotel Savoy. Congressman McKinlay spoke of industrial and commercial conditions in Japan as they are going to affect the markets in the Far East. His speech went far to disturb any illusions the credit men may have held regarding the commercial supremacy of the United States in that part of the world.

The Congressman took a side line at first by describing a dinner given by the bankers and business men of Tokio at the Maple Leaf Club to Secretary Taft and his party.

"When we arrived at the club," he said, "servants were on hand who took away from us our shoes, our coats, and waistcoats. They gave us instead some wooden slippers without any uppers, and Japanese kimonos. To our amazement, we were brought into a banquet hall where there were no tables and no chairs. We were told that the dinner was going to be served in Japanese style, and that we would have to squat on the floor and eat our food from little trays.

"Some of the leaner members of the party succeeded pretty well, but when Secretary Taft tried it he made a lamentable failure. Somebody called for a chair, and they brought in a sort of tub, which they turned upside down. When Secretary Taft sat on it and wrapped his silk kimono about his portly figure he looked about as graceful as some of the bronze Buddhas I saw in the Land of the Rising Sun.

"Before we went to the dinner we had been warned by Secretary Taft to make no reference whatever to the friendly relations between the United States and Japan. Russian spies had been active, the peace negotiations were going on at Portsmouth, and earnest warnings had been received from Washington to avoid anything that might look like an affront to Russia."

Congressman McKinlay added that everything went along smoothly until the dinner was about over, when a Southern Congressman, slightly overcome by saki, broke loose and drank a toast to "the United States and Japan—to hell with the rest of the world."

"Now, that sentiment may be all right," said Congressman McKinlay, "but if it was inspired by any illusion that Japan is going to be our commercial ally in the Far East or anywhere else, it was misplaced. We hear a whole lot these days about the United States dominating the markets of Japan and the Far East, but any hopes we hold in that respect are destined to be rudely shattered. The 800,000,000 of people that live on the shores and the islands of the Pacific before long will not only not be consumers of American goods, but will be our competitors, perhaps in our own home markets.

"'You need not be afraid that we will allow Japanese laborers to come to the United States,' said Marquis Ito. 'We need them all at home. In a couple of months we will bring home a million men from Manchuria. We are going to teach them all how to manufacture everything in the world with the best labor-saving machinery to be found. Instead of sending you cheap labor, we will sell you American goods cheaper than you can manufacture them yourselves.'

"It is only six months since Marquis Ito told me this," Congressman McKinlay went on. "Three weeks ago I picked up a California paper and read that a whole ship's load of Japanese goods had come into the port of San Francisco. The cargo consisted of brushes of all descriptions, cotton goods, hats and caps, and rough silk. These products of the new Japan are now competing with our own products in our home markets. I am afraid that the peoples of the Far East will become not only our commercial competitors, but that they actually may become our commercial masters.

"China, under the tutelage of Japan, is awakening. The Chinese are now sweeping out the foreigners and preparing to establish modern conditions by their own initiative, or possibly the initiative of Japan. When, say, 500,000,000 people awaken from their slumber to modern industrial conditions, and begin to send out into the markets of the world products turned out with labor-saving machinery by workmen paid less than 50 cents a day and the majority as low as 10 cents for 12 hours' work, what will be the result to our trade?

"In Osaka I saw twenty-five cotton mills. The machinery of one of those mills had come from the United States. The rest the Japanese had constructed themselves. I saw there also thirty flour mills ready for shipment to the wheat regions of Manchuria. One of these mills had been imported from the United States. Twenty-nine had been constructed in Osaka for one-fifth of the cost of the American machinery. Our patent laws do not extend to Japan. It is the sheerest folly for us to dream of establishing markets in the Far East."

Congressman McKinlay severely condemned the lethargy of Americans in their fight for the markets in the Far East.

LAWYER IN AUTO KILLED.

Two Other Philadelphians Hurt in a Collision at Vineland, N. J.

VINELAND, N. J., April 17.—Robert J. Wright, a lawyer, of Forty-first and Brown Streets, Philadelphia, was instantly killed early to-day in a collision between an automobile and a horse and buggy. With Mr. Wright in the automobile were W. H. Mullen and Thomas Meagher, both of Philadelphia. Both were hurled from the car and each had limbs broken. Ray Pancost of this place, who was driving the buggy, had one arm broken and was badly shaken up.

Miss Sadie Murthine of Millville and Ethel Watkins of this place were with Pancost in the buggy. They were returning from a dance. Miss Murthine's back was badly sprained. Miss Watkins suffered only from bruises. Charles Kilmer and George Grant, the chauffeur and mechanician of the automobile, were also hurt. Kilmer's injury is slight, but Grant's left wrist was broken.

The three Philadelphians had been at Cape May in connection with a land deal, and remained so late that there was no train to take them back to Philadelphia. They then hired a big touring car to make the trip. Kilmer and Grant were sent with them to run it.

Each party says that the other was to blame. Pancost declares that the automobile was being run at a high rate of speed, and he tried to avoid it, but did not get room enough. Kilmer insists that the horse was being driven recklessly, and that he had slowed down and gone so far into the ditch that the shock of the collision overturned the heavy car, because it was already tilted over to one side with the far side wheels over the crown of the road. Mr. Wright's head appears to have hit a fence post, and the blow fractured his skull. He left a widow.

Many a concern loses a big bulk of business every year simply because it keeps no systematic record of when its customers are likely to be in the market again.

$451 FOR AN ABBEY MUG.

A Record Price Paid at the Salmagundi Club's Sale.

Members of the Salmagundi Club made their monthly pilgrimage to Bohemia last night, when the annual auction sale of painted mugs took place in the galleries of the club for the benefit of the library fund. Hand-painted steins were contributed for this occasion by a score of well-known artists, including Edwin A. Abbey, who sent a mug from his studio in Fairford, Gloucestershire, England, and F. Hopkinson Smith, who was represented by a mug decorated with a black gondola painted against a Venetian background.

He who would not merry, merry be,
With generous bowl and toast,
May he in Bridewell be shut up,
And fast bound to a post.

The stein is decorated with three merry men of Shakespeare's days, drinking ale, with the space on the other side filled in with a picture of an old English inn. Howard Pyle's contribution shows the round, rosy face of a high roller of olden days, who looks as if he enjoyed his pipe and the flowing bowl.

Preceding the sale of the mugs, and following the library dinner, a silver loving cup was presented to William Henry Shelton, librarian of the Salmagundi, by his fellow-members. The mug contained many gold coins.

Chief interest centred in the sale of the mug contributed by Edwin A. Abbey. It was sold to J. Sanford Saltus for $451, a record price at the Salmagundi. A total of $1,175 was realized from the auction sale of twenty-four mugs. Mr. Saltus also bid in the mug contributed by Howard Pyle for $260. F. Hopkinson Smith's stein brought $51. A mug painted by Frank De Haven and greatly admired by the artists sold for $40.

FEWER BAD POLICEMEN.

At Least, the Brooklyn Force Isn't Swarming to the Trial Room.

That Commissioner Bingham's way of dealing with delinquent policemen is having a wholesome effect on the force in Brooklyn was strongly indicated yesterday, if appearances count, by the fact that the trial calendar which Deputy Commissioner O'Keefe had to dispose of was the lightest in years in the Brooklyn Department.

In the first two months after he took office the Deputy Commissioner had before him each week from fifty to sixty policemen charged with neglect of duty and other infractions. In the last few weeks there has been a steady falling off in the number of delinquents, the low record being reached yesterday when but fifteen men faced the Commissioner. Not only were the delinquents few, but the offenses they were charged with were comparatively trivial. The Deputy Commissioner was highly pleased at the apparent improvement in the behavior of the men.

RUSSIA'S $440,000,000 WAS SPENT LONG AGO

Country Will Have to Borrow Again Before the Year's End.

LOAN TO PAY 5 PER CENT.

Issue Price Will Be 88 and Bankers Will Get 3 Per Cent.—Bonds to Run for Forty Years.

LONDON TIMES—NEW YORK TIMES
Special Cable. Copyright, 1906.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 17.—The news that the loan had been settled brought distinct relief to financial circles, which were apprehensive that the negotiations might succumb to the press campaign and that the Douma might open with immediate hostilities.

The loan saves the country from bankruptcy. Its conclusion was successively interrupted by the battle of Mukden, the October disturbances, and the Morocco crisis, and the money now obtained was long ago expended. Russia has been living on the ruinous discounting of short-term bonds, the issue of paper money, and other expedients.

A ukase published to-day shows that the proceeds of the loan will be absorbed as follows: For the budget, £48,000,000; for the balance of last year's war expenses, £18,000,000, and for the redemption of the short-term bonds negotiated a year ago, £15,000,000.

There still remains £20,000,000 of short-term bonds unaccounted for, and it is evident that Russia will have to borrow again before the year is out.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 17.—It was announced here to-day that the arrangements for the new Russian loan, totaling $440,000,000, have been signed in Paris. About half the amount is taken by France in conjunction with Belgian interests, and Austria takes the portion originally assigned to Germany. The United States does not participate in the loan, which is divided as follows: France, $240,000,000; Great Britain, $66,000,000; Austria, $23,000,000; Holland, $11,000,000, and Russia, $100,000,000.

The loan, which is at 5 per cent., is for forty years, and is free from taxation. The portions allotted to one country will not be good for delivery on the Bourses of the other countries participating in the loan. The issue price will be 88, and the bankers' commission is 3 per cent.

That Russia should be willing to issue a loan on such terms shows how anxious she was to obtain money before the assembling of the Russian Parliament.

Government securities fell heavily on the Bourse to-day upon the announcement of the terms of the loan.

The successful negotiation of the loan, ruinous as are the rates which Russia is obliged to pay for the money, extricates the Government from much of its embarrassment and enables it to clear the decks of the accumulation of debts. Premier Witte is greatly encouraged by the outlook.

The Associated Press is in a position to confirm the report that Count Witte has now definitely got the upper hand of Minister of the Interior Durnovo. The downfall of the latter is a matter of days, or weeks at the most, as Emperor Nicholas has promised to dismiss him before Parliament meets.

The Liberals and revolutionists are crestfallen over the decision of foreign bankers to come to the Government's rescue in the present crisis. They believe that it is apt to prove a severe blow to the entire liberal movement. Experience has taught them that the Government is never conciliatory except when it is driven into a corner.

TO OPEN MUKDEN JUNE 1.

TOKIO, April 17.—It is semi-officially announced to-day that An-Tung and Tatung-Kao (both near the mouth of the Yalu River) will be opened to trade and travel on May 1.

Mukden will be opened on June 1, and other places soon after that date.

ENVOY SUGGESTED BOYCOTT?

Chinese Minister's Name Mentioned in the Senate Inquiry.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Causes for the Chinese boycott of American goods were inquired into to-day by the Senate Committee on Immigration in compliance with a resolution introduced by Senator Tillman.

Charles Denby, Chief Clerk of the State Department, who for twenty years was in China attached to the American Legation, and after the Boxer outbreak held positions under the Chinese Government, was before the committee.

Mr. Denby said that among the explanations of the boycott was a report coming from China that it had been suggested by the Chinese Minister here and by others for the reason that such a movement would facilitate treaty negotiations. Mr. Denby disclaimed any personal knowledge of this feature of the movement.

"Do you think that Mr. Wu, the former Chinese Minister to the United States, had anything to do with it?" asked Senator Lodge.

"Well, I think the boycott as an effective implement must have been thought of by an intelligent Chinese official who has visited this country," replied Mr. Denby. He added that he had no direct information to show that Mr. Wu had been instrumental in starting the boycott.

Mr. Denby said the boycott was now apparently nearly dead, but that the spirit was latent and could easily be stirred to life and fury.

The English and German commercial institutions at first were inclined to exult at the movement against American goods, said Mr. Denby, but when they saw the movement developing into an anti-foreign boycott they changed their tone.

Asked concerning modifications of the exclusion laws which would be likely to allay the anti-American feeling, Mr. Denby said that the Chinese Government took little interest in the coolie class, and the concessions must be to the privileged classes. A modification of the laws excluding laborers, said Mr. Denby, would not appeal to the Chinese national pride—which was a new characteristic.

"Is this pride growing?" was asked.

"Well, it has grown so strong that it induced American financiers to part with the best railway concession in China," replied Mr. Denby.

A Modernized Business

A comparison of methods in real estate transactions today with twenty years ago is a revelation to those whose experience does not go back that far. "Extras" and contingent charges in examining and closing titles, amounted, in many instances, to actual extortion. When this company founded title insurance in New York it established a reasonable and uniform system of fees—a standard by which to gauge all future transactions.

It is the oldest, strongest, and most progressive title insurance company.

ROOSEVELT CABLES TO CHINA'S EMPEROR

MESSAGES OVER NEW LINE

Felicitations on the Completion of the Postal Company's Wire Between San Francisco and Shanghai.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The following messages were exchanged yesterday and to-day between President Roosevelt and the Dowager Empress and the Emperor of China, in commemoration of the opening of the last link of the Postal-Telegraph Cable Company's cable connecting the United States and China.

April 16, 1906.

Their Imperial Majesties, the Empress Dowager and the Emperor of China, Peking:

I gladly take the opportunity afforded by the auspicious completion of the last link in the new American cable that joins the Pacific coast of this country to the Far East to offer to your Majesties my congratulations upon the achievement of a work that must needs contribute to the high purpose of bringing our two Governments and peoples closer together in the bonds of mutual understanding and lasting concord.

It is fitting that this fresh tie between the Western and Eastern Continents should begin its happy service by bearing a message of good-will, and I voice the earnest wish of this Government and of my countrymen for the happiness and welfare of your Majesties and for the continued prosperity of the Chinese Empire and of your great people.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

PEKING, April 17, 1906.

To His Excellency Mr. Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States of America, Washington:

Greeting: We are very much pleased on receiving your Excellency's special telegram of congratulation upon the auspicious completion of the new cable joining the Pacific coast of your country to the Far East. It is our sincere hope that by the completion of this cable commerce of your country and China will become more prosperous.

By order of the Empress Dowager, we now offer to your Excellency our sincere congratulations. EMPEROR OF CHINA.

The completion of the link of cable between Manila and Shanghai, which was celebated by an exchange of telegrams between President Roosevelt and the Emperor of China, finishes the transpacific line, which was begun several years ago. The first stretch of cable was laid between San Francisco and Honolulu. The line was later extended to Manila by way of Guam and Midway, and finally to Shanghai.

Nearly 10,000 miles of cable have been laid in an average depth of 2,640 fathoms. The greatest depth found on the line of the cable was 3,490 fathoms, approximately four miles.

UNIQUE GIFT TO PRESIDENT.

Address Bearing the Signatures of the Most Prominent Frenchmen.

PARIS, April 17.—Baron d'Estournelles de Constant will forward to Washington within the next few days a unique testimonial to President Roosevelt bearing the autograph signatures of nearly all the great names of France.

Some months ago the arbitration group of the French Parliament, of which Baron d'Estournelles is President, sent Mr. Roosevelt a copy of the first edition of the "Memoirs" of Sully, the Minister of Henri IV., which urge a pacific union of the great nations. Mr. Roosevelt was greatly pleased with the gift, and expressed the wish that he had the names of those uniting in the gift inscribed in the volume.

The President's wish for the names has now been gratified. Four large pages of parchment open with an illuminated inscription in blue and gold, and are followed by the signatures of the foremost men in public affairs, literature, art, and science, all of whom are connected directly or indirectly with the movement for international conciliation which Baron d'Estournelles directs in Parliament. The inscription is as follows:

"To Mr. Theodore Roosevelt, President of the Republic of the United States, from the undersigned members of the French Parliamentary Group of Arbitration and of International Conciliation, who have decided to address to President Roosevelt a testimonial of their high esteem and their grateful sympathy for the persistent and decisive initiative he has taken for substituting progressively the friendly and judicial determination of conflicts between nations for a determination by violence.

"They have thought that the action of Mr. Roosevelt realized the most generous aspirations that history has recorded, suggesting the illustrious efforts of the past, notably the project of international accord known under the name of the Grand Design of Henri IV., as set forth in the 'Memoirs' of his first Minister, the Duc de Sully.

"In consequence they have obtained a copy of the first edition of those 'Memoirs,' which they are happy to offer him, in asking him to class them among his family archives."

THIRD OF REALTY SALES HOLD-UPS, SPEAKER SAYS

But Square Deals Are Becoming More Popular.

ADVICE TO YOUNG BROKERS

The real estate class of the West Branch of the Young Men's Christian Association celebrated at Reisenweber's last night the end of its second sucessful season. About 150 members sat down to the annual dinner and listened to speeches that dealt with every side of the real estate broker's life.

His relations with the operator and the law, the attacks he has to meet, and his occasional disappointments were set forth in detail. A few words were said about the Acmy Real Estate Club, to which the members of the Y. M. C. A. classes belong, and the impressions a beginner has received from the instruction he has received.

Robert E. Simon was inclined to be optimistic in describing the real estate broker's life. He said:

"There is not another profession so quickly raised up to heaven and depressed to the other extreme as the real estate broker, but with it all he has an easy thing. It is easy to advise a man that property worth $100,000 now will sell for $150,000 six months hence, and charge $1,000 for the advice, whether one has made a mistake or not."

He went on to discuss the difference between the broker, the agent, and the operator. The broker has to bring together the seller and the buyer, and the buyer is always charged his commission in the price. The agent has simply to obey the orders of his employer, and his commission does not enter into the price, as far as he is concerned, for it is fixed, whatever happens.

"If there were only agents," he said, "and no brokers, prices would be firmer and there would not be three or four figures for every property.

"Do not be both an operator and a broker. How can a man, unless he be a knave or a fool, go out to sell a property he would not take himself. Operators today do not specialize in certain localities as they used to do. This makes prices vary, for no one can tell in what district any one is interested. I hope the Y. M. C. A. class will tend to bring back specialism.

"Another difficulty of the broker is the amount of change that is going on. Only a small paragraph in a newspaper announces the Pennsylvania Railroad is pulling down a new block, yet that means the movement of the population of a small town.

"With all these difficulties, I think the broker had much better keep away from operating. He can jump from part to part of the town with the latest boom, and is never 'property poor.' All he needs is a glib tongue, a thorough knowledge of the advantages and disadvantages of the realty he is handling, to talk it up and sell it."

The inequalities of realty as compared with personalty in the eye of the law were discussed by Henry F. Miller. He complained that in nine cases out of ten a new tax fell on real estate, as in the case of the mortgage tax. Therefore it behooved realty men to oppose dangerous laws in their very beginning.

It was unfair, he argued, that in a personalty suit an attachment could only be filed after security had been given, while in a realty matter any plaintiff could by his own attorney draw up a declaration of "lis pendens" with all the force of an injunction by the court.

E. A. Tredwell admitted that what constituted a "hold-up" in real estate all depended upon the point of view.

"As the juggler threw the first knife that was to outline the form of the charming young lady upon a board, a voice called from the gods, 'He's missed her!' So everything depends on the way we look at it. Probably one-third of the sales in New York are hold-ups, but operators and brokers are reaching of late an attitude more and more in keeping with the President's square deal."

He referred to the monopolies in land established in New York, and said: "Rockefeller, without realizing it, in putting hundreds of acres together at Pocantico is acting as an Anarchist. He is driving men to Socialism or municipal ownership, which is only Socialism in disguise. The Municipal Ownership League must become a prominent feature in New York. Which is the greater Anarchist, the man who absorbs the whole water front or the man who declares the rights of 4,000,000 people cannot be held up?

"At Sands Point there are ten miles of water front and only two plots for sale. You can sell a man land with a water view, but it is tantalizing to pay $1,000 an acre for land and have no road to the water.

"Then there is the Pennsylvania Railroad hold-up, and the title insurance companies hold-up. If you wish to see about the latter, you will read an article in the Sunday TIMES of a few weeks ago with much profit. As for the fire insurance hold-up that tends to cure itself, as the action of the new Belmont Hotel in insuring itself demonstrates."

Ronald E. Lee, in rising to speak of the disappointments of the real estate business, declared himself the death's head at the feast. The business of playing with immense sums and Manhattan, Long Island, and the Bronx as counters, instead of blue and red chips was full of excitement, he said, but there are hard problems to meet, like the man, who would buy real estate if it did not cost real money.

"Then there is," he added, "the owner who raises the price over night. There was a woman not so very long ago who agreed to sell a plot for $600,000, but when the broker had found a buyer she declared, 'My dear little dog was born on that lot, and I have not the heart to take the property from dear little Trixie.'"

William M. Kingsley, President of the West Side Branch of the Y. M. C. A., wished the real estate class every success, and detailed his own experiences as a buyer.

GERMANY'S MYSTERIOUS DIPLOMATIST RESIGNS

Holstein for Years the Real Power in the Foreign Office.

PREFERRED TO WORK QUIETLY

Declined the Foreign Portfolio, but Used His Own Office to Direct Affairs—Never Went Into Society.

BERLIN, April 17.—By direction of Emperor William Foreign Secretary Tchirsky to-day accepted the resignation of Baron von Holstein, Chief of the Department of Higher Politics in the Foreign Office.

This action retires from public life a personage who more than any other has been responsible for German foreign affairs since Prince Bismarck's time. For sixteen years Baron von Holstein has thought out policies and drawn up the instructions to Ambassadors, and he has been recognized by the diplomacy of Europe as the man whose counsel was in the ascendant at the Foreign Office under all Prince Bismarck's successors. When Prince Bülow assumed the Chancellorship he offered Baron von Holstein the Foreign Secretaryship, but the Baron declined the office because parliamentary and social activity was distasteful to him. He preferred the vital direction of affairs in seclusion rather than public honors.

Baron von Holstein had a reputation for unbending convictions which occasionally brought him into opposition to the Chancellor or sovereign, who, though they might overrule him, always respected him. The cause of his retirement is that he found himself unable to work in harmony with Foreign Secretary Tchirsky.

Baron von Holstein, who entered the service in 1860 as Attaché of the St. Petersburg Embassy, was next assigned to London. He asked in 1865 to be transferred to Washington, and was there for two years. He always kept in close touch with American affairs, and it was his belief that it was America's destiny profoundly to influence Europe. Baron von Holstein was a member of Prince Bismarck's field Chancellery in 1870-71. For five years he was Secretary of the embassy at Paris, and was instrumental in 1874 in proving that Prince von Arnim, the German Ambassador at Paris, took certain documents which were the property of the embassy. The affair caused a terrible scandal at the time, and is believed to have intensified Baron von Holstein's retiring ways.

Since 1875 he has been connected with the Foreign Office, and though never going into society, was credited with mysterious powers and influences.

TO HASTEN NEW BRIDGE.

Committee Asks Mayor to End Strike on Blackwell's Island Structure.

A delegation of business men and taxpayers in Manhattan and Long Island City called on the Mayor yesterday to ask him to end the delay in building the Blackwell's Island Bridge. Commissioner Stevenson told the delegation a few days ago that the delay was due to the strike of the Housesmiths' Union, which began on Jan. 2 and is still on. Speaking for the delegation, Richard J. Donovan said his committee believed the Mayor could procure a settlement of the strike without trouble.

W. P. McLaughlin declared that the union was ready to make fair terms with the Pennsylvania Steel Company, but that the company had returned no answer to the union's communications.

The Mayor promised to ask Commissioner Stevenson to confer with the Pennsylvania Steel Company at once.

Mr. Stevenson is likely to be a successful negotiator. He is now advertising for about 45,000 tons of steel for the Manhattan Bridge, and the Pennsylvania Company, the lowest bidder before, probably will compete for the contract.

King Alfonso has personally appealed to the newspaper men to permit him to enjoy his visit to his fiancée without being subjected to any annoyance.

New Summer Underwear for Women.
The Daintiest We Ever Had.

"COOLER THAN LINGERIE"—most women say—"if only they were as pretty!"

These are. The Swiss makers, sturdily persistent in making qualities trustworthy, might be frivolously French this year, such prettiness have they put into the Summer Underwear.

Stocks are full and fresh now—every size range complete. And with all the daintiness prices are less than we have ever seen for Underwear of this grade. The largeness of Loeser orders had something to do with that.

FOR LITTLE SUMMERY VESTS that fit like a glove and are delightfully cool and light, one may pay up to $5, depending on the elaborateness of the crochet edge—done entirely by hand in Berne, Switzerland. A plain Swiss lisle Vest may be had for 35c.; one of silk-and-lisle for 50c.; one of all silk for $1.25. For those who like always to wear some wool, there are Vests of silk-and-wool or of fine merino at............$1

My cigars prove that they are equal to cigars costing double or more of a retailer.

There are three ways in which my Panatelas at $5.00 per hundred prove themselves equal to the retailers' "10c. straights."

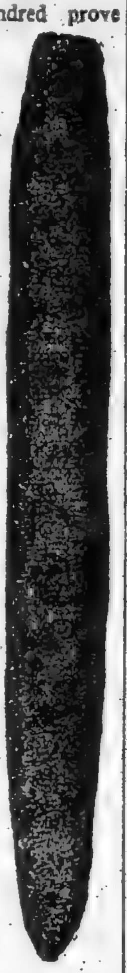
First: The tobacco in them is long, clean Havana and genuine Sumatra. They are hand made by experienced men—expert cigar makers; not by machines operated by inexperienced girls. You will not find tobacco or workmanship of equal quality in any cigar that retailers sell for less than 10c.

Second: Former smokers of retailers' 10c. cigars testify to perfect satisfaction in changing to my Panatelas.

Third: My customers tell me that if they run out of my Panatelas between orders they have to pay a retailer 10c. or 15c. apiece for cigars that will take their place.

These are all simple facts.

However, I do not ask you to take my word or the word of my customers. I want you to PROVE FOR YOURSELF that what I say is true. Hence I make you this offer.



Shivers' Panatela

Exact Size and Shape.

MY OFFER IS: I will, upon request, send one hundred Shivers' Panatela Cigars on approval to a reader of The Times, express prepaid. He may smoke ten cigars and return the remaining ninety at my expense if he is not pleased with them; if he is pleased, and keeps them, he agrees to remit the price, $5.00, within ten days.

The fillers of these cigars are Clear Havana, of good quality—not only clear, but long, clean Havana—no shorts or cuttings are used. They are hand made, by the best of workmen. The making has much to do with the smoking qualities of a cigar. The wrappers are genuine Sumatra.

In ordering please enclose business card or give personal references, and state whether mild, medium or strong cigars are desired.

PRESIDENT WOULD END INSURANCE SCANDALS

Unpardonable Not to Preclude a Repetition of Them, He Says.

APPEALS DIRECT TO CONGRESS

Urges the Enactment of a Bill Prepared as Result of the Insurance Convention in Chicago.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—President Roosevelt to-day transmitted to Congress a message relating to insurance legislation. Accompanying the message were the report and recommendations of the Insurance Convention, which was held in Chicago last February. Among the recommendations is the draft of a bill which Congress is urged to enact into law, with such amendments as its wisdom may suggest. The text of the message follows:

"To the Senate and House of Representatives:

"I herewith transmit the report and recommendations, with accompanying papers, of the Insurance Convention, which met in February last at Chicago. The convention was called because of the extraordinary disclosures of wrongful insurance methods recently made by the Armstrong Legislative Committee of the State of New York, the suggestion that it should be called coming to me originally from Gov. John A. Johnson of Minnesota, through Commissioner of Insurance Thomas D. O'Brien of that State.

"The convention consisted of about 100 Governors, Attorneys General, and Commissioners of Insurance of the States and Territories of the Union. The convention was seeking to accomplish uniformity of insurance legislation throughout the States and Territories, and as a prime step toward this purpose decided to endeavor to secure the enactment by the Congress of the United States of a proper insurance code for the District of Columbia, which might serve as a model for the several States. Before adjourning the convention appointed a committee of three Attorneys General and twelve Commissioners of Insurance of the various States to prepare and have presented to the Congress a bill which should embody the features suggested by the convention.

"The committee recently met in Chicago, and in thorough and painstaking fashion sought to prepare a bill which should be at once protective of policy holders and fair and just to insurance companies, and which should prevent the graver evils and abuses of the business, and at the same time forestall any wild or drastic legislation which would be more harmful than beneficial. The proposed bill is discussed at length in the accompanying letter by Supt. Thomas E. Drake of the Department of Insurance in the District of Columbia.

"I very earnestly hope that the Congress at the earliest opportunity will enact this bill into law, with such changes as its wisdom may indicate. I have no expert familiarity with the business, but I have entire faith in the right judgment and single-minded purpose of the insurance convention which met at Chicago and of the committee of that convention which formulated the measure herein advocated. We are not to be pardoned if we fail to take every step in our power to prevent the possibility of the repetition of such scandals as those that have occurred in connection with the insurance business as disclosed by the Armstrong Committee.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

"The White House, April 17, 1906."

The bill recommended was drafted by amending the measure introduced in Congress by Representative Butler Ames, (Mass.) It provides for the establishment of an insurance bureau in the Department of Commerce and Labor and for the appointment of a Commissioner, required at least once in three years to examine all companies doing business in the District of Columbia. Forms are prescribed for the issuance of annual statements, and the Commissioner is authorized to demand other information from the companies if he believes it necessary.

The Commissioner is empowered to lay before the Attorney General any infraction of the law by any domestic insurance company, and the Attorney General may apply to the Supreme Court of the district for an injunction restraining its further business. Under the same conditions, he is authorized to revoke the certificate of a foreign insurance company.

A minimum capital stock of $50,000 is proposed for accident companies, $100,000 for plate-glass and elevator insurance, and $200,000 for all other companies. It limits the investment of capital stock. Companies may also be organized on a preliminary stock plan.

Directors are made liable for any illegal investments, and companies are not permitted to do both a participating and non-participating business.

The bill contains a plan whereby all policy holders shall be enabled to participate through proxies in the election of Directors at the annual meetings. The salaries of all officers and agents over $5,000 a year must be authorized by a vote of the Board of Directors of the insurance corporation. Pensions cannot be voted to a member of the family of an officer after his death, and disbursements of over $1,000 require properly itemized vouchers.

The bill prohibits rebating of portions of premiums and discriminating between classes of insured. Standard forms of policies are prescribed. A policy cannot be forfeited after the payment of two full annual premiums.

NO MERCY FOR SHOPLIFTERS.

Justices Decide Three Must Serve Out 500 Days for Their Fines.

Extraordinary efforts have been made by outsiders to obtain the remittance of the remaining part of the punishment imposed on Isaac Abramovitch, Dora Glenner, and Cynthia Steinberg, three shoplifters, who have just finished the term of one year in prison given to each of them, and who are now paying off their $500 fines by staying in prison a day for each dollar.

The Justices of Special Sessions announced yesterday that under no circumstances would they be parties to any cutting down of the penalty inflicted. The reason for their decision was that at the time of the arrest the prisoners were proved to have bank accounts aggregating $40,000. The goods they had stolen from one department store alone and which were recovered in the rooms of the Glenner woman had a value of $5,000.

MISS TARBELL TALKS, BUT NOT OF ROCKEFELLER

THE SADNESS OF 23D STREET

More Imitators to be Seen There Than in Any Other Street in the World, Writer Says.

Miss Ida M. Tarbell made a speech yesterday afternoon at a luncheon at Sherry's given by the Eastern Association of Wells College, and did not mention Rockefeller or Standard Oil once. Some fifty or more former students, several members of the Faculty, and one or two invited guests heard Miss Tarbell talk about the wickedness of imitation. The theme of her talk was "The Imitation and the Real."

Mrs. J. D. Higgins presented the association's annual $50 prize for the best essay written by a student to Miss Helen Hawkes, 1906, for her essay, "Two Great Movements in the English Church." Miss M. Helena Zachos, President of the association, said that all the essays offered in the contest had been read, even by those who didn't have to read them, so interesting had they been. Miss Janice McDonald got honorable mention for her essay, "Christian Socialism."

Dr. George Moran Ward, President of the college, the only man formally present, (the two male reporters were not formally present,) told of the satisfaction of the Faculty at the status and prospects of the college. He had been at the college only a little while, he said, but he had had experiences he had never had before. He had come to know the full power of a woman's tears when the students had come to ask for things they wanted. He said right out that he had never refused them.

It seemed to Miss Tarbell that people, as a rule, wanted to imitate, that they really preferred to imitate somebody else or something else. The maid had fifty cents to spend for ornaments for her sleeves and neck, but instead of buying a pair of simple cuffs and a collar that would become her, she spent it on cheap lace, which made of her as she put it on a thing awful to behold.

People went to England, she continued, and tried to imitate the obvious things in English enunciation and pronunciation, instead of absorbing the subtle things of English which they might take up naturally. The result was fearsome, Miss Tarbell thought. New Englanders had a distinctive way of talking; the South had a beautiful way. But what was natural for one was unnatural for another, and imitation on the one side or the other brought forth a terrifying combination.

But it was in dress, Miss Tarbell said meaningly, that people were the rawest imitators. "Twenty-third Street is the saddest street in the world to me," she said, "and the awfullest. There are more people on that street every day walking up and down looking for somebody or something after which they can pattern than on any other street in the world.

"A nun comes along, dressed as it is natural for her to dress, as she always has dressed. A little country woman comes along dressed in the way she likes. They are always things of beauty and a joy forever as compared with the women who walk along with 'imitation' marked all over them.

"In my editorial capacity I see this often. So many times we come across young writers out in the West who have something definite and strong and natural to say. So long as they say natural things, so long are they interesting. But they want to come to New York, go to Paris, London, or somewhere else, not content to stay on their own fields, where they are doing good work, but absolutely anxious to get over on somebody else's preserves, where they can imitate."

The reward for naturalness was obvious enough, Miss Tarbell thought, and the way to attain it and kill imitation was to study one's own soul and follow the advice of Emerson "to hold that it is a popgun if one believes it a popgun, although everybody else on earth swear it is the crack of doom."

TWO ART SALES TO-NIGHT.

Paintings on Exhibition at the Silo Galleries.

A large collection of paintings by American and foreign artists will be sold by Mr. Silo at the Fifth Avenue Art Galleries, near Thirty-fifth Street, to-night at 8:15 o'clock, and also on the evenings of Thursday and Friday. They belong to private owners and estates which are being settled, and so they offer an unusually varied bill of fare.

Among the deceased Americans whose oil paintings are shown are George Inness, Alexander Wyant, W. T. Richards, and Homer D. Martin, who are represented by unimportant examples. Among the living are George H. Bogert with two interesting canvases, Frederick D. Kost, Albert Lynch of Peru, D. Ridgeway Knight of Paris, Charles Warren Eaton, Leonard Ochtman, always thoughtful and often poetic in his landscapes; Alexander Harrison, a technician of sterling worth; Bruce Crane, W. H. Howe, the cattle painter; Arthur Parton, and Loyal Field.

The foreign contingent has a wider sweep between extremes than the American. Here is the pretty-pretty figure work of the late Asti of Paris, together with heads by Jacquet and figures assigned to the late J. J. Henner. There are military figures by Berne-Bellecour and peasants and fisher folk by Haquette and the Scandinavian Hagborg, along with characteristic pieces from the industrious easels of Perrault, Karl Daubigny, and Debat-Ponson. Every taste is consulted in this heterogeneous collection of foreign and native canvases.

THE C. A. STEIGER GALLERY.

To-night and to-morrow night the private gallery of the late Mr. C. A. Steiger of Irvington-on-Hudson will be sold by Mr. C. E. Smith at the Knickerbocker Art Galleries, 7 West Twenty-ninth Street, the auction beginning at 8:30. There are 140 foreign and American oil paintings, some of them by artists very little known.

Frits Thaulow is represented by a "Sunset on the River." There are landscapes by the late Robert C. Minor and R. A. Blakelock, by Arthur Hoeber and Henry P. Smith, figures by Edward Potthast and Addison T. Millar, marines by Otis Webber, Enright, James G. Tyler, and Richards, a moonlight by Joseph H. Boston, cattle pieces attributed to Charles F. Daubigny and Van Marcke, and canvases assigned to Diaz, Ruysdael, and Jordaens. Among the New York artists represented, aside from those above mentioned, are W. Merritt Post, William K. Amsden, Califano, Arthur Parton, E. L. Field, H. P. Flagg, the late William Hart, Clinton Loveridge, Robert Hamilton, Albert Insley, J. S. Shaughnessy, O. P. Black, S. L. Collingford, Wesley Webber, J. Willard Raught, Emil Roebling, Arthur T. Holmes, G. Glenn Newell, and W. Warren Brown.

It is not often that a new style is accepted so readily as the Ormond—our Spring Overcoat with the flare skirt, deep vent and side plaits. We have had to press our workshops to keep up the supply. We are showing it in Grays, with velvet collars to match, also in Black, Oxford and Tan.

COCKRAN NOT AT DINNER BECAUSE BELMONT WAS

He Says That Things Are Narrowing Down to Graft or Riot.

BY RIOT HE MEANS HEARST

And He Wouldn't Eat at a Dinner with a Transit Man Who Refuses Universal Transfers.

Congressman W. Bourke Cockran made public last night the text of a letter which he had sent to Mayor McClellan on Saturday, explaining that it was August Belmont's connection with the Democratic Club's Jefferson dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria on Monday night, and not the presence of Mayor McClellan, that would keep Mr. Cockran away from the feast. Mr. Cockran was to have been one of the chief speakers. Mr. Cockran's letter follows:

My Dear Sir: The statement made in certain newspapers that the withdrawal of my promise to speak at the Democratic Club on Monday night had some relation to you, or that it was caused by any act or omission of yours, is so utterly mendacious and obviously malicious that I deem it proper to let you know the exact reasons which have governed me.

When I received the invitation I was informed that you would be one of the speakers and that your subject would be "Democracy." I selected my own subject in the hope that I could make some practical application to pending issues of the fundamental principles which I felt confident you would define accurately and forcibly.

Belmont's Dinner.

Shortly afterward, as you are probably aware, a dinner was given by the club at which the gentleman who is head of the company operating all the transit facilities of the city presided, and one of his attorneys was the chief speaker. These proceedings, which attracted wide attention, were generally described in the newspapers as part of a movement to organize the Democratic Party throughout the State on certain lines, and in this movement the adoption of resolutions defining the difference between Democracy and Socialism at Tammany Hall on March 19 was said to have been an initial step. As these resolutions had been prepared and offered by me, I knew, of course, that this statement was wholly untrue, and I felt at once that my participation in a banquet held by the same club would be popularly accepted as a confirmation of this misrepresentation. And this I should regard as a grave disaster to the community, as well as to the political organization, wholly apart from any question of the patriotism or lack of it which animated those gentlemen to whom I have referred.

The strongest appeal of the Socialist to public opinion is an assertion that unless the Government assumes ownership of the corporations, the corporations will acquire ownership of the Government. Both political parties, he charges, are controlled by corporate interests so completely that while the leaders pose as opponents in politics, they are in fact partners in business, and what appear to be their conflicts over matters of public interest are but devices behind which they combine to despoil the people for their private interests.

Bondage or Revolution.

If this conviction become general, there is little doubt that the people at the next election will rise in wrath against both political parties, and if there be no other means available to liberate themselves from a bondage so degrading, they may even elect to the Governorship some advocate of revolutionary and dangerous measures, who, possessing enormous wealth and several newspapers, stands ready to employ all his resources in organizing the discontented, the visionary, and the violent into an effective force for the exploitation of his theories or the gratification of his ambitions. If reduced to a choice between government by exploiters of public utilities, who are generally believed to have developed such efficiency in corruption that our political system must perish if it be abandoned wholly to their control, and an apostle of violence and disorder who proposes to cure corruption by measures of confusion and confiscation, an honest man may well hesitate about the path which he will elect to pursue.

For my part, I do not believe the people are reduced to a choice between submitting to graft and encouraging riot. The whole purpose of the resolutions adopted at Tammany Hall was to meet this attitude of the Socialists by making clear that Government administered on democratic principles is as much bound to prevent plunder of the people by rich men through partial laws as to prevent the disturbance of order or the destruction of property by violent or misguided men through revolutionary measures. Manifestly, it is of vast importance that the organization display as much loyalty in applying these principles as it showed enthusiasm in adopting them.

Demands Universal Transfers.

These resolutions adopted at Tammany Hall demanded that the people be admitted to a share in the profits resulting from the recent merger of the various companies engaged in local transportation by the issue of transfers, so that use of the whole transit system throughout the entire city would be made available to every one on payment of a single fare. This reform it is within the power of some gentlemen who will be active at the banquet to establish. So far it has been refused. To grant it now would be a much better contribution to Democratic success than any amount of festive oratory, however excellent in style or brilliant in rhetoric. While that concession to justice and sound government is withheld, I do not believe that men who share my views can join in political feasts with gentlemen who refuse it without casting doubts on our sincerity in demanding it, and thus strengthening seriously the Socialistic propaganda. Yours very sincerely, W. BOURKE COCKRAN.

To the Hon. George B. McClellan.

The best tooth brushes are made in Europe. France produces beautiful goods, notable for their style and fineness. England's product is heavier—perhaps more substantial. Both countries send us good brushes. We are showing a very extensive line, in every weight from the finely molded and delicately turned French brush with bristles soft as camel's hair to the strong, stiff, lasting one of English make.

Every one of them is pure bristle.

Many persons leave the choice of a tooth brush to the druggist, but some druggists don't know a good from a bad one. You can make your own selection from our stock and rest assured that you have a satisfactory and reliable article.

Seekers for Quality Are Satisfied Here.

We have Hair, Nail, Bath, Flesh and Shaving Brushes in great variety. Standard makes that need not be examined, but show their quality on close inspection. To the ladies we offer a superior Complexion brush.

In this department we carry a very fine line of Combs of French and American make. Sponges, Bath Mitts, Hand Mirrors, Shaving Mirrors and Manicure Instruments and supplies.

OMNIPSE SHAVING CREAM

For men who travel and those who do not care to bother with a shaving brush and lather cup. It softens the beard, makes shaving easy, and is very cooling and soothing to the skin. Being strongly antiseptic it overcomes the danger of disagreeable itching eruptions of the face. Put up in collapsible tubes it is easy to carry, and keeps indefinitely.

True Spanish Olive Oil Soap
Blue Letter Brand

This is the purest and best of toilet soaps. We recommend it strongly. It is not perfumed or treated in any way to make it attractive in appearance, but what it lacks in looks is more than made up in quality. This is the ideal soap for those with tender skin; it does not irritate or cause roughness and is a great cleanser.

Hegeman & Co.'s Pure Glycerine Soap is largely used by those who are troubled with roughness of the skin. It is an excellent toilet soap, delicately perfumed; emollient and healing because of the glycerine incorporated in it.

THE PRESIDENT'S IDEAS DO NOT IMPRESS ODELL

RIDICULES TAX ON WEALTH

"Sleek, Oleaginous Alleged Reformers" a Phrase in His Speech to the Bronx Press Club.

Ex-Gov. Odell paid his respects to the muck-rakers last night at the second annual dinner of the Bronx Press Club in Crotona Casino, 169th Street and Boston Road. The sayings of the former Governor were more or less in line with those of President Roosevelt on this subject, but Mr. Odell seized the occasion to make some thinly veiled comments of quite another character on Mr. Roosevelt's latest proposal for a tax on wealth.

Ex-Gov. Odell had received when he got up to speak a warm welcome from the 300 diners, and this gave him the opportunity for his first reference to the Rooseveltian policy.

"I have heard it said," said he "that a drowning man who is resuscitated suffers great agony. But I assure you that in being brought to earth again since Jan. 1 last my experience has been quite of a contrary character. But I have seen certain changes since I came back from death's door, and it appears that if those of you here to-night who are Democrats will only take a stand for a centralization of government in this country we shall be all so nearly in agreement that the millennium will be near.

"You will appreciate the delicacy that prevents me from using as strong language as the gentleman whose letter of regret to you for his inability to be here to-night I read in the papers this morning."

He referred to Perry Belmont's letter attacking Mr. Roosevelt. Gov. Odell did not go further into the subject at the moment. He made some epigrammatic remarks, in part as follows:

"Pugnacity may not be a desirable attribute, but at least it is an evidence of virility. Temporary defeat should never discourage us, but should rather be an incentive for greater efforts. Fallen fortunes are sooner restored by manly efforts than through homilies against those who criticise our profligacy. The world applauds success, but seldom has temper for a recital of woes. We should therefore never become so egotistical as to believe that our ills are always of interest to our neighbors, or that they justify our button-holing mankind for the purpose of burdening them with our troubles. We shall inspire greater confidence if we effect self-cure, or if we keep our troubles to ourselves. Praise often blinds us to merit, and in such cases it is only when censure replaces flattery, only when we have done some mental housecleaning, that we fully recognize its existence. The man with the hoe has little use for the rake; he prefers a spade, finding it much easier with it to overturn slime and expose its germs to sunshine and death.

"We may overthrow weak, inefficient, or unworthy individuals, but there is no movement that can eliminate leadership, leadership without courage, however, is a failure, without discipline defeat more often than victory is its reward. Those who believe that they can attain power if they have not the ability to use it will soon discover their mistake. Reform cannot be accomplished by painting the other fellow's evils and flaunting our own goodness, for holiness is attested by deeds rather than by proclamation. We must be sure of ourselves and the loyalty of our fellow-workers if we are to achieve much. Some men mistake sycophancy for friendship, and never discover their error until long after their power to reward servility is lost.

"Parties do not exist for the exploitation of individuals, but for the enunciation of principles that make for better government. Reforms in party politics in government are evidences of moral growth. Every age has had its own peculiar methods of accomplishing reformation. The putting to death of those who oppose us may have been a means in times past of attesting our faith in Divine goodness, but this is not the modern conception; reform, therefore, which is sought by assassination of reputations and character is scarcely the true reform, for true reform seeks the advancement of the worthy, and the reclamation and not the destruction of the wicked. Our Government can only advance so long as we understand that its functions are not oppression, but that it exists for the enlargement of individual possibilities and the enjoyment of equal privileges.

"Condemnation of that which is wrong is proper, but in our wrath let us not forget that in the guilt of the past we may have participated. Those who howl the loudest, however, are usually the chief sinners, and probably will be found among the first of the backsliders.

"There are human wolves, as well as those that roam the forest, wolves that fatten upon the blasted reputations and grow into sleek, oleaginous alleged reformers. The Uriah Heep of politics is as despicable a chap as that painted by Dickens. He seeks to drug the public by accentuating the wickedness of the world in the hope that thereby he may hide his own shortcomings and advance his personal fortunes.

"We are a part of a Republic which has given to the world a magnificent example in self-government. We have a Constitution which guarantees equal rights, a Government whose paternalism has given to us the greatest measure of prosperity and happiness. One man's voice is as potent as another's, and if any of our rights have been impaired it has been through our own neglect.

"The danger to our supremacy lies not so much in the fact that the people ask too many questions as that our representatives are not always in a position to answer them satisfactorily. The duty of the hour is respect for and consideration of each other's rights.

"The safety of property depends not so much upon force as the inculcation of knowledge that its possession is always possible to the thrifty. Wealth can fly away or hide itself with equal facility, and is therefore generally able to care for itself, but in its initial form, that which we call labor, we should not alone aim to safeguard it, but also seek to bring about respect between it and capital. Threats of confiscation have no terrors for wealth, because it can soon place itself beyond the power of hostile forces. Its withdrawal, however, would mean idleness and want. Our laws are not for the poor or the rich unequally, neither are they for the punishment of thrift, whether the result be measured in pennies or millions."

Senator McCarren spoke on "The Empire State" for about a minute and a half, after saying that Gov. Odell's speech evidenced traits qualifying the speaker for membership in the Democratic Party. The other speakers were Herman A. Metz, "Little Tim" Sullivan, Walter Hawley, and Borough President Haffen of the Bronx. Fire Commissioner O'Brien and Secretary Thomas F. Smith of Tammany Hall also sat at the head table.

PUBLICITY BILL PASSED.

Assembly Measure Requires the Production of Campaign Contributions.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 17.—After rejecting by a vote of 88 to 29 amendments to the Judiciary Committee's Publicity bill relative to political contributions, the Assembly to-day unanimously passed a measure, based upon Perry Belmont's bill.

The substitute bill compels the production of the records of campaign expenses and the publication of contributions made to political committees with the name of the contributor and the amount of the contribution.

Laundry Check Bill Pushed.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 17.—The Assembly to-day advanced the Reilly Laundry Check bill, and Reilly of Kings is the happiest man in the Capitol.

SAY NIAGARA IS NOT INJURED.

Plenty of Water Left, Power Man Tells House Committee.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—It was said before the House Committee on Rivers and Harbors to-day that Niagara River was greater in volume at the present time than it had been in years; that the use of its waters for the development of power so far had not detracted from the scenic beauty of the falls, and that at least 30 per cent. of the flow might be diverted before any difference in the volume of water could be detected.

This statement was made by F. A. Dudley, Vice President of the Niagara Falls Electrical Transmission Company, whose plant is now in course of construction on the Canadian side, but whose contracts for the furnishing of power are largely on the American side.

The normal flow of water on the American side, he said, was a stream of water four feet deep over a fall 900 feet in length. On the Canadian side the normal flow was fourteen feet deep over a fall 1,500 feet wide. The use of this water for power purposes to the full extent now authorized by franchises would diminish the depth of the American stream over the falls between three and four inches and on the Canadian side abount one and a half feet. Measured in cubic feet per second, descending over the falls, he said the total was 275,000 feet.

SAY LAWYER CONFESSED.

Detective Declares That Conkey Admitted Forging Checks for $5,026.

Harvey J. Conkey, the younger lawyer who was arrested on a charge of forgery Monday night in his home, 1,383 Bristow Street, the Bronx, was arraigned yesterday morning in the Tombs Court and held for trial Friday in $10,000 bail. The sums involved aggregate $5,026, the fourteen checks said to be forgeries all bearing the signature "Arthur B. Wallace," except one, which bears that of "Kate M. Wallace."

The lawyer, who formerly had an office at 15 William Street, was appointed to represent the Wallace estate, which is in the Bronx. He was a college friend of young Wallace at Yale. Last week, according to Assistant Superintendent Bailey of the Pinkerton Detective Agency, Mr. Wallace sent in his bankbook to the Trust Company of America to have it balanced. With it came back the fourteen checks said by Wallace to be forgeries.

One of the checks had been indorsed by the Fidelity and Trust Company, and a clerk there said he recognized it as having been handed in for indorsement by Harvey J. Conkey. Bailey says he has an affidavit to that effect.

Conkey was married last Summer. It was about that time that he is alleged to have cashed a forged check for $200 to take a trip to Palm Beach, Fla. When the detectives went to his home on Monday his wife told them to step right in. They asked her and a friend to go out of the room while they talked with Mr. Conkey, but she must have suspected that something was wrong and listened at the door. She came back presently, begging to know if anything was wrong. Conkey told her to go back to her mother, and that everything would be all right in a day or so.

According to Bailey, Conkey broke down and confessed that the money had gone in race track gambling.

APPEALS COURT UPHOLDS THE TRANSFER TAX LAW

The Decision Unanimous as to Its Constitutionality.

NOT A TAX ON PROPERTY

Court Says Law Does Not Discriminate Between Different Kinds of Stock, but Treats All Alike.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 17.—The Court of Appeals by a unanimous decision handed down to-day upholds the constitutionality in every feature of the law of this State taxing the transfer of shares of capital stock. The opinion of the court was written by Justice Vann, and overturns all of the contentions made by those who sought to overthrow the act.

As to the argument that the bill should have been on the desks of the members of the Legislature in its final form in each house for at least three calendar days, the court holds that the intention of the Constitution was that bills should be on the desks of members for three days, and not for six, as the Legislature means the whole body, and not each separate house.

In answer to the objection to the classification made by selecting one kind of property and taxing the transfer of that only, the court says:

"All taxation is arbitrary, for it compels the citizen to give up a part of his property; it is generally discriminating, for otherwise everything would be taxed, which has never yet been done, and there would be no exemption on account of education, charity, or religion, and frequently it is unreasonable, but that does not make it unconstitutional even if the result is double taxation."

The opinion then goes on to show that there is no discrimination in the tax itself. On this point the decision says:

"The tax in question is not imposed upon property, but on the transfer of a certain class of property extensively bought and sold throughout the State. It does not discriminate between different kinds of stock, taxing the sale of some and leaving others untaxed, but treats all in the class alike. It is a large and comprehensive class, as is shown by the revenue produced, which amounts to $5,000,000 or $6,000,000 per annum. The sales affected are made chiefly for speculation, which may have influenced the Legislature in making the selection."

As to the claim that the statute is invalid because it fixes the amount of the tax regardless of the value of the certificates sold or of the sum for which they are sold, the court says:

"The tax in question is an excise tax, which need not depend upon any principle of valuation or on any notice to the taxpayer. It is not a direct tax governed by the rule of appraisement, but an indirect tax governed by the rule of uniformity."

The opinion discusses fully the contention that the tax in the case under consideration being on the transfer of stock certificates issued by a foreign corporation and owned by a non-resident, is a tax on property without the jurisdiction of the State, but holds that the tax is not upon property, but upon the sale of property, which, having taken place in the State of New York, comes within the taxing power of the State.

Judge Vann says on this point:

"By coming into the State they subjected themselves to its laws and to its taxing power. So far as the making of such a contract is concerned, it is immaterial whether the contract is between residents or non-residents, or between a resident and a non-resident, for if it is made within the State it is subject to taxation by the State."

The court overruled the final objection that the statute violates the commerce clause of the Federal Constitution, because it taxes transfers of certificates of stock in a foreign corporation when made by a non-resident in this State. The opinion holds that the property was within the State when transferred, and that nothing was brought in or taken out of the State in order to make the exchange.

The stock transfer tax, passed by the Legislature last year, has brought the State a sum vastly in excess of the amount estimated at the time the act was passed. In the first eight months of the operation of the tax the State of New York collected $4,441,000, as compared with an estimate of $3,000,000 as the probable amount of its annual yield. This fact has been made the basis of the bill recently introduced in the Assembly by Assemblyman Prentice to reduce the stamp tax from 2 cents on each $100 of par value to 1 cent.

The stock transfer tax was bitterly opposed by Stock Exchange interests, which held that it was inequitable and that it would work to the disadvantage of New York City and in favor of other near-by markets. It was held at the time the tax was proposed that business which theretofore had been done on the New York Stock Exchange would in future be transacted in Boston, Philadelphia, or in some other city. This contention, it is now admitted, has not been borne out by the actual developments. The passage of the act last year was made the basis of a scheme to establish a Stock Exchange in Jersey City in order to avoid the transfer tax. The project was much discussed for a time, but was never carried into effect.

WILLIAM S. WYCKOFF AND HIS SON TO WED

The Father to Marry a Prussian Woman in England.

YOUNGER A BIT SURPRISED

Though He Had Some Hint in Cablegrams—Miss Tomlinson Will Become His Bride To-day.

Oversea congratulations from son to father and from father to son will be in order to-day in the case of William S. Wyckoff, and his son, Clarence P. Wyckoff, both well-known members of society.

The fact that both were to be married soon was revealed through a dispatch from London last evening which said that application had been made to the Archbishop of Canterbury for a special license for the marriage of William S. Wyckoff of New York to Miss Sophie Manasse of Stettin, Prussia.

Simultaneously with the receipt of this dispatch came announcement of the details of the wedding ceremony of Clarence P. Wyckoff, the broker and son of William S. Wyckoff, to Miss Esther Walden Tomlinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Canfield Tomlinson, of 45 West Fifty-seventh Street. The wedding is to take place this afternoon at St. Thomas's Church.

Clarence P. Wyckoff lives at the bachelor apartments at 135 Madison Avenue. When he had returned to his home after a call to his fiancée last evening the dispatch from London was shown to him. After he had read it he looked up with a smile and said:

"H'm, I'm to be married myself to-morrow."

Asked if this announcement regarding his father was a surprise to him, Mr. Wyckoff replied:

"No, not exactly. My father cabled me about a month ago that he was going to get married, and soon afterward sent me another message telling me not to say anything about it. I am, therefore, not at liberty to speak further about the matter."

Mr. Wyckoff, however, added that his father was left a widower about five years ago, was about 60 years old, and had two sisters, one married, in England, and the other in Scotland. He explained that he did not know his father's betrothed, but that his father knew about his coming marriage.

William S. Wyckoff is a Brooklyn man. He has been retired from business so long that his son could not remember last evening the business he had once been in. He has lived in late years at the Hotel Manhattan when not at Palm Beach, Fla., or abroad. Since June he has been in Europe, visiting both Paris and London. The older Mr. Wyckoff is a well-preserved, tall man. He is a member of the Union League and other clubs.

Clarence P. Wyckoff is an athletic, tall young man of about 25 years. The ceremony making Miss Tomlinson his wife will be performed by the Rev. Dr. Stires, the pastor of St. Thomas's. The ushers will be J. Augustus Barnard, Kilisen Van Rensselaer, Cecil Barret, Louis Hosmer, W. Forbes Morgan, George McIntosh, and John C. Tomlinson.

BENNY WAS LOSTED.

And He's Not Sure That His Name Isn't Helen Smith—Matron Is.

A four-year-old boy, nicely dressed and with flaxen curls falling over his shoulders, was found by a policeman at dusk last evening wandering about the Botanical Gardens and in Bronx Park crying bitterly.

"I'm losted," he told the policeman. "My name is Benny Motner an' I live downtown."

At the Bronx Park police station Benny repeated his story, but could give no information as to the location of his home. It was decided to send him to the Tremont Station, and Police Headquarters was notified.

When the Tremont Station was reached and Benny was taken before the Sergeant, he was comforted and snuggled close to the policeman who had brought him over.

"What is your name?" asked the Sergeant kindly.

Now Helen or Benny—the policeman did not know which—looked just as much like a little girl as he did like a little boy. His long hair and the fact that he was wearing dresses proved perplexing to the policeman. Headquarters was notified that Benny Motner was not Benny Motner at all, but was really Helen Smith, and a new alarm was sent out in that name.

Then the matron came in and decided that Benny was a boy.

Late last night nobody had claimed Benny, who said he had gone to the Park with other boys and had become separated from them.

LOCAL LAWYERS PRAISE THE DIVORCE DECISION

But Find Nothing Startling or New in It.

MAY BRING UNIFORM LAWS

Despite the dissent of four out of nine Justices of the United States Supreme Court, the most eminent lawyers in New York were unanimous yesterday in their praise of the court's decision that a divorce obtained in Connecticut, with the defendant outside the jurisdiction of that State, need not be considered valid in New York. The decision is in line with former decisions of the New York Court of Appeals, and this brings considerable pride to lawyers here. They agree that the Supreme Court has decided justly as to the law and in the interest of public morality.

Many persons who read of the court's decision in yesterday's newspapers jumped to the conclusion that thousands of children would be rendered illegitimate as a result. There is litle truth in that, for these reasons:

For a divorce procured by a New Yorker in South Dakota, for example, not to be considered valid in New York it is necessary that the defendant has not come within the jurisdiction of South Dakota in any way. If the defendant appears in answer to the suit, even if the decree is granted for a cause which is totally unrecognized in New York, then the divorce is valid everywhere. For, in that case, both plaintiff and defendant put themselves under the jurisdiction of the State where the suit is tried.

Lawyers in New York and other Eastern States have, for years, been advising their clients not to trust to divorce decrees procured in other States unless both parties to the suit be present in court. And second marriages on the part of persons who got their decrees by the defendant's non-appearance are much rarer than seems to be generally supposed.

All the lawyers a TIMES reporter interviewed yesterday, except ex-Judge Dillon, said that children of a second marriage, after a divorce obtained in another State by the defendant's non-appearance, would be illegitimate in New York, since the divorce would be invalid here. Judge Dillon said that it was doubtful if "every divorce granted upon publication of notice, or where there was no appearance by the other party to the divorce proceedings, would necessarily be held invalid, and the children of subsequent marriages illegitimate." Each case of this kind, he said, would depend probably upon its own special facts and circumstances.

Frederic R. Coudert, who has figured in many prominent international divorce cases, called attention to Section 1,745 of the New York Code of Civil Procedure, which provides that the children of parents to a void marriage, when either parent entered into the contract in good faith and in ignorance of its true nature before the law, shall be considered legitimate.

Walter S. Logan, who took a prominent part in the divorce congress in Washington and has given much study to the subject of divorce laws, interprets Section 1,745 as referring to any case in which either husband or wife is ignorant of actual facts, such as the existence of a former husband or wife.

There is some hope that the Supreme Court's decision may be an important step toward uniform divorce laws throughout the United States. Ex-Judge Dittenhoefer said that the decision emphasized the necessity of a National marriage and divorce law. When asked for his general opinion on the decision ex-Judge Dittenhoefer said:

"The principle now enunciated by the Supreme Court is in accordance with what I have always advised. It has always been my opinion that a divorce obtained by publication of the process, instead of by personal service thereof on the party against whom the suit was commenced, was invalid and void in every State except the one in which the decree was obtained, unless the defendant party voluntarily appeared in the action.

"In my practice at the bar I suppose there have been twenty cases in which I have been concerned where I gave that advice. It is correct law, and it is in the interest of public morality.

"If the law were otherwise, either a husband or wife could abandon the other, go to another State, and there get a divorce without the knowledge of the other. Indeed, I know of cases in which the husband has done this and then come back to live with two wives according to the laws of New York State.

"The Supreme Court decision imposes no hardship, for a resident of New York ought not to be allowed to go to another State and get a divorce for some cause for which he could not get it in this State. However, I am not to be understood as committing myself that there should be only one cause for divorce.

"In connection with this, and as bearing on the public good, attention should be called to a strange anomaly in the marriage and divorce laws of this State. Under the law defining bigamy, the crime is committed only when the marrying takes place in this State. Husband or wife could go to another State, get married there, come back here to live, and not be guilty of bigamy. So that, according to our law, marrying is the crime, not living in bigamy. This condition of affairs enforces the necessity of a National marriage and divorce law. There are two ways to accomplish such a reform.

"The first is to amend the Constitution of the United States so as to give to Congress power to enact marriage and divorce laws. This would be a long and tedious process, if at all practicable. The other way is for the States to agree to unify legislation. This is much more practicable and quicker of accomplishment."

When ex-Judge Dittenhoefer was asked of the status of persons divorced in the manner mentioned in the Supreme Court decision he said:

"When both parties have remarried it would be to the interest of both to have the divorce proceedings validated, and they could do this by starting mutual suits to obtain another decree. Suppose, for instance, a man obtained a decree in South Dakota, his wife not appearing, and then both married again. They would have to open the case again in South Dakota, and then, if they got the decree, every other State would consider it valid.

"As a general thing, although a divorce decree provides that the plaintiff may remarry, but the defendant may not, yet it has been held by the courts that remarriage by the defendant is not a violation of the decree, and the only penalty that the remarrying defendant is liable to is punishment for contempt of court."

A case similar to hat just decided by the Supreme Court was that of Anna Ogden Pell against Duncan Pell, tried more than a year ago. Ex-Judge Dittenhoefer was counsel for Mrs. Pell. Mr. Pell got a decree of divorce in Florida, his wife being served by publication of process, and then remarried. Counsel advised Mrs. Pell that she was not divorced. So she brought a countersuit in the New York courts against Mr. Pell and named his second wife as co-respondent. The case was bitterly fought and was finally decided in favor of Mrs. Pell. So that the validity of ex-Judge Dittenhoefer's advice in that case, as he pointed out yesterday, is now upheld by the United States Supreme Court.

In regard to the decision, Mr. Logan said:

"The effects of the decision are not quite so sweeping as many have supposed for this reason: In recent years New York lawyers have generally advised their clients not to trust to divorce decrees obtained in other States unless both parties were present at the trial of the suit. The Court of Appeals in this State has several times given the same opinion that a majority of the members of the United States Supreme Court now give, and we have a right to feel no little pride in seeing our court thus sustained.

"It should be understood that this decision does not invalidate divorces here just because they are obtained in other States, even for causes not recognized in New York, but only invalidates htose nl the trial of which the defendant did not appear. If a divorce suit is defended in South Dakota—that is, if both parties come under the jurisdiction of that State—then the decree has just as much force here as it has there."

"What effect will this decision have on the fight for uniformity in marriage and divorce laws?" Mr. Logan was asked.

"It may be considered as a step toward one branch of uniform divorce laws—it may lead to a refusal by one State to give a decree to a resident of another for any cause that was not a cause in the other.

"There is no prospect of a uniform divorce law which will prescribe a uniformity as to causes. The East will never broaden its causes to suit the West, and the Western States will never accept the strictness of the East. But there is a good prospect of uniformity as to methods. The divorce congress practically agreed on certain principles, but these did not include causes. They included length of residence, the method of serving notice, the form of decree, the right to remarry, &c.

"A Constitutional amendment providing a uniform divorce law is utterly out of the question. In fact, there is no reason why the different States should not have different laws, as conditions are very different. But what we want to do, and can do, is to prevent what they call 'railroad divorces'—that is, the kind a man gets by just 'stopping off' at a railroad station."

Frederic R. Coudert said:

"The Supreme Court decision is sound and conservative. It is in line with former decisions, one of which, I recall, was rendered in the English courts little more than a year ago. In that case a person—I think it was the husband—went out to South Dakota, played golf for a few months, and got a decree of divorce. He went to England and married again. When he died there was a contest between his first and second wife over his property. The English courts held that the first wife should get the property because the second marriage was not valid.

"The case decided now by the Supreme Court brings up an interesting question as to what marriage is. It has been asserted that marriage is a 'status' rather than a 'contract.' If a man in New Jersey owes you $10 you can't get it from him by a judgment given in New York unless you bring him within the jurisdiction of New York. Yet a man can get a divorce from a woman without her being within the jurisdiction of the State where the decree is given. Doesn't that seem to be putting the binding and sacred tie of matrimony on a lower basis than a bargain to pay $10?"

Julien T. Davies said:

"There is nothing particularly new in this Supreme Court decision, except in the way it was reached—that is, by considering the constitutional provision that one State give full faith and credit to the decree of another. The lawyers on the losing side chose to make it their plea that the State of New York violated the 'full faith and credit' clause of the Constitution in not recognizing the Connecticut decree, but the court has decided that the Constitution was not violated; that, since the defendant did not come within the jurisdiction of Connecticut the decree given to the plaintiff was not the kind of a decree to which 'full faith and credit' had to be given.

"Undoubtedly, I should say, the children of a marriage in New York, after one of the parties got a decree in another State, the defendant having been served by publication only and not appearing in the suit would be illegitimate."

When a reporter called at ex-Judge Dillon's office this statement was given out:

"Judge Dillon said that he had not seen the recent full opinion of the Supreme Court of the United States relating to divorce, and he felt unwilling to pronounce any positive opinion on the subject. He understands, however, that the Supreme Court of the United States decided only that where the courts of New York had held that the particular Connecticut divorce was not binding in the State of New York on the wife, (a citizen of New York,) that such Connecticut decree of divorce would under the circumstances not be held by the Supreme Court of the United States to be binding on the New York courts under the clause of the Constitution of the United States which requires full faith and credit to be given by the courts of each State to the judgments of the courts of other States.

"In short, the Supreme Court of the United States left the case before it, which came from New York, just where it was left by the courts of the State of New York. It might be, if the same case came before the courts of Connecticut, that the courts of that State would hold the Connecticut decree to be good, and in such cases it remains to be seen whether the United States Supreme Court would in that event hold the decree invalid as respects Connecticut. Judge Dillon hardly thinks that it would follow from the decision of the Supreme Court of the United States in the New York case that every divorce granted upon publication of notice, or where there was no appearance by the other party to the divorce proceeding, would necessarily be held invalid and the children of subsequent marriages illegitimate. Each case of this kind would depend probably upon its own special facts and circumstances."

DOMICILE FOR DIVORCE.

Some Points in the Supreme Court Decision of the Haddock Case.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—The Haddock divorce decision handed down by the Supreme Court yesterday has been a leading topic of discussion here. Among lawyers and especially among those who have practice before the Supreme Court, it is accepted that the decision puts an end to the practice of going to Dakota or Oklahoma to establish a domicile to get a divorce.

Taking up the facts in the case, it is urged that as Haddock never lived with his wife even a moment after the wedding, according to the testimony, there may be question as to there having been any matrimonial domicile. Justice Brown dissents on this very point, reasoning that there never was any matrimonial domicile.

The majority opinion holds that the man deserting his wife could not take the matrimonial domicile with him wherever he went. The wife remained in New York. He had the notice of his application to the Connecticut court mailed to her at Tarrytown, N. Y., where he had heard she was living, and the notice did not go back to him as unclaimed. There was also service in Connecticut by publication. The wife, in the testimony, says that Haddock, after leaving her, went back to Ossining on a visit to his father, and while there for two weeks occupied the relation of husband to her. This statement, however, is not taken into account by the court.

PANIC IN SIOUX FALLS.

Divorce Colony Much Disturbed, but Is Reassured by the Lawyers.

SIOUX FALLS, S. D., April 17.—The announcement of the decision of the Supreme Court in the Haddock divorce case caused a panic among the members of the divorce colony in this place. There was a scurrying of anxious divorcées to the offices of the various divorce lawyers, and many consultations were held. Under the reassurances of the lawyers the panic has subsided. Sioux Falls divorce lawyers say they don't believe that the decision is so sweeping in its effect as the dispatches indicate.

J. H. Voorhees, one of the attorneys for the former Mrs. Florence Bigelow Dodge, now Mrs. Lionel Guest, said:

"There must be some mistake, as this decision is exactly opposite to that given in the Atherton case, in which Judge White also wrote the opinion."

Other lawyers say that the decision will make no difference in the divorce cases pending here, and inquiry shows that none of the divorce seekers intends to abandon his or her case or give up Sioux Falls residence on account of it.

ODD TRIAL OF DIVORCE SUIT.

Supreme Court Had to Hear a Case from the Philippines.

In view of the decision of the United States Supreme Court in the case of Haddock vs. Haddock, particularly interesting is another divorce case just decided by that tribunal. It is the first and only divorce case ever tried on its merits by the Supreme Court, and the only reason this one was tried is because the United States owns and governs the Philippine Islands. The Haddock case, of course, was only a test of whether the New York courts had violated the "full faith and credit" clause of the Constitution, and the Supreme Court dealt not at all with the original evidence.

In the case of Agueda de la Rama against Esteban de la Rama, though, the court had to review all the evidence and decide whether Agueda, who sued, had a right to a divorce. According to Section 10 of the act of July 1, 1902, the United States Supreme Court has jurisdiction to review a decree of divorce rendered by the Supreme Court of the Philippines, when the decree includes a money judgment "in which the value in controversy exceeds $25,000."

The court decided the de la Rama case by a vote of five to four, the same vote as in the Haddock case. The majority opinion was in favor of the woman.

Esteban de la Rama married Agueda Benedicto in 1891, when she was 14 years old. Thirteen months later they separated. The Court of First Instance in the Philippines decided in favor of the wife, but the Supreme Court reversed the decision and ordered that the complaint be dismissed. Then the lawyers representing the plaintiff put the case in the hands of Coudert Brothers of 71 Broadway.

Coudert Brothers carried it to the Supreme Court. The Justices were very much surprised at first, for it looked like a case that was entirely without their province. But Mr. Coudert called their attention to the statute of 1902 and showed them that they would have to conduct a regular divorce trial.

Justice Brown delivered the opinion of the court. It is very long and goes completely into the details of the behavior of both husband and wife. A marriage, according to Spanish law, is just like a business partnership, and the husband and wife have equal rights to the property in case of a dissolution of the partnership. By winning this case in the highest court the wife gets a large judgment. Justices White, Peckham, Holmes, and Day dissented.

REFEREE SAYS GOSLIN FORGED MOTHER'S NAME

A New Swindle Unearthed in a Bankruptcy Case.

ASSIGNED CLAIM INVOLVED

Alfred R. Goslin, pirate of Wall Street and master swindler, disappeared three weeks ago, forfeiting his bail bond. But his memory is kept green in financial circles. Wall Street heard yesterday that a referee and special Master in Chancery had decided that evidence furnished by Goslin in a bankruptcy case which he started was forged. The United States Circuit Court will be asked on Monday next to confirm the referee's report.

This action discloses a new phase of Goslin's crooked activities. He filed a petition in bankruptcy on March 15, 1903, against Henry J. Robert, a lawyer of 132 Nassau Street. Goslin alleged that he was a creditor of Robert to the amount of $37,300, of which $30,000 was due for services rendered in 1903, and $7,300 for Union Pacific bonds. This matter has been the subject of constant agitation in the courts ever since the petition was filed. Unusual questions have been raised and all sorts of motions have been made.

Goslin took advantage of a point in law to control the situation, as he thought. He declared that there were less than twelve creditors of Robert, in order to comply with the rule which permits the filing of a petition in bankruptcy by one creditor where there are actually less than twelve interested. Where twelve or more creditors are discovered, the law requires that three of them subscribe to the petition.

No sooner had Goslin's petition been filed than eleven other creditors intervened, one of whom was Bernard Uhren, a man who, as it turned out, was mixed up in the swindle on account of which Goslin is now a fugitive. Since the filing of Goslin's petition all of the intervening creditors, except Uhren, have either been paid or their claims have been disallowed.

Judge Holt referred the issues to Stanley W. Dexter of 71 Broadway, as a Special Master, some time ago, and a great deal of testimony was heard by him. Goslin appeared at all the hearings until the one set for March 21. Then he had dropped from view, and his attorney failed to offer any proof at that hearing in support of his client's contentions. Mr. Dexter accordingly reports that the Goslin petition against Mr. Robert should be dismissed for lack of proof, and that all the intervening petitions have either been settled and withdrawn or disallowed, except Uhren's claim.

Uhren's claim was based on a guarantee of Mr. Robert to Sophie Marchais to Le Greve of Paris, France, for payment of $5,000 on or before July 1, 1904, secured by a mortgage on property in Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn. Her claim was assigned to Uhren on March 10, 1905.

Goslin's interest in this claim comes up in an extraordinary way. He produced the claim and the assignment at a hearing on March 1. He testified that Mrs. Le Greve is his mother, that Mr. Robert turned over the first instrument to him when it was drawn, and that he mailed it to his mother in Paris. He declared that she returned it by mail with the assignment to Uhren, which he, Goslin, had drawn previously and sent to her for execution.

On this testimony the two instruments were admitted in evidence and the claim rested. Subsequently Mr. Robert offered in evidence a bond and mortgage from the Register's office in this city for $2,000 and a satisfaction for them acknowledged by Mrs. Le Greve in Paris on July 29, 1904.

Mr. Dexter's report says that the signature to this satisfaction, which was conceded to be a proper standard of comparison, together with the signature on a letter admitted to have been written by Mrs. Le Greve, when compared with the signature to the assignment, disclosed that the signature to the assignment was written by another hand, and was, in fact, a forgery. Mr. Dexter says that Goslin swore falsely when he testified that the signature to the assignment was his mother's.

No other evidence on this point exists, says the referee, except the evidence of Goslin, a vitally interested party. Mr. Dexter, therefore, rejects Goslin's testimony on this point and all others because of Goslin's gross imposition on the court. The referee is convinced that the bond never left Goslin's hand, and that the assignment was forged.

The referee recommends a dismissal of all the petitions and proceedings, subject to the settlement of the receiver's accounts.

EVICTED TO A HALLROOM.

But the Flat Owner Didn't Mind, There Being a Bride.

The trick that James McMorrow played on John Hardegan is described in a Times Square restaurant, where both men are employed, as sharp, although Hardegan, one of the old time waiters, cannot bring McMorrow, the day ticket checker, to account because of the circumstances.

Hardegan has a flat at 210 West End Avenue and rented a hall room to McMorrow. He knew the ticket checker well. There was nothing in the life of either that the other did not know or think he knew.

Last Sunday was McMorrow's day off; or, rather, night off. When Hardegan finished his work he went to his flat and turned the knob of his bedroom door. He found the door locked on the inside.

"Say, phwat's all this about?" he inquired through the keyhole.

"Go 'way," came the voice of McMorrow; "I'm married, I am, and the hall room wouldn't suit a bridal couple."

Hardegan stood in the hall and tore his hair.

"And am I, the owner of the primises, to be evicted to a hall room?" he asked. "And you, me old friend, not even tellin' me ye had a sweethar-rt?"

"Yis," said McMorrow firmly.

Hardegan has been sleeping in the hall room since.

"But they leave f'r Oireland on Saturday nixt," he said yesterday, "and God grant them a plisint vyage."

The marriage ceremony was performed in the Church of the Holy Trinity, in Eighty-second Street, near Broadway, Sunday afternoon. The ticket checker's bride is Miss Margaret Faughnan.

CUT GLASS MAY GO UP.

Manufacturers Informally Agree on a Minimum Schedule.

Cut glassware is likely to be advanced in price as a result of action taken at a meeting held yesterday in the Astor House by the National Association of Cut Glass Manufacturers. A committee appointed at a preceding session submitted a minimum scale of prices for the staple products, and urged its adoption to check the flood of low prices which is said to threaten the prosperity of the industry. It is said that cut glass is selling for less than half the prices asked ten years ago. The minimum schedule was informally approved. Definite action is to be taken at the annual meeting which the association will hold June 18 in the Astor House.

J. D. Bergen of J. D. Bergen & Co., 33 Murray Street, is the President of the association, and W. H. Lum is Treasurer.

A LOCK OF DICKENS'S HAIR

Sells for $40—"Vicar of Wakefield" First Edition Brings $450.

A clean copy of the rare first edition of "The Vicar of Wakefield," by Oliver Goldsmith, in a beautiful binding by Riviere, was one among many rare books sold by the Anderson Auction Company in West Twenty-ninth Street yesterday. No work of the eighteenth century, it is said, has made greater advance in value than the first edition of this classic, which was printed at Salisbury in 1766. It sold for $450 to G. D. Smith. The Appleton copy sold for $640 and the French copy for $620.

An interesting relic of Franklin was a mezzotint portrait of him by M. Chamberlain in the original block frame. On the back is this inscription in Franklin's autograph, "For Miss Sally Davenport in Newburyport." She was the daughter of John Davenport, innkeeper in that town, and a grandniece of Franklin. It was sold for $71.

Other rarities sold as follows: A large paper copy, only fifty printed, of George Livermore's historical research respecting the opinions of the founders of the Republic on negroes and slaves as citizens and as soldiers, extra illustrated with sixty-three portraits and an order written and signed by Benjamin Franklin, June, 1787, $29.

A genuine lock of Charles Dickens's hair, said to have been received by one Thomas White from Dickens's sister-in-law, Miss Hogarth, who was with the famous novelist at the moment when he had his fatal illness, $40.

A first edition of "The White-Footed Deer," and other poems, one of the rarest of William Cullen Bryant's works, uncut, and with the original wrappers, $210.

After beating him and stealing his watch and $15 at 110th Street and Second Avenue, early yesterday morning, three highwaymen returned to Peter J. McArdle, a contractor, of 306 East Fifty-eighth Street, a nickel of their loot.

"Here," said one of the robbers, "we'll do the right thing by yer; here's yer carfare home."

McArdle had been visiting friends, and had fallen asleep on a car. That accounted for his being in the uptown "gashouse district."

When they left him McArdle limped to Third Avenue, where he met Roundsman O'Connor. He told O'Connor his experience, and went back with the Roundsman to the spot where he had been held up. They met three young men, who, McArdle thought, resembled his assailants. They were arrested. McArdle's property was not found on them.

In the Harlem Court yesterday, McArdle could not positively identify the prisoners. Magistrate Cornell, therefore, reluctantly discharged them. They called themselves Louis Grantl, John Siegla, and Alfonso Durico.

WORKING GIRLS' HOMES ARE AN URGENT NEED

MANY EARN ONLY $3 A WEEK

Lack of Decent Homes Is What Gives a Chance to the Dance Hall and Saloon Back Rooms.

"We women in New York talk too much and do too little, and that is the reason there is such a desperate need of respectable homes for 300,000 wage-earning women in New York and the reason this city is so much behind the times in these matters," Mrs. Clarence Burns told the workers at the Conference of Charities in the Charity Organization Building yesterday morning in a talk upon the needs of workingwomen. Miss Alice Smith, a sociological worker in the police courts, corroborated all that Mrs. Burns said, and added with emphasis:

"The police tell me," said Miss Smith, "that I can't make too strong the need of girls in New York for respectable homes. One of them says he has taken girls almost to the police station, and, learning on the way the dreadful trials they have undergone in the city, he has let them go. I have known of a girl sitting for two nights in the Grand Central Station because she had no place in all the city to go to. We have tried to place some of these girls in the tenement houses, for almost any one will take a boarder, but we find it is not satisfactory. It is not the place for them.

"Having no sitting room forces a girl to meet her friends in the parks and on the streets, which is one of the great dangers to the girls. There are hundreds of cases of girls who come from the country ambitious, thinking that they will have opportunities here, but, incompetent, they find nothing to do at living wages. They are ashamed to go home and acknowledge they are failures. That is when they fall into temptation.

"A Dominican sister wrote me that a home for 200 or 300 girls taken at very low prices could be made self-supporting, but, she added, it must have at its head a woman who would work for the love of God and girlhood and motherhood."

"There are a few homes for girls in the city that are successfully run," said Mrs. Burns, "but they are only a drop in the bucket. It has been suggested that groups of girls go into the model tenements. Then there are the lodging houses, boarding houses, and the lodgings in the tenements for the poorest-paid workers. In the lodging houses the girls are put into rooms occupied by from five to fifteen persons, sometimes men, women, and children together, and the conditions can be imagined. The tenement houses are not satisfactory, and in the boarding houses they would rather take men at lower prices, because the women are 'fussy' and want to do their washing and ironing.

"In many places the girls can't go to their rooms from 9 in the morning until 9 at night, and they cannot use the parlor of the house. Then, meeting their friends outside, they are tempted by the family entrances of saloons and the dance halls, with sad results. They are obliged to sit in the parks, or you will see them in the waiting rooms of the shops.

"While it may be possible for girls who earn $5 a week to support themselves, it is absolutely impossible for those who earn $3. They must be helped. We want to raise the standard of wages, but in the meantime something must be done for the workers. Different projects are on foot for this work by the City Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Ely, and Miss Wald of the Nurses' Settlement. Homes for the girls must be run on a business basis, conducted with common sense and not prison rules, that their occupants may feel that they are decent human beings. In one establishment in the city where there are eighty-five girls the meals average 6 1-10 cents a meal, and they are good. The Superintendent told me that when she took charge of the place there were innumerable rules, but she had gradually reduced them, so that there were now only two—that the girls must be up to breakfast and that the lights must be out at 10:30, and she was not strict about enforcing the last."

No actual move was made for working-girls' homes, but it was understood that some important steps will be taken in the near future.

FEAR LUDLOW CAN'T LIVE.

Doctors Believe the Young Aeronaut's Injury Is Mortal.

Specialists who made a superficial examination of Israel Ludlow in Roosevelt Hospital yesterday said that the case of the young lawyer-aeronaut, whose spine was injured in a fall with his aeroplane at Atlantic Beach, Florida, last Saturday, is very serious and almost hopeless. An X-ray examination, which will be held to-morrow or Thursday, will be necessary to show the exact nature of the injury, but the surgeons who made the superficial examination were able to determine that the second lumbar vertebra is fractured. Mr. Ludlow's lower limbs are paralyzed by the injury.

The surgeons' only hope is that the spinal cord itself may not be injured, and that the paralysis is due to the pressure on the cord of the displaced and broken vertebra.

Ate Colored Easter Eggs and Died.

Coroner McDonald of the Bronx began an investigation yesterday into the death of four-year-old Joseph Utolumbi, who died after eating colored Easter eggs. The Coroner obtained several eggs from the stand where the boy's had been bought. He would not express an opinion about the case until the color on the eggs had been analyzed.

Columbia Awards Fellowships.

The Columbia University Council awarded thirty-two fellowships yesterday for the academic year 1906-1907. These fellowships bring about $700 a year, in return for which the recipients agree to pursue exclusively the subject in which they have qualified as fellows.

DARED THE THIRD RAIL.

Two youngsters were standing on the edge of the track in the downtown Times Square Subway station yesterday afternoon engaged in an argument.

"You dassent do it," said one.

"Aw, sure I'll do it," replied the other with scorn, "and I'll do it fer two cents, see?"

"You're on," rejoined the other; "g'wan, now, an' I'll give you de coin."

The other boy jumped from the station to the nearest track. Stopping for a moment, he picked his way gingerly across the third rail and onto the downtown express track. This he crossed in safety just as an uptown express hove in sight. He looked back at his companion with a laugh and dodged in front of the express just as it appeared to rush down on him.

"Say, Jimmy, it's a pipe," he yelled back at his awestricken associate on the platform.

"Git a move on, Bill," answered the other nervously, "git a move, or you're a dead one, sure."

An uptown local was entering the station. The boy on the tracks jumped over the remaining third rail, reached for the platform, and pulled himself up to safety.

"'Member, Jimmy," he yelled across the tracks as the train slowed down to make the stop, "you'se is to meet me at the Seventy-second Street 'spress station wit' dat two cents."

Then he got on the train and was whizzed uptown.

FATHER TOOK BABY AWAY.

Had It Wrapped in an Overcoat—Caught at Ferry.

Mrs. Annie Hannigan left her home at 709 Tenth Avenue, Manhattan, three months ago, and went to live with her mother, Mrs. Margaret Vogel, 746 Eleventh Avenue, Long Island City. Timothy Hannigan, her husband, did not like the arrangement. Yesterday he called at the Vogel house to make an effort to get back his wife and baby. Mrs. Hannigan would not return to him and he went away.

Soon afterward Mrs. Hannigan heard a cry from the baby in its crib in a rear room. She ran in and found the crib empty and a window open. The neighborhood was alarmed and fathers and mothers swarmed to the house. Robert Vogel, Mrs. Hannigan's brother, ran to the nearest telephone and sent an alarm to the Hunter's Point and Astoria Police Stations, and the policemen on duty at the ferries were told to watch.

An hour later Policeman Joseph Brown, on duty at the Astoria Ferry, saw a man board the ferryboat Bowery Bay. He had something wrapped up in his overcoat. It was a sleeping baby. Man and infant were taken to the Astoria Police Station. Mrs. Hannigan was there, and she identified the baby as her's, and the man as her husband.

Hannigan was held in $500 bail on a charge of disorderly conduct.

Made Police Captains Again.

Dennis Sweeney and William G. Hogan handed in their shields as Police Inspectors yesterday and got in return their old shields as Captains. It was ruled that there had been no vacancy when they were advanced in rank.

3 OTHER advertisers wanted the same privilege. They knew that such an advertisement,—even though its price is the highest in all the history of advertising,—is cheap at the price.

THE DELINEATOR for May is on the stands to-day, "ready for your reading." No other magazine brings you such fresh, authentic and practical news of coming fashions, or gives you illustrations that tell their story so clearly and helpfully. The highest-salaried fashion artists in the world worked on the preparation of this issue of THE DELINEATOR. The fiction; the continued stories; the papers by experts in Womanly Arts; the pages for Children, and the articles on the Sane, Sound View of the Pure Food Question—all combine to make THE DELINEATOR for MAY fulfil in the highest degree the ideal of "the magazine of greatest usefulness and greatest interest to woman." But nowadays the reading pages cannot alone satisfy.

Practical women demand the news of wise buying, in the advertising columns of their magazine. THE DELINEATOR serves this demand of the purse holder, with a thoroughness and care unequaled by any other magazine. Manufacturers and retail merchants alike esteem the readers of THE DELINEATOR more highly, and (thanks to the scrupulous care with which the news of buying is edited), readers esteem DELINEATOR Advertisers more highly than those of any other magazine.

Greater New Yorks Defeat Boston for the Third Time—Champion Athletics Beaten.

A new leader appeared in the National League after the games yesterday, the Pittsburgs' defeat of Cincinnati by one run in a twelve-inning game placing the ex-champions in front of the Bostons, who found the Philadelphians a different proposition than the Brooklyns, whom they beat four straight games, and were defeated by one to nothing. The New Yorks had considerable trouble to defeat the tailenders in Brooklyn, but after the third extra inning game of the five played since the opening of the season they succeeded in winning by three to one. At Chicago the St. Louis team surprisingly trimmed the locals by six to three.

For the first time of the season all the American League teams were actively engaged yesterday. The Greater New Yorks played in real championship form and captured the third straight game from Boston. The Athletics played their last game of the series in Washington and were defeated. In the West Manager Lajoie's Clevelanders outplayed the St. Louis team, and Chicago triumphed over Detroit in a close contest by five to three.

LEWIS'S COSTLY ERROR.

By Which Brooklyn Lost a Ten-Inning Game to New York.

Ten thousand persons saw the world's champions defeat the Brooklyns by three to one, after ten innings, at Washington Park yesterday, but the result was gained by the merest chance. Had Lewis caught the fly ball of Donlin's in the fifth inning the Brooklyns would have won by one to nothing. It was an easy chance for Lewis, but he attempted to scoop the ball close to his breast, an entirely new style of his, and it dropped to the ground. There were two men out at the time, and Browne, who was at second base, lost no time in reaching the plate. That was the most serious mistake made by the Brooklyns, and it proved to be a costly one.

Although the preponderance of base hits favored the New Yorks, the work of McIntyre was of the highest order. Especially was this the case in the seventh inning, when, with men on first and second bases and two out, Donlin came to the bat, and was promptly sent to first base on called balls. This filled the bases. It was a rather daring chance for McIntyre to take, but it turned out to be a winning one. McGann, the next batsman, put out a fly to centre field, and the Brooklyn pitcher got a great recognition as he returned to the bench.

In the ninth inning the champions made an auspicious opening, Gilbert placing the ball close to the left field foul line for two bases. McGinnity's sacrifice sent him to third, where he was left. In the tenth inning Alperman fumbled Donlin's grounder, and on McGann's safe bunt toward first base reached second. Mertes was declared out in attempting to bunt on the third strike. Dahlen scored both runners by a fine hit for two bases to left field, and although he reached third on the throw in he was left there, an excellent double play by Maloney and Bergen ending the inning.

The Brooklyns began weakly at the bat in the first inning, but in the second, after Gessler had hit a long fly ball to Donlin, which was accepted, McCarthy landed safely at first on a hard hit to Gilbert. He stole second, and on Lewis's hit reached the plate with the first and only earned run of the game. Lewis attempted to make second, but was well thrown out by Browne and McGinnity to Dahlen. In the sixth inning Gilbert made a phenomenal stop of a fast ball from Lumley's bat, and he also made a great stop and throw in the ninth inning of a ball from the same batsman, McGann making a difficult catch. In the fifth inning Lewis was declared out at first on a high throw by Devlin, and the "rooters" were loud in their denunciation of the decision. The score:

ST. LOUIS, 6; CHICAGO, 3.

CHICAGO, April 17.—The opening contest of the local season proved a farce on the National game. Outside of the third inning, when the visitors made five hits for four scores, the batting was decidedly weak, and all the other runs were gifts on errors and wildness by the five pitchers. The score:

HORSES AND CARRIAGES

AMERICANS STILL WIN.

Outplay Bostons Before Big Crowd and Take Game by 4 to 3.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., April 17.—A big crowd of Bostonians turned out to-day to see their ex-champions of the American League go down in defeat in the opening game of the local baseball season of 1906. The Democratic Mayor handed the ball to the umpire and then took a seat beside the Republican Governor. A band played between innings, and the gathering was not only a great one, but a gay one—almost indeed a rival to the horse show in progress further down Huntington Avenue.

It was a disappointment to Manager Griffith to find Grimshaw and Ferris in Boston uniforms, for he had counted on seeing substitutes in the places of these players; but it made little difference—their inability to bat, which is Boston's characteristic, was never more clearly shown. Hogg's swift delivery was entirely too much for the Bostons. Three singles was their total, when, in the eighth inning, with two out and Parent at the bat, Orth was sent in to clinch the game. The score was then tied at two each.

A base on balls, a sacrifice and a single had given a run to Boston in the second inning, and in the sixth two New Yorkers had scored by dint of bunting balls. In the ninth Williams singled, Conroy's bunt was poorly thrown by Grimshaw, and Moriarity bunted; Kleinow and Orth, respectively, forced Williams and Conroy. Dougherty drove the ball into Stahl's territory, it bounded from his glove, and two runs were scored.

In Boston's half of the ninth Freeman drew a base on balls and immediately thereafter Grimshaw drove a high one into right field, which Keeler could not quite capture. Ferris and Graham then struck out. Godwin, batting for Winter, smashed out a long drive intended to clear the bases and win the game, but Dougherty's fine throw caught Grimshaw at the plate, Freeman alone scoring.

The battery work of Winter and Graham and their fielding, too, featured the Bostons' game, while to Dougherty must be awarded highest honors for the visitors. The score:

WASHINGTON 5, PHILADELPHIA 2.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Washington won its first game of the season to-day, defeating Philadelphia by the score of 5 to 2. Dygert essayed to pitch again, but was relieved by Coakley after working three innings, the local team getting three hits and three runs off his delivery. Falkenberg was effective with men on bases. Manager Stahl was put out of the game in the third inning for objecting too strongly to the umpire's decisions. The score:

CHICAGO 5; DETROIT, 3.

DETROIT, Mich., April 17.—Chicago was the winner of the opening game to-day in this city, a game that would not have been especially interesting but for the record-breaking crowd. Spectators encroached on the players in the ninth inning, making it almost impossible to complete the inning. Manager Jones of Chicago was put out of the game for disputing a decision. The score:

CLEVELAND, 3; ST. LOUIS, 1.

ST. LOUIS, April 17.—St. Louis opened the local American League championship season to-day with a poor exhibition against Cleveland, losing 3 to 1. The home team's errors figured prominently in the visitors' run-getting. Hess was wild, giving five bases on balls, but the home team was unable to hit him. The score:

A. G. VANDERBILT WINS IN DURLAND HORSE SHOW

Representative Entry in Opening Equine Exhibition.

"BLUES" FOR MISS BEDFORD

Big Crowd Attends Riding Academy's Annual Event—Mrs. John Gerken's Tandem a Winner.

The fifteenth annual Spring horse show at Durland's Riding Academy opened last night. It was quite a social event, and the first local equine exhibition of the year. The quality of the entries compared favorably with the big November exhibition at Madison Square Garden.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt entered twenty prize winners, including his unbeaten four-in-hand road team of fast-trotting grays, which captured first honors in their class. W. H. Moore's list of entries was a big one, as were those of Mrs. E. R. Ladew, Joseph Larocque, Jr., J. Campbell Thompson, Miss Emily Bedford, Mrs. A. O. Van Heusen, Mrs. John Gerken, and other equally well-known exhibitors.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt made an auspicious first appearance, winning two first prizes, one with his newly imported hackney mare Witchman Elgitia, which was seen in the ring in America for the first time last night, and his park team. Miss Emily Bedford also secured double honors, her bay mare Pattie Palmer winning blue ribbons in two classes. The classes were well filled, and the work of the judges was watched by a big gallery, which included:

Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Vanderbilt, John Gerken, T. Carmichael, J. Ott Koch, George C. Clausen, R. E. Fox, W. J. Steel, E. W. Kearney, John D. Carroll, C. E. Chapin, A. B. Meyer, Col. C. L. Relley, C. W. Watson, J. B. Hughes, Robert Gerry, Gordon Hughes, H. L. Ingersoll, E. D. Farrell, W. S. Elliott, Eugene Meyer, J. H. Rhoades, C. K. G. Billings, J. Campbell Thompson, Gage E. Tarbell, Fred Gerken, W. L. Beadleston, A. M. Slawson, Mrs. William Orr Barclay, Miss Lucy Carr, Miss C. Adelaide Doremus, Mrs. Harvey Ladew, Mrs. W. S. Elliott, Otto H. Kahn, Mrs. H. G. McElwaine, Mortimer L. Schiff, Jefferson Seligman, J. Henry Smith, Mrs. W. J. Steel, Miss Beavor Webb, Miss M. S. Whitney, Mrs. A. O. Van Heusen, Charles N. Talbot, Mrs. W. G. Loew, Mrs. James G. Marshall, Miss Emily H. Bedford, John L. Conway, Alfred B. Maclay, Arthur S. H. Jones, W. H. Collier, Mrs. James G. Marshall, Miss Elsa Schleip, W. A. Jamison, Joseph Larocque, Jr., M. M. Sternberger, Mrs. Hobart Park, Miss M. Sherman, M. F. McDonald, George L. Rives, Miss Grace F. Antony, Emil Seelig, M. G. Byers, S. Taber Willetts, Mrs. Charles C. Railley, Gen. John B. Castleman, Charles F. Baker, Walter F. Peck, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Durland, R. A. Fairbairn, Richard Newton, Jr., Charles H. Hurkamp, Major John R. Hegeman, Jr., Dr. Charles McBurney, Col. Daniel Appleton, George O. Knapp, Cyrus F. Lawrence, Dr. S. O. Van der Poel, Albert Turner, and Thomas C. Reid.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt scored his first victory of the season in the initial class, which was for single harness horses. Mr. Vanderbilt's entry was a well-knit, good-acting chestnut mare, Witchman Elgitia, which secured the blue ribbon after a close competition with The Fly, exhibited by Fiss, Doerr & Carroll Company. Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt, who watched the judging from one of the front boxes, led the applause as the winner was driven around the ring after the award.

Nineteen saddle horses paraded in the second event, and so nearly were they matched that the judges required over an hour to determine the winner. There were several bad actors, which somewhat delayed the work of the judges. The judges selected Miss Emily H. Bedford's bay mare Pattie Palmer for the blue ribbon.

Alfred G. Vanderbilt and Albert De Cernea engaged in a driving duel in the class for park teams. The former drove his own quartet, while De Cernea handled the ribbons over a spanking team of well-matched bays. It was an interesting contest. Each driver showed himself to be a past master in driving, while the horses readily responded to expert handling of the drivers. De Cernea was handicapped by a comparatively newly formed team, while that of Mr. Vanderbilt has passed successfully through several seasons. It was the past experience of both the wheelers and leaders that won the blue ribbon for Mr. Vanderbilt. Summary of awards:

Single Harness Horses over 14.3 hands and not exceeding 15.1.—Won by Oakland Farm's (A. G. Vanderbilt) ch. m. Witchman Elgitia, 15, 7 years; Fiss, Doerr & Carroll Co.'s b. g. The Fly, 15, 6 years, second.

BALLOON ASCENSION TO-DAY.

Count de la Vaulx Will Attempt Another Flight from Pittsfield.

Cortlandt Field Bishop and Augustus Post of the Aero Club of America left for Pittsfield on the midnight train last night for the purpose of making their delayed balloon ascension to-day with Count Henry de la Vaulx in his big balloon, the Centaure. Charles Levee, who will superintend the filling of the big 50,000 cubic foot balloon went to Pittsfield yesterday afternoon, and he hopes to have everything in readiness so that an early ascension may be made.

It is understood that it is Count de la Vaulx's purpose to remain up as long as possible, for he is anxious to make a long journey before leaving America. He has only made two short ascensions since arriving here, one being from West Point and the other from 138th Street, this city, when he went up with Dr. Thomas and Levee. If to-day's ascension is successful the Count will probably bring his balloons to this city and make one or two more ascensions from the gas works at the foot of East [illegible] Street before going back to France.

Good Prices for Horses at Auction.

There was an unusually high class of horses sold at Van Tassel & Kearney's auction yesterday, including two notable consignments of out-of-town stock. R. P. McGrann sent thirteen head of show animals from Lancaster, Penn., that brought a total of $5,200, while from William Post & Sons, at East Williston, L. I., a consignment of seven brought $1,725.

The top price in the McGrann lot was brought by the chestnut gelding Senator, which Philip A. Dodge bought for $1,000. Close behind this was the bay gelding Dragoon, bought by C. C. Vernon, which realized $900. Mr. Vernon also bought the brown gelding Mandalay for [illegible], while others bringing good prices were Lily of the Valley, ch. m., to J. V. W. Reynders for $510; Congressman, ch. g., to E. Schleip for $320; Pete, b. g., to B. Winant for $400, and Jerry, b. g., for $300. J. F. Mungrew got two good-looking geldings, the chestnut Alderman and the bay Daniel Boone, for $460, while J. Kayfeltz, E. Dilworth, and W. C. Bean also secured horses.

JEFFERSONIAN DEMOCRACY.

A good deal was said at the dinner of the Democratic Club on Monday evening concerning the "principles" of Jefferson, the need of returning to them, and the brilliant future opening to the Democratic Party when it gets ready to return to them. Most of the references of this sort were a little vague, and some of them implied that all the party or the country requires is an application of the preamble of the Declaration of Independence. Dr. Woodrow Wilson was more direct, and called attention to the fact that Jefferson was a typical American political leader of his region and generation, and that the root of his influence on the political thought of his own and of later times was his firm conviction that government should interfere with private conduct as little as possible.

The idea is sound, though some of the modes in which Jefferson tried to work it out were impractical in his day and would be ridiculous in ours. To some extent he failed to see how large was the field for political action by the National Government in which the States could not do what was needed. His notions of a navy and an army and of the scope of the authority of the Supreme Court were provincial in their narrowness; but his conception of the future of the country, as shown in the purchase from France, and, still earlier, in the ordinance for the government of the Northwest Territory, was nobly National. In other words, he was not an inspired oracle, but an earnest, talented, rather "viewy" American, deeply interested in political matters, fond of theorizing, but intensely wrought by the American spirit when it came to definite action. Of one thing we may be entirely sure. Jefferson would have loathed the idea of "collectivism," of concentrating in the Government the management of private business, of limiting by statute the rewards of energy and enterprise, the general "meddling and muddling" so fashionable in many circles to-day. Neither Mr. Roosevelt nor Mr. Bryan, with their joint and several plans for the millennium by legislation, would have been approved or trusted by the keen critic of Monticello.

THE DIVORCE DECISION.

When five Justices of the eminence and soundness attributed to the Supreme Court decide a case one way, and four Justices of precisely equal eminence declare that the decision is mistaken, the layman may be pardoned for thinking that there is room for difference of opinion and that no one can tell for sure exactly what the decision on the case in point will amount to when applied to other cases apparently like it. In the matter of the decision on Monday in the divorce suit of the Haddocks there is not only the dissension among the Justices and the confusion in the lay mind; there is also considerable difference of view among the leaders of the bar, with whom interviews are published in The Times this morning.

On the whole, however, it seems to be the understanding of the legal profession that the decision is not so sweeping in its terms or likely to be so important in its consequences as at first blush appeared probable. It is to be remembered that all that finally and really counts in a decision of even the Supreme Court is what is declared to be the law with regard to facts actually existing in the case before the court. It is not in human nature, certainly not in the nature of Judges, always to resist the temptation to enlarge at length on a question that has been the subject of earnest dispute. Yielding to that temptation it often happens that learned Judges inject into their opinions somewhat more than is contained in their decisions, and one of the chief occupations of the bar and of the courts is to disentangle from judicial utterances the principle that has authoritatively been settled in the courts. A very distinguished Judge of this State once remarked that the civil war was largely brought on by an obiter dictum of Chief Justice Taney in the famous Dred Scott case. Obiter dicta, therefore, may be very important in their consequences, but they are not strictly law.

We venture to think that the recent to be before the court in the specific case, will be found to be not very revolutionary. Probably it renders the obtaining of ill-considered and hasty divorces more difficult, and it also emphasizes the need of uniformity in the divorce legislation and legal practices of the several States, and neither of these results will be regretted. That it will have much effect on the interests and rights of the great body of divorced men and women and of their children is not yet shown, and is seriously doubted by those best fitted to judge.

ARE GREAT FORTUNES "DANGEROUS"?

It is rather curious that the President's suggestion of confining private fortunes to "healthy limits" should have been so extensively received and discussed as a revenue measure. For it is perfectly plain that it is not primarily as a revenue measure that his notion of limiting accumulations endears itself to the President. It is as a social solvent. If Henry George had proposed merely to confine necessary taxation to land values, his preachments would have been much more acceptable than they were when he proposed to take the whole of the "unearned increment" for public purposes and afterward ascertain the public purposes to which it might be devoted. Similarly the President with his proposition to confine private fortunes within "healthy limits." Underlying this proposition there is the assumption that fortunes so greatly in excess of the average as many of our private fortunes now are are dangerous and pernicious. If they were so, they would manifestly become less dangerous, even to the point of innocuousness, as soon as they are transmitted from the certainly able and possibly rapacious original accumulators to the presumably less able and almost certainly less rapacious inheritors. These latter will commonly regard themselves and be regarded as "fruges consumere nati," men whose ambition is limited to spending the income of their inheritances in steam yachts and racing stables and country houses, not in corrupting Legislatures and perverting the impartiality of railroad Presidents. It is at the point where a great fortune becomes inert and innocuous that the President proposes to alight upon it in the interest of the public safety.

But, as to the whole assumption, "non sequitur." There is already a "stewardship of wealth" in this country, an effective social compulsion upon the great accumulator to become a great benefactor. And this compulsion is strongest precisely upon the possessors of the fortunes which are so large as to impress the President as "unhealthy" and abnormal. If the wealth of Mr. Carnegie or Mr. Rockefeller had been divided, as the President would have it divided, among fifty or a hundred or a thousand holders, with no great "superflux" to any one, then it is quite certain that the colossal benefactions of these multimillionaires would not have been at all. Upon more mature reflection the President may conclude that it is not wise to undertake to interfere, by Governmental operations, with the natural course of our social evolution. He may even come to be impressed with the wisdom of the familiar line:

I sometimes think that it were best to leave the Lord alone.

"THE COSSACK SYSTEM."

Immigration Commissioner Watchorn has explained why he does not favor restriction of immigration. "I came through Castle Garden with $15 in my pockets," said the Commissioner, and he does not think that the country would have benefited by his exclusion. An argument of a similar sort was addressed to the coal miners who asked the operators if they did not think the wages they are offering are inadequate. "I worked in the mines for less myself," said President Thomas. Such cases supply the best answer to labor extremists.

The miners now resent the activities of the mounted police in Pennsylvania. "We want no Russian Cossacks in America," they say. The argument against repression might be good in Russia, but it fails here. We have no unjust repression, and nothing but personal incapacity prevents any striker from repeating the experience of the immigrant who became Commissioner of Immigration or the working collier who became President. If now those of that class seek to prevent others of the same class from working their way to competence, or perhaps wealth, they cannot ask or receive any general sympathy. There are no Cossacks here, and no Russian methods in opposing governmental restraints will be tolerated again. In Pennsylvania's "red Sunday," or what stands for it, the workmen were the aggressors, not the aggrieved. Those really injured were those forbidden to earn their living. That class deserves not to be overlooked in any adjustment between Mr. Mitchell's trust and Mr. Baer's trust. The bloody news from Pennsylvania lends point to these observations.

A NEW YORK RAILWAY RATE CASE.

In his message Gov. Higgins invited the attention of the Legislature to the regulation of public utility corporations, hinting that their earnings might be limited to cost, without allowance for profit, and saying that they should the ears of corporations to the pump is matter of history, both upon the statute book and the Stock Exchange. At last, however, the Legislature has gone too far even for the temper of the moment, and Gov. Higgins has been compelled to moderate the zeal of his allies. He has vetoed two bills regulating railway rates, and has caused the abandonment of others well upon the way to the statute book. An Attorney General's opinion would have sustained his signature, and was in fact rendered before the bill was passed, but the Governor preferred to rest his veto upon considerations which Congress is rejecting in the Federal rate legislation.

The bills provided a three-cent fare for scholars in the several counties of the metropolitan district. The Attorney General argued that this was not class legislation, because it was for the benefit of the State that children should be taught, and legislation promotive of education has been sustained uniformly. The Governor's dissent has caused insinuations of subservience to corporate influence, but this theory is unnecessary, as better reasons are advanced in his message. The proposed laws required the railways of a specified district to carry a certain class of passengers at actually less than cost. According to the State Railway Commission, none of the companies affected can make a profit at 3 cents. And it would seem to need no argument that no class of persons has any lawful claim to ride more cheaply than others, and that no specified companies can be denied the right to charge what other railways charge for a like service. It is to the interest of the State that children should be educated, but the cost should be the State's, or the parents', not the railways'.

The Governor bluntly says that it is demagogy to pass laws violating the Constitutional rights of corporations. To impute corrupt motives to the veto of such legislation is gratuitous. The Governor will not suffer from the reconsideration of his position—albeit his second thoughts are somewhat too numerous—even though his abandonment of the Legislature is too marked for consistency and too abrupt for courtesy. If he had reconsidered his message he would have avoided the necessity of a veto, and have been spared one more separation between the policies of the State legislative and executive departments.

BRITISH AND AMERICAN DEMOCRACY.

In a recent number of The Outlook, and under the title of "England's Stride Toward Democracy," Mr. Sydney Brooks makes a distinction, commonly overlooked but very needful to be borne in mind, between British and American democracy. The political democratization of Great Britain is going on very rapidly, and we are apt to think the process one of Americanization. But this is not at all the case, for the reason, as Mr. Brooks points out, that the British democracy has a purely political connotation, British society being "essentially aristocratic in its composition and penetrated with the spirit of caste." Other observers have expressed the same thing by saying that the British believe in "Liberty," but not in the "Equality" which to Americans seems its necessary complement.

Naturally, in such a society the force of snobbery is very great, and its influence in politics has been none the less for being indirect. The famous instance of the Westminster election which the Duchess won by kissing the butcher, might almost be taken as an allegory of British politics. The image of British society as a "ladder" is that of a British novelist, Henry Fielding, and the pervading British social ambition is to mount at least one rung. In politics this has had several curious consequences. One is that the demagogue, the leader of the people, when he has exceptionally got into the House of Commons, has become the easy prey of his social "betters," if they thought it worth their while to conciliate him, and has thus been led to betray the people who elected him to represent them. Another, pointed out by Mr. Brooks, is that the lower classes of the British electorate have preferred to be represented not by men of their own kind, but by their betters. Thus the British Legislature has continued to be an essentially aristocratic body in spite of the successive enlargements of the franchise.

Apparently the Irish members have constituted an exception to this rule. They are outlaws in "London society" whether by or against their own will. Very few of them are accepted as "gentlemen" by their British colleagues. Accordingly they do devote themselves to the separate interests or sentiments of the nationality they really do represent. It is in the advent of the fifty-odd "Laborites" to the present House of Commons that Mr. Brooks sees a still more important accession, not from a foreign island, but from a lower social stratum. These new members have come up from the under world. Doubtless most of them are socially "impossible." Apparently social blandishments would be wasted on them and social exclusion has no terrors for them. They are, in fact, representative workingmen who go to Parliament not in the fulfillment of so-first time, "working class" constituencies have turned their backs on their "betters" and chosen representatives of their own social class. In this view, when the essayist says, "the social aspects of the new Labor Party seem to me to have an importance equal if not superior to its political aspects," his estimate seems to be well warranted.

THE CHINESE MINISTER.

Without question the Chinese Minister has committed an indiscretion. He had no right, in the first place, to make any public comment on pending projects of legislation. Still less had he the right to endeavor to influence by public comment American legislation favorably to his own country. Least of all had he the right to arraign an American member of Congress before the body to which he belongs, and before the public.

It is quite true that the responsibility should be divided between himself and the American association which invoked his comment for the evident purpose of influencing American legislation on Chinese subjects. Indeed, since an Asiatic diplomatist is by no means so completely "charged with knowledge" of diplomatic proprieties as a European diplomatist would be, this fact might be held to absolve the Minister from responsibility. The present Chinese Minister, however, is not entitled to such an exemption for the reason that his own residence and education here gave him a knowledge of the American point of view which is one of the most valuable elements in his equipment as a representative of his country in ours. It is not likely that his indiscretion will be very seriously visited upon him. But it is unfortunately true that it has introduced a new point of friction in a situation which is especially in need of lubrication.

There is something extremely impressive in the emphatic silence with which The Tribune continues to treat the President's speech of last Saturday.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

So Changed, but Just the Same. "Sterilized betting" is declared to be entirely satisfactory by Dr. Slicer, the track managers make no complaint, racegoers have as much amusement as ever, the bookmakers prosper, and the poolrooms have not shut up entirely. Everybody, apparently, is happy. Well, not quite everybody. There are a few old-fashioned folks who, unlike Dr. Slicer, feel a certain uneasiness over exclusion of the State Constitution from the race tracks—they think it should follow even the starter's flag—and are not prepared to accept the doctor's statement that "gambling is not a poor man's game" if they must also accept his obvious implication that it is the game of the rich man. They have a feeling that gambling is intrinsically as well as legally bad, and that public indulgence in it by anybody ought to be stopped. And at least a few of these old-fashioned folks are sophisticated enough to doubt the possibility, even if the poolrooms had been or could be deprived of all information from the tracks, of limiting betting on the races to those who can prove their right to the name of "rich" by actual attendance at the races. They know, by report or otherwise, that the poolrooms can attract patrons almost as well without direct and immediate track information as with it, and that the chief result of such deprivation as Dr. Slicer thinks sufficient protection of the poor bettor from himself would be the determination of wagers from next morning's racing reports—and the giving of odds a little more in the poolroom's favor. This makes "the game harder to beat," but experience has not shown that it at all decreases the inclination to play it or in the slightest degree mitigates the resulting evils, moral or financial. Perhaps it increases them. Those whom Dr. Slicer calls "the immature and the irresponsible"—epithets at which many of them would smile derisively—were always more than willing to play "policy," though they had no chance at all of winning and knew it. And, while the good doctor is congratulating himself at the success of his reforms, he should keep in his memory the fact that the Legislature is still in session. There are whispers that after the adjournment the effects of sterilization will be hard to find, even by his particularly sharp eyes. But that, of course, may be merely wicked cynicism, and it is permissible to hope that there is nothing in it.

A New Theory and a Newer One. Only a few weeks—or at most months—ago people were startled when the leaders of the medical profession abandoned all the old ideas about "inflammation" as something to be feared and fought, and asserted that it was nature's method of repair—the result of her summoning of her soldiers to a threatened point to repel bacterial invaders. Sir Frederick Treves exploited this view with great effect and his address on the subject excited much comment. Now comes one Spiess, presenting in a Munich journal some suggestions on the subject of inflammation, in which, as The Medical Record says, "these beneficent attributes of the phenomenon involved receive scant courtesy." Spiess, it seems, starts from the observed fact that in certain minor operations, as on the nose or throat, when all pain both in the course of the procedure and during the period of healing is suppressed by the very free use of local anaesthetics, no inflammatory reaction whatever follows. His idea, therefore, is that all manifestations of this nature are evoked purely by centripetal stimuli emanating from the point of injury, and if these are abolished no reaction can follow. In support of this belief he refers to the well-known immunity to inflammatory processes exhibited by patients with hysteria or anaesthesia due to mental disorders. Continuing its exposition of the new theory, The Medical Record says: "Wounds in the insane heal without complications even though contaminated by the hands of the patient; the Hindu fakirs can perform their self-mutilations with impunity, and a patient of the author's with hysterical anaesthesia could plunge the hand into boiling water without giving rise to the ordinary accompaniments of a burn if the act sible to cut off all centripetal impulses from an injured part, and that already existing inflammations are caused to subside rapidly through anaesthetization of the inflammatory focus. The method of anaesthesia must affect only the sensory nerves, however, and should not interfere with the ordinary vasomotor mechanism." This sounds a good deal like saying that if the injured part is not allowed to telegraph its suffering to the "central office" in the brain it not only does not suffer, but it is not injured, and somewhere in that direction lies, if not madness, at least absurdity.

Transfers a-Many Promised. So it is the operating, not the financial, departments of the street railway companies that have been doing all the fighting against the extension of the transfer system, and it was regard for public convenience, not a hunger for the public's nickels, that prevented the issuance of "universal" transfers long ago! This is rather astonishing news, but it comes from high authority, and it is supported by arguments that sound pretty well—which is more than can be said for all arguments that come from authorities who certainly know everything about the subjects they discuss. Before these assurances are fully accepted by the public, however, there will have to be full explanation as to just how it is that transfers block travel and decrease the speed of service. These effects are not, to the wayfaring man, quite obviously inevitable. It is, however, easy enough to believe the declaration that our transportation facilities would be found more nearly adequate to the city's needs if people would only use a little more intelligence and care in the selection of routes. We all know the apparently inveterate tendency of the traveling public to crowd the middle cars of elevated and Subway trains and to leave the end cars comparatively empty, and it may well be that the daily journeys to and from business could be materially shortened—as regards time, which is, of course, all that counts—if a few hundred thousand of us would take the "longer way round" of the proverb. Still, the traveling public has a very large appetite for transfers—knows they are economical and thinks they are convenient. The promise that sooner or later transfers will be given wherever one line intersects or meets another is therefore a pleasing one, and the warning of a blocked traffic will be heard without much apprehension. We all feel a touching confidence in the ability of the managers to invent methods for preventing the congestions.

SMALL TALK OF WASHINGTON.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Representative Sulzer of New York was standing in the Marble Room of the Senate lost in reflection over something he had just been saying to Senator Patterson of Colorado. To him there came one of those chipper and irreverent Senate pages.

"Mister," said the audacious child, "how much is three times five and four times two?"

"Why, let me see," said Mr. Sulzer, coming out of his reverie. "That is—why, it's twenty-three—"

"For you!" chortled the urchin, and seven of his comrades popped their heads around the doorway and joined gleefully in the chorus.

What is that crash that awakens the echoes on Pennsylvania Avenue? It is the arrival in town of Dr. Edward Bedloe, Citizen of the World. He has just got back from Egypt and he is flaunting a telegram in the silent air and indignantly voicing his opinion of telegraph operators in general and this one in particular.

"All there was of it," he explains to the chorus of eight hundred Congressmen, correspondents, lobbyists, and assorted citizens who gather about him instantly on his arrival, "is that the steamship company mislaid my trunk. I kept the wires hot all the way from Alexandria to New York and they kept assuring me that they were on the track of it. I kept getting daily bulletins, and finally they located it, and a telegram arrived in New York which was instantly forwarded to me here. The telegraph operator mixed it up, and here is the result. Look at it! What do you think of that?" and the doctor exposed to the sympathetic view of the populace the following libelous message:

A Prudent Conductor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A wiseacre once remarked that in republics the people are ruled by their servants. The writer had a splendid illustration of the truth of this during one of the coldest days last month.

The car in Chambers Street was comfortably filled with passengers and fairly warm, when the conductor entered, and by turning a little knob threw open all the transoms, thereby chilling the car and incidentally the passengers.

Going out on the rear platform where the draughts were uniform, I asked his majesty in the regalia of the Manhattan Street Railroad, who had command of the juggernaut, why he had disturbed the equilibrium of the temperature of the omnibus. I was filled with admiration by the following reply:

"Well, you see, boss, when de car is so warm I'm afraid to ketch cold, so I allus like to keep de temp'rature about even. See?

I told him to be very careful of himself as there was a chance of his becoming a great man some day.

Against Further Labor Privileges.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

A few days since I read in one of the daily papers an article entitled "Flood of labor bills welcomed. Legislators give unusual consideration to measures extending rights of employes. Eight-hour law again. Measure introduced by Senator Page and expected to pass unopposed."

Have the citizens of this State heeded the notice given them by the daily papers? Is it not time some action was taken by the Merchants' Association, the City Club, the Citizens' Union, and other public spirited bodies? Where is the Chamber of Commerce, the Board of Trade, the Produce and other Exchanges, the different civic bodies who are looking out for the welfare and prosperity of the city and State? It is time they woke up, else the most obnoxious laws ever introduced at the instance of the men paid by the labor organizations who infest the lobbies of the Capitol at Albany will be put through and become laws.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Please get right on the name of the mountain out in Washington which is showing volcanic uneasiness. It is Mount Rainier, not Mount Tacoma.

Think how badly you will feel if an eruption takes place out there, and you find that you have not given your readers the correct name of the performer.

A Sort of Box Party.

From The Waynesville News.

REDUCING FORTUNES.

Where Would the Application of the President's Theories Lead Us?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It would, indeed, be interesting to know upon just what theory it is proposed to transfer large accumulations of wealth from private possession to the public Treasury through the arbitrary medium of an inheritance tax. If it is on the ground that the wealth does not belong to its possessor, why wait until they are dead before taking it? Or is it simply because the public is in need of revenues and finds it easier to rob widows and orphans than less helpless people?

The proposition is significant, not only as illustrating the prevailing disregard of moral law in considering matters of taxation, but also as indicating utter inability to distinguish between public and private ownership.

JOHN SHERWIN CROSBY.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have seen nothing in The Times so good as the leading editorial to-day showing the shallowness of Mr. Roosevelt's proposition to tax wealth in order to reduce or limit fortunes. If a man has the right to make a dollar, he must have equal right to make all he can by honest and legal methods.

Originally our laws relating to land ownership prevented perpetuities. But corporations can now hold land for a thousand years or forever, without limit as to the amount of the land. This favors the concentration of wealth, perpetuation of family, and tends to establish a kind of aristocracy somewhat like the British. Our first state policy was calculated to cause a division of fortunes among heirs. But the laws now aim at a non-division. As to trust fortunes, there can be no perpetuity of wealth in them unless by means of the corporation device. And there would be no trusts if there were no laws permitting the existence of corporations.

THE MAN WITH THE MUCK RAKE.

Who Fears Him Save the Man with the Muck?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Is anybody afraid of "The Man with the Muck-Rake" except "the man with the muck"?

I. F. FERRIS.

New York, April 14, 1906.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Allow me to commend the letter of "A Daily Reader," published in your issue of April 13, in regard to "The Muck-Rake Man." The average reader believes that, although the attacks which have been made upon prominent men may contain some things which are false or incorrect, the majority of them contain so much of truth that the man attacked knows better than to enter a suit for libel.

Some of the "Muck-Rake Men" by their own admissions are, or have been, little better than the individuals whom they attack, but this does not, I think, detract from the value of their writings to the public, if such writings contain so much of truth that the man attacked dares not risk a libel suit. The libel suit criterion is, in the main, a pretty good one.

THE PRESIDENT'S "RADICALISM."

More Comment on the Deliverance as to Taxing the Rich.

From The Chicago Record Herald.

In the present temper of the public such a declaration must result in pronounced efforts to establish the tax that is proposed. The qualifications suggested by the reference to a "matter of personal conviction" only, and by the use of the word "ultimately," will exercise no very great restraint. For the feeling of millions upon this subject of swollen fortunes is such that definite schemes will be devised in plenty, and "now" will be substituted for "ultimately."

Naturally, too, it will be expected that the President will become a leader in the movement, or rather the leader, and the very energetic leader of the movement. Such are his position and his prestige that he will be hailed at once as the ideal man for directing its course.

From The Boston Transcript.

Of course, the President's suggestion was merely a case of "thinking aloud" on his part, and no one can be more fully aware than he of the tremendous obstructions, constitutional and legal, that are fortunately in the way of putting such an idea into operation. An inheritance tax drives people of wealth into making gifts in their lifetime. The President has noted this under the New York State law, and so he includes such gifts, as of course would be necessary to bring his plan out equitably. But when the arm of the laws steps in to prescribe the terms under which a man may present a house to his daughter, we shall have gone a long distance on the down grade road that leads to the Socialistic state.

From The Baltimore News.

When the President of the United States, elected by the party which in this country is identified with the great capitalist interests, makes a deliberate and emphatic expression of his conviction that the time must come when we shall do something to check the growth of colossal fortunes, it cannot be questioned that his words will be of powerful influence in the promotion of a tendency toward such action.

From The Richmond Times-Dispatch.

No long-haired politician of the wild and woolly West ever preached doctrine more Populistic. Put a limit upon the amount of money a man may accumulate, or dispose of by will, and you will have put a limit upon human endeavor. What man would exert himself beyond his lawful accumulation if he knew that the excess was to be confiscated?

From The Bridgeport Standard.

The President's ideas as to the control of corporate and individual wealth are greatly interesting, and the more especially so that he voices the opinions of thousands who have never been able to formulate and present to the public their convictions with reference to such matters. The evils are increasing continually, and the question is only, How can they be best controlled? The President puts the matter in a way that indicates what he calls for—an honest purpose, enthusiasm without hysteria, and certainty accompanied and controlled by sanity and common sense.

From The Hartford Courant.

His suggestion that law should limit the amount of fortune that a man may pass down to later generations will strike some people with a shudder, and they will talk of advanced Socialism, but it is only by law that a man is allowed to pass anything whatever along after he is dead, and there can be no question that vast dangers lie in the enormous fortunes that have been amassed in recent years.

From The Boston Herald.

The President's suggestion in his address on Saturday of a legal limitation upon the size of fortunes in this country is a radical step in advance even of the rate-fixing policy which he "lifted" from the Democratic platform. (The Bryan resolution of 1896 went no further than to recommend a graduated income tax, but the President's idea is to put a limit to the principal sum of a fortune that may be either given in life or bequeathed at death. It is certainly a novel suggestion to come from a President of the United States elected by the help of the moneyed classes.

A PATCHWORK STATUE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In the official pamphlet "Works of Art Belonging to the City of New York, 1904," which is for free distribution at the office of the Municipal Art Commission, City Hall, there is this record: "Madison Square Statue, Seward, William H. Randolph Rogers, inv. et mod. Romae, MDCCCLXXX. Inscription: William H. Seward, Governor, U. S. Senator, Secretary of State of U. S."

In its way it is a most extraordinary imposition, for while the head of the statue is Mr. Seward's, the body is Abraham Lincoln's, and the whole statue, it seems to me, should be removed, as being in its absurd make-up only an imposition.

The record goes to show that while, about 1870, a fund was raised by many patriotic citizens for the purpose of erecting a Seward statue, the committee having the matter of its erection in charge asked the sculptor to lower his price. This proposition the sculptor very properly declined to accede to, but did, with much disregard for his own fame and the true fellow craft spirit, offer to make a patchwork of the statue at a lower figure by attaching to the head of Seward a statue of Lincoln—minus the head, of course—which had been left on his hands by a defaulting Western city.

A distinguished sculptor told me that the author of a life of W. H. Seward had told him that he deemed this composite statuesque fraud a disgrace to the sculptor and to the committee with whom he had conspired to produce this imposition, and he thought that the city authorities should have the monstrosity removed and a proper fitting statue of our honored Secretary of State erected in its place.

I trust that this matter will be examined into by our Municipal Art Commission, as well as by our Sculptors' Society.

Rebated Policy Not Valid.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of the 3d inst. your correspondent, "Constant Reader," says: "The poor policy holder who received no rebate on his life insurance premium, while his richer fellow did, has not suffered highway robbery; he has merely been cheated, and is poorer than he should be; his fellow richer."

This is not so. He is financially just where he should be, and where he only would be, did he know the law and value the security of those he insures to protect. But as to the rebate he is correct, for the policy holder has indeed been cheated, though not in the way named. By rebating a life insurance premium the broker has broken a State law, thereby making the contract legally void and rendering himself liable to imprisonment and fine—both punishments are inflicted every year—and placing the policy holder, unwitting, in a like position with that of a receiver of stolen goods.

Were men more generally aware of this they would either pay in full and hold a good contract or not insure at all, and if any insurer doubt me let him consult his lawyer, or ask the rebating broker if he will consent to his (the insurer) inquiring of his company if it hold a rebated policy good.

Work of the Educational Alliance.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In Americanizing immigrants the Educational Alliance not only serves humanity, but also benefits the country. The Alliance adjusts its work to the variable conditions of immigration in such a way as to bring the foreigners in touch with the best in art, science, religion, and physical culture.

At 8 o'clock Thursday evening, April 19, the Advisory League of the Educational Alliance will meet at the residence of Mr. Lee Kohns, 129 West Seventy-ninth Street, with the purpose of increasing the funds and membership of the organization. The attendance of all persons interested will be greatly appreciated.

Not an American Invention.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The article about Gorky in "The Topics of the Times" column of the 16th of April gives the impression that the average view of marriage is an American invention shared only by Americans.

I want to say that this view of the institution of marriage founded on a legal basis is an old one, acknowledged by all civilized nations, and imported from Europe to America by immigrants who made the United States the great country it is to-day, and that the same view is still held by the majority of the people in Russia.

Jail for an Auto Speeder.

One of your correspondents in this morning's paper suggests that overspeeded autos be driven to a pound under lawful protection and held according to conditions for a space as a punishment for being naughty.

Many men own more than one auto, consequently the inconvenience and fine would not deter speeding. But make the penalty imprisonment without appeal and New York streets would be safe even for creeping babes as far as auto drivers are interested.

A Call for a Library.

I have noticed the Borough of Manhattan is being well sprinkled with public libraries, and I would like to ask of some one who can tell me why we readers of Williamsbridge and Wakefield can't have one. Those of us who want to get a book to read must take a journey of an hour or so to get to a library. One of our schools alone has over 1,000 children in it. Surely it is time for us to have a public library. Can The New York Times not do something for us?

'TWAS CHILDREN'S DAY, THOUGH BAILEY IS DEAD

Circus Entertains 6,000 Crippled and Homeless Ones.

EVEN SPECULATORS HELP

They Give Peanuts to All the Childish Spectators—Youngsters Gambol with the Freaks.

The late James A. Bailey's institution of Orphans' Day at the circus was honored yesterday just as if the organizer of the annual treat for the little cripples and homeless children had been there, as he was last year, personally to carry the smallest and most helpless ones to comfortable seats.

More than 6,000 children from eighty-four institutions were in attendance at the Garden yesterday afternoon. Of these, 600 came from the Hebrew Orphans' Home, on Manhattan Heights. No tickets were sold to outsiders, and the only adults present were the teachers or guardians of the orphans and cripples.

It may be that the ticket speculators on the sidewalk felt that they ought to be doing something while any sort of performance was on in the Garden. Yesterday afternoon they surprised all their friends and enemies by what they did do.

They appeared as usual before the Garden. They couldn't get tickets, of course, so they cornered the peanut market.

"Well," said the policeman at the door, "that's about as dirthy a thrick as iver I seen."

But the ticket speculators just grinned and instructed the four or five Italians whose stock in trade they had bought to put the peanuts in bags. This was done while the policeman looked on with fire in his eye and disgusted eloquence in his words. Finally, when the wagonettes and other vehicles—all labeled "Children's Aid" or "Orphans' Aid" or "Home for Crippled Children"—came rumbling along, the ticket speculators lined up on each side of the entrance to the Garden.

As the little ones got in line and marched or hobbled or were carried across the sidewalk to the door, each got a big bag of peanuts from a speculator.

"Well, I'll be—here, I take it a-a-a-all back!" said the policeman. He held out his hand to one of the speculators, who took it with some surprise.

"Did you think we was goin' to sell 'em at a profit to them little things that ain't got a cent?" asked the speculator.

Inside the Garden it was interesting to see the thousands of children running about among the freaks. Yesterday the circus was a circus. The children were the spirit of it, and the spirit was in the hearts of the older people—and the freaks and performers, too. The freaks let the children literally walk over them. George Auger, the Cardiff giant, let them climb up his tree-like legs; the trapezists and the clowns and bareback riders excelled themselves, and when the children laughed the performers in the ring laughed back at them.

There were many unrehearsed performances. One of the clowns who plays a trombone in burlesque, and hesitates about where he'll make his stand, was invited by thousands of shrill voices to "stop here" and play "If You Ask Me Why I Love You."

"I'll stop," said the clown, "right opposite the little one that can ask me without laughing."

But they all laughed uproariously, while the clown waited solemnly. He was just pretending to walk off when a little boy leaned over the edge of the box and said without a trace of laughter:

"Please, Mister Music, stop here 'cos Mary's got to lie on two chairs, an' she can't see you." Mary got all the trombone music the clown had in stock.

Up in the galleries, where most of the rough-and-tumble boys were, it was instructive to listen to the comments of the children on the circus below. For the most part the orphans and cripples were a silent lot, so unused to laughing loudly, or possibly so utterly thunderstruck at what they saw that they looked on with lips parted, restlessly shifting in their seats. But by and by, when they saw their teachers and guardians laughing, they relaxed. By the end of the performance they were whooping like a band of little red Indians.

"Oh, hokey, look at dat guy stannin' on de gallopin' hoss!" cried another. His companion, a wise, old-fashioned, book-taught boy, looked at the bareback rider a moment, then answered:

"'Member dat Buckskin Sam I give yer wid the pitcher of him gall'pin' stannin' on de mustang an' shootin' off pistols?"

"Hully chee! Is dat him?"

"T'ought I knowed him," was the nonchalant reply, delivered between the snap of teeth on a peanut.

One other little chap displayed a strangely sensitive temperament. When the elephants enter, the circus band plays a majestic march, in which the bass horn snores and the measure is slow. The little fellow began to sob. As he could not be comforted, his teacher took him to her side and, putting an arm about his shoulder, asked him what was the trouble.

"It's de band," he gulped.

When the band later played a Spanish measure from a current comic opera the little fellow's eyes danced. He paid little or no attention to the band, but was crying, or laughing, or silent as the band played.

The little ones showed plenty of courage and chivalry despite the fact that many had crutches or were unable to sit up straight. When the chariot races were being run, handkerchiefs, hats, and crutches were waved in wild confusion, while 6,500 voices urged the girl in blue to "win or bust." The "Dip of Death" and other thrilling features did not seem to appeal much to the children, but when their teachers told them it was time to go, from all over the Garden came a unanimous:

"Aw—aw—aw—aw!"

They were all like Oliver Twist.

THE GOOD IN J. A. BAILEY.

"Tody" Hamilton of the Greatest Show on Earth said last night that it was so well organized that James A. Bailey's death would have no more effect on its movements than if Mr. Bailey had gone away for a vacation.

"No part of the world's business was ever better organized than this—a show to amuse the people," said Mr. Hamilton. "Everything goes along just the same as though he were here directing it. But he is no longer here.

"The will? There will be no sensations in the will. It will simply, I believe, tell Mrs. Bailey to go ahead as she sees fit.

"I think it will be difficult for men interested in great commercial enterprises to realize the big heart of this man, who was only a showman. He traveled seven months in the year, and he had the most beautiful and well-balanced home in Mount Vernon that one could wish to see. If reproached for not taking his ease he would say—he has said it to me:

"'I am not living to make money for myself. I am making it for others.'

"And do you know what he meant by that?" said Tody, leaning forward and tapping his interviewer on the shoulder. "Of course you don't! Well, every employe who wanted to invest his savings in the business could do so—and they did; they knew when they were well off. Of the stockholders I am the third largest shareholder in the show."

Tody Hamilton, gray-haired, gray-mustached, and earnest, is grief-stricken over Mr. Bailey's death. He boasted last night of his fortitude.

"I went to the funeral," he said, "and never shed a tear."

Then he sat back in his chair defiantly and puffed away at a big cigar.

"I never shed a tear!" he reiterated, and awaited comment. "I walked around the coffin and looked at his face for the last time with the rest, and then I walked out. But afterward, O Lord!"

"You couldn't ever tell just what kind of a man Mr. Bailey was. There was Benjamin Fish of Bridgeport, who was a bookkeeper in the circus for years. He is 70 years old now, and is a cousin of P. T. Barnum's wife. Guess he's good for about $200,000, but Mr. Bailey never forgot every year to send Mr. Fish tickets for himself and his family to Winter in Florida. There are any number of people situated in the same way. We used to see them going to Mr. Bailey's office, and they would come from there wearing a broad grin. No one knows who they all are, because Mr. Bailey never told, but if the family learns their identities the same thing (whatever it was) will be kept up.

"I think he had one of the most beautiful ideas that a man could have when he invited his employes to participate in the profits of a business that he knew would pay them well.

"Here is an illustration: A few days ago an Egyptian or Arab whirled some 2,450 times in 37½ minutes. Well, that was the press agent side of the circus business. She did it without recompense. Now, we connected with the press department bought a souvenir for her. A little medal—it only cost $65. I handed it to her last Friday night. What do you suppose she said? She said:

"'I can't take it.'

"We thought there must be something the matter with it and took it back; looked it over, and offered it to her a second time, asking: 'What's the matter?'

"'Do you think I can take that,' said she, 'which would give me so much pleasure to accept at any other time, and Mr. Bailey lying dead?'

"That's the regard in which Mr. Bailey is held by all his people."

Among the volunteers for the annual vaudeville benefit to be given for the Actors' Fund Home at the Academy of Music, April 29, under the auspices of the vaudeville managers and agents of Greater New York, are Vesta Victoria, Dave Lewis, Thomas Q. Seabrooke, Frank Bush, and Billy Clifford.

Rose Stahl sails to-day on the Majestic to begin an engagement at the Palace Theatre, London, in James Forbes's comedy of stage life, "The Chorus Lady." Arrangements are being made for Miss Stahl to appear later in a French version of the piece at the Theatre des Capucines in Paris.

The benefit performance in aid of the sufferers from the recent volcanic eruptions of Mount Vesuvius, Italy, announced by the Association of Theatre Managers to take place on Monday afternoon, April 23, at the Metropolitan Opera House, has been indefinitely postponed, because within the next fortnight there are several big testimonials to take place. A VERY CAPABLE ACTRESS SEEN AT THE LIBERTY

Florence Roberts Reveals Exceptional Intelligence.

A SOCIAL PROBLEM AGAIN

Discussed with Little Skill in "The Strength of the Weak," a Play by Two Women—The Acting.

Pauline Darcy	Florence Roberts
Katherine Dare, (Kitty)	Adelaide Manola
Alice Newton, (Jack)	Ruth Allen
Ruth Delano	Mary Bertrand
Priscilla Potter	Fanny Cannon
Mrs. Dare	Florence Robinson
Dorothy Dare	Lucile Yorke
Jane	Emma Campbell
Mr. Adams	Tyrone Power
Richard Adams	Eugene Ormonde
Baron Oscar von Kleber	Max Figman
Tom Dare	H. S. Northrup
Mr. Sampson	Robert McWade
Myron Delano	Donald Weldon
Dobson	Frank Richter
Jorkins	Frank Woodson

An exceptionally capable actress was revealed to New York last night when Florence Roberts, hitherto unknown to Broadway, made her first appearance at the Liberty in "The Strength of the Weak," a four-act problem play by Alice M. Smith and Charlotte Thompson.

Miss Roberts succeeded in the face of great difficulties. To begin with, she was comparatively unknown, a fact which to a sensitive artist must always add a considerable share of nervous excitement not conducive to the best results in playing.

Furthermore, several of the most trying and crucial scenes of the new play are so badly written and constructed that a large amount of the actress's resourcefulness is wasted in covering up defects of the dramatists.

Miss Roberts indicated at the outset that she has had much experience of a valuable and varied sort. A woman with natural dramatic instinct, temperament, and excellent physical endowment, she has added the expressiveness which comes from correct and informed technical method. Momentarily, she suggests Mrs. Fiske, but the resemblance is apparently one of physical and vocal accident rather than imitation. She has a rich, colorful voice, with, however, a tendency to monotonous reiteration of one tone in emotional passages. On the whole, her acting shows pliancy of method, superb naturalness, power, and depth of feeling, marked at all times by intelligence in conception and execution.

Her presence is a distinct acquisition to the local stage.

It is to be regretted that Miss Roberts's first appearance was not made in a play more generally worthy of her talents. "The Strength of the Weak" insistently cries for the measure of judgment based upon its weakness, not its strength. Its authors have taken the disagreeable theme of inequality in the sexes, where the cardinal sin is involved, have argued it through a series of long and tiresome scenes, beginning it in an American university for women, and ending it nowhere, have neither offered nor suggested any possible solution to their hopeless entanglement, and when all is said and done have simply added one more to the many incompetent dramas upon the subject.

Briefly, the play tells the story of a young woman who, at a tender and unknowing age, has become the victim of a middle-aged man, who subsequently poses as her guardian. She has a gift for literature, embodies her own experiences in a book, and eventually falls in love with and is loved by the son of the man who has betrayed her. Naturally neither of them is aware of the father's relations to the other. When the disclosure comes, in the moment of what promises to be the woman's greatest happiness, nothing remains for her but to end her sorry existence.

The several love scenes of the play are written with a good deal of naturalness and charm, but the main story is frequently halted while numerous uninteresting nonentities chatter about nothing in particular for the seeming purpose of creating some sort of atmosphere. Several types of girls, most of whom do nothing, are introduced in brief sketches. There is the conventional Western mamma who talks fractured English in approved Mrs. Malaprop fashion and a pair of silly young lovers, who, when nothing else is doing, provide the lighter sentimental comic relief. Also there is a youthful villain, who promises to make trouble, but gets lost before the play has progressed more than half its course. This villain is very badly played by H. S. Northrup.

Tyrone Power as the elderly "alias" is not convincing. His playing of the rôle suffers from a certain immobility, expressionless and imagelike, which his makeup serves to accentuate materially. Eugene Ormonde plays the lover with much sincerity, though lacking in his tender moments the essential quality of manliness. Adelaide Manola and Ruth Allen play small parts nicely. Max Figman as a German Baron is far from his best, and Robert McWade is capital in a character bit.

A SERIOUS FRANCIS WILSON.

Pere Marlotte	Francis Wilson
Frere Gregoire	George S. Spencer
Captain Chevillon	Harrison Armstrong
Duke St. Albret	Augustin Duncan
Mlle. Henriette	Edith Barker
Louis XV.	William Lewers
Chevalier de Frontenac	Joseph Brennan

The promise of Francis Wilson in a serious rôle drew a large and interested audience to the Criterion Theatre last night, when the comedian was seen for the first time in New York in "The Little Father of the Wilderness," a one-act comedy by Austin Strong and Lloyd Osbourne. The new piece precedes "The Mountain Climber," with which it forms a sharp contrast.

Mr. Wilson's new rôle—of which he is said to be very fond—is that of a mild, snowy-haired old French priest, Père Marlotte, who has been a missionary in the American wilds. Summoned to Versailles from his little parish at Rouen the old man dares to dream modest dreams that his long labors are to be recognized and rewarded. But the young Louis XV. has sent for the missionary only to decide a careless wager made with a courtier that the Falls of Niagara are four miles high. When the bewildered old man falters that the King is mistaken, Louis turns pettishly away and forgets all about him.

Just then the Governor of the North American provinces arrives with his followers to receive the King's thanks for their services. While they listen to his praises they catch sight of Père Marlotte humbly making his way out. Instantly Governor and warriors drop on their knees hailing the old man as their beloved "Little Father." The Governor assures the astonished Court that the little priest has suffered more and accomplished more in the New World than have all the King's armies.

Whereupon the King uncovers, begs the old man's forgiveness, and the whole Court kneels to receive the tremulous blessing of Père Marlotte, henceforth Archbishop of Toulouse.

The whole appeal of the play is simple, human, touching—with only the faintest suggestions of humor in the old man's naiveté. It is a new style for Mr. Wilson, but the absolute stillness with which his audience last night followed the little piece and the warmth of the applause which came after the fall of the curtain must have gone far to make him feel that he has made no mistake.

The interest extended to the rest of the cast, 'William Lewers's graceful and light-tongued Louis leaving a particularly pleasant impression. Edith Barker played Henriette, and Joseph Brennan was specially engaged for the part of the Governor.

"The Little Father" will continue to raise the curtain for "The Mountain Climber."

HENRY HOLDEN HUSS'S MUSIC.

A Concert in Mendelssohn Hall Devoted Chiefly to His Compositions.

Mr. Henry Holden Huss gave a concert yesterday afternoon with Mrs. Huss, of which the special objects were to introduce the work of Mr. Huss as a composer, and of Mrs. Huss as a singer. They had the assistance of the Kneisel Quartet, and of Mr. Huss's more important pieces, a string quartet in E minor, Op. 22, and a sonata for violin and piano in G minor, Op. 19, played by Mr. Kneisel, as well as of a romanza for 'cello, played by Mr. Schroeder, it may very well be said that they were presented with everything in their favor, with all the art and all the skill that are ever likely to be expended upon them. And as Mr. Huss played the group of his own piano pieces and the piano parts of these concerted works, and Mrs. Huss sang the group of his songs, it may be assumed that everything was presented as near the composer's own ideals as might be hoped for.

The quartet opened the concert with the first movement of Schubert's G major quartet, and Mrs. Huss followed with a collection of five songs by classical and modern masters. These having been heard, all the rest was Mr. Huss's music, and there was an hour and three-quarters of it. Now, there are few composers who can stand successfully such a test as this, and it is no unfairness to Mr. Huss's talent to recognize that he is not one of them. His music has been given more than once in New York concert rooms, and full recognition has been given to his ability as a composer. The music that was heard yesterday did not show him, in fact, at his best. His string quartet, the most important composition he brought forward yesterday, discloses a certain agreeable fluency, especially in the second and third movements, (the fourth was omitted,) but it likewise shows a singular lack of grasp upon the fundamentals of good quartet writing, and upon the logic and consistency of the larger forms of composition. It is ineffective, and the first movement is weak. There are many passages in which one or two instruments the less could just as well have carried on the processes of his development, and few of his themes lend themselves to fruitful treatment, or have received it. Mr. Huss's violin sonata is more successful. Mr. Kneisel had already played it here, and much of it is worth the artistic and serious consideration that he gave it. The principal theme of the first movement is hardly attractive, but there is skill in the treatment, and there is especially a certain richness of harmonic sense in the music that gives it distinction.

Mr. Huss's piano pieces are not among his more fortunate attempts; there is little distinction of idea in most of them. To the seven that he gave he added another—a waltz. Mrs. Huss's equipment of voice and her command of style scarcely enabled her to do full justice to the songs she sang. There was an audience of considerable size and friendly disposition.

NEW FARCE IN IRVING PLACE.

Given for Hedwig von Ostermann's Benefit and Pleases Well.

A crowded house at the Irving Place Theatre last night made a success of the benefit in honor of the popular actress of the company, Hedwig von Ostermann. The three-act farce-comedy "Seine Kammerjunger," known better in its French original "Nelly Rozier," by Bilhaud and Hennequin, was played for the first time in America.

The piece, which deals with a laughable complication of jealous husbands and clever wives, of which latter Nelly is the bright particular star, was well received. A friendly audience had many tokens of good will for Fraulein von Ostermann, who played the part of Nelly, and the rest of the cast, including Otto Ottbert, Max Hänseler, and Amanda Blum, came in for their share of applause.

The piece continues through the week.

TO HELP THE CITY'S POOR.

Belasco Entertainment for Charity Draws Only a Small Audience.

Actors and actresses of recognized talent appeared at the Belasco Theatre yesterday afternoon at a benefit performance for the poor of New York, the proceeds of which are to be forwarded to the New York Association for Improving the Condition of the Poor. There was only a small audience.

One of the first numbers was "The Little Mother," the score of which was laid in an east side tenement, presented by the Smedley and Arthur company. There was a humorous sketch, "Mrs. Murphy's Second Husband," by Gracie Emmett and company, and Millie Blanchard was seen in the curse scene from "Leah the Forsaken."

Others who took part were Dan McAvoy, Fields and Ward, Vesta Victoria, David Bispham in selections from grand opera, Edward Harrigan, and Alice Fischer.

THEATRES CHANGE HANDS.

The Yorkville and Metropolis Go to Hurtig & Seamon.

Hurtig & Seamon have got both the Yorkville and the Metropolis Theatres. The final arrangements were closed yesterday.

The Metropolis is to be held on a twenty-year lease, beginning June 1. The Yorkville has been purchased outright at a price said to be $285,000. Both deals were settled within a space of twenty-four hours.

The policy of the two new houses has not been definitely decided, but the Metropolis is likely to be devoted to romantic plays and melodrama. The Yorkville opens after May 1 with "Me, Him, and I."

An Actor's Name Omitted.

In calling attention yesterday to the excellent work of the actor who plays Scott, the colored servant, in "The American Lord," the name of another player was inadvertently substituted for that of Harry Blakemore, who is entitled to credit for that particular part in the performance.

An Annual Sousa Opera Hereafter.

Klaw & Erlanger announced yesterday that they had established a Sousa Opera Company, for the yearly presentation of an opera by John Philip Sousa. The books will be written by Harry B. Smith. It is planned to make Easter Monday the regular date for these annual productions.

400'S DRESSMAKER DEAD.

Mrs. Donovan, Whom New York Society Patronized, Passes Away.

Mrs. Catherine Donovan, known as "the pioneer dressmaker of the 400," died at Lakewood, N. J., on Monday night. She was nearly 80 years old. Mrs. Donovan, who was usually referred to by her customers as Mme. Donovan, had been making dresses for society women in this city for fifty years.

"She served at least three generations of fashionable New Yorkers," said one of her friends last night.

Mrs. Donovan did not hang out a sign to attract trade; she didn't have to. She lived for many years in a handsome brownstone house on the southwest corner of Madison Avenue and Fortieth Street. She owned the property. On a fine morning the old dressmaker's house had every appearance of being the centre of a social gathering. The street used to be lined with carriages, and of late years a mingling of carriages and automobiles sometimes interfered with traffic in the neighborhood.

The Goelets, Astors, and Vanderbilts were patrons of Mrs. Donovan. The wedding gown worn by the Duchess of Marlborough was made under her supervision.

Mrs. Donovan was born in Ireland, and came to the United States as a child. She married Charles Donovan, who died several years ago. She leaves no children, and has no near relatives in this country. The funeral services will be held in St. Patrick's Cathedral to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

The 780,000 each week circulation of THE SATURDAY EVENING POST—the largest weekly circulation in America—is in itself a tremendous advantage to the advertiser. It eliminates duplication, and it insures a more even distribution than would be possible with a lot of small publications, even if they collectively equalled the circulation. As a matter of fact the rate, too, is cheaper than any such collection of smaller publications which could approximate the POST's quality.

The mere appearance of an advertisement in such a publication as ours guarantees it a certain respect. Our readers know that our space is valuable. "This advertiser must have faith in his proposition to use THE SATURDAY EVENING POST," say they.

CLAYTON McMICHAEL DEAD.

PHILADELPHIA, April 17.—Ex-Postmaster Clayton McMichael died suddenly this afternoon at his home in this city, aged 62 years. Col. McMichael was formerly owner of The Philadelphia North American.

He was one of the sons of Morton McMichael, who was Sheriff and Mayor. He was graduated from the Friends' Central School in 1861 in his seventeenth year, and was appointed a Second Lieutenant at the outbreak of the civil war by Simon Cameron, who was then Secretary of War, and six weeks after was appointed a First Lieutenant.

He first served in the West protecting immigrants from Indian raids and preventing Southern sympathizers in California from forming a Pacific Confederacy. After the battle of Gettysburg he was transferred to the Army of the Potomac. During the last months of the war he was injured and stricken with fever.

After the war Col. McMichael devoted his attention to journalism, joining the staff of The North American, of which his father, Morton McMichael, was publisher. In 1873 he was appointed a Commissioner from the United States to the International Exposition in Vienna. President Arthur in 1881 appointed him Marshal of the District of Columbia, from which post he resigned three years later when President Cleveland was inaugurated, but his resignation was not accepted until eight months had elapsed.

Col. McMichael was appointed Postmaster of Philadelphia in January, 1902. His term expired about one month ago.

COL. WILLIAM MAYER DEAD.

He Published Several German Newspapers in This City.

A dispatch from Berlin yesterday announced the death of Col. William Mayer, who was associated with C. B. Wolffram in publishing Der German Herold, Die Grosse New Yorker Zeitung, and Der New Yorker Revue.

Col. Mayer was born in Vienna in 1834. He became a Lieutenant in the Austrian Navy and later came here. When the civil war broke out he was one of the first to enlist. He entered the Seventy-first Regiment, where he rose rapidly, so that in two years he became a Colonel.

In 1875 Col. Mayer entered the newspaper business, buying Der New Yorker Demokrat, which was later consolidated with Die Allgemeine Zeitung, and appeared after that under the name of Die New Yorker Zeitung. In 1880 he associated himself with Mr. Wolffram.

When the typesetting machines were invented Col. Mayer took a great interest in them, and in 1894 he purchased all the Merganthaler patents for Germany, where he then established himself, without, however, giving up his business interests in America. Twice every year he came to New York, remaining here for several weeks.

Col. Mayer was a wealthy man, and was a giver to many charities. He belonged to many charitable and other societies in New York, and was especially well known among civil war veterans. He leaves a son, Jacques Mayer, a daughter, and a grandson, who reside in Berlin. In New York his relatives were a sister, Mrs. Mayer, and Dr. B. Morje of 1,291 Madison Avenue, a brother-in-law. His death was due to paralysis.

WES, HEAVILY BACKED, WON STAKES IN A ROMP

John A. Drake's Horse Had a Galloping Victory for the Union.

THREE FAVORITES BEATEN

It was a strong tribute to the popularity of racing that a crowd of about 8,000 visitors gathered at the Aqueduct track yesterday, for the programme was singularly commonplace, even for the early season. The nominal features were a selling stake for three-year-olds and a steeplechase, the first that ever has been run at the Queens County Jockey Club's track.

The mile race was the stake fixture of the day, the Union, with selling conditions, and though it brought out a field of only four runners, it made the most interesting contest of the afternoon. Bellsnicker, the overnight favorite, was withdrawn, on account of lameness, the form followers then installing Monterey as the choice at the opening of the betting. There came a tremendous rush of money to bet on John A. Drake's gelding Wes as soon as the odds went up, and in a startlingly brief period Wes displaced Monterey as favorite. Mr. Drake made public declaration on the first day of the meeting that he had determined that he would not again bet heavily and that $100 would be his largest wager, but, in spite of the disfavor with which The Jockey Club holds plunging, a great amount of money found its way into the ring from the clubhouse to be wagered on Wes.

The race was as one-sided as the betting, for Wes, ridden by the lightweight apprentice rider from the Drake stable, Garner, went to the front with a rush when the barrier was lifted, and, taking a commanding lead in the first quarter of a mile, galloped in front all the way and won away off by himself.

Aqueduct's first steeplechase, run as the second race, brought out a field of five over the two-mile course, the imported English jumper Miss Hobhouse making her début in America in the race. Ben Crockett made nearly all the running, and, though headed on the last round of the field, came again in the run to the last jump, and was first to the flat. From that point he was hard ridden, and won, ridden out, by a length from Phantom, while Saltine finished third. Kassil, heavily backed as a good thing, fell in the first turn of the field, and threw Jockey Rodrock heavily, but the rider escaped without injury.

In one other race of the day a post favorite was successful, this being in the half mile for fillies two years old, for which Dollie Dollars, from the Newton Bennington stable held the place of choice. Dollie Dollars, though green to racing, broke well, and, racing in front of her field all the way, won rather cleverly at the finish from Toddles, another green runner from the stable of E. R. Thomas.

The longest chance winner of the day also came from the Bennington stable, this being Cinna, an 8-to-1 chance in the six furlongs for maidens three year old and upward. Summary:

ALCOHOL FOR AUTO USE MEETS POPULAR FAVOR

President Morris Says Tests Will Be Held in Near Future.

GIVES GOOD SPEED RESULTS

Gasoline May Be Dispensed With by Attaching Special Carburetor—Economical for Wagons.

President Dave Hennen Morris stated yesterday that just as soon as the free alcohol bill becomes a law the Automobile Club of America will take immediate steps to hold a practical test of alcohol motors.

"I am glad to see that the bill has passed Congress by so large a vote," said Mr. Morris. "This is a matter in which the members of the Automobile Club have been deeply interested and the club has done all in its power to further the success of the bill. With the constantly increasing price of gasoline and the fact that its production is necessarily limited, free denatured alcohol will, I feel sure, become one of our greatest staples for future power. It will revolutionize the motor engine industry, and as alcohol can be made from nearly every vegetable product, it will make the farmers, as it were, partners in the commercial prosperity of motor vehicles.

The free alcohol bill provides that the present revenue tax of $2 a gallon shall be taken off of denatured domestic alcohol, and as it has been proved that alcohol can be manufactured at a profit to sell at a price very much less than the retail now asked for gasoline, about 20 cents a gallon, a marked impetus will be given to the serious study of the alcohol motor problem. The bill will now go to the Senate, and three months after its final passage it will become a law. Mr. Morris said that as soon as the bill passes the Senate plans for holding a test will be discussed by the technical committee of the Automobile Club, and the first competition will probably be held in the Fall.

There are at present no alcohol motors in use in this country, but in Germany and France a number of motor vehicles and a much larger number of stationary engines are being run by alcohol with excellent results.

"There has been no incentive to use alcohol here," said an automobilist yesterday who has devoted considerable study to the subject. "With the income revenue tax it was impossible to think of it as a fuel. In France and Germany, on the contrary, where there is a high duty on gasoline and none on alcohol, it was but natural that the manufacturers should endeavor to use alcohol as a substitute for gasoline. By the use of a different carburetor the problem is practically solved. In fact, all that is necessary to use alcohol in any automobile is to attach the alcohol carburetor and the car will run with ample satisfaction. Both gasoline and alcohol have their peculiar advantages. A gallon of alcohol will not carry a car quite so far as the same amount of gasoline. Perhaps 25 per cent. more of alcohol will be needed for the same distance. Alcohol vaporizes at a higher temperature than gasoline, so it is necessary to keep the carburetor heated, but this may be done by the exhaust gas or by placing a water jacket around it. The engine compression, however, is vastly greater from alcohol. From 80 to 90 pounds is the highest compression that is used now in the best gasoline cars, while with alcohol tests have successfully shown a compression of 150 pounds, and in some cases slightly higher."

NEW 40-FOOT SLOOP.

Alfred Hennen Morris's Yacht Will Go Overboard on May 1.

The details of the new 40-foot sloop building from designs by William Gardner for Alfred Hennen Morris to race the Canada Cup winner Irondequoit and the Long Island Sound champion Mira were made public yesterday, when work on her hull was completed at Wood's yard, City Island. She is to measure 61 feet over all, 41 feet on the water line, to have 11 feet 10 inches beam, and 8 feet draught, while she will carry 2,450 square feet of sail. Built on easy lines with generous displacement, she is expected in moderate weather to show a clean pair of heels to both Irondequoit and Mira, though some think the Canada Cup boat, a remarkably speedy craft in heavy weather, will defeat her in a gale. The boat will be named Gardenia.

The joiner work is still to be completed before she leaves the shop. She will go overboard about May 1. Her spars are ready, and can be stepped immediately thereafter to give her a trial about May 10. Mr. Morris intends to race her in all the principal regattas of the early season and to enter her in the New York Yacht Club cruise.

NEW YORK HORSES FIRST.

BOSTON, April 17.—The contest for ribbons at the horse show to-day was keen, and the Boston entries, led by the champion Hildred of Eben D. Jordan's stable, forged to the front as a leading winner. To-night the members of Troop K of the Fifteenth United States Cavalry arrived from Fort Ethan Allen, Vt. Reginald Vanderbilt won a well-merited first in the runabout class, his entry, Fancy, leading a high-class field.

In the class for novice pairs the blue ribbon went to Lehman Strauss of New York, who showed Battle Axe and Tomahawk. He also won in the dealers' class for pairs.

The first clash between the leaders came in the hackney class, but Hildred was judged superior to Judge Moore's White Gate Majesty. Carr Brothers of New York won the blue in the pony tandem class, Judge Moore being placed second. The latter had similar ill-fortune in the four-in-hands, for the Jordan team captured the blue.

The pony pairs gave Judge Moore his first blue of the day, his Bulah Bennet and Irish Bracelet being placed over Reginald Vanderbilt's Frills and Frocks.

American Athletes Leave Brindisi.

BRINDISI, April 17.—The American athletes who are to compete in the Olympic games at Athens next week arrived here to-day. James S. Mitchel, the weight-thrower of the New York Athletic Club, whose left shoulder was dislocated by a sea which boarded the steamer Barbarossa on the voyage across the Atlantic, is still incapacitated. Charles Parsons, the California sprinter, is in fair shape, as also are the others of the team. The party, which came as far as Naples on board the Barbarossa, was joined here by the members of the team who traveled in advance of them. The team left at midnight on board the Italian steamer Montenegro. On board the same vessel is the German athletic team.

Stocks Irregular; Call Money Rates, 3@4½ Per Cent.

Yesterday's stock market was largely a repetition of that of Monday, prices rising in the morning session with every appearance of permanent strength, only to fall back in the later trading, and to close with general recessions from the level of the previous day. For two days now the market has resembled those which followed the high money period of the latter part of December, when, after a stubborn resistance to the influence of the money market, stocks fell into a state of lassitude, from which they failed to recover for many days. The explanation of such markets lies, of course, in the fact that those who cling to their stocks in spite of the excessive interest charges accumulating upon them take early advantage of the opportunity to reduce their holdings when money eases and a more stable market is promised. Liquidation of this kind was in evidence on Monday, and again yesterday, and in a market so devoid of outside buying sales of this nature easily influenced the course of prices. London, where the Stock Exchange was open for the first time since Thursday of last week, sent over slightly higher quotations for our securities, but accompanied these with liberal sales, the movement representing, doubtless, profit-taking on shares bought before the week-end developments in the money market. So far as London's attitude on Secretary Shaw's measures for facilitating gold imports could be gauged by the day's developments, no actual uneasiness was evinced, although certain cable advices, which were foolish to a degree, represented that market as concerned over our financial situation as a result of the Treasury's action. Better proof of the real view taken of this matter is found in the reduction in the price of bar gold in the London market, a step which, of course, brought further imports nearer.

Much of the hesitation was due, doubtless, to knowledge of the fact that the anthracite operators were in session in this city for the purpose of framing a formal reply to the last communication of the miners, it being Wall Street's opinion that this reply will contain no concessions from the offers previously made, which have already been published. The stocks of the anthracite roads were quiet under the influence of this situation and price recessions in them were general. The day's advances were confined, as on Monday, to the Pennsylvania group, Pennsylvania itself, Baltimore & Ohio, Norfolk & Western, and Chesapeake & Ohio moving with conspicuous strength throughout the day, and closing substantially higher. Specialties were again active, but advances in them were less numerous than on Monday. Consolidated Gas moved erratically once more, dropping 2½ points upon wholly unverified rumors that the dividend would be reduced to 8 per cent., and closing with a final loss of 1 point.

Developments in the money market were again extremely favorable, call money lending in volume at 3½ per cent., while rates for time money for long periods, including nine months, were quoted at 5 per cent., a concession of one-half of 1 per cent. from Monday's figures. In the foreign exchange market demand sterling fell sharply, resting at the close little more than one-fourth of a cent in the pound from the import point, as that is now fixed by Secretary Shaw's measures. Foreign markets, particularly that of St. Petersburg, were affected by the announcement of the details of the new Russian loan, which nets 5½ per cent. in the way of interest and carries a 3 per cent. bankers' commission in addition. The features of this transaction, as now disclosed, are the heavy participation of Paris and London and the abstention of Berlin, under Government pressure apparently. The heavy Viennese subscriptions represent, presumably, indirect participation by Berlin.

SHAW AGAIN SEES BANKERS.

Private Concerns, It Is Said, Can Profit by Gold Import Plan.

Leslie M. Shaw, Secretary of the Treasury, was at the Sub-Treasury yesterday, having returned overnight from Utica, where he delivered an address on Monday last. Secretary Shaw continued his conferences with bankers and explained to them the reasons for the action he took last week to facilitate gold imports and the workings of the plan which he had adopted for this purpose.

At the Sub-Treasury yesterday it was explained that the criticism that Secretary Shaw's plan favored the National banks in the matter of gold imports to the practical exclusion of private bankers was not well founded. It was pointed out that private bankers, by co-operating in the matter of gold imports with National banks, could obtain all the advantages of Secretary Shaw's plan. It was said that the banks could well afford to serve private bankers in this way free of charge, for the reason that the banks would be placed in possession of gold or its equivalent, which could be made the basis of fresh credits to three times the amount of the gold import.

In some quarters it was said that it would be profitable for the National banks in times of monetary stringency even to pay interest to the private bankers who might arrange gold imports, inasmuch as the bank could earn interest on $3 for every dollar of gold imports arranged under Secretary Shaw's plan.

Money showed increasing ease yesterday, but foreign exchange rates were slightly lower than they were on Monday. Demand sterling closed at 4.8545, compared with 4.8560 the previous day.

IRON AND STEEL NOTES.

Tremendous Demand for Steel Rails Keeps Mills Busy.

Further large purchases of pig iron by the cast iron pipe companies have been made in the last few days. It is said that the United States Cast Iron Company has recently bought about 60,000 tons. While supplies of low-grade iron are said still to be large at certain centres, there is such a scarcity of raw steel that full operation of some finishing mills is prevented.

Advices from Sharon yesterday said that out of the 258 tin plate mills of the American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, twenty-nine mills are idle owing to the scarcity of steel. A number of the independent tin plate concerns are suffering from the same shortage in the steel supply.

The tremendous demand for steel rails continues to excite the interest of the steel trade. The expression is used in some quarters that the rail mills are actually swamped with orders.

COPPER MARKET REPORTS.

Copper advanced in the London market yesterday, but there was no change in the price of the metal here. Supplies of copper abroad are small, and it is believed in some quarters that Europe is facing an actual shortage of the metal. Many projects requiring copper, it is said, are being held in abeyance owing to the difficulty of obtaining sufficient amounts.

Closing quotations on the Metal Exchange for copper and other metals yesterday compare as follows with those of the previous day:

BROKER KLOPFER SUED.

Creditors Allege Preferential Payments Amounting to $50,000.

A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against Benno Klopfer, stock broker, of 15 Broad Street, by Hays & Hershfield, attorneys for these creditors: Leo Bloch, $2,900, balance due on stock transactions; Isaac A. Baum of Rochester, $450, on an assigned claim of an account known as Leo Bloch special, and Samuel Alderman, $150 on a note.

It was alleged that while insolvent Klopfer transferred property to creditors to prefer them and concealed and removed part of his property. Judge Holt of the United States District Court appointed Julien T. Davies, Jr., receiver of the assets, fixing his bond at $5,000. It was said that the assets consist of $10,000 cash from the proceeds of the sale of his seat in the New York Stock Exchange, and some speculative accounts. His liabilities are in excess of $75,000. It was also stated that within the last ten days he has paid out $50,000 to various creditors, which are alleged to be preferential payments.

Mr. Klopfer became a member of the New York Stock Exchange on June 30, 1898, when the firm of Burras & Klopfer was formed. They dissolved in February, 1903, and Mr. Klopfer continued business alone. He recently sold his seat in the New York Stock Exchange.

CHICAGO QUOTATIONS.

CHICAGO, April 17.—Moderate pressure developed in several local stocks during the early session. Diamond Match, which ran off late yesterday to 132½, sold at 133, and then at 132. Books for the special meeting on May 1 to authorize the $1,000,000 new stock will close on Thursday. Prospects for a cut-and-dried passing of the resolution are not bright; hence some of the liquidation.

Illinois Brick sold at 57, and back around 56. Sales of Brick are being made at prices sufficiently low to suggest that recent reports of a brick war were well based. Telephone shares went again at 110. Some light selling in Swift's was seen at 106¾. Subway was firm.

In the afternoon Subway sold at 57, but eased fractionally. Brick improved to 56½. Edison fell from 158 to 154½.

SWEPT LONDON MARKET BARE.

New York Took All the Gold Offered—Financiers Disturbed.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 17.—New York's persistence in withdrawing gold from this market is beginning to disturb London financiers. One million pounds has been obtained for shipment to America since last Friday, £500,000 having been bought on Saturday and another £500,000 to-day, and yet on Friday it was generally believed that the gold export to New York had ceased.

There is a certain amount of reserve now in predictions as to further withdrawals, but the fact that the present shipments do not earn a profit suggests to most experts doubt as to whether they will continue much longer.

The London money market seemed to be moving in the direction of higher rates this afternoon, and that, of course, is not favorable to the prolongation of the campaign of the American gold hunters.

The Times to-morrow will say that New York swept the bullion market bare to-day, obtaining about £300,000 in bar gold in addition to the £201,000 in gold coin it bought of the Bank of England.

Approves Secretary Shaw's Step.

Special to The New York Times.

COLORADO SPRINGS, April 17.—Charles S. Fairchild of New York, ex-Secretary of the Treasury, who is here with his wife en route home from California, in an interview to-day expressed his approval of the act of Secretary Shaw in loaning Government gold to Eastern banks pending the arrival of gold from London. The surplus of gold in the Treasury, Mr. Fairchild said, could easily relieve the shortage pending the receipt of the foreign gold, and he considered this a simple and harmless method of providing for the stringency due to the activity of the stock market and the increasing interior demand for money.

MONEY AND EXCHANGE.

Money on call on Stock Exchange collateral loaned at 3@4½ per cent., closing at 3½ per cent. Most of the day's loans were made at 4 per cent.

LONDON STOCK MARKET.

LONDON, April 17.—Supplies of money were abundant in the market to-day, but the inquiry for loans was quiet. Discounts were firm on the export of gold to New York.

Trading on the Stock Exchange opened with a cheerful tone, but business was inactive, the market not having fully recovered from the holiday inactivity, many operators still being absent. Consols were a shade easier owing to fears of a continuance of the gold movements to New York. Home rails improved in anticipation of greatly increased traffic reports as the result of the holidays.

Americans opened irregular and advanced to above parity. Union Pacific was favored. Prices closed quietly steady and below the best quotations of the day.

Japanese imperial 6s of 1904 were quoted at 101⅛.

The United States secured $3,505,000 in gold to-day, $2,500,000 of which was bought in the open market. This was all which could be obtained. About $1,005,000 in eagles was obtained from the Bank of England.

Gold premiums are quoted as follows: Madrid, 15.15; Lisbon, 4. Bar gold, 77s. 11⅝d. American eagles, 76s. 6⅝d.

Bullion amounting to £201,000 was withdrawn from the Bank of England to-day for shipment to the United States and £5,000 for shipment to South America.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 17.—Two stocks, United States Steel and Pennsylvania Railroad, furnished over one-half of to-day's business. The trading in them was almost wholly by the arbitrage houses and floor traders. The early movement in Pennsylvania soon petered out, and the stock relapsed into extreme dullness. There were plenty of rumors afloat to account for its early strength and activity, but they proved to be only rumors, so that the movement came to be regarded as purely speculative. Philadelphia Electric and United Gas Improvement were strong features, but the tractions were neglected. General Asphalt preferred declined another point, and there was some pressure in Lehigh Valley and Lehigh Navigation trust certificates, both declining slightly. Bell Telephone was up ½, and Easton Consolidated Electric ½. Cambria Steel was dull and heavy.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

"I think," said a private banker yesterday, "that the plan by which Mr. Shaw saves importing banks the interest on gold in transit is likely to have a more far-reaching effect than Wall Street has yet considered. Such a policy on the part of the United States Treasury, if sustained, will make it easier to bring gold in than to send it out. It will make it easier for us to draw gold from Europe and harder for Europe to get the gold back. It will give us a permanent advantage in the foreign exchange market. It may be a little hard on private bankers. On these terms they cannot hope to compete with National banks as importers of gold."

⁂

The following is a good example of the kind of letters which predominate these days in the miscellaneous mail received by the financial bureau of a New York newspaper:

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I see in one of the Wall Street papers that one man has been running a number of businesses in other names. I have lost considerable sums with one of these firms, and I have come to New York in order to place my claims before a good lawyer. Before doing so will you inform me whether you think I can recover from a get-rich-quick broker, who represented that he lost my money in a Missouri Pacific pool? He disappeared shortly after, but his partner remained in this city. Perhaps if you will publish this letter it will be the means of warning foolish investors who live outside this fine city. IGNORANT.

⁂

Once in a while an outraged client, seeking revenge with great determination, succeeds in putting a get-rich-quick broker in jail, but rarely does anybody recover money from that type of swindler. If the swindler is prudent he puts his money out of reach as fast as it comes in, and if he is not prudent he spends it in gorgeous living. In either case the difficulties of recovering anything from him are well-nigh insurmountable. There is a proverb among swindlers that a "new sucker is born every minute," which is to say that dupes reach the plucking age at the rate of one a minute, and it is certainly true that the crop is inexhaustible. Every swindling scheme ever discovered in Wall Street has been written up in the newspapers, not once, but twenty times, and yet swindling continues to flourish indecently and probably will do so always, unless human nature changes.

⁂

At one time yesterday Reading sold higher than Consolidated Gas. Bets were made several weeks ago that the two stocks would cross each other. Two years ago Reading, then a non-dividend-paying stock, sold around 40 and Consolidated Gas, paying 8 per cent., sold around 200.

⁂

A lot of stocks bought at the low prices last week when money was tight have been for sale since Monday morning. To those who knew of the impending transactions in gold, stocks must have looked very attractive at last week's low prices, with call money at 20 to 30 per cent. and with uninformed speculators throwing over their lines in dismay. Amalgamated Copper bought then could have been sold on Monday at a profit of 8 points; Union Pacific acquired at the same time could have been sold along with the Amalgamated Copper at a profit of 7 points. Such profits are not to be despised. On the whole, the market has stood this realizing much better than might reasonably have been expected, in view of the extremely limited participation of the commission house public. It began yesterday afternoon to show the weight of the stocks which had been put upon it, and toward the end of the session prices fell back rather sharply, but from the highest prices of Monday forenoon the reaction, it must be admitted, has been very moderate. In the absence of any enthusiastic outside response to the easing of money and the improvement in the stock market, profit-taking on the part of last week's buyers was bound to bring a reaction. The wonder is that such profit-taking has made so little impression upon prices.

⁂

Commission business in general respects is highly unsatisfactory. An operator who is very confident, however, that the public will take hold of the market if properly encouraged, makes a strong point of the fact that there is a large unemployed buying power in the Street, represented by a surplus of margins in all of the leading offices. This, he thinks, is of greater importance than technical conditions, which change from day to day.

⁂

The market took its tone yesterday from Union Pacific and Amalgamated Copper, both of which were reactionary from the opening of the session to the close, breaking rather sharply in the afternoon under miscellaneous selling. Having led the recovery, it was natural that these stocks should lead a reaction, and the selling in both issues might with every reason be attributed solely to professional traders, who failed to get their profits on Monday, and were constrained to sell yesterday when they saw a reaction in progress.

Butterick Company stock, which declined 13 points on Monday, yesterday recovered 12 points on transactions amounting to 2,000 shares.

⁂

The weakness of Amalgamated Copper yesterday gave rise to doubts concerning an increase of the dividend at Thursday's meeting. The probability is that nobody knows for certain what action will be taken on the dividend. In quarters where the dividends are often forecast confidently there is shown a strong disinclination to be committed to any opinion. In one such quarter a positive opinion expressed several weeks ago in favor of an increase has been modified. The trading in the stock also is much confused. In the last few days there has been good selling and good buying, which is to say that persons whose operations in the stock are oftentimes based on trustworthy information have been trading both ways, some selling and some buying. The movements of the stock in advance of a dividend meeting cannot be trusted. Once within a year an increase of the dividend took the Street almost completely by surprise, because it had not been preceded by any unusual activity in the stock. At another time an excited speculation on the bull side preceded a meeting at which no change was made in the dividend. The only speculative tradition which can be associated with Amalgamated Copper stock is that more than any other stock in the market it is likely to do the unexpected thing. There was doubtless some short selling of the stock yesterday, on the idea that the dividend would not be changed on Thursday, wherefore a break of 5 or 6 points might be expected on the disappointment.

It is reported from Boston that Lawson predicts an increase of the Amalgamated Copper dividend to the rate of 7 per cent., which is a sign, some will believe, that it is not likely to be increased. Mr. Lawson has been unfortunate in his forecasts of the Amalgamated Copper dividends.

⁂

Pennsylvania was the strongest of the important railroad stocks in yesterday's market, advancing to the highest price so far reached on this recovery. The largest buyers reported from the floor were Rutter & Gross. Hallgarten & Co. also were prominent buyers of the stock on the advance. The only collateral security of the Pennsylvania group to show corresponding strength was Norfolk & Western, which advanced nearly 2 points. There is a strong bull feeling on Norfolk & Western. The original bull element is now trading on its profits, having accumulated the stock patiently below 90. This movement in Pennsylvania stock is accompanied by sustained activity in the convertible bonds. One object of a bull campaign in the stock, it is supposed, is to help the market for the undistributed bonds. A sustained bull movement in Pennsylvania securities would probably attract a good deal of general interest. It is a group of stocks which has not been prominent in a speculative way at any time during the bull market of the last two and a half years. There is room in these stocks still, shrewd speculators believe, for a broad speculation.

⁂

⁂

The first effect of easier conditions in the money market, as was the case in January, has been to invite profit taking from those who bought stocks when the light-waisted bull element had to sell.

EXCHANGE MEMBERS' BANK.

Will Be Called the Commercial and Hopes for General Support.

Members of the financial and commercial exchanges, including the Stock Exchange and the Cotton and Produce Exchanges, it was learned yesterday, are at present engaged in the formation of a new bank to be called the Commercial Bank, with offices in the New York Produce Exchange Building. Circulars have been sent to the members of the several Exchanges outlining the plan for the establishment of the new institution. It is hoped by the promoters of the plan to obtain the support of active members of all the Exchanges. Albert H. Lawrence, a member of the Produce Exchange, is Secretary of the syndicate or group of Exchange members who have gone into the scheme.

The bank is to have a capital of not more than $500,000 nor less than $300,000, and a surplus equal to half the capital. It will occupy the quarters formerly used by the Produce Exchange Bank, which recently moved into a building of its own. The Directors of the institution will be men who are associated with one or another of the Exchanges or with the Custom House Brokers' Association. It is specifically set forth in the formal announcement of the project that the Directors will be men who are not connected with any other bank.

WILL FORM A NEW FIRM.

Jacob Field and W. B. Oliver to Go Into Partnership.

Jacob Field and W. B. Oliver, two of the best-known traders on the floor of the Stock Exchange, it was announced yesterday, will form a new Stock Exchange firm on May 1. The new house will occupy the offices now held by C. H. Dewitt & Co., which firm will dissolve when the new copartnership between Mr. Field and Mr. Oliver goes into effect.

Jacob Field has made his headquarters with Dewitt & Co. since the organization of that firm in 1898. The offices in which Field and Oliver will succeed De Witt & Co. were formerly occupied by Bell & Co.

Jacob Field has operated in the stock market on a very large scale, and has been the leader in many market movements. Both Mr. Field and his new partner, W. B. Oliver, were formerly members of the Consolidated Stock Exchange. They were graduated from that institution to the New York Stock Exchange and quickly became prominent on the "big board."

THE OUTSIDE SECURITIES

The Curb Market Was Dull and Uninteresting.

The trading in the outside security market yesterday was dull and uninteresting. Some appearance of broadness was given the market by the number and variety of the issues dealt in, but even in those in which there was a semblance of activity their range of prices was within very narrow limits. A few stocks showed firmness, but the general tone was heavy. The copper group suffered to some extent from profit taking, United falling from 67⅛ to 66⅞, British Columbia from 8⅛ to 7½, Butte Coalition from 37 to 36½, Copper Securities from 39 to 38⅝, Gold Hill from 2 15-16 to 2½, Nevada Utah from 5¼ to 4⅞, and Union from 2⅞ to 2⅜. In most instances closing prices in these stocks were a shade above the lowest figures. Nevada Consolidated was an exception to the general trend, rising from 19⅝ to 20, with the latter the last price of the day.

Mackay Companies common was reactionary, losing ⅞, to 64⅞, and closing at 65; International Mercantile Marine preferred declined a point, to 31½, and recovered only ½ at the close. Standard Oil was dealt in at 655. Chicago Subway held comparatively firm within a range of half a point. Interborough-Metropolitan common sold down from 53⅝ to 53⅛ and closed at 53⅜. Baltimore & Ohio rights reflected the advance in the company's shares on the Stock Exchange, advancing from 1 5-16 to 1⅝.

In reply to an inquiry as to the new crop outlook and the present supply and demand, W. P. Brown of New Orleans writes to THE TIMES: "My advices indicate some increase in acreage, but I hardly think that it will exceed 8 per cent., and in South Texas, South Georgia, and South Alabama, where we always get the earliest cotton from, the crop is late, and my opinion is that the visible supply on Sept. 1 will be down so low, and with a late crop in the section that we depend on for early cotton, this will add materially to the bullish statistics that are inevitable at the end of this season, (Aug. 31.)

"At the present rate of consumption, which is runing on the basis of about 12,500,000 bales per annum, I see nothing to prevent practically a cotton famine before much relief can be received from the movement of the new crop."

The local cotton market showed very little animation yesterday after the four holidays. Liverpool was much better than expected, being 3 to 5 points up at the opening here. This market responded, opening 2 to 7 points over Thursday's close: May at 11.34, July at 11.26, and October at 10.63. Prices fluctuated within a 5 point range in the old crop months and 6 in the new. May traded up to 11.38, July to 11.29, and October to 10.67, and closed at practically the top, the net advance for the day being 10 points in May and July and 7 in October. Spots advanced 10 points to 11.90 against 7.85 last year.

Liverpool and the South were moderate buyers here and Wall Street took some cotton for outside account. A prominent spot dealer bought considerable May, and there was a moderate demand from spinners for new crop options. New Orleans reported spot dealers holding for 1-16 to ⅛ advance, but no business doing. The Liverpool spot market was 8 points up with sales of 8,000 bales at 6.24d against 4.17d last year. The sales included 7,000 American bales. The imports there since Thursday aggregated 40,000 bales, 32,500 of which were American cotton.

Aside from the ring and black board changes in the local Exchange a new room for the Board of Managers was opened yesterday morning and four more rooms of telephone booths were installed.

The Liverpool future market closed quiet, but steady, at an advance of 2 to 4 points, May-June 6.05, July-August 6.04, August-September, 5.98, October-November 5.76, December-January 5.74. Manchester reported cloths and yarns quiet and firm.

Estimated receipts for to-day are: Houston, 2,500 to 3,000 bales against 3,286 last week and 9,313 last year; Galveston, 3,500 to 4,500 bales against 2,716 last week and 8,305 last year; New Orleans, 6,500 to 7,500 bales against 9,931 last week and 9,906 last year. Interior receipts were 11,043 bales against 13,973 last week and 19,664 last year. For the half week, 25,180 bales against 25,102 last week and 48,384 last year. Shipments yesterday, 12,634 bales against 16,165 last week and 22,575 last year. Thus far this week 34,427 bales against 38,871 last week and 52,553 last year. Port receipts were 21,540 bales against 26,905 last week and 35,243 last year. Export were 35,810 bales. Port stocks 698,376 bales.

Cotton Opinions.

FERNIE, WILSON & CO.—There can be little doubt that farm work has been pushed vigorously during the past fortnight and that conditions have been favorable to an expansion in the area cultivated.

DICK BROTHERS & CO.—The market is in a very strong position, and we look for a further advance.

ATWOOD, VIOLETT & CO.—Scarcity of Egyptian cotton means greater demand for the higher grades of American cotton, thus adding to the absorption of the latter.

A. O. BROWN & CO.—We advise purchases on declines.

CARPENTER, BAGGOT & CO.—Conditions are bullish and favorable to higher prices.

HUBBARD BROTHERS & CO.—We find the South selling the late months against their anticipated crop. These sales are gradually resulting in the accumulation of a considerable scattered short interest in the new crop positions.

Following are the opening, highest, lowest, and closing prices:

Market closed firm. Estimated sales, 300,000 bales. New Orleans closed 7 points higher in May, at 11.46; 8 up in July, at 11.57, and 5 in October, at 10.64. The tone of the market was steady.

WORLD'S SUPPLY OF COTTON.

NEW ORLEANS, April 17.—Secretary Hester's statement of the world's visible supply of cotton issued to-day shows the total visible to be 4,526,025. Of this the total of American cotton is 2,962,025.

All other kinds, including Egypt, Brazil, India, &c., 1,564,000. Of the world's visible supply of cotton there is now afloat and held in Great Britain and Continental Europe 2,163,000, in Egypt 151,000, in India 1,028,000, and in the United States 1,184,000.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT.—The market for wheat opened firm at an advance of ¼c, and subsequently increased the advance to a matter of 1c on May—the option showing the most strength—⅝c on July, and 9-16c on September. From this high point there was a fractional recession, only explained by an effort to secure profits. The market was finally firm at a net rise of ¼@⅜c. The market for cash wheat, while quiet, was firm, closing as follows: No. 2 red, 91c, nominal, and 91¼c, free on board, afloat; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, 90¼c, nominal, free on board, afloat.

CORN.—After opening at an advance of ⅛@¼c, corn for a time reuled quite active, but later became quiet and quite weak, with much of the selling attributed to certain large interests in the West. The early advance was largely due to better cables. The market was finally barely steady at net unchanged prices to an advance of ⅛c. There were no sales of corn for export. Some bought futures early in the day on the large seaboard clearances of corn, but this factor was more than offset by the generally favorable character of the weather in the corn belt. Cash corn while quiet was pretty firmly held, closing about as follows: No. 2 corn, 57c, elevator, and 58c, free on board, afloat; No. 2 white and No. 2 yellow, 66c, free on board, afloat, all nominal.

Toledo Bondholders to Meet Again.

The Toledo Railway and Terminal Bondholders' Protective Committee met yesterday to consider the action which they should take to protect their interests. No definite steps were taken, however, as the meeting was largely for the purpose of organization. The drawing up of an agreement of deposit, under which deposits of the bonds will be asked, was intrusted to counsel, who will report to the committee at another meeting to be held a week from to-day.

NEW ACKER-MERRALL STORE.

To Pay $175,000 Rental for Building at 5th Avenue and 35th Street.

The old New York Club site at the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street, together with the adjoining lots on both avenue and street, is to be improved with an eleven-story building which has been leased to the Acker, Merrall & Condit Company for twenty-one years at an annual net rental of $175,000. The building will be erected by the owners of the land, the Thirty-fifth Street and Fifth Avenue Realty Company, (Boehm & Coon.) The lease was negotiated by Albert B. Ashforth.

The entire plot to be covered by the proposed structure has a frontage of 85.9 feet on Fifth Avenue and 150 feet on Thirty-fifth Street. Owing to the impossibility of getting immediate possession of all of the properties included in the site, the new building will be put up in two sections. On May 1, work will be begun on that part of the plot covered by the New York Clubhouse, and in about two years, when James P. Silo's lease on the adjoining parcels expire, the structure will be extended over those lots. George A. Boehm and Clinton & Russell will be associated as architects of the new building. The Acker, Merrall & Condit Company will occupy only the store in the structure, subletting the upper floors.

Boehm & Coon bought these properties a little over a year ago, paying $1,100,000 for the New York Club property and enough more for the adjoining lots to bring the price of the entire plot up to about $1,850,000. Fifty years ago the late August Belmont sold this same property for $35,000.

The erection of the new Acker, Merrall & Condit Building will complete the rebuilding of the block front on the west side of Fifth Avenue, between Thirty-fourth and Thirty-fifth Streets, the southerly half of the block, formerly the site of the A. T. Stewart mansion, being covered by the Knickerbocker Trust Company's building and Aeolian Hall. Across the street is the new Altman store, and at the rear, running through from Thirty-fourth to Thirty-fifth Street, is the new Claflin establishment. The New York Club is erecting a new house on the south side of Fortieth Street, facing Bryant Park and the new Public Library.

LEONIA THE IDEAL SUBURB ON THE SLOPE of the PALISADES

¶ It is beautifully situated and commands magnificent views. Architecturally it is being developed on most artistic lines. No cheap, tawdry houses will be permitted on the property.

¶ The improvements are of a superior character. There are fine wide macadamized streets, concrete sidewalks, gas, electricity, water supply and other modern conveniences.

¶ We have spent a great deal of money in developing the property, and will spend a great deal more to build it up quickly. Six months from now LEONIA will be one of the finest suburban towns in New Jersey.

SCHOOL HEADS APPROVE PUPIL SELF-GOVERNMENT

But Board of Education Committee Opposes Plan.

MORE DISCIPLINE IS NEEDED

To determine the effectiveness of pupil self-government as a substitute for corporal punishment, now abolished, the Committee on Studies and Text Books of the Board of Education held an open hearing at the hall of the board yesterday afternoon.

The hearing was principally on a report of Associate Supts. Edson and Stevens, who, in view of the agitation which arose about a year ago for the restoration of corporal punishment, were appointed a committee to visit Syracuse and Philadelphia and to report on the experiments there in pupil self-government. These reports opposed the adoption of the "school city" plan, which is the proposition of Mr. Gill, and commended highly the Ray system developed by John T. Ray of Chicago, and observed in one of the schools of Syracuse.

City Supt. Maxwell wrote in his annual report:

> The abolition of corporal punishment—one of the most praiseworthy measures ever adopted by the Board of Education—has left the schools, in the judgment of many persons, without adequate means of obtaining the discipline that is necessary for the welfare either of the individual pupil or of the entire body of pupils. What is to be done?

In answering his own question he said that a return to corporal punishment is impossible, because the public would not tolerate it, and declared that pupil self-government is a possible solution of the problem. Accordingly, he requested the Principals to try it in their schools.

Principals from all over the city were on hand at the hearing, to tell the results of their exeriments, and with them were teachers and other interested persons who expressed opinions. On the whole, the Principals favored self-government, but opposed an ironclad system, be it Ray or otherwise, saying that they should be permitted to work it out according to their own ideas.

The Rev. Dr. Slicer made an address. Presenting his credentials by saying that he has been associated with Mr. Gill, the author of the "School City," as a member of the Patriotic League, Dr. Slicer said:

"Belief in the plan of pupil self-government arises from the fact that we deal in our schools with children who come to this country from monarchies abroad. As Edward Everett Hale has well said, the school is the stomach of the Government, and digests all that is put into it. Pupil self-government is a process which shall not make serfs of our foreign-born children, but parts of a constituent whole. It teaches them government, not by repression from without, but by self-expression from within. I may use an illustration which does not come out of my recent racing experiences. In the past colts were broken in one day by being hitched to a wagon. Nowadays colts are educated to harness by being taken young. This same principle is applicable to our schools, which have been monarchical in their administration."

District Superintendent Haaren declared that the "School City" which he favored may not be regarded as a substitute for corporal punishment. He said he believed in corporal punishment as the last resource, and added that both it and pupil self-government should be used.

Principals Bernard Cronson of Public School No. 135, Boyer of No. 87, Albert Shields of No. 40, Millicent Baum of No. 68, Sidney M. Feurst of No. 55, Brooklyn, and Frank Moore of the Commercial High School also spoke.

JUDGE SCOLDS RAILROAD.

Steinert Says There'll Be an Uprising Against the City Railway.

In paroling Joseph A. Cohen of 471 Sixth Avenue for examination to-morrow on a charge of assault, Magistrate Steinert, in the Jefferson Market Court, yesterday, criticised the New York City Railway Company. He also related an experience he had on Monday night in getting a transfer.

Cohen boarded a west-bound Grand Street car on Monday night, and after paying his fare asked for a transfer. He did not get one, and when he reached Broadway asked a second time for a transfer. The conductor, Thomas Tippertt, paid no attention to Cohen, and at West Broadway the passenger made a third request for a transfer. Not receiving one at that time, he had an argument with Tippertt, which ended in the conductor getting a blow on the jaw. Cohen was then arrested.

When he paroled Cohen Magistrate Steinert said this concerning the New York City Railway Company, addressing his remarks to a lawyer representing the company:

"You railroad people are going mad over these rules you are making. There is a limit to everything, and you have exceeded the limit. I have had my own troubles with your company. The more recent was the experience I had last night. I got on an Eighth Avenue car at Fifty-fourth Street, going north, and asked for a transfer, intending to go east on Fifty-ninth Street. The conductor delayed giving me a transfer until we got almost to Fifty-ninth Street, although I had paid my fare at Fifty-fifth Street. He tried to tell me that I had just that moment got on the car, and if I wanted a transfer I would have to pay. Several persons on the car, however, corroborated me, and after a hard struggle I convinced the conductor and got my transfer. It was simply a matter of principle with me, so I can readily understand how the poor people fare.

"This whole thing will lead to an uprising against the company some day. The people will not stand for it."

HE PICKED UP $1,750,000.

Carpenter Says He Got $5 for Returning Checks for That Sum.

Ernest Chapman, a carpenter, of 319 West Twenty-sixth Street, employed by John Hoe, a contractor, to make some repairs in the office of the Northern Pacific Railroad Company in the Mutual Life Insurance Building, was walking down Wall Street from Broadway Monday morning on his way to work. Hundreds of persons were walking in either direction on the street, when Chapman, at the corner of Nassau Street, saw lying in the gutter a yellow-covered book, with a dozen or more slips of pink paper protruding from the ends. He picked it up and opened it.

Then he backed against the wall of a building and looked with amazement at the book and its pink slips. The carpenter then hurried to the Northern Pacific office, where he showed the clerks what he had found. The book was made out to Wolf Brothers & Co., bankers and brokers, of 100 Broadway, and the pink slips were checks for amounts which aggregated, he says, $1,750,000.

"Take 'em back," advised a clerk, "they ain't worth the paper they're written on to you."

"Sure," responded Chapman, "I'm goin' back with 'em now. I just wanted to have a good look at 'em before I started. It's the most I ever had, and it feels good totin' it around for a while."

He took the book and checks back to Wolf Brothers & Co., who had discovered their loss and had telephoned about it to the National City Bank, to which they were being carried for deposit by a careless messenger when dropped in the street. An important-looking office boy received Chapman.

"I want to see the manager," said the carpenter.

"Oh, you do, eh?" replied the boy. "And who shall I say called, Mr. Rockefeller or Mr. Morgan?"

"Neither, son," rejoined Chapman, producing the checks. "Just say that Mr. Chapman's outside and wants to hand him a couple of millions of dollars. That's all."

The boy ran for the manager. The latter looked over the checks for a moment, and then pulled out a roll of bills.

"It's all right," he remarked laconically. "Good morning, Sir." He handed Chapman a bill and then returned to his office. Chapman fumbled with the bill a moment before he walked out, and then looked at it. He says it was $5.

FOUGHT FOR HER DOGS.

Seeing her two pet dogs seized yesterday by wardens of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, Mrs. G. E. Hamblen of 669 Avenue B, Bayonne, N. J., went to their rescue, and for fifteen minutes battled with the wardens while a crowd applauded her.

Neither of the dogs was licensed. They were sunning themselves on the sidewalk when the dog catchers came along. The dogs began to yelp when seized, and Mrs. Hamblen ran out and tackled the wardens.

One of the dogs was thrown into the wagon, but Mrs. Hamblen managed to wrest the other one away and, dropping it, cried "Go home, Fido." The dog took the hint. As the wardens tried to drive off Mrs. Hamblen seized the horses's heads and prevented their moving. Finally she was advised to quit, and the wagon drove off with the other dog.

DEPEW'S SECRETARY DENIES

DELANY RULES AGAINST NEW TELEPHONE CO.

Says the Old Franchise It Built On Has Lapsed.

MUST GET A NEW ONE AND PAY

Under an opinion rendered by Corporation Counsel Delany yesterday to Commissioner Ellison of the Department of Electricity, the Great Eastern Telephone Company will have to go to the Board of Estimate for a new franchise if it intends to establish an independent telephone system in this city. The Corporation Counsel declares worthless the company's claim to a franchise through the New York Electric Lines Company, and goes on to deny the corporate existence of that company.

The New York Electric Lines Company is owned by the Great Eastern Telephone Company, of which D. A. Reynolds is the President. It is under the supposed franchise of the former company, granted by the Board of Aldermen of the old City of New York in 1883, that the Great Eastern Company planned to engage in the telephone business in Manhattan and the Bronx. The company has been selling 6 per cent. stock on the strength of this franchise claim, and has been scattering broadcast circulars stating that its rights under this franchise, and under another franchise granted by the old City of Brooklyn to the New York and Eastern Telephone and Telegraph Company, were broader than the franchise rights possessed by any other public service corporation in this city. Mr. Delany now holds that this supposed franchise is dead and worthless, and that the corporate existence of the New York Electric Lines Company has ended.

It was incorporated in 1882 and was last heard of when it declined to accept as applying to itself the act requiring the placing of all wires underground and under the jurisdiction of the Board of Electric Control. It began litigation to mandamus the Commissioner of Public Works to give a permit to do business, but on this contention it was defeated all the way from the Court of Common Pleas to the Supreme Court of the United States.

Early in this year the alleged representative of the company sought from the Department of Electricity a permit to tear up the streets to install conduits, and the matter was referred to Corporation Counsel Delany.

The Corporation Counsel holds that the legislation of 1884, requiring the placing of all wires underground, and to which legislation the company did not conform, was in the nature of the exercise of the police power of the State, and that the company's contentions to the contrary have been overruled. This, Corporation Counsel Delany holds, puts the company back to its original alleged franchise of 1883, and this, he declares, has expired from non-usage.

He holds further that the original permit to the company was for telegraph and not for telephone business, that the company never had any intention other than to build subways for electrical conductors for use by other companies, and did not intend to operate the wires itself; it was not prepared to engage in the business for which it was organized; at the time it obtained permission from the city to put down electrical conductors it was not able to do any of these things; up to 1885 it did not engage in any business under its charter or its alleged franchise from the city, and it has now transferred itself and its alleged franchise in the streets to another company contrary to the terms of the resolution under which it claims its alleged perpetual franchise.

To clear up whatever legal tangle there may be, Mr. Delany now recommends that all the old city grants or licenses to the New York Electric Lines Company be revoked at once by Commissioner Ellison. This Commissioner Ellison says he will do in addition to refusing the application to tear up the streets and lay wires.

ELECTION CASES CLEANED UP.

Only Three Out of Eighteen Indictments Stood in Court.

Before closing up his part of General Sessions for the rest of the term and starting for Washington on personal business, Judge McMahon disposed yesterday of the last of the election indictments returned by the Special Grand Jury granted by the Governor last January for the exclusive investigation of franchise violations. The total number of indictments returned was eighteen. Three of the defendants pleaded guilty yesterday or Monday and were fined. In all the other cases but one the indictments were dismissed. All these cases were handled by Deputy Attorneys General.

John J. Lynd, Chairman of the Board of Inspectors in the Ninth Election District of the Sixth Assembly District, pleaded guilty to neglect of duty and was fined $100. A fine of $500 was imposed on Chairman David A. Wolfer of the Second Election District in the Sixth Assembly District, who was charged with counting void ballots. A similar fine was put on Aaron Cornell, an Inspector in the Second Election District of the Eighteenth Assembly District, who permitted "John Krup," now a fugitive from justice, to vote under a false name. In the case of Peter Haggerty, charged with illegal voting on three different occasions in the same election district, Judge McMahon ordered the jury to acquit. The man was then rearrested on another indictment by direction of the court and held in $2,500 bail for trial.

GEORGE W. PERKINS IS ARRESTED AGAIN

This Time for Violating the Traffic Rules of the Police.

TAKES HIS TURN IN COURT

He Has To—Morgan's Partner Promises Not to Disobey the Rules Again and Is Discharged.

George W. Perkins of the banking house of J. P. Morgan & Co. was arrested for the second time in his life yesterday, but without the assistance of the District Attorney or as the result of any agitation at all. It was a simple case of violation of traffic rules, with a policeman on the spot.

Mr. Perkins was driving downtown from his home in Riverdale. He turned his team of bays from 110th Street into Broadway, but instead of taking the west side of the street he cut over to the east side, which is the uptown driveway.

Bicycle Policeman William J. Shea is on duty at that corner, which is more or less dangerous to pedestrians because of the Cathedral Parkway pleasure traffic headed for Riverside Drive. Shea chased the banker, and caught him at 109th Street.

"Drive on the other side of the street," said Shea to the partner of J. Pierpont Morgan.

Mr. Perkins started to turn his horses, saying something the policeman could not understand.

"What are you saying to me?" asked the policeman.

"I don't care to talk to you," replied Mr. Perkins. "I have nothing to say to you."

"I guess you'd better drive to the 100th Street Station," replied Shea. "You are under arrest."

Mr. Perkins obeyed this order, and he and the policeman went to the station. The banker asked for the Captain, who was not in. The Sergeant scribbled the name of Mr. Perkins on his blotter and asked his address, nationality, occupation, &c. Then he sent the banker to the West Side Court. Shea took a seat beside Mr. Perkins in his rig and escorted him there.

There was a long line of "drunks" and petty offenders, and Mr. Perkins began to grow uneasy as the cases were called. To Roundsman McNulty on duty in the courtroom the banker said:

"I want my case called as soon as possible. I have an important stock meeting downtown at 10:30."

"I can't help that," replied McNulty. "Some of these policemen have been on duty since midnight, and are waiting to get to bed."

When his case was called Magistrate Barlow asked the prisoner what Mr. Perkins he was.

"The partner of Mr. J. Pierpont Morgan," replied the prisoner.

The policeman stated his case. Mr. Perkins said that he had been turning that corner in that way every morning on his way to the bank.

"Well, you won't do it again?" asked the Magistrate.

Shea broke in to say that if every driver did as Mr. Perkins did at this corner there would be a congestion of traffic. Mr. Perkins promised not to violate the rules of the road again, and was discharged.

"Well, you're quite a criminal now," suggested some one as the banker left the courtroom.

"Yes," the banker replied, "but this is worse than the other time."

"Ant-I-Wet" Ready-made Excels Custom-made

THE finest and swiftest boats are built after models originated by expert designers. When the hull is once constructed, it is not cut in a little on the port, built out a little on the starboard, nor is it made more pointed at the bow. Its lines must be and are correct from the start, because the slightest alteration would destroy their symmetry; moreover, so much money depends upon the work that the builder cannot afford to be careless.

With custom tailoring it is different.

The cutter knowing that his work is to be tried on, has grown to depend too much for the fit of the garment upon the alterations, and therefore is careless in his first cutting. From each of OUR models, thousands of garments are cut, each finished ready for delivery. So much money depends upon this work, that the lines of our garments, like the lines of the ships, must be and are correct from the start.

Hence our clothes fit—they fit perfectly.

BANKRUPT HAS MILLIONS.

But It's Nearly All in Shares Which, He Says, Are of No Value.

Charles F. Wenham of 200 West Eighty-sixth Street, who has been a prisoner in Ludlow Street Jail since Jan. 27, filed a petition in bankruptcy yesterday, in order to effect his release from the institution. His counsel will apply for a writ of habeas corpus to-day, on the ground that the debt for which he is in custody is dischargeable in bankruptcy. He is held under $40,000 bail.

Wenham's liabilities are said to be $253,801, while his nominal assets are $106,425. The judgment against him is for $56,303, and was obtained by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. He was formerly a passenger agent in Chicago, and his arrest here was pursuant to an order issued by the United States Circuit Court on complaint of the railway company.

The prisoner names a long list of creditors. Among them are the Silver Fissure Mining Company, $6,129, which is secured; Clay R. Lawrence, Hoboken, N. J., $5,000, secured; Blanche Rungler, Chicago, $7,800, secured; International Bank and Trust Company, in liquidation, $3,400; Chicago Safe and Merchandise Company, $50,000, on a note given for subscription to capital stock and $7,582 in cash advanced to him; Z. E. Wenham, Chicago, $35,000 on a note given to the Chicago Safe and Merchandise Company, which the company sold to Z. E. Wenham; Elder Dempster Company, Liverpool, $64,000 balance found by a decision of the United States Circuit Court in Chicago to be due on an accounting.

The assets listed by Wenham surpass for variety anything in that line seen here for a long time. They include: Real estate, $23,680; an automobile in Chicago, $200; office furniture, $50; notes, $12,107; draft on the International Bank and Trust Company, $15,000; claims against various persons and commissions, $8,400; shares of stock, $47,018, and cash in the Chatham National Bank, 2 cents.

The real estate comprises unimproved land in Clark County, Wis., $12,500; lots in Chicago, $9,000, and other property in Cook County, Ill., $2,150. The stock includes 213,800 shares of the Interstate Mining and Milling Company, the probable value of which is given as $21,318; two shares of the Silver Fissure Mining Company, the par value of which is $20,000; twenty shares of the Armstrong Opera House Company, valued at $200; one-quarter interest in the Vermillion Valley Coal Company of Danville, Ill., valued at $500, and a contract with the International Mining and Milling Company for the sale of 2,000,000 shares of its capital stock at 5 cents a share.

Wenham has a lot of other stock which he says is of no value, including 2,000,000 shares of the Mexican Cuban Company of Arizona, 472,200 shares of the Idaho Chemical Company, and 44,375 shares of the Chicago-Montana Gold Mining Company. He also has an interest in 60,000 acres of land in Johnson County, Ky.

Carrying Weapons Means Jail Now.

Six persons were tried in Special Sessions yesterday for carrying concealed weapons. Four were sent to the penitentiary for terms varying between ten and thirty days. Two, who had comparatively good excuses, were let off with fines of $25 each. Fifty cases of this kind have been disposed of in the last ten days. Most of the defendants were sent to the penitentiary.

OVER 500 DEAD, $200,000,000 LOST IN SAN FRANCISCO EARTHQUAKE

Nearly Half the City Is in Ruins and 50,000 Are Homeless.

WATER SUPPLY FAILS AND DYNAMITE IS USED IN VAIN

Great Buildings Consumed Before Helpless Firemen—Federal Troops and Militia Guard the City, With Orders to Shoot Down Thieves—Citizens Roused in Early Morning by Great Convulsion and Hundreds Caught by Falling Walls.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—Earthquake and fire to-day have put nearly half of San Francisco in ruins. About 500 persons have been killed, a thousand injured, and the property loss will exceed $200,000,000.

Fifty thousand people are homeless and destitute, and all day long streams of people have been fleeing from the stricken districts to places of safety.

It was 5:13 this morning when a terrific earthquake shock shook the whole city and surrounding country. One shock apparently lasted two minutes, and there was almost immediate collapse of flimsy structures all over the city.

The water supply was cut off, and when fires started in various sections there was nothing to do but let the buildings burn. Telegraph and telephone communication was cut off for a time.

The Western Union was put completely out of business and the Postal Company was the only one that managed to get a wire out of the city. About 10 o'clock even the Postal was forced to suspend.

Electric power was stopped and street cars did not run, railroads and ferryboats also ceased operations. The various fires raged all day and the fire department has been powerless to do anything except dynamite buildings threatened. All day long explosions have shaken the city and added to the terror of the inhabitants.

Following the first shock there was another within five minutes, but not nearly so severe. Three hours later there was another slight quake.

First Warning at 5:13 A. M.

Most of the people of San Francisco were asleep at 5:13 o'clock this morning when the terrible earthquake came without warning.

The motion of the disturbance apparently was from east to west. At first the upheaval of the earth was gradual, but in a few seconds it increased in intensity. Chimneys began to fall and buildings to crack, tottering on their foundations.

The people became panic-stricken, and rushed into the streets, most of them in their night attire. They were met by showers of falling bricks, cornices, and walls of buildings.

Many were crushed to death, while others were badly mangled. Those who remained indoors generally escaped with their lives, though scores were hit by detached plaster, pictures, and articles thrown to the floor by the shock. It is believed that more or less loss was sustained by nearly every family in the city.

Steel Frame Buildings Stand.

The tall, steel-frame structures stood the strain better than brick buildings, few of them being badly damaged. The big eleven-story Monadnock office building, in course of construction, adjoining the Palace Hotel, was an exception, however, its rear wall collapsing and many cracks being made across its front.

Some of the docks and freight sheds along the water front slid into the bay. Deep fissures opened in the filled-in ground near the shore, and the Union Ferry Station was badly injured. Its high tower still stands, but will have to be torn down.

A portion of the new City Hall, which cost more than $7,000,000, collapsed, the roof sliding into the courtyard, and the smaller towers tumbling down. The great dome was moved, but did not fall.

The Valencia Hotel, a four-story wooden building, sank into the basement, a pile of splintered timbers, under which were pinned many dead and dying occupants of the house. The basement was full of water, and some of the helpless victims were drowned.

Fires Start in Many Places.

Scarcely had the earth ceased to shake when fires started simultaneously in many places. The Fire Department promptly responded to the first calls for aid, but it was found that the water mains had been rendered useless by the underground movement.

Fanned by a light breeze, the flames quickly spread, and soon many blocks were seen to be doomed. Then dynamite was resorted to, and the sound of frequent explosions added to the terror of the people. These efforts to stay the progress of the fire, however, proved futile.

The south side of Market Street, from Ninth Street to the bay, was soon ablaze, the fire covering a belt two blocks wide. On this, the main thoroughfare, were many of the finest edifices in the city, including the Grant, Parrott, Flood, Call, Examiner, and Monadnock Buildings, and the Palace and Grand Hotels.

At the same time commercial establishments and banks north of Market Street were burning. The burning district in this section of the city extended from Sansome Street to the water front, and from Market Street to Broadway.

Fires also started in the Mission, and the entire city seemed to be in flames.

Long Detours Around Fires.

The flames, fanned by the rising breeze, swept down the main streets until within a few hundred feet of the ferry station, the high tower of which stood at a dangerous angle.

The big wholesale grocery establishment of Weelman, Peck & Co. was on fire from cellar to roof, and the heat was so oppressive that passengers from the ferry boats were obliged to keep close to the water's edge, in order to get past the burning structure.

It was impossible to reach the centre of the city from the bay without skirting the shore for a long distance so as to get entirely around the burning district.

About 8 o'clock the Southern Pacific officials refused to allow any more passengers from trans-bay points to land, and sent back those already on the boats. The ferry and train service of the Key Route was entirely abandoned owing to damage done to the power house by the earthquake at Emeryville.

Lack of Dynamite Felt.

There was little dynamite available in the city. The Southern Pacific soon brought some in. At 9 o'clock Mayor Schmitz sent a tug to Pinola for several cases of explosives. He sent also a telegram to Mayor Mott of Oakland. At 10:30 he received this reply to his Oakland message:

"Three engines and hose companies leave here immediately. Will forward dynamite as soon as obtainable."

Mayor Schmitz gave orders to use dynamite wherever necessary, and the firemen and United States soldiers, who assisted them, blew down building after building. Their efforts, however, were useless, so far as checking the headway of the flames was concerned.

The shortage of water was due to the breaking of the mains of the Spring Valley Water Company at San Mateo. The water needed so badly in the city ran in a flood over San Mateo.

Burning of the Opera House.

The fire swept down the streets so rapidly that it was practically impossible to save anything in its way. It reached the Grand Opera House on Mission Street, and in a moment had burned through the roof. The Metropolitan Opera Company from New York had just opened its season there, and all the expensive scenery and costumes were soon reduced to ashes.

From the opera house the fire leaped from building to building, leveling them almost to the ground in quick succession.

The Call editorial and mechanical departments, in the handsome building at Third and Market Streets, were totally destroyed in a few minutes, and the flames leaped across Stevenson Street toward the fine fifteen-story stone and iron building of Claus Spreckels, which, with its lofty dome, was the most notable structure in San Francisco. Two small wooden buildings furnished fuel to ignite the splendid pile.

Thousands of people watched the hungry tongues of flames licking the stone walls. At first no impression was made, but suddenly there was a cracking of glass and an entrance was effected. The inner furnishings of the fourth floor were the first to go. Then, as if by magic, smoke issued from the top of the dome.

This was followed by a most spectacular illumination. The round windows of the dome shone like so many full moons; they burst and gave vent to long, waving streamers of flames. The crowd watched the spectacle with bated breath. One woman wrung her hands and burst into a torrent of tears. "It is so terrible," she said.

The tall and slender structure which had withstood the forces of the earth appeared doomed to fall a prey to fire. After a while, however, the light grew less intense, and the flames, finding nothing to consume, gradually went out, leaving the building standing, but completely gutted.

At California and Sansome Streets stood the Mutual Life Building, a modern structure of architectural beauty, to which the flames were soon communicated. An attempt was made to save it, but the fire was irrepressible. The flames gained, and in a few moments the big building was beyond hope. The Anglo California Bank was swept by the flames and came down in a rush.

Time and again attempts were made with dynamite to clear a space which should prevent the flames from spreading to other buildings, but freely as the explosive was used the fire crept and climbed from one structure to another.

An unusually loud report showed that a gas house at Eighteenth and Market Streets had blown up. The fire caused by the explosion quickly communicated in various directions. As the gas house exploded a feeling of despair overcame the men who were performing the rescue work.

Scare at Palace Hotel.

The Palace Hotel, the rear of which was constantly threatened, was the scene of much excitement, the guests leaving in haste, many with only the clothing they wore. Finding that the hotel was surrounded on all sides by streets, and was likely to remain immune, many returned and made arrangements for the removal of their belongings, though little could be taken away owing to the utter absence of transportation facilities.

The Parrott Building, in which was located the chambers of the State Supreme Court, the lower floors being devoted to an immense department store, was ruined, though its massive walls were not all destroyed.

A little further down Market Street, the Academy of Sciences and the Jennie Flood Building and the History Building kindled and burned like so much tinder. Sparks carried across the wide street, ignited the Phelan Building, and the army headquarters of California, Gen. Funston commanding, were burned.

Still nearing the bay, the waters of which did the firemen good service along the docks, the fire took the Rialto Building, a handsome skyscraper, and converted scores of solid business blocks into smoldering piles of bricks.

Thousands Watch the Flames.

Banks and commercial houses, supposed to be fireproof, though not of modern build, burned quickly, and the roar of the flames could be heard even on the hills, which were out of the danger zone. Here many thousands of people congregated and viewed the awful scene.

Great sheets of flame rose high in the heavens, or rushed down some narrow street, joining midway between the sidewalks, making a horizontal chimney of the former passageway.

The dense smoke that arose from the entire business district spread out like an immense funnel and could have been seen miles out at sea. Occasionally as some drug house or place stored with chemicals was reached, most fantastic effects were produced by the centred flames and smoke which rolled out against the darker background.

One of the first orders issued by Chief of Police Dinan this morning was for the closing of every saloon in the city. This step is taken to prevent drink-crazed men from rioting in the streets.

Mayor Schmitz sent out word to the bakeries and milk stations throughout the city that their food supplies must be harbored for the homeless. Provisions were made to place tents in every park in the city, and those who have lost all will be given food and shelter.

Early in the morning the prisoners confined in the city prison on the fifth floor of the Hall of Justice were transferred in irons to the basement of the structure. Later they were removed to the Broadway Jail, and if necessity arises they will be taken to a branch county jail on the Mission Road.

The Mayor also established a base of rescue, and soon had forces out where they could accomplish most. Many men were sent down to the lodging house district near Market Street. There it was found that many frame buildings, packed with people, had collapsed, burying their occupants in the ruins.

The rescuers jumped into the wrecks and pulled out the dead, the dying, and the injured. Practically every physician in the city immediately volunteered his assistance, and soon there was a well-equipped medical corps organized which began ministering to the injured.

For hours bodies were taken out in the lodging house district, and hundreds of men volunteered to go into the ruins to get more.

The pretentious City Hall, bounded by Larkin and McAllister Streets and City Hall Avenue, was badly shattered by the earthquake, and the ruins later were burned. It took twenty years to build the City Hall, the pride of the coast. When the first shock was felt the building rocked and swayed until it cracked. Part of the interior fell and the ruins caught fire. An alarm was turned in and the firemen responded. Chief Sullivan, awakened by the shock at his quarters in a firehouse, hastened to put on his clothes. As he reached for them the tower of the California Hotel dropped upon his building and crushing through the roof killed him.

The firemen arrived at the City Hall, but were helpless. They hitched their hose to the fire plugs, but there was no water supply.

Every possible precaution has been taken to guard property. Immediately after the destructive shocks the police turned out on guard, and the Governor and Gen. Funston, commanding the Pacific Division of the United States Army, were asked to send troops.

A thousand men from the Presidio, sent by Gen. Funston, arrived downtown at 9 o'clock to patrol the streets. The Thirteenth Infantry, 1,000 strong, arrived from Angel Island a little later and went on patrol duty at once.

The soldiers were ordered to shoot down vandals caught robbing the dead and to guard with their lives the millions of dollars' worth of property placed in the streets to escape the flames.

The First California Artillery, 200 strong, two companies, was detailed to patrol duty on Ellis Street. Two more companies patrolled Broadway in the Italian section. The Ellis Street contingent of guardsmen were under the command of Capt. G. A. Grattan. Capt. William A. Miller commanded the forces on Broadway.

The city is under martial law, and all the downtown streets are patroled by cavalry and infantry. Details of troops are also guarding the banks.

Early this morning Mayor Schmitz, who established his office at Police Headquarters, named the following citizens as a Committee of Safety:

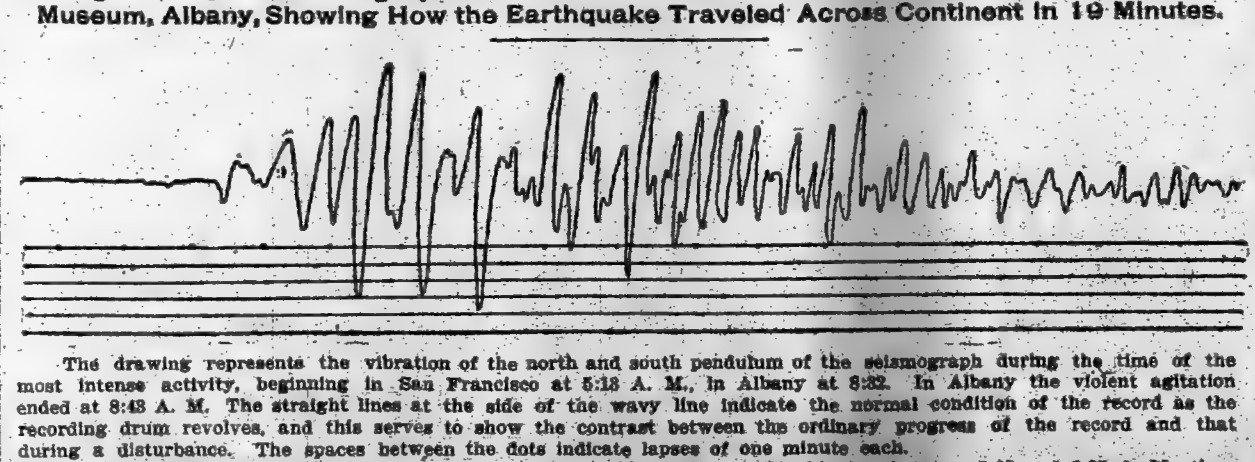
EARTHQUAKE'S AUTOGRAPH AS IT WROTE IT 3,000 MILES AWAY.

Tracing Made by the Seismograph Needle in the Office of State Geologist John M. Clarke, State Museum, Albany, Showing How the Earthquake Traveled Across Continent in 19 Minutes.



The drawing represents the vibration of the north and south pendulum of the seismograph during the time of the most intense activity, beginning in San Francisco at 5:18 A. M., in Albany at 8:32. In Albany the violent agitation ended at 8:48 A. M. The straight lines at the side of the wavy line indicate the normal condition of the record as the recording drum revolves, and this serves to show the contrast between the ordinary progress of the record and that during a disturbance. The spaces between the dots indicate lapses of one minute each.

The same violent disturbance was noticeable on the seismograph at Washington between 8:32 and 8:35 A. M., thus verifying the time of transit across the continent—19 minutes.

PALACE HOTEL AND MINT GO; BIG BUILDINGS BLOWN UP.

Other Shocks Felt During the Afternoon—Insane Asylum Is Wrecked and Hundreds of Former Inmates Are Roaming About the Country—Reports of Heavy Loss of Life at San Jose.

SAN FRANCISCO, Thursday, April 19.—12:15 A. M. (3:15 A. M. New York Time.)—At midnight the fire still roars. Fleeing inhabitants can see from miles around the pillars of fire towering skyward. The crash of falling ruins and the muffled reports of the exploding dynamite reach the ear at regular intervals.

A disaster that staggers comprehension and in point of terror and damage is unprecedented on the coast has not yet reached its culmination.

The Merchants' Exchange Building, one of the handsomest and most substantial edifices in the city, is in flames, as is also the Crocker-Woolwarth Building.

The former building is a fourteen-story structure, seven floors of which are occupied by the Southern Pacific Railway Company as offices. The Crocker-Woolworth Building is a twelve-story terra cotta and granite structure and stood directly opposite the Palace Hotel.

The immense D. O. Mills Building is surrounded by fire and probably will burn. The Lick House, the Occidental Hotel, and the Russ House in this immediate vicinity are in immediate danger.

The exact loss of life never will be known. Hundreds have been incinerated. To-night the city resembles one vast shambles with the red glare of the fire throwing shadows across the worn and panic-stricken faces of the homeless.

At the morgue in the Hall of Justice fifty bodies lie. Before the eyes of an Associated Press reporter three thieves were shot dead.

The Japanese quarter has been burned and the people fled in terror, packing on their backs what household effects they could tie together.

At 9 o'clock to-night an Associated Press man who went to a high hill overlooking the city noted that the sky on the east and south sides was illuminated for a distance of four or five miles. The illumination on the southern side was in a duller glow, showing that the flames were not consuming property of such great proportions as was the case on the east side.

In the business district toward the water front the flames were either checked or blocked at about Washington Street, and at the corner of Kearny Street the Hall of Justice could be noted standing, but it was impossible to determine what damage had been done to the interior. From the Hall of Justice to the south the fire cut its way through some of the choicest buildings in the city, the Pacific Mutual and the Italian-American Bank Building being reduced to ashes.

Down Kearny Street on both sides at 10 o'clock the conflagration was still raging with fury, but the direction of the wind prevented its advance up the hills to the west toward the residence quarter.

To the west of Kearny, up to Dupont, most of the buildings were burned as far south as California Street. All around the new fourteen-story Merchants' Exchange Building the fire burned fiercely, licking the sides of the steel giant, but it resisted the influence of the heat.

Then came the destruction of the Western Union Building, at the corner of Pick and Montgomery Streets. In this building were the offices of the Associated Press. Earlier in the day the occupants had been ordered out by the authorities on account of danger, and The Associated Press established a temporary station in The Bulletin editorial rooms. Then the latter place was closed, and this dispatch is written on a doorstep near Chinatown, the illumination of the burning buildings furnishing light for the writer.

It appeared that the great Mills Building would block some of the southward sweep of the blaze, as it had already checked an advance northward earlier in the night. If this proves true the limits of the fire will be determined, but predictions on this point are as unreliable as the strong wind, which every five minutes is changing from one direction to another.

The city to-night in face of its appalling disaster, is fairly quiet and orderly. Liquor cannot be had anywhere and the formidable presence of Federal troops, militia and naval reserves has had its effect on the element that might be disposed to be disorderly.

The Mayor's proclamation authorizing the shooting of looters on sight has been scattered broadcast in circulars and few reports of thieving are received.

It is impossible to give anything like an accurate statement concerning the killed. Unquestionably many people were either killed outright, imprisoned or rendered unconscious in collapsed buildings which were afterward burned.

At 10 o'clock the Occidental Hotel began burning and the great Crocker Building containing the Crocker-Woolworth National Bank was ablaze.

On Geary Street the Albert Pike Memorial Temple of the California bodies of the Scottish Rites Masons, containing scenery that cost $20,000 and costumes valued at $15,000, collapsed. The new Jewish synagogue adjoining was cracked to its foundations.

While five dying men were taken from a collapsed building at Second and Jessie Streets Fathers Hogan, Rogers, and Huber of St. Patrick's Church granted them the last rites of the Catholic Church. This ceremony was performed while a mass of coping overhead threatened to crush the priests to death. Three of the men died.

A shoemaker, Joseph Lindsay, was four hours in a demolished building and when dug out it was found that he had not been hurt.

The entire Larkin Street frontage of the City Hall for a distance of several hundred feet was thrown out into the street, and that thoroughfare for two blocks is piled high with boulders of mortared brick and twisted iron.

Latest reports from Leland Stanford University at Palo Alto indicate that the magnificent stone buildings of that institution have suffered severe damage. Many of the buildings were ruined by cracks that split them from cornice to foundation.

The University of California at Berkeley, across the bay, escaped serious injury. The buildings are intact. Only a few structures collapsed in Berkeley, the shock being slight there.

Artillerymen from the Presidio with their supply wagons and the army commissary wagons are aiding in getting the fleeing inhabitants and their baggage out of the threatened quarters.

270 Dead in an Asylum.

The insane asylum at Agnews is a total wreck, 270 of the inmates being killed. It is reported that the attachés of the institution who were about at the time of the earthquake were saved. The ruins took fire shortly after the collapse. One hundred and twenty bodies have been removed.

There were about 700 persons in the building. Hundreds of the inmates who escaped death are roaming about the country in a state of panic.

Half San Francisco Gone.

OAKLAND, Cal., April 18, 10 P. M.—It looks now as if the entire City of San Francisco would be burned.

At 10 o'clock to-night the fire was unabated, and thousands of people are fleeing to the hills and clamoring for places on the ferryboats to cross the bay.

Correspondents are trying to get matter to Oakland by boat, but they are very uncertain. The Government is furnishing tugs, but the confusion is so great that they cannot be relied upon.

It will be impossible to send full details for several days.

From the Cliff House comes word that the greatest pleasure resort and show place of the city, which stood upon a foundation of solid rock has been swept into the sea. Not a thing stands to tell where the monster stone building once stood. It has been leveled to the foundation and only the rock lining the sea coast remains intact.

At this hour the fire is increasing in violence. It is spreading in all directions in both the business and residence quarters.

Practically the entire district south of Market Street, from the water front to the Mission, has been swept clean by the flames.

At 5 o'clock to-night, in the northern part of the downtown business section, the fire swept around the Hall of Justice and communicated to Chinatown, thence proceeding westward into the heart of that colony. It then began rapidly eating its way southward on both sides of Kearny Street, and at 7 P. M. was within a block of the California Hotel.

This point was near the plant of The Evening Bulletin, in which the three morning papers had agreed to join to issue a four-sheet paper to-morrow morning. The plan was abandoned, as The Bulletin lay directly in the path of the flames.

One of the big losses of the day was the destruction of St. Ignatius Church and College, at Van Ness Avenue and Hayes Street. This was the greatest Jesuitical institution in the world, and was built at a cost of $2,000,000.

At 7 o'clock the fire had swept from the south side of the town across Market Street into the western addition, and was burning houses at Golden Gate Avenue and Octavia Street. This result was reached after almost the entire southern district, from Ninth Street to the eastern water front, had been converted into a blackened waste. In this quarter were hundreds of factories, wholesale houses and many business firms, in addition to thousands of homes.

On the north side, the fire to-night was not making such rapid headway as in the western addition, where there is a limited water supply available. The firemen were making desperate efforts to stop the flames.

Temporary headquarters were established in tents in Portsmouth Square this evening for Mayor Schmitz, Chief of Police Dinnan, and Gen. Funston, but this site became too dangerous about 6 o'clock and was abandoned. Later the flames swept the square.

Wide fissures have been made in the streets, street railways have been twisted out of line, sewers and water pipes have burst, and it is feared there will be an epidemic of disease.

Water Sold by the Glass.

As the flames spread into the residence districts people left their homes and fled to the parks and squares. A series of rather severe earth shocks at 7 o'clock further increased the terror, and many left homes that were not in danger.

A Finance Committee, with James D. Phelan at the head, has been appointed, and Mayor Schmitz has been instructed to issue drafts for all funds needed on this committee. A general meeting of the Citizens' Committee has been called for to-morrow morning.

A message from President Roosevelt was received this morning, and it had a cheering effect. George Gould also telegraphed, offering assistance.

Throughout the city, wherever there is a public square, a scene of desolation is presented. Tents have been pitched by fortunate possessors of canvas, but most of the homeless people are huddled in frightened groups about the household belongings they managed to save from the general ruin.

From Golden Gate Park comes news of the destruction of the immense building covering a portion of the children's playground. The walls are shattered beyond repair. The roof has fallen in, and the destruction is complete. The pillars of the new stone gates at the park entrances are twisted and torn from their foundations. Some of them, weighing nearly four tons, were shifted as though they were constructed of cork.

Nearly every noted landmark that has made San Francisco famous has been laid in ruins or burned to the ground. Never has the fate of a city been more disastrous.

In Union Square Park, where a number of homeless now have temporary shelter, the mighty Dewey Monument has been shifted from its base. It now stands leaning at an angle of 10 degrees. There is danger of the immense stone structure falling.

No afternoon papers were issued, and it is doubtful if the morning papers will appear.

The papers in San Francisco estimate the dead at from 500 to 700, and 20,000 homeless.

The Palace Hotel is destroyed. The Postal and Western Union buildings and the magnificent new Union Trust Company Building, eleven stories high, have been dynamited.

It is reported that the Mint in San Francisco is ablaze, and from the outside indications it will be impossible to save it. The fire surrounds it on every hand.

A Western Union operator has just been along Montgomery Street to the section formerly occupied by the Western Union Building. He says that this whole section is aflame and is surrounded by United States troops. The block bounded by Montgomery, Bush, Pine and Sansome Streets is doomed. Fifteen or twenty blocks along the water front are now a mass of flames.

All efforts to prevent the fire from reaching the Palace and Grand Hotels were unsuccessful, and both were completely destroyed, together with all their contents.

Commissioner E. Myron Wolf has announced that the eighty-odd fire insurance companies interested had decided to pay dollar for dollar to every one insured with them. The companies will not discriminate between fire and earthquake, and every one insured will be paid to the extent of the loss. But two of the companies affected are Pacific Coast concerns, the others having principal offices in the East or in Europe, and all will stand the loss without danger of failure.

Another sharp shock of earthquake was felt on this side of the bay after 6 o'clock this evening. It was of short duration, lasting about five seconds.

The city is under martial law and precautions have been taken to prevent disorder and looting to-night. Four thieves were shot by soldiers to-day for looting. The soldiers have orders to shoot without warning any person acting in a suspicious manner.

The greatest destruction was wrought in that part of the city which was reclaimed from San Francisco Bay. Much of the devastated district was at one time low, marshy ground, covered by water at high tide. As the city grew it became necessary to fill in many acres of this low ground in order to reach deep water.

The Merchants' Exchange Building, a fourteen-story steel structure, was situated on the edge of this reclaimed ground. It had just been completed and the executive offices of the Southern Pacific Company occupied the greater part of the building.

The damage by the earthquake to the residence portion of the city, the finest part of which is on Nob Hill and Pacific Heights, seems to have been slight. On Nob Hill are the residences of many of the men who in the early seventies became wealthy through mining investments or the construction of the Central Pacific Railroad. They include the Stanfords, Huntingtons, Hopkinses, Crockers, Floods, and others.

The magnificent Fairmount Hotel, not yet completed, stands on the brink of Nob Hill, overlooking the bay. The hotel was not seriously damaged. The construction of the hotel was started by Mrs. Hermann Oelrichs of New York as a monument to her father, United States Senator Fair, but she recently sold it for $3,000,000. To the westward of Nob Hill, on Pacific Heights, are fine new residences, but little injury was done to any of them.

The Palace Hotel was a seven-story building, about 300 feet square. It was built thirty years ago by the late Senator Sharon, whose estate was in the courts for many years. At the time it was erected the Palace Hotel was the best-equipped hotel in the West.

The Post Office is a fine graystone structure, and has been completed less than two years. It covers half a block on Mission Street, between Sixth and Seventh Streets. The ground on which the building stands was of a swampy character, and some difficulty was experienced in obtaining a solid foundation.

The City Hall was a mile and a half from the water front. It was an imposing structure, with a dome 150 feet high. The building covered about three acres, and cost more than $7,000,000.

Best Theatres All Burned.

All of San Francisco's best playhouses, including the Majestic, Columbia, Orpheum, and Grand Opera House, are a mass of ruins. The earthquake demolished them for all practical purposes, and the fire completed the work of demolition.

The scene at the Mechanics' Pavilion in the early hours of the morning and up to noon, when all the injured and dead were removed because of the threatened destruction of the building by fire, was one of indescribable sadness. Sisters, brothers, wives, and sweethearts searched eagerly for some missing dear ones. Thousands of persons hurriedly went through the building inspecting the cots on which the sufferers lay in the hope that they would locate some loved one that was missing.

The dead were placed in one portion of the building, the remainder was devoted to hospital purposes. After the fire forced the nurses and physicians to desert the building, the eager crowds followed them to the Presidio and the Children's Hospital, where they renewed their search for missing relatives.

Up to a late hour this afternoon more than 750 persons who were seriously injured by the earthquake and the fire had been treated at the various hospitals throughout the city.

The front of the Bailey & La Costa Building on Clay Street, near Montgomery, fell in and three men and seven horses were killed.

Capt. Gleason of the Police Department was severely injured at noon by falling tiling.

The stereotypers and the pressmen of The Examiner and The Call, as soon as the shock was felt, rushed out of their buildings and found that the coffee house at Stevenson and Third Streets had collapsed. They immediately set to work with axes and other implements to rescue those inside.

The sheds over the Southern Pacific long wharf on San Francisco Bay completely collapsed. Many of the bunkers fell into the bay, carrying with them thousands of tons of coal. The long wharf was one of the most important shipping points about the bay, and freight traffic will be interrupted considerably.

At Eighteenth and Valencia Streets to-night there is a crevice six feet wide in the pavement, and the entire sidewalks are torn up. The street car tracks at this point are twisted into fantastic shapes.

When the time arrived for the banks to open this morning there was a rush by many depositors to withdraw their accounts. The banks, however, kept their doors shut, and would give money to none of the depositors.

The Board of Supervisors has been called together and will decide on the proper measures which should be immediately adopted to afford first aid to persons who have been driven from their homes.

A. W. Hussey came to the station at the Hall of Justice shortly before 10 o'clock this morning and told how, at the direction of a policeman whom he did not know, whose star number he gave as 615, he had cut the arteries in the wrists of a man pinioned under timbers at the St. Katherine Hotel.

According to the statement made by Hussey, the man was begging to be killed and the policeman shot at him, but his aim was defective and the bullet went wide of the mark. The officer then handed Hussey a knife, with instructions to cut the veins in the suffering man's wrists, and Hussey obeyed orders to the letter.

Chief of Police Dinan directed that Hussey be locked up. There has been no opportunity to investigate his story, but the police believe that the awful calamity rendered him insane and that the incident reported to them has no existence excepting in the imagination of the man who made the report.

Sixteen-year-old Otto Settner of 3234 Pierce Street rushed into the room of his father when the big shock came and shouted: "Oh, papa, I am dying!" The child fell dead in his father's arms.

Measures have already been taken for the care of the destitute. They will be fed and protected in Golden Gate Park and the public squares.

The Southern Pacific Railroad is carrying out of town all those who want to leave. No one is allowed to enter, and those who have left will not be able to get back for several days at least.

It is reported that while a building was being blown up with dynamite a premature explosion killed fifteen men.

The Terminal Hotel, at the water front and Market Street, fell to-day and buried twenty persons under the debris. They were incinerated and there is no possibility of learning their identity.

The Court House at Redwood City and other buildings collapsed. Menlo Park, Burlingame, and other fashionable suburban towns suffered. Santa Rosa, to the north; Napa, Vallejo, and all towns around the bay were damaged. These reports, alarming as they were, created little interest in San Francisco, where the people were in a frantic state.

To-day's experience has been a testimonial to the modern steel building. A score of these structures were in course of construction, and not one suffered from the earthquake shock. The completed modern buildings were also immune to harm from the seismic movements. The buildings that collapsed were all flimsy wooden and old brick structures.

The damage by earthquake does not begin to compare with the loss by fire. The heart of the business quarter of San Francisco has been destroyed by fire. Fire has done the great damage. An area of thickly covered ground of eight square miles has been burned over, and there is no telling when the fire will be under control.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The War Department has received the following message from the Western Union at San Francisco:

"Although water has been secured to the firemen in many sections, the fire is by no means under control. It is raging around Pine and Montgomery Streets, and the Western Union Building has been abandoned to its fate. At the Oakland ferry house, where the company has established an office, it is difficult to obtain information concerning current events."

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 18.—Many rumors are in circulation that additional shocks occurred at San Francisco during the day. All wire communication with San Francisco was lost early to-day. The Postal Telegraph Company had two wires working to Oakland, across the bay from San Francisco.

A special train of four cars with about seventy-five doctors and nurses on board left Los Angeles for San Francisco over the Southern Pacific Railroad this evening. The train is due in San Francisco to-morrow forenoon.

An equal number of doctors and nurses who tendered their services was turned away on account of lack of accommodation on the train. Another special will leave to-night with more nurses, doctors, and policemen.

CHICAGO, April 18.—Henry Forsland, racing correspondent at San Francisco, wired his paper from Oakland this afternoon:

"All means of transit from San Francisco to Oakland closed. No one is allowed to enter the city from outside points, martial law having been declared. A number of racing folk said to have perished in the St. Nicholas Hotel."

FUNSTON ASKS AID.

Sends to Washington for Tents and Rations for 20,000 People.

WASHINGTON, Thursday, April 19.—The Secretary of War earl ythis morning received the following second dispatch from Gen. Funston:

"OAKLAND PIER, Cal., April 18, via Union Pacific special wire via New York.—We are doing all possible to aid residents of San Francisco in the present terrible calamity. Many are homeless, and I shall do everything in my power to render assistance, and trust to War Department to authorize any action I may have to take. Army casualties will be reported later. All important papers saved. We need tents and rations for 20,000 people.

"FUNSTON."

"Oakland Pier, Cal. April 18, via Union Pacific Railroad special wire, via New York.—Depot destroyed by fire. Everything lost. Local troops supplied. Will wire in reference to Manila shipments.

"TRAUTHOFF."

"Damage by earthquake chiefly to chimneys and ceilings. Probably not over $1,500. Report will follow. No one injured here. BENET, Commanding."

This dispatch was sent to General Funston by Commissary General Sharpe:

"The Secretary of War has directed the Commissary at Vancouver Barracks to forward to the Depot Commissary at San Francisco 200,000 rations. Is the railroad open to Portland?"

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The first message received from Gen. Funston arrived here at 11:40 o'clock to-night. It was addressed to Secretary Taft, who had already retired. The message follows:

"Secretary of War, Washington:

"We need thousands of tents and all the rations that can be sent. The business portion of the city destroyed and about 100,000 people homeless. Fire still raging. Troops all on duty assisting the police. Loss of life probably 1,000. Best part of residence district not yet burned. FUNSTON."

Orders will go forward from the War Department to-morrow morning to the adjacent posts to carry out Gen. Funston's recommendations.

200 OR 300 DIE IN SANTA ROSA

10,000 Reported Homeless in That Town.

SAN JOSE LOSS HEAVY

News of Disaster in Many Other Towns.

Terrified Crowd Fled to the California Hills and Watched Santa Rosa Burn.

SACRAMENTO, April 18.—Dr. Stone, Superintendent of the Napa State Hospital, telephones the Governor's office that an automobile arrived there with news that Santa Rosa is ruined and that between 200 and 300 persons were killed.

LOS ANGELES, April 18.—A report from San José, fifty miles south of San Francisco, says that the Vendome Hotel annex was wrecked, ten or fifteen persons being killed there. The Doherty Block was burned and one woman was killed. Dr. Degrow was killed and his wife was injured.

Every business building in San José was damaged or demolished. The Mayor deputized 500 men to watch property. It is estimated that fifty persons wer killed in San José. The Post Office was nearly wrecked.

The First Presbyterian Church was demolished, and the Court House is a wreck.

Passengers from many other cities in California bring tales of death and disaster. Canta Cruz, Monterey, Gilroy, and Hollister, they say, are wrecked. The death list at Santa Cruz is reported to be large.

A report says that Santa Rosa is a wreck, 10,000 being homeless. The loss probably will reach into the hundreds. Main Street is piled many feet deep with fallen buildings. Not one business building is intact. The four-story Court House is a pile of broken masonry. Identification of the dead is impossible. What was not destroyed by the earthquake was swept by fire.

Citizens fled to the fields and hills to watch the destruction of Santa Rosa. The water system was destroyed by the earthquake.

Eight dead Italians were taken out of an Italian hotel at San Jose. At that place the Presbyterian Church, St. Patrick's Cathedral, and the High School were destroyed. The new Hall of Justice at San Jose, just completed at a cost of $800,000, was demolished.

At Loma Prieta, eighteen miles from Santa Cruz, a mine house slipped down the side of a mountain, burying ten men in the ruins.

STANFORD UNIVERSITY RUIN.

All But Two Buildings Demolished—Two Persons Killed.

OAKLAND, April 18, 8 P. M.—Reports from districts outside San Francisco indicate widespread damage. San José, fifty miles south, lost many buildings, and from fifteen to twenty persons were killed. The annex of the Vendome Hotel collapsed, and fires started. Stanford University and Palo Alto suffered.

At Stanford all but two of the fine buildings were demolished and two men were killed. One of them was Julius Robert Hanna of Bradford, Penn., and the other was Otto Gurb, a fireman.

IN OTHER TOWNS.

Enormous Loss of Property in Places Near San Francisco.

Oakland, which is across the bay from San Francisco, suffered considerable damage to property, but no fatalities were reported after the earthquake, according to a message sent to the New York office of the Western Union yesterday by one of its operators in Oakland. This operator reported that the trains were able to run in Oakland, but that they went very slowly.

STOCKTON Cal., April 18.—A sharp earthquake shock was felt here at 5:15 o'clock this morning. The Santa Fé bridge over the San Joaquin River settled several inches.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—At Napa many buildings were shattered and the loss will amount to $300,000. No loss of life is reported.

In Vallejo the damage was slight in comparison with that suffered in other places. The loss will be about $10,000.

SALINAS, Cal., April 18.—At 5:15 o'clock this morning three earthquakes shook Salinas, lasting respectively five, three, and forty-two seconds. They came from the northeast and southwest. The damage is $2,500,000. No lives were lost in Salinas.

Among the buildings destroyed in Salinas are the Ford & Stanbury Building, dry goods; Elks' Hall, Masonic Building, the Knights of Pythias Building, armory, Porter & Irving store, Logan cyclery, Odd Fellows' Building, City Hall, and several smaller buildings. Every window in the city was broken. Chimneys toppled over and crashed through roofs. Spreckels's sugar factory, three miles from town, was destroyed, causing damage of $1,500,000. The High School Building was wrecked. Several stores lost their entire stocks. At 2:25 o'clock this afternoon another shock was experienced, but no lives were lost. Several men, women, and children were cut about the face by flying glass.

At Watsonville, the Moreland Academy was destroyed by fire and several buildings collapsed. At Monterey and Pacific Grove there was a slight shock that caused little damage.

At the Delmonte Hotel three chimneys fell through the roof, killing a bridal pair and a hotel servant, and injuring several other persons.

At Hollister, Granger's Union warehouse was restroyed. A Mrs. Griffith was killed, and her husband became crazed.

LOS ANGELES, April 18.—Los Angeles did not feel the earthquake to any extent. The nearest point where damage was done was 400 miles north of this city.

ALBANY GETS A RECORD OF THE PACIFIC SHOCKS

Earthquake Travels Across the Continent in 19 Minutes.

IS FELT MORE THAN AN HOUR

Violent Vibrations Caused a Quarter-Inch Swing in Seismograph at State Museum.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 18.—State Geologist John M. Clarke obtained a complete record of the San Francisco earthquake on the recording seismograph in the State Museum this morning. The record is automatically inscribed on smoked paper and shows the exact time of the arrival and duration of the vibrations. As the disturbances lasted for one hour and twenty minutes, the record was many feet in length. The most destructive period was from 8:32 to 8:43. Mr. Clarke said:

"The first manifestation of the disturbance was received here at 8:21½ A. M., corresponding to 5:21½ A. M. Pacific time. The first waves to arrive were the slight tremors which travel much more rapidly than the destructive waves of great amplitude. These slight preliminary vibrations continued until 8:32½ A.M., when the first large waves arrived, followed immediately by shakings of the greatest intensity that lasted until 8:43. The amplitude of the most violent vibrations shown on the record is about two inches, but as the record is intensified about ten times the actual swings of the greater waves were one-quarter of an inch.

"After the intense shakings the vibrations gradually decreased, though they continued to be felt until 9:50 A. M.

"The heavy waves traveled at the rate of about 11,000 feet a second and the lighter preliminary and subsequent waves much more rapidly, about 40,000 feet a second."

It is evident that the first tremors felt in Albany were not noticed in San Francisco by the sleeping people. The shock, which at 5:13 set buildings to tumbling, was the one recorded here at 8:32. Therefore the disturbance took 19 minutes to cross the continent.

On April 10 the seismograph in the State Museum showed the prevalence of an earthquake which lasted fifty-five minutes. The disturbance was quite marked, but Mr. Clarke made no mention of it, thinking that perhaps the instrument might have been out of order. He has since had the shock confirmed by Baltimore and other places where he wrote for information.

This shock, he believes, was the forerunner of to-day's disturbance. Prof. Clarke says there are tremendous disturbances in the centre of the earth.

RECORD MADE IN WASHINGTON.

Needle Passes Off Sheet of Seismograph for Three Minutes.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The San Francisco earthquake registered itself most accurately on the seismograph at the Weather Bureau in this city. For the first time since the discovery of the instrument by which earthquake waves could be measured the experts of the bureau were able to see the vibrations as they recorded themselves.

It was not until a telephone message was sent to the bureau that attention was directed to the seismograph, when it was at once noted that the indicator was moving violently from one side to the other of the sheet of paper on which the record is marked. Prof. Charles F. Marvin, who has charge of the instrument, and his assistants, at once concentrated their work for the day on the phenomena of the earthquake.

The seismograph consists of a cylinder on which a sheet of paper six inches by three feet, coated with parafine and soot, is placed and over which a needle or stylus hangs. This stylus marks most delicately as the cylinder moves, the line resulting from the difference between the earth waves and a mass of matter that as far as possible by all means known to science is immovable.

There are a dozen similar instruments in use throughout the world and the scientists of the various countries provide for such observations, and there is an international bureau at Strasburg, Germany, where all records are compared and the results reported back to the various corresponding bureaus in various parts of the world.

There is no seismograph on the Pacific Coast similar to the one here, but there is one of a different type at the Lick Observatory and another maintained by the Canadian Government at Vancouver. The coast survey has one at Baldwin, Kan., and there is one of the old type at Johns Hopkins University and one of the modern pattern at Albany recently installed.

The first disturbance on the seismograph here was noted at 8:19:20 o'clock. It appeared in minute wavering marks on the sooty paper. These kept on almost imperceptibly, increasing in size for several minutes, until at 8:25 they began to break into well-defined waves over a quarter of an inch long. From second to second they lengthened, and within an inch space as the cylinder moved on from the needle they gradually grew to be an inch and a half long. At 8:32 the waves had increased to be three inches long, and the needle passed off of one side of the sheet of paper.

For three minutes it remained off the sheet, and at 8:35 again came up on the bevel of the brass cylinder and began once more to mark the record of seismic disturbance. What movements the indicator made while off the paper can only be imagined. The waves may have been much longer during that period than at the time when the record was completed. The greatest length of the vibration or wave was four inches.

Under the old methods of fixing this basis of measurement a pendulum was used. This pendulum was sometimes made several hundred feet long. By means of levers this has been done away with, and a most acute and accurate means of measurement has been devised. The stylus makes a fine straight line around the cylinder when there is no disturbance.

The wave register continued for three hours, although the length of the waves had become again quite minute.

The Weather Bureau did not receive as usual the 5 o'clock observation which is taken every morning. This observation it is believed must have been taken before the earthquake occurred, but no dispatch could be sent reporting it. About noon a dispatch was received from Prof. McAdie, the Observer in charge of the San Francisco Weather Station, saying he and his three assistants were safe and well. The station was in the Mills Building, which was in the heart of the destroyed district, and went down with other buildings.

The scientists rely on the staff of the Lick Observatory to make the observations of the earthquake phenomena that will give its history.

Prof. Willis Moore of the Weather Bureau said to-day that the eruption of Vesuvius was recorded during its entire period on the magnetic instruments of the research station at Mount Weather, a few miles from this city in Virginia. He stated, however, that thi swas not an earthquake record, but rather that Vesuvius acted like a powerful wireless transmitter and Mount Weather as the receiver, Vesuvius with its eruptions there disturbing the electrical potentials which disturbances sent out electro-magnetic waves that encircled the earth. The records at Mount Weather were clear and distinct.

BALTIMORE, April 18.—The seismograph at the Johns Hopkins University shows a record of the earthquake at San Francisco which marks it as the most severe disturbance ever recorded in this city with the exception of the earthquake in Colombia, South America, last January.

The recording film shows the disturbance to have been most severe between 8:25 and 8:55 A. M., Eastern time, and that it had not ceased when the film was taken from the instrument at 11:30 o'clock.

VIENNA'S DISTINCT RECORD.

Observers Learn of Earthquake Soon After the First Vibrations.

VIENNA, April 18.—A telegram from the Government Observatory at Laibach says that from 2:25 to 2:59 o'clock this afternoon the seismograph recorded a distant earthquake of great force and destructiveness.

The indications showed that the disturbances were much more violent than those which recently occurred in Formosa.

The difference in time between San Francisco and Vienna is 9 hours and 6 minutes.

WASHINGTON WITHOUT NEWS.

War and Navy Departments Fear Their Depots Are Destroyed.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Up to 10 o'clock to-night not a word of an official nature had reached the War Department from San Francisco. Secretary Taft has made repeated efforts to obtain some information from Gen. Funston, in command of the Department of California, but thus far without avail.

Quartermaster-General Humphrey and Commissary General Sharpe to-night expressed the opinion that both the Quartermaster's depot and the commissary warehouse in San Francisco are destroyed. The description of the district burned over contained in the press reports includes that on which both the depot and the warehouse stand.

If this should prove to be correct, the War Department, it is said, would have no supplies available in San Francisco for relief work. There are various army stations along the coast, however, both north and south of San Francisco, which might be called on in an emergency to render some assistance in this direction.

The Navy Department is also without any advices from the naval station at Mare Island, California, and the officials are in ignorance as to what, if any, damage has resulted to the naval establishment there. This station is perhaps twenty-five miles from the City of San Francisco, and the officials hope that it has not felt any serious effects from the earthquake. Rear Admiral Bowman H. McCalla is in command there and his judgment is relied upon by Secretary Bonaparte and his assistants to take whatever action may be necessary to safeguard the Government interests.

Secretary Taft late to-night directed another message to be sent immediately to Gen. Funston urging him to advise the War Department of the conditions at San Francisco as soon as possible and to do everything in his power to let the public at large know of the actual state of affairs in the stricken city.

The War Department was advised that an officer who had an automobile had consented to make an attempt to reach Gen. Funston at once and carry the dispatches which have accumulated at Oakland and could not be sent because of lack of ferry accommodations. At 11:10 o'clock to-night Secretary Taft was without any official advices.

The War Department late to-night received a Western Union dispatch from Oakland saying that another sharp earthquake had just been felt on that side of the bay, but that it was of short duration, lasting about five seconds.

Upon hearing the news of the San Francisco earthquake, Assistant Secretary of War Oliver telegraphed Major General Greely, commanding the Pacific Division, with headquarters at San Francisco, instructing him to co-operate with the local authorities and use all resources at his command to assist in alleviating the situation there.

INSURANCE LOSS MANY MILLIONS

Eastern Concerns Hard Hit by Disaster.

POLICY WILL BE LIBERAL

Earthquake Clauses Not to Be Enforced.

ESTIMATES BY EXPERTS

They Are Bewildered by the Catastrophe, but Make Calculations on Companies' Losses.

Never were fire underwriters so bewildered as to their probable loss in a catastrophe as yesterday, when they tried to estimate the magnitude of their liability for the California earthquake. Several conservative underwriters agreed that the property value of the collapse and burned areas will probably aggregate $100,000,000.

A comparison with the Baltimore fire of Feb. 7, 1904, was instantly drawn in insurance circles. In that conflagration, $70,000,000 worth of property was destroyed, and the loss which eventually fell upon the insurance companies was approximately $30,000,000.

Between that disaster and yesterday's there was the one great difference in the fact that the fire underwriters are not liable for losses caused by the earthquake itself. But as for the damage to buildings which collapsed partly and then took fire underwriters were uncertain during the day. As to the blocks of buildings which escaped the earthquake and then were burned the estimates were clearer.

California is not what is called among insurance men a "standard policy" State, and for many years most fire insurance policies issued upon property there contained a specific clause exempting from liability for wreckage through earthquakes. Within a few years most of the companies writing the bulk of San Francisco insurance have used the New York standard policy, which contains only one clause in any way bearing upon liability for earthquake damage. That clause is as follows:

"If a building or any part thereof fall, except as the result of fire, all insurance by this policy on such building or its contents shall immediately cease."

Will Not Raise Technicalities.

Some companies have retained an old-fashioned policy which exempts from damage "occasioned by earthquake." Officials of these companies were busy yesterday examining the question as to how far this clause would exempt them from losses by resultant fires.

The general disposition, however, was that the companies would raise no technicalities, but wherever there could be the slightest question the benefit of the doubt would be given to the policy holder.

One official of the New York Board of Fire Underwriters said:

"Buildings partly demolished by earthquake and then destroyed by fire are no doubt entitled to investigation by the companies, which wherever possible will give policy holders every benefit, as they did in the Johnstown flood. In that disaster one building was carried a mile away by the flood and then took fire. Despite a flood clause, the insurance upon the building was paid.

"According to the California statutes, when the municipal authorities decide to blow up buildings with dynamite to stay a fire, the companies are liable for the dynamited buildings as well."

Few companies had any information here yesterday beyond the meagre news dispatches, but so far as they could estimate the extent of the damage the losses upon insured property were not expected to exceed 80 per cent. of the total damage by earthquake and fire. When the fire has been conquered and the insurance officials are able to open their vaults in the ruins the first exact knowledge will become available.

At the top of the list of ninety-seven fire insurance companies, which are licensed to do business in the State of California, is the Fireman's Fund Insurance Company of San Francisco. The other big California company, the Home Fire and Marine Insurance Company, is also heavily affected.

Pacific Loss Record Low.

While the United States generally has had an unprofitable ten years of fire underwriting with the conflagrations of Hoboken, Ottawa, Jacksonville, Paterson, Waterbury, and Baltimore, the Pacific Coast has had a loss record unusually low, compared with the rest of the country. During the year 1905 the losses in San Francisco, for instance, aggregated each month as follows:

January	$75,928.53
February	14,091.44
March	55,706.92
May	105,443.72
June	116,450.41
July	48,492.84
August	84,818.94
September	64,365.90
October	21,563.71
November	110,914.89
December	57,250.45

Despite this record of comparatively low losses, the city authorities had planned to increase largely the fire protection facilities of San Francisco because of pressure by the underwriters. In the budget for the fiscal year beginning with July 1, 1906, Chief Engineer Sullivan of the Fire Department, who lost his life yesterday, had asked for an appropriation of $1,000,000 in order to cover the proposed improvements, such as new water mains, engines, trucks, and engine houses.

One reason why the insurance loss must fall far below the property loss, no matter how liberal the underwriters are in their disposition to waive any technicalities, is to be found in the large amount of municipal and railroad property which was not covered by the insurance companies. With the wires down, the greatest difficulty was experienced here yesterday in ascertaining the probable extent of the wrecked areas.

Companies Are Optimistic.

That the earthquake has created a critical situation for underwriters was generally admitted, but that it would cripple any of the companies was doubted seriously. The lack of information was so great and the probable extent of the damage was so large that many prominent underwriters would not express any opinion as to the insurance side of the catastrophe.

Henry W. Eaton, United States manager of the Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company, would have nothing to say until the advices of another twenty-four hours had been received.

William N. Kremer, President of the German-American Insurance Company, declared that underwriters were all at sea as to what losses the earthquake had brought to them, and also as to what districts had been affected by fire.

John Kelly of Blagden, Kelly & Fuller of the Royal Exchange Assurance Company of London was in receipt of some general advices, but could make no statement until he had had another day's batch of information.

Toward the close of the afternoon many underwriters privately expressed the fear that some of the companies would fare worse than they did in Baltimore.

For the fire insurance companies the year 1906 with the California earthquake bids fair to be exceeded only by 1904, when more than $230,000,000 worth of property in the United States was destroyed by fire, making the largest annual ash heap in the history of the country. But, besides the Baltimore fire, 1904 saw the $12,000,000 Toronto conflagration, a $2,000,000 fire in Sioux City, Iowa, and a $1,500,000 fire in Shelby, Ohio, as well as a $2,000,000 fire in Rochester. Of the total loss of 1904, more than $80,000,000 was due to conflagrations. In 1903 the record was lighter. In 1902 there were three conflagrations—Paterson, N. J., $7,000,000; Waterbury, Conn., $2,300,000, and Atlantic City, $1,500,000, making a total conflagration loss in 1902 of $10,800,000. The year 1901 had but one conflagration, that at Jacksonville, and aggregating $10,500,000. In 1900 the cities of Ottawa and Hull had a $13,000,000 fire and the Hoboken water front suffered a damage of $6,500,000.

CONGRESS GIVES AID TO STRICKEN CITIES

War and Navy Departments Are Directed to Act.

TENTS FOR THE HOMELESS

United States Supplies to be Given to San Francisco and Near-by Towns.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The only thing that interested the members of the House to-day was the situation in San Francisco.

Representative Kahn, whose home is in that city, was constantly the centre of a knot of his colleagues, who were either expressing their sympathy for him in his suspense or seeking the latest information he might have. Once Representative Gilbert of Kentucky, hearing that Representative Lacey of Iowa, whose daughter lives in San Francisco, had just received a telegram, asked unanimous consent that the House suspend until the telegram could be read for the general information.

Mr. Kahn was constantly in communication with the War Department, which kept him informed of all the dispatches it received. His home is in the residence section of San Francisco, and he received some measure of reassurance from the telegram saying that that part of the city had escaped with less damage than the business part. It is only two days since Mr. Kahn was receiving the congratulations of his colleagues over the arrival of a new son at his home, and he was especially anxious about his family for that reason. Up to this evening he had received no word about them, and the best consolation he had was that there had been no mention of them in any of the press messages recounting casualties.

House Members Anxious.

Representatives Knowland and Gillett have also a keen personal anxiety about the situation. Mr. Knowland's family lives in Oakland, and Mr. Gillett has two daughters in school, one at Palo Alto and the other at Mills College, both within the zone of heavy damage.

When definite news of the wide extent of the damage was received through the War Department about 3 o'clock the Representatives concluded that the House should do something to mark its sympathy for San Francisco, and its desire to extend any aid in its power. By general consent it was left to Mr. Kahn to prepare a resolution, and as soon as he had drafted it, the consideration of the District of Columbia Appropriation bill, which was pending, was suspended and Mr. Kahn was recognized.

"The condition in San Francisco is appalling," he said, "and in view of this fact I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of a resolution.

"The last I have heard is that fifty-four blocks of San Francisco have been destroyed, while the cities on the other side of the bay are also in a very terrible condition. No doubt there is a great loss of life and very great suffering. Therefore I offer as a resolution that the War Department and the Navy Department place at the disposition of the Mayor of San Francisco such supplies as may be necessary."

The Speaker suggested that the resolution should be in black and white, and drawn with care.

The debate on the District Appropriation bill was started with the understanding that just as soon as the resolution was prepared it would be considered.

Other Business Laid Aside.

At 4:30 the committee rose and laid aside the District Appropriation bill.

Mr. Kahn was again recognized. He read a telegram just received from the War Department saying that fifty-four blocks had already been destroyed and that 500 bodies had been brought into the morgue, and that Berkeley was in ruins. In view of the calamity he asked immediate consideration of the following joint resolution, which was adopted without debate:

"Resolved, by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Secretary of War be, and he is hereby authorized and directed, to loan to the Mayors of the Cities of San Francisco, Berkeley, Oakland, Alameda, and such other cities on the Pacific Coast as have sustained damage, under such regulations and restrictions as he may deem proper, a sufficient number of tents to temporarily shelter such persons as may have been rendered homeless and lost property by the earthquake of this date and attending conflagration, and to issue rations, supplies, and render such other aid to such as are destitute and unable to provide for themselves;

"Be it further provided, That the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of the Navy are also hereby directed to co-operate with the Secretary of War in extending relief and assistance to the stricken people herein referred to to the extent of the use of the naval vessels, revenue cutters, and supplies under their control on the Pacific Coast."

Read in Absolute Quiet.

The House had been in a listless mood all day, and it had been with unusual difficulty that the man in the chair had been able to maintain a semblance of order. But during the reading of this resolution absolute quiet prevailed, and every member on the floor sat with his eyes fixed on the paper in the Clerk's hands, as if reading the resolution for himself. When the reading was finished, Speaker Cannon announced that without objection the resolution would be considered as passed.

Immediately Representative Gill of Maryland was on his feet with another resolution. Without undertaking to make any explanation of it, he sent it up and had it read as follows:

"That the sympathy of the House is hereby extended to the people of California in this hour of great distress caused by the extraordinary convulsion of nature in that State, and that as an expression of our profound sympathy we do now adjourn."

The resolution was adopted in the same manner as the first.

Secretary Metcalf has been all day trying to get some word about his family, and is to-night sitting beside a telegraph wire with a special operator. Up to a late hour to-night he had not been able to find out anything about them.

When the roll was called to-day at the Congress of the Daughters of the American Revolution there was no answer from any of the California delegation when that State was reached. All were out at the telegraph offices.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 18.—Grand Exalted Ruler R. W. Brown of the Order of Elks telegraphed the grand officers in San Francisco to-day asking if the grand lodge could be of assistance in relieving the distress of brother Elks or others.

Cable Messages Delayed.

The Commercial Cable Company announced at noon yesterday that messages for Honolulu, Manila, China, and Japan would be accepted subject to delay. The office of the company at San Francisco is in the zone affected by fires following the earthquake.

ATLANTA, Ga., April 18.—Mayor Woodward to-day sent a telegram to Mayor Schmitz of San Francisco expressing sympathy and offering aid. A meeting of the City Council here was called for to-morrow morning to take suitable action in regard to the San Francisco disaster.

THE DISASTER'S EFFECT ON THE STOCK MARKET

'FRISCO TRACTION HARD HIT

Net Loss of 15 Points in United Railways Investment Issue—Rally of 13 Points.

News of the earthquake at San Francisco reached Wall Street before the opening of the market yesterday, and the first prices of the day showed losses in most of the stocks directly affected by the disaster. As the later reports reached the Street showing that the first accounts had apparently not exaggerated the actual loss the market yielded still further.

There was heavy liquidation in many of the active stocks, and in some of these the losses by 2 o'clock amounted to as much as three points. The only issue which broke very violently on the news was the stock of the United Railways Investment Company of San Francisco, which declined from 92 at the opening to 64. There were practically no buyers of the stock, and drops of three or four points occurred between sales. The absence of specific information in regard to the extent to which the property of the company had been damaged by the earthquake made every one hesitate about buying the stock. Nevertheless, before the end of the day, the price rallied 13 points from the bottom. At the close the stock was selling at 77, a net loss of 15 points compared with the final price of the previous day. The preferred declined from 85½ to 71 and rallied to 75½. Its net loss amounted to 10 points. The extreme decline in the stock represented a loss of approximately $3,000,000 on the company's $10,000,000 of common stock.

The market was unfavorably affected by the decision of the Government to proceed with the formulation of cases against the coal companies and coal-carrying railroads as well as by the disaster in California. Reading and some of the other coal stocks were among those which lost heavily yesterday.

The principal net losses for the day, apart from the United Railways Investment issues, were Union Pacific, 2⅝; Southern Pacific, 1⅞; Amalgamated Copper, 2¼; American Smelter, 2⅞; Delaware, Lackawanna & Western, 12⅜; Atchison, 2, and Reading, 3.

It was thought likely yesterday that New York would be called upon to ship money to San Francisco through the Sub-Treasury to enable the banks in that city to meet possible large demands for currency. No such transfers, however, were made yesterday, and at the Sub-Treasury it was expected that such demands for money would not be received here until quieter conditions prevailed in San Francisco. After the Baltimore fire, New York sent about $800,000 to that city through the Sub-Treasury, and it is believed that San Francisco will ask for money in the same way.

FRISCO TRACTION LINES.

In view of the large interest of the United Railways Investment Company in San Francisco, through its ownership of the United Railroads of San Francisco, these figures of the capitalization and earnings of the Investment Company and of its proprietary properties are of interest:

The outstanding obligations of the United Railways Investment Company are gold bonds and preferred and common stock to the amount of $31,150,000. The company owns United Railroads of San Francisco common stock, $20,000,000; preferred stock, $20,000,000, and ten-year 5 per cent. notes, $1,000,000; also $21,000,000 par value common stock of the Philadelphia Company, making total securities owned $62,000,000, against $51,150,000 of its own or assumed obligations outstanding.

For the year ending Dec. 31, 1905, the United Railroads of San Francisco, after paying all charges, would have accruing to it actual net earnings above fixed charges and sinking funds of $2,031,500, which is equal to nearly 10 per cent. upon the outstanding common stock

SHOCK MAY RECUR, SAYS PROF. TARR

If San Francisco Was the Centre, She Is Still in Peril.

SEISMIC EXPERT'S VIEWS

Ralph Stockman Tarr, Professor of Dynamic Geology and Physical Geography at Cornell, and perhaps the most noted authority in America on seismic disturbances, telegraphed from Ithaca to THE TIMES last night his views on the causes of the disaster.

Prof. Tarr was formerly connected with the United States Geological Survey and the Smithsonian Institution. He is the author of several monographs and text books on geology and physical geography, and is the associate editor of the Journal of Geography. He observed personally an earthquake in Alaska about five years ago which probably marked the last seismic change on the North American continent previous to this. It hoisted the territory surrounding the Muir Glacier. Prof. Tarr lectured on the subject before the American Geological Society at its last conference.

Here is what Prof. Tarr thinks of the causes of the disaster:

To the Editor of The New York Times:

ITHACA, April 18.—Ninety-four per cent. of all recorded earthquake shocks occur in two narrow zones following two great circles of the earth. One of these passes through the West Indies, Mediterranean, Caucasus, and Himalaya regions, and in this belt 53 per cent. of all recorded earthquakes have occurred.

The other, in which California lies, encircles the Pacific, following the Andes, the mountains of Western North America, the Aleutian Islands, Japan, and the East Indies. Forty-one per cent. of all known shocks have occurred in this belt.

Other regions on the earth have supplied but 6 per cent. of recorded earthquakes, and these for the most part were of slight intensity. Consequently, areas outside these belts are in slight danger of earthquakes. The two zones of recent shaking are also regions of volcanic eruptions and growing mountains.

The great majority of the active volcanoes of the earth lie in these belts, and geological evidence proves conclusively that in these zones the mountains are still rising. These two phenomena, volcanoes and growing mountains, account for the vast majority of earthquake shocks. The movements of the lava and of the pent-up steam preceding and accompanying volcanic eruptions send out tremors and shocks through the earth. But the most extensive and violent shaking occurs when the rocks break or move along previous breaks, called faults. Then a succession of jars passes through the crust, often doing great damage. Such movements result from the strains to which the rigid crust of the earth is subjected in the process of mountain growth.

His Alaskan Experience.

This may be illustrated by a specific instance that the writer studied last Summer in Alaska, which lies in the same belt as California. In September, 1899, Yakutat Bay, which lies at the base of Mount St. Elias, was visited by a series of earthquake shocks, beginning the third and ending the twentieth, being especially violent on the tenth and fifteenth of the month. At the same time there was such a violent earthquake in the Muir Inlet that the front of Muir Glacier was so shattered that for several years the tourist steamer could not go to the glacier. Fortunately few people lived in the affected district, but from prospectors we learn that the shocks were of great violence, probably far more violent than that at San Francisco.

My studies of last Summer prove that these shocks were the result of slipping of the mountain rocks along a number of fault lines due to an upward rising of the Mount St. Elias range. This uplift bore up with it the beaches on the shores of the bay, and they now stand at various elevations above present tide level. In one part of the bay the upraised shore line is forty-seven feet above present high tide, and on it still cling barnacles and marine shells which in 1899 were growing in the seas, but among which young alder bushes are now growing.

It is too early to pronounce a final opinion upon the nature and cause of the San Francisco earthquake, but from what has been said it will be seen that it is probable that this shock is the result of movements along one or more fault lines in the course of the natural growth of the Coast Ranges, which geologists have long known to be still in progress throughout the entire extent of California. That the Coast Ranges are growing is proved by numerous evidences. There are upraised shore lines at various points along the California coast, proving recent uplift. The very bay of San Francisco is the result of a geologically recent subsidence of this part of the coast which has admitted the sea into the gorge that the Sacramento River formerly cut across the Coast Ranges. This forms the Golden Gate, and in the broader mountain valley behind the sea has spread out to form the bay.

Mountains There Growing.

A further reason for knowing that the mountains of this region are growing is the frequency of earthquake shocks in California. Every year there are from twenty-five to forty earthquakes recorded in the State, and not a few of these have been felt in San Francisco itself. For example, on March 30, 1898, there was a shock which did damage to the extent of $342,000 at the Mare Island Navy Yard. The city is in a region of earthquake frequency, and itself seems to be near a line of movement. Whether the centre of greatest disturbance of the present shock is in or near the city cannot yet be told, though the meagre reports so far received indicate this. If it is, San Francisco is in danger of future disasters.

It is the experience in the study of earthquakes due to fault movement that the slipping may extend through a period of days before the strain is fully relieved. This was illustrated in the Yakutat Bay earthquake, which lasted seventeen days. Therefore it need not be surprising if the shock of yesterday is followed by others, but this is not an absolutely certain conclusion, for it is possible that the single slip completely relieved the strain for the time.

Some day—no one can tell when—the strain will again need relief, and renewed slipping will occur, and with it renewed shaking of the crust, the violence of which will depend upon the amount of slipping. It is a necessary result of mountain growth. This instance is but one of many thousands on record, and from all accounts apparently not one of the greatest magnitude. It has attracted our attention because it happened to be near a great centre of population, and not far away from habitations, as was the case with the Yakutat Bay earthquake, which was scarcely noticed.

Connection with Vesuvius.

Coming so soon after the eruption of Vesuvius it is natural to think of association between the two phenomena. There is, however, no known geological reason for associating the two. They are too far apart, and on two separate zones of earthquake frequency. For these reasons they can hardly be sympathetic. Geologists will, I feel confident, agree that the close relation between the eruption of Vesuvius and the San Francisco earthquake from the standpoint of time is a mere coincidence. The shock is but one of many in the history of California; it is one out of many in the great circum-Pacific belt of earthquakes even during the present year—one more movement chanced to come near a great city a short time after an eruption of Vesuvius.

I am confident also that, barring its occurrence near a city, geologists will agree that the San Francisco earthquake is a normal outcome of rock movements which are a necessary result of mountain growth. The reason for the mountain growth, however, is not a subject upon which agreement would be so general. This is not the place to enter into a discussion of that subject, and it must suffice therefore to state a hypothesis most generally held by geologists as best supported by the evidence. This hypothesis is that the heated earth in cooling is contracting; that in doing this the cold, rigid crust along certain lines is being crumpled, placed in a state of strain, and broken. When the break occurs and a renewed movement is forced along a previous line of breaking an earthquake results. The mountain belt which almost completely encircles the Pacific is receiving the thrust from the shrinking of the earth, and for that reason its mountains are rising all the way from the Southern Andes to the Bering Sea and from the Kurile Islands (in the North Pacific) to the East Indies. With this rising melted rock is forced out here and there in form of volcanic cones, and by their eruptions and by the slippings of the rocks along fault planes earthquake shocks are occurring throughout the zone and may always be expected to occur so long as the mountains continue to grow.

VIEWS OF SCIENTISTS.

Earthquake Not Connected with Vesuvius, They Declare.

Scientists in New York interviewed by a TIMES reporter yesterday on the causes of the earthquake scouted the idea that the recent activities of Mount Vesuvius could have had anything to do with yesterday's upheaval in California. They declared it merely an interesting coincidence that the Italian volcano was on the same parallel as San Francisco and the regions in Cis-Caucasus and the Canary Islands, from which recently seismic disturbances have been reported.

"If there was any connection between the eruptions of Vesuvius and the Cis-Caucasus and Canary Island earthquakes," said Prof. James F. Kemp, who occupies the chair of geology at Columbia University, "other places in all probability would have suffered, too. New York, for instance, is on the same parallel as all these places. While I would not deliver an absolute opinion, to my mind these disturbances have nothing to do with the California earthquake.

"The California coast is a place where earthquakes of more or less violence are frequent. The Pacific Coast line is one of the latest additions to our continent. Conditions there are absolutely unsettled; it is still in the making. The coast, which I visited last year, traveling for about 200 miles along it, is very abrupt. It has few good harbors and is very mountainous. It is a more unstable country than any other part of the United States.

A Slipping Caused It.

"The present earthquake in all probability was started by a slipping along some fault line, as we call it, in the interior of the earth. A fault line is a line where two or more geological deposits from the same or different formative periods meet. Accelerated by one cause or another, these deposits slip apart and create a rift. There is a consequent adjustment of the crust of the earth to the new conditions in the interior, and this generally is the cause of an earthquake. Fault lines are very common in the mountainous country of California."

Prof. Kemp, as an illustration of the geological contrasts that often cause earthquakes, pointed to the geological formation of the Palisades and that of Manhattan Island.

"If we were to project the Palisades on Manhattan Island, the bottom layer of the Palisades would go over Manhattan Island. It is a later formation, and the contrast to the formations on Manhattan is very great."

"Do you think there is any danger that the seismic wave which caused the devastation of San Francisco might travel east?" Prof. Kemp was asked.

"I do not think so," he replied. "The direction of these waves on the American continent are not east and west, but north and south. The lines of weakness which are the lines of upheaval follow the great mountain ranges, and these run parallel with the coast lines of the continent so far as we know."

Prof. Kemp said he thought the earthquake in California was not of volcanic origin, and therefore had no connection with the great upheavals that have occurred from time to time in Central America and the northern part of South America.

"The outer portion of the earth," he said, "from time to time adjusts itself to interior conditions. No exact theory for these adjustments has been formulated, but two or three suggestions have been advanced as to the causes.

"Some think that the adjustments are due to the earth radiating heat and a consequent shrinkage in the interior.

Rotation of the Earth.

"Others believe that they are due to the fact that the earth is gradually slowing up in its rotations, causing a flattening at the poles and a swelling at the equator, and the crust of the earth is readjusting itself to this new shape. Our mountain ranges provide the lines of upheaval in these occasional readjustments. The vibration of a slipping in the bowels of the earth naturally will extend over a certain territory, the vibrations weakening in proportion to the distance from the centre.

"The entire Pacific Coast region has been formed by some violent upheaval at a time prehistoric even as geological periods go. The surface of the Pacific in those past ages must have been much higher than its present level. We know this, because we still can discover the traces of beaches on the bluffs far above the sea. There has been no rising of the North American continent south of Alaska since it became the home of the white man. South America has been raised within the last century or so. There we can still find shellfish clinging to the rock far above the sea.

"The last change of some note that occurred on the North American continent was about five years ago when a section of Alaska about the Muir Glacier was hoisted considerably by a seismic upheaval. Prof. Tarr of Cornell observed it and read a very interesting paper on his observations before the Geological Society last Winter.

Prof. Hovey's Views.

Prof. Edmund Otis Hovey, Fellow of the American Geological Society and Associate Curator of the Geological Department of the American Museum of Natural History, was another scientist who discussed the earthquake. Prof. Hovey visited Martinique after the recent eruption of Mont Pelée and the Soufrière.

"All the Pacific Coast," he said, "is comparatively new territory. Frequent seismic disturbances occur there owing to the fact that the mountain-building forces constantly are at work in this territory. Volcanic and seismic disturbances only mark the efforts of the rigid crust of the earth to conform to the contractions due to loss of heat beneath the surface of the earth.

"San Francisco stands on ground the foundations of which were formed by ancient volcanoes. These volcanoes date from such ancient ages that there are several other geological formations on top of them and the volcanoes are deep down below the surface of the earth.

"Do you think that this earthquake is of volcanic origin?" Prof. Hovey was asked.

"While I hardly believe so, I would not be too positive," he replied. "The nearest volcano to San Francisco is Mount Shasta. This is about 250 miles north of the Golden Gate, and has been extinct for centuries. Mount St. Helena, 300 miles north, dominating a part of Northern California and Southern Oregon, was in eruption about sixty years ago. Several small volcanoes in Northern California have been active in the last 100 years. We have little positive or first-hand knowledge of these eruptions, and know of them only through later observations, because the region where they are situated was not inhabited by white men while they were active."

"Do you think this earthquake marks the culmination of the numerous less severe disturbances that have occurred in recent years, or do you believe something more severe is coming?" Prof. Hovey was asked.

"That would be impossible to say," Prof. Hovey replied. "This disturbance possibly may be less severe, as far as its effect on the surface of the earth is concerned, than some of those which have preceded it. It did more damage merely because it happened to strike San Francisco."

Doesn't Fear Another Soon.

Prof. Hovey said he did not fear that the present earthquake would be followed immediately by another equally severe.

"These earthquakes very seldom occur in rapid succession," he said. "The most destructive earthquake recorded here in the last century was the one at Charleston in 1886, but the most extensive was the one that occurred in 1812, and which is known as the New Madrid earthquake, because it extended south from that town, following the bottom of the Mississippi River. It created great changes in the surface of the earth, forming a lake seventy-five miles long, if I remember right."

"Do you think the earthquake will be followed by further seismic disturbances?"

"That would be hard to say," was the reply. "Such disturbances are likely to occur as long as there is any shrinkage under the surface, and that will go on until the subterranean strata have settled and all tension has been relieved."

According to Prof. Hovey, a German scientist who for years has been experimenting to trace a possible connection between barometric pressure and seismic disturbances following the mine explosion at Les Courrières predicted a series of seismic and volcanic upheavals.

"It seems as though the prediction of the German scientist has been verified, though I won't go so far as to say that his theory, however interesting, has been vindicated," said Prof. Hovey.

Prof. Berkey's Opinion.

Prof. Berkey of the Department of Geology at Columbia University said there were no instruments at that institution for recording seismic disturbances. The nearest are at Albany.

"There is no possible connection between the eruption of Mount Vesuvius and the earthquake at San Francisco," said Prof. Berkey when this was suggested to him. "Earthquakes are not necessarily of volcanic origin. The earth's crust in cooling contracts and often contracts unevenly, so as to cause the strata to slide. Such a sliding may have caused the San Francisco earthquake.

"Some scientists hold that volcanic eruptions are caused by a percolation of water from the sea into the heated parts of volcanoes and that the steam thus generated starts the eruption. According to the theory now generally accepted by scientists, however, volcanic eruptions are caused by steam, but not from water percolating from the sea but from contact of the molten matter with underground masses of water. Volcanoes thus become the safety valves of the earth."

Prof. William Hallock of the Department of Physics at Columbia held with Prof. Berkey that a "sliding" had caused the earthquake in San Francisco. He regretted the lack of instruments to record seismic disturbances at the university.

Many Pacific Shocks.

From a perusal of the bulletins of the United States Department of Geological Survey, it would appear that earthquakes, though of very moderate violence, have been of frequent occurrence in California and along the Pacific slope. The record for 1896 shows fifty-five such disturbances. In 1897 not fewer than eighty earthquakes are recorded. In 1898 there were twenty-four.

An odd circumstance manifest from the perusal of these records is that there are more earthquakes in March, April, May, and June than in other months of the year. In recent years the most severe earthquake occurred on March 30, 1898. This disturbance did more damage to property than any one that had occurred since the very destructive one of April, 1892.

The earthquake of 1898 extended to Vallejo and Benicia, but caused most destruction at the Mare Island Navy Yard. It lasted only forty seconds, but in that space of time destroyed nearly half a million dollars' worth of machinery at the Navy Yard. Only one San Francisco building, that at 445 Clementina Street, was destroyed, but several were damaged.

Northwest Volcanoes.

Geologists agree that in the north of California, in what is known as the Lassen Peak district, between the Sacramento Valley and the Great Basin and adjoining the northern end of the Sierra Nevada, there is a region sixty-nine miles long and fifty-three miles wide in which the presence of numerous hot springs shows volcanic activity in the bowels of the earth. Throughout this district there is a belt of volcanic cones some twenty-five miles wide and fifty miles long, which recently has aroused the interest of scientists.

Prof. Kemp of Columbia said that he did not believe that there was any connection between the possible activities of this chain of volcanoes and the San Francisco earthquake. The latest eruption in this region, he said, occurred some 200 years ago, when the Cinder Cone, near the centre of the district, had a violent outbreak, the latest of note in the North American Continent south of Alaska. Dense forests have since grown up in this district on a seven-foot layer of volcanic sand that was scattered all over the district and destroyed all vegetation.

PROF. PICKERING'S VIEW.

Head of the Harvard Observatory Rejects Volcano Theory.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 18.—Prof. W. H. Pickering of the Harvard Observatory, said to-night:

"There is no evidence that the disturbance on the Pacific Coast is the result of any volcanic action, or that it is in any way connected with the disturbances in other parts of the world.

"Where earthquakes are caused by volcanic eruptions, the disturbance extends only within a limited area, not more than a hundred miles or so. These are short and very violent. For this reason the disturbances of Mount Ranier in Washington State probably had no relation with that at San Francisco, as it is too far way.

"Earthquakes of the kind occurring at San Francisco are caused by the slipping of strata at the ocean bed. This is very probably the cause of the present disaster.

"The slope from the shore to the bed of the ocean is very steep. This rests directly on the bed of the ocean, and, as frequently occurs, cracks form at the junction. The result is a slipping of the whole formation to fill up the gap.

"This may occur at once or some time later. When it does slip, the effect is felt in an earthquake on the nearest shore. This is what has occurred at San Francisco.

"Such occurrences are more frequent on the Pacific Coast than on the Atlantic, for the simple reason that the slope is so much steeper there. Japan suffers frequently for this reason, and South America frequently sees such disturbances."

SAYS COAST MAY SINK.

Carnegie Institute's Head Fears for Land West of Mountains.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, April 18.—Dr. W. J. Holland, head of the Carnegie Institute at Pittsburg, here as a delegate to the Franklin bicentennial, said to-night:

"The extreme western coast of the Americas is subject to almost continual disturbance. The coast line represents for the most part comparatively recent geological formation.

"There are series of what might be called cracks in the earth's surface extending along the western coast line from Patagonia to Alaska. The stretch of earth between the mountain ranges and coast is constantly uplifting or sinking, and it is not impossible that it may all sink.

"There is no doubt that there has been a breakdown and shifting of strata, perhaps at a very great depth in the region of San Francisco. There is certainly great connection between this earthquake and recent private reports which have come to me of intense volcanic activity on the part of Mount Tacoma. I would say that it is not possible to connect the disturbance in San Francisco with the activity of Mount Vesuvius.

"There has been great potential energy on the Pacific Coast, and this energy is being changed into actual energy, and the whole coast is in danger of subsidence."

A SEISMIC PATH.

Disturbances Are Curiously Between the 30th and 40th Parallels.

In spite of the declarations of some scientists that there can be no possible connection between the eruption of Mount Vesuvius and the earthquake at San Francisco, others are inclined to view certain facts in regard to recent seismic and volcanic activity as, to say the least, suggestive.

Last month there was a severe earthquake in the Island of Formosa, and many lives were lost there, while an enormous amount of damage was done. A few days ago there was another earthquake in the same island. Still greater havoc was caused by it than by the earthquake in March, but fewer lives were lost, so far as is known at present, the reason being that the people were warned in time.

Ten days ago the eruption of Mount Vesuvius reached its height and devastated the country around the volcano, covering an enormous territory with ashes, and caused the loss of hundreds of lives.

On Tuesday night word was received from Platigorsk, Ciscaucasia, that there had been two severe earthquake shocks the previous day in Northern Caucasia.

The same night a telegram from Madrid said that the newspapers there reported that the long-dormant volcano on Palma, the largest of the Canary Islands, was showing signs of eruption, columns of smoke issuing from the crater.

There is one very remarkable circumstance in regard to all this activity. All the places mentioned—Formosa, Southern Italy, Caucasia, and the Canary Islands—lie within a belt bounded by lines a little north of the fortieth parallel and a little south of the thirtieth parallel. San Francisco is just south of the fortieth parallel, while Naples is just north of it. The latitude of Calabria, where the terrible earthquakes occurred last year, is the same as that of the territory affected by yesterday's earthquake in the United States.

There is another coincidence, which may be only a coincidence, but which is also suggestive. The last previous great eruption of Vesuvius was in 1872, and the same year saw the last previous earthquake in California which caused loss of life.

DISASTERS SUFFERED BY SAN FRANCISCO

City Never Before Damaged Much by Earthquakes.

FIRES SWEPT THE OLD TOWN

Her Many Wooden Houses Were Put Up Because Earth Tremors Did Not Affect Them Much.

The greatest disasters that have hitherto come to San Francisco have been fires, although there have been frequent earth tremors. These have discouraged the construction of the kind of office buildings with which New York is familiar. Most of the important office buildings of the city are built of stone, and their solidity reminds the Easterner of the Tribune building in this city. Many of the dwellings are of wood, although many of the residences in the better part of the city are of stone.

High buildings were thought impossible in San Francisco until about fifteen years ago. In 1890 The Chronicle built the first ten-story building in the city. That was followed by others a few stories higher, although in 1903 the wooden buildings were still very much in excess of the buildings of brick and stone. In 1903 there were only 3,881 brick and stone buildings as compared to 50,494 frame buildings.

According to Prof. E. S. Holden's catalogue of California earthquakes, covering the years between 1769 and 1896, ten of the earthquakes of the nineteenth century were sufficiently serious to crack the walls of buildings and discourage the erection of high and fireproof brick and stone buildings, thus always laying the city more liable to destruction in case of fire.

Many Earth Tremors.

In the thirty-six years between 1850 and 1886 there were in San Francisco alone 254 separate light seismic disturbances, and in the same time in the entire State there were 514 tremors. A very severe shakeup was on Oct. 8, 1865, when the tremor cracked the walls of many buildings, and so frightened the people that a lot of pioneer families left the city and State. The weird murmur and the clattering of loose objects on the earth that go with earth tremors have since become familiar things to San Franciscans.

A severe shock in 1852 destroyed one of the ancient and picturesque missions of the Franciscan Fathers in Southern California. It was felt in San Francisco, but it did little damage there.

On March 26 and 27, 1872, there was a series of violent shocks in the Inyo Valley, which destroyed several small towns and killed some thirty persons. The disturbance was felt in San Francisco, where the usual cracking of building walls accompanied the quiver. Great damage was done to the Lick House, a well-known hotel.

A shock in 1898 did much damage in San Francisco, though it did not cause any loss of life. It began at 11:43 on the morning of March 31. Houses were shaken to their foundations, and even the old residents who were used to the ordinary tremors were excited. A tidal wave accompanying the shock rolled in from the bay to wreck small boats and parts of the docks. The city was cut off from telegraphic communication for several hours. Since that time no buildings more than two stories in height have been erected on the Government reservation on Mare Island, for the seismic disturbance of 1898 did over $150,000 damage to the naval station there.

This shock was felt in Central and Northern California. Serious damage was done in three or four small interior towns, where fires started. The tremor of 1898 is said to have been the severest San Francisco ever experienced, and it was counted remarkable that no lives were lost.

Residents Didn't Worry.

Little news comes out of San Francisco about the ordinary and frequent tremors or "temblores," as they are called, for it is not good business for the city. Strangers sojourning there are sometimes alarmed by the quivering of the earth that makes gas fixtures clatter and the bed shake, but the old San Franciscan will always count such things as nothing, pooh-poohing the idea of danger. Often a stranger who sees usually stable things about him cutting up is told that blasting just outside the city is responsible for the shock. In most cases it is some slight seismic disturbance that is responsible.

The City Hall in San Francisco is one of the very finest buildings in the city, and the people are proud of it. It cost $9,000,000. One Sunday not long ago it was noticed that the peak of one of the twin towers had been jarred from its base. It was denied that seismic disturbances had caused it, but the popular idea laid it all to the "temblores."

San Francisco seems to be always the subject for either very sudden evil fortune or very sudden good fortune. In 1849 her population was about 20,000. It had just sprung up into a somewhat big city for those days and that section of the country, following the discovery of gold in her neighborhood. Like a mushroom it had grown, coming up almost in a night from a little village that was almost a century old.

The First Big Fire.

While the city was experiencing the first influx of good fortune there came the first big fire, in 1849. All the buildings on Kearny Street, between Washington and Clay, were swept away. The loss was $1,000,000, which was big for a city of its size. Lumber and labor were hard to get. The wages for laborers went up as much as $8 or even $16 a day.

But in spite of the difficulties, San Francisco built up her burned district with even better houses than had been there before. Then the next year, on May 4, 1850, three whole blocks were eaten up by the flames. Two of them were between Clay, Jackson, Kearny, and Montgomery Streets. The other one was bounded by Washington, Kearny, Jackson, and Dupont Streets. Parts of other blocks were burned. The loss this time was $3,000,000.

In a perfect frenzy the San Franciscans began to rebuild. Six weeks later, on June 14, a fire swept away everything bounded by Clay, California, and Kearny Streets and the water front. Again the loss was $3,000,000. Nevertheless, rebuilding was begun at once, the effort always being to put up better houses than had burned down. In the last two fires the merchants had suffered heavily. Piles of goods lay about on the streets and much of it was stolen. The harbor was filled with old hulks that were used to store away the goods that had been dragged from the burning buildings.

The next year, on the anniversary of the fire of May 4, flames swept over the entire business section of the city, burning what had escaped former fires and what had been built since they devastated San Francisco. The damage this time was $7,000,000. More than 1,500 houses were destroyed, and many persons were killed. Workmen connected with two of the several brick stores remained inside their walls to protect the goods. They perished.

Sixteen Blocks Burned.

The flames raged over sixteen blocks, ten being bounded by Pine, Jackson, Kearny, and Sansome Streets; five by Sansome, Battery, and Sacramento Streets and Broadway, and one by Kearny, Montgomery, Washington, and Jackson Streets. The Custom House and the old Jenny Lind Theatre were destroyed. A man suspected of having set the fire was beaten to death in the sight of the flames he was supposed to have started. A Vigilance Committee took charge of the city. The harbor was filled with still more hulks that were brought from anywhere to hold the goods of the merchants. San Francisco was more a city of the water than of the land.

But San Francisco was not done with fires for even a breathing spell. A few weeks later, June 22, eight more blocks went to ashes. There wasn't much to San Francisco then but a few little houses on the outskirts of what had been the city and a motley collection of hulks that choked the harbor.

One reason why the fires had been so disastrous was that the buildings were of wood. As the city built up after that finer and more substantial buildings took the place of those that had been destroyed, but always the thought of earth tremors influenced builders to put up frame structures.

Last Previous Earthquake.

The last earthquake that occurred in San Francisco before yesterday's was about the middle of January, 1900. Several distinct shocks were felt early in the morning, causing the vibration of buildings all over the city. The chief building affected was the St. Nicholas Hotel, which was severely shaken. The walls collapsed in parts of the structure, patrons were thrown out of their beds, and furniture was destroyed.

In 1904 there was a severe seismic disturbance in Los Angeles, which was felt throughout that city and miles around. No actual damage was done, but this was the most severe shock that has ever been felt in Southern California.

RAILS SINK DOWN.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., April 18.—The severest earthquake felt in this city in many years occurred at 5:13 o'clock this morning. Buildings rocked like cradles. Many clocks stopped. No serious damage was done here. A few cracks were discovered in the stone Post Office Building. Slight damage was done to some brick buildings.

There are great crevices on each side of the tracks through the Suisun Marshes, and it is reported that a great ocean of water has flowed over the lowlands between Suisun and Benecia.

A short distance below Suisun a Southern Pacific switch engine sank into the ground for a distance of three feet, not far from where the tracks disappeared.

Reports received from the train dispatcher's office tell of minor earthquake damage at Suisun and Tracy, San Joaquin County.

At Napa there was scarcely a whole pane of window glass left.

A short time after the shock a message came from Suisun, Solano County, saying that a long section of track had disappeared from view. It was learned later that at one place between Sprig and Teal stations, in the Suisun marshes for a distance of one mile and a half the track had sunk three to six feet and at another point near 1,000 feet of track went out. Trains which were dispatched for San Francisco had to be brought back and sent by the Lathrop route.

OUR OPERA COMPANY WAS IN SAN FRANCISCO

ALL BELIEVED TO BE SAFE

Conried Unable to Get In Direct Communication with His Representative on the Coast.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—5 P. M.—The Conried Metropolitan Opera House Company of New York, which had just opened a two weeks' engagement at the Grand Opera House, lost its entire consignment of valuable scenery. The artists suffered heavily in the loss of personal baggage, but they were all found later, to be safe.

The Grand Opera House, where the company opened a two weeks' engagement on Monday night, was one of the oldest theatres in San Francisco. It is in Mission Street, between Third and Fourth Streets, and for years it was the leading playhouse of the city. The performance on Tuesday night given by the Metropolitan Opera Company was "Carmen," with Caruso and Fremstad in the leading rôles.

This dispatch, from The Associated Press correspondent, was all that was received last night to relieve the anxiety of the friends of Mr. Conried and those in his company.

Director Conried said late last night that he had received no word from his company, but since private messages have been almost entirely, if not altogether, lacking from that city he is not surprised. Dispatches indicate that the Palace Hotel, where the company was staying, was one of the last important places reached by the fire, and Mr. Conried's belief is that none of the members is hurt. The financial loss will of course be considerable, as there were several weeks to play, and the indications are now that the engagement will suffer materially.

Mr. Conried could form no plans as to the course he should pursue until he knew better what the conditions were. The San Francisco engagement was to extend to April 28. On April 30 there was to be a performance in Los Angeles, which would be the last one of the tour, and the company would then come East. The monetary loss caused by a cancellation of the engagement would be very great, as the advance sale for the rest of the San Francisco performances after Tuesday amounted to $118,000.

The artists who were with the company in San Francisco were Mmes. Sembrich, Eames, Abott, Rappold, Alten, Fremstad, Walker, Homer, Bauermeister, Jacoby, Mulford, Ralph, and Poehlmann, and Messrs. Caruso, Burgstaller, Dippel, Van Rooy, Scotti, Journet, Campanari, Blass, Mühlmann, Goritz, Rossi, Dufriche, Parvis, Paroli, Bégué, and Reiss, with the three conductors, Hertz, Vigna, and Franko.

SYMPATHY ABROAD.

Movement to Raise Money for San Francisco Sufferers Inaugurated.

LONDON, Thursday, April 19.—The calamity which has befallen the people of San Francisco overshadows in interest all other topics in the newspapers here this morning. All the papers publish long special dispatches describing the terrible effects of the earthquake, with descriptions of the city.

Following so close upon the heels of the eruption of Mount Vesuvius and the earthquake shocks on the Island of Formosa, the possible connection between the events is being earnestly debated. Few scientists have as yet expressed an opinion on the subject.

Prof. John Milne, whose seismic observatory at Shide, on the Isle of Wight, recorded a disturbance at 1:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, English time, expresses the opinion that the earthquake had no connection whatever with the volcanic eruption. Prof. Milne secured a number of photographic records.

E. W. Maundes, Superintendent of the Greenwich Observatory, on the contrary, considers that in all probability the San Francisco earthquake was a direct consequence of the activity of Mount Vesuvius. He argues that the eruption started a severe wave movement through the crust of the earth.

Dr. Davidson of Birmingham, another seismic expert, obtained valuable records, but could suggest no connection between the Vesuvius and San Francisco disasters.

All the morning newspapers print editorials deeply sympathizing with the American people and the victims of the calamity. The Standard says:

"We are well convinced that there will not be lacking in this land, so happily removed from these sudden calamities, an impulse to succor our brethren in distress."

BERLIN, April 19.—All the morning newspapers deal sympathetically with the situation arising from the earthquake in San Francisco. The Tageblatt says it is certain that the entire German people will evince their sincerest sympathy with the sorely visited city, and intimates that money to assist the needy will be raised in Germany.

Prof. Archenhold, director of the Treptow Astronomical Observatory, expresses himself as very doubtful that the eruption of Vesuvius had anything to do with the earthquake at San Francisco.

NO VESUVIUS CONNECTION.

Prof. Charles F. Marvin Thinks This Earthquake a Separate Disturbance.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 17.—Prof. Charles F. Marvin, who is the Meteorology expert in the United States Weather Bureau, said to-night that he did not think any common cause existed between the San Francisco earthquake and the eruption of Vesuvius.

"The disturbances around Vesuvius were purely local," said he. "We had no record here of any vibrations in the earth's surface, and the general belief of scientists is that the phenomena there were wholly local.

"This earthquake at San Francisco is more general in character. It was undoubtedly recorded in India and in England. You can see how rapidly such earthquake waves travel when you note that the reports say the upheaval occurred in San Francisco at 5:13 or 5:15, and our first register of the vibrations began at 8:19.

"It must be remembered that we do not know the location of the cause of the disturbance at San Francisco and cannot tell the direction of the greatest wave force. We may have been situated laterally to the path of the wave. The seismograph here records a displacement of the earth's surface just one-tenth of the length of the wave on the cylinder of the instrument. Therefore the disturbance here was four-tenths of an inch, the longest wave on the instrument being 4 inches long.

"There have been many more earthquakes this past year than several years prvious," continued Prof. Marvin. "We have had numerous records here of late. The earthquake in Formosa the fourteenth was registered here. Just before that, on April 9, there was a distinct disturbance somewhere. We have had no information as to where that occurred, and are in correspondence to find out where it was. We have received letters from other observatories where there are seismographs, asking if we had a record of a disturbance on that date.

"Jan. 31 and for two days thereafter we had more decided records from the earthquake in Colombia than this one to-day. That came in the night, and none of our staff saw the needle recording the movements. A year ago, on April 3, we received a record of a violent earthquake, and the next day occurred the terrible earthquake in India, by which a score of cities and towns were nearly destroyed and many lives lost. The wave traveled around the world, and as always occurs in traveling from the Orient this way, gained a day in the calendar.

"We do not think there can have been any injury from a tidal wave on any portion of the Pacific Coast of the United States. Such a wave may have struck the coast of Japan. Such waves travel with great speed and are hardly noticable in midocean, but when they strike the land the trouble comes. The wave that followed the explosion of the volcano of Krakataua traveled 3,000 miles, and was at certain points estimated to be 120 feet high, but had expended its force. Ships rode upon it unharmed."

PROFESSOR TELLS OF SHOCKS.

Earthquakes Twisted Davidson's Seismograph Out of Shape.

OAKLAND, Cal., April 18.—Prof. George Davidson of the University of California, formerly connected with the United States Geodetic Survey, said to-night:

"The earthquake came from north to south, and the only description I am able to give of its effect is that it seemed like a terrier shaking a rat. I was in bed, but was awakened at the first shock. I began to count the seconds as I went toward the table where my watch was, being able through my practice closely to approximate the time in that manner. The shock came at 5:12 o'clock. The first sixty seconds were the most severe. From that time on it decreased gradually for about thirty seconds.

"There was then the slightest perceptible lull. Then the shock continued for sixty seconds longer, being slighter in degree in this minute than in any part of the preceding minute and a half. There were two slight shocks afterward, which I did not time. At 8:14 o'clock I recorded a shock of five seconds duration, and one at 4:15 of two seconds. There were slight shocks which I did not record at 5:17 and at 5:27. At 6:50 P. M. there was a sharp shock of several seconds.

"Regarding the cause, I maintain, as I always have, that it is the earth cooling on the inside. The cooling brings about contraction, which is bound to create a readjustment of the earth's surface.

"I have heard talk of the eruption of Vesuvius having connection with this disaster, but that is rank nonsense. My seismograph was twisted out of shape by the shock, so that I have no record from that.

"As to telling whether there will be a repetition of the earthquake, I can no more predict that than I could have predicted those of to-day."

ROOSEVELT OFFERS AID.

Sends Telegrams of Sympathy to Gov. Pardee and Mayor Schmitz.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—President Roosevelt manifested profound interest throughout the day in the news of the earthquake at San Francisco. Early in the morning he sent the following telegram to Gov. George C. Pardee at Sacramento and Mayor Eugene E. Schmitz at San Francisco:

"Washington, April 18.

"Hear rumors of great disaster through an earthquake at San Francisco, but know nothing of the real facts. Call upon me for any assistance I can render.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

Later in the day he sent the following dispatch to Mayor Schmitz:

"I share with all our people the horror felt at the catastrophe that has befallen San Francisco, and the most earnest sympathy with your citizens. If there is anything that the Federal Government can do to aid you it will be done.

He also sent the following message to Gov. Pardee:

"It was difficult at first to credit the news of the calamity that had befallen San Francisco. I feel the greatest concern and sympathy for you and the people not only of San Francisco, but of California, in this terrible disaster. You will let me know if there is anything that the National Government can do.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

The President to-night received this reply from Gov. Pardee:

"Sacramento, Cal., April 18.

"To the President, Washington:

"Owing to the interruption of telegraphic communication, the extent of the disaster in San Francisco is not well known here, but no doubt the calamity was very serious. People of California appreciate your prompt inquiry and offer of assistance. State troops doing patrol duty, and all that is possible is being done. Any assistance needed will call on you.

"GEORGE C. PARDEE, Governor."

AMERICA HAD SUFFERED FROM FEW EARTHQUAKES

In the Rest of the World They Have Cost Millions of Lives.

MANY JAPANESE VICTIMS

190,000 Killed in the Islands in 1703 and 30,000 in 1896—250,000 Victims at Antioch in A. D. 526.

Mallett's earthquake catalogue contains the record of nearly 7,000 seismic disturbances, but of these only a very small number affected the northern part of this hemisphere. While earthquakes are on record here as far back as 1755, when the inhabitants of Boston were scared by falling chimneys at about the time when Lisbon was destroyed, only three serious disturbances in the North American Continent are recorded.

Two of these occurred in California. One was in 1812, when while vesper service was being celebrated in the mission church at San Juan Capistrano the building collapsed, burying several hundred worshippers, some fifty of whom were killed. In 1872 a series of shocks passed through the Inyo Valley, Cal., with disastrous consequences both to life and property. Chasms opened in the ground, swallowing several persons. The town of Long Pine was buried under a crumbling hillside and twenty-seven of its inhabitants lost their lives. Some extraordinary phenomena were observed on that occasion. In several places the land sank many feet. Owen's Lake rose five feet, and for several hours the waters of two tributary rivers were running backward.

The third serious earthquake on this continent occurred in the City of Charleston, at about 10 P. M. on Aug. 31, 1886. The first shock was the most severe, causing the loss of about fifty lives by the collapse of buildings and destroying property to the value of $5,000,000. It was estimated at the time that seven-eighths of the buildings in the town were wrecked or damaged. The most terrible feature to the inhabitants was the continuance of slight shocks for ten days afterward. None of these caused damage, but they kept the population in a state of constant panic, and many slept out in the streets during the entire time.

Though this continent up to yesterday had suffered comparatively little from this cause, the rest of the earth, and particularly the tropical regions, has experienced terrible disasters through seismic upheavals, often accompanied by tidal waves that have swallowed up human lives by the tens of thousands. It is safe to say that no other natural cause has been so productive of death and destruction. The regions that have fared the worst have been Japan, the Sunda Islands, Asia Minor, and Central America.

Gibbon records an earthquake in the City of Antioch in A. D. 526, when a quarter of a million people were killed. The Island of Yeddo, in the Japanese Archipelago, suffered from a similar disaster in 1703, when it is said 190,000 persons were killed.

Again, in 1896, Japan was thus visited, although not so severely. In the evening of June 15 in that year something happened about two miles off the northeastern coast of the main island. It is thought that the walls of the subaquean crater known as the Tuscarora Deep suddenly collapsed, sending a mountain of water toward the sky and furnishing the impetus for three successive tidal waves, each one thirty feet high, which raced toward the coast, devastating the shores for a distance of 200 miles. Inside of five minutes 30,000 people were killed, 8,000 more were maimed, mostly for life, and 8,000 human dwellings were razed.

The wind that rose simultaneously had such force that it leveled whole forests, stripping every tree of its leaves and branches. Next to no warning was given. The barometer had recorded no impending disturbance. The weather was fine. The people were at the time celebrating what is known as the "Boys' Festival." Suddenly a hollow booming, wholly different from thunder, was heard out at sea.

"The sardines are coming," said the people, and went on merry-making. That was twenty-five minutes before they were struck by the tidal wave. Fishermen at work four miles out at sea did not know that anything unusual had happened until they approached the shore, when they found numerous dead bodies floating in the water.

At about the time of the volcanic disaster which overwhelmed the City of St. Pierre on the Island of Martinique on May 8, 1902, when 25,000 persons were killed, a large area in the Western Hemisphere was affected by seismic disturbances. On April 10 the Aleutian Islands experienced an earthquake shock. On April 18 another shock struck Guatemala, laying the northwestern corner of that country in ruins.

The Island of Krakatoa, fifteen miles off the coast of Java, disappeared on Aug. 26, 1883. Over 50,000 persons perished at that time. The whole topography of the region was changed. In one place eighteen new volcanic peaks rose out of the ground. The tidal wave which rose as a result of the earthquake proceeded westward at the rate of 467 miles an hour and made itself distinctly felt on the South African Coast, 5,000 miles away.

It has been characteristic of almost all great seismic disturbances that they made themselves felt simultaneously in places far distant from each other. When on Nov. 1, 1755, Lisbon was completely destroyed, with an estimated loss of 50,000 lives, and property valued at $100,000,000, the earth trembled simultaneously in the West Indies and Asia Minor, in Scotland and Morocco.

The last earthquake of a disastrous character recorded prior to that at San Francisco yesterday destroyed a score of villages in the southern part of Italy on Sept. 8, 1905.

BENEFITS FOR THE SUFFERERS.

Four Performances Announced by New York Theatre Managers.

Among the theatrical people along Broadway, a number of whom come from California, the San Francisco disaster caused much anxiety. Throughout the afternoon groups of actors and actresses gathered about THE TIMES bulletins, in the heart of the uptown theatre district, eagerly discussing the chance of getting news from their friends and relatives on the Pacific Coast. More than one theatrical manager was busy all day sending telegrams and waiting for replies that didn't come.

David Belasco is a Californian, born in San Francisco. His father and all his brothers and sisters live in the stricken city. David Warfield's mother, whom he visits every Summer, also lives there. Blanche Bates has several relatives there. All day long these three Californians tried hard to get news.

Of the Frohman forces, Alf Hayman, the general manager, spent his earlier years in San Francisco. William Collier and his company were to sail from San Francisco for Australia to-morrow. Nothing could be learned last night of the company's exact whereabouts, but it was reported that their steamer would sail as scheduled.

Florence Roberts, the San Francisco actress who made her début in New York last Monday night at the Liberty Theatre, said yesterday afternoon that she had spent the whole day between the telegraph office and the telephone. Her husband's son was to have sailed within the last few days for the Philippines, but nothing could be learned of his movements.

Four theatrical benefits for the relief of the San Francisco sufferers were announced by local theatre managers last night.

David Belasco will give a special matinée of "The Girl of the Golden West" at the Belasco Theatre on Tuesday afternoon, May 1. David Warfield will recite between the acts.

Lee Shubert announced last night two special benefit matinées for next week. The first will be a performance of "Arms and the Man," at the Lyric, on Monday afternoon. A second performance will be given later in the week at the Casino, the programme to be made up of an act of "The Social Whirl," and act of "Zira," an act of "Brown of Harvard," and one of "Arms and the Man." The entire proceeds of these performance will be devoted to relieving the California sufferers.

At Weber's Music Hall there will be an extra matinée of "Twiddle Twaddle" and "The Squaw Man's Girl" next Tuesday afternoon for the same purpose.

PROCLAMATION BY SCHMITZ.

San Francisco's Mayor Warns Citizens to be Orderly.

OAKLAND, Cal., April 18.—At a meeting of the Committee of Safety to-day Mayor Schmitz of San Francisco issued this proclamation:

To the Citizens of San Franco:

"The Federal troops, which are now policing a portion of the city, as well as the regular and special members of the police force, have been authorized by me to kill any persons whomsoever found engaged in looting the effects of any citizens or other wise engaged in the commission of crime.

"Under these circumstances they request that all citizens whose business does not require their absence from home after dark remain at home during the night time until order shall have been restored. I beg to warn all citizens of the danger of fire on account of defective or destroyed chimneys, gas pipes, gas fixtures, and the like.

WIRELESS WON'T WORK.

Navy Department Unable to Connect with San Francisco Stations.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Repeated attempts were made to-day by the Navy Department to get news of the San Francisco disaster by means of wireless telegraph, but without avail.

The navy has a station on Goat Island which is in San Francisco Bay, and has another station on the Farallone Islands, and a third at Point Arguella, near Port Harford, on the California coast, through which it was hoped communication might be established by means of the other two stations with trans-continental telegraph lines.

The telegraph communication to the station near Port Harford has not been completed, however, and attempts to get wireless dispatches through were unsuccessful.

HOW SAN FRANCISCO LOOKED ON TUESDAY

GREW LIKE A MUSHROOM

Was Burned Out Several Times, but Had Many Notable Buildings—Its Great Ferries.

San Francisco Bay is a long inlet in the western coast of California, forty-two miles long and from five to twelve miles wide. A long arm of land separates it from the ocean. The middle of that long ocean arm is pierced by a connecting link of water four miles long and one mile wide; that is the Golden Gate. South of the Golden Gate is a peninsula. And on the northern end of that tongue of land is San Francisco, the metropolis of the West, the largest city west of the Missouri River, the tenth largest city in the country, with a population of more than 400,000.

San Francisco is an old city. The first settlement made on the hilly peninsula was in 1769, when a party of Dominican padres who were looking for Monterey discovered the San Francisco Bay. The town was named after St. Francis, the founder of the order. In 1776 Gov. Duigo Borica sent Don Pedro de Alberni to report upon the upper end of the southern peninsula as a place for a growing town. Having decided that both water and wood were too scarce on the peninsula to support a growing village, Don Pedro reported that the worst place in all California to start a city was what has become San Francisco.

Commodore Montgomery took possession of San Francisco for the United States in 1846, while Mexico and the United States were at war. Previous to the discovery of gold in the late forties the little town on the bay or eastern corner of the southern peninsula had but a thousand inhabitants. It grew up like a mushroom from that time on, in spite of its five destructive fires between 1848 and 1851, which simply swept out of existence the business section of the city and destroyed $16,000,000 worth of property.

Became a Metropolis.

San Francisco became, nevertheless, the metropolis of the gold-producing section. It was filled with a class of adventurous young men, and it had few old men and few women. Following the great fires, the town was so upset that a Vigilance Committee was made up to preserve order. For several years the law of the land was the committee, and many a man was hung because the committee so willed it. Crude as was this administration of law, it was effective, and San Francisco grew amazingly. In 1860 the population was 56,802; in 1880 it was 233,959. The United States census gave it 342,782 in 1900, and now it claims over 400,000.

The population of the city is the most cosmopolitan in the country, one-third of the people being of foreign birth. Of the foreign element the Germans predominate with some 40,000, the Irish coming next with nearly 25,000 souls. The Chinese now number possibly less than 25,000, and it is reported that the number is diminishing yearly. The Japanese of late years have been coming into the city fast. The Oriental atmosphere is more pronounced in San Franciso than in any other city of the United States.

Despite the saying of the old Spaniard in the early days that the peninsula by the bay was the worst place in all California upon which to found a town, its position has helped San Francisco in its remarkable growth. It is the boast of Californians that all the navies in the world might ride in the land-locked bay. Shut in on all sides by rocky mountains of from 1,000 to 2,000 feet in height, San Francisco Bay is a perfect natural harbor, to which the shipping of the West has been naturally attracted.

The upper end of the bay connects with San Pablo Bay, which is some ten miles in diameter, and that in turn connects with Suisun Bay by the Strait of Karquines. The waters of the Sacramento and San Joaquin Rivers empty into Suisun Bay.

The situation of the city upon its peninsula gives it a unique climate. The Summer trade winds blow across the city, and during thirty years of observation the lowest temperature recorded was 29 degrees and the highest 100, while the lowest mean temperature for any one month in that period was 46 degrees and the highest 65 degrees. Semi-tropical plants grow there in the Winter.

And so because of its harbor, its climate, and its surrounding country, San Francisco grew to be the metropolis of the Pacific Coast. Its harbor is the chief cause of its upbuilding. From San Francisco run steamship lines to China and Japan, Australia, Mexico, Central and South America and the Hawaiian and Philippine Islands. An active coastwise trade centres at San Francisco. The activity of trade in the city is reflected by its bank clearings, which were more than a billion dollars in 1902. Since the Spanish-American war and the Russo-Japanese war trade through the Western port has increased enormously.

The western side of the long southern peninsula is hilly, sloping down to the eastward to the bay, where along the northeastern shore much of the ground now occupied by the wholesale and banking and real estate buildings has been made by filling in. Some of the houses in those sections are built on piles driven down to bed rock. Along the southern edges of the city are several suburban settlements and across the bay on the main coast to the eastward are Oakland, Port Richmond, Berkeley, Sausalito, Alameda, and other suburban places.

The city covers forty-seven square miles and there 750 miles of streets and 20 miles of boulevards. The city is governed by a charter adopted by the people in 1900. The city is free from debt. There is a provision in the charter that only 1 per cent. of the assessed valuation of property may be collected for ordinary municipal purposes, but a clause makes provision for the levying of an extra tax to meet extraordinary requirements. The assessed value of San Francisco property in 1903 was $428,000,000.

Great Ferries.

The Southern Pacific Railway is the only one that comes into San Francisco from the South by the mainland. The other systems take passengers to the city by huge ferryboats from Oakland and Point Richmond, across the bay. Even the Southern Pacific uses ferries into the city. Practically all who go to San Francisco by the land enter through the biggest ferry house in the world, which is at the northeast corner of the peninsula on the bay side.

The State maintains this ferry building, whose iron work, the dispatches say, was twisted by the earthquake. It is over 800 feet long, built of light-colored sandstone, and surmounted by a clock tower. The clock stopped at 5:15 yesterday morning, it is reported. The building contains a lofty nave, which is frequently used for exhibit purposes by the State. A complete exhibit of the mineral resources is maintained there by the State Mining Bureau. The ferry building is marked by quite a little architectural beauty.

Coming on the various big ferries from the railway terminals across the bay to the eastward, the traveler goes through the ferry building out to see San Francisco. Stretching out in front of him is Market Street, the main thoroughfare of the city, corresponding to New York's Broadway. It runs southwestwardly across to about the middle of the peninsula, where it stops. The traveler will notice that the streets north of Market run down to it in a straight north and south direction, thus making a number of irregular triangular-shaped blocks. To the south of Market Street the blocks are laid off perfectly square. Away out at the end of Market Street one sees the Twin Peaks, the land rising up as it goes westward, so that looking at San Francisco from the east the houses seem to be piled one on another. Often the streets have a 50 per cent. rise, and along some sidewalks wooden cleats are nailed to assist one in climbing.

Before starting to walk out on Market, "up on" Market Street, the San Franciscan says, the traveler may take his directions. Straight across the rocky hills on the western side of the peninsula is the Pacific Ocean. On both sides of the Ferry Building, along the water front, extending some little distance, is the wholesale section of the city. On the right are many banks. At the northern point of the peninsula, to the northwest of one going in by way of the ferries, is the Presidio Reservation, where are the soldiers, who are playing a part in the earthquake excitement.

Walking "up" Market Street four or five blocks one comes to Sansome Street. To the right four or five blocks is Chinatown, where practically all the Chinese of the city are huddled, twice as many in Winter as in Summer, because the harvest seasons draw them out to the farms.

Big Buildings.

Walking up a block or so more on Market Street, one comes to Montgomery Street, near one of the centres of destruction. To the right was the big Postal Telegraph Building, which was destroyed, according to reports. To the left of Market Street was the Grand Hotel, which was reported damaged. In this neighborhood are many restaurants and theatres.

The next street is Kearny Street, which comes in from the right. At that corner is The Chronicle Building. It was the first of the higher buildings in San Francisco. Coming into Market Street from the left at about the same place as Kearny is Third Street. At the southwestern corner was the building of The Examiner, which was wrecked. This is Newspaper Corner. Across Third Street, on the northwest corner, was the huge Spreckels Building, in which was The Call; it was destroyed. Just west of the Spreckels Building were the Grand Opera House and the Winchester House.

This section is the shopping district of the city. Many of the stores are, or were, on Market Street, but most of them were in the streets just to the right of it—Kearny, Sutter, Post, Geary, Grant, and Stockton Streets. The streets to the left of Market now are numbered from Third upward, and from Ninth Street back down to the water front, on the left side of Market Street, the fire had swept last night, taking in many of the wholesale houses, bank buildings, and real estate offices.

The City Hall.

Looking up Market Street some three miles one sees Yerba Buena Park, just to the right of the street. There was the magnificent City Hall, the most conspicuous building in the city, surmounted with a dome 332 feet high. It required twenty-five years to build, and its cost varied, according to different reports from $6,000,000 to $9,000,000. It was shattered.

Running parallel with Market Street one block to the south of it is Mission Street, and on the corner of Mission and Seventh Street was the Post Office. About opposite Seventh Street, on the right side of Market Street, was the Flood Building, a huge $1,500,000 office structure.

In this neighborhood also was the Valencia Hotel. To the north of Market Street, between the City Hall and the Presidio Reservation, near the Golden Gate, is the hilly and fashionable residence section of the city. It is called "Nob Hill," and there the millionaires who put through the overland railways built there their palatial homes, and there other rich men have also bought homes.

The Fire Department of San Francisco, which was considered one of the best equipped in the country outside of New York, was made up of thirty-three engine companies, seven truck companies, a water tower, a monitor battery, and two fireboats. In addition there was the Underwriters' Fire Patrol, a company maintained by the fire insurance companies, with a fire-alarm box system similar to that of New York, with boxes in all of the public buildings and many in private establishments. The firemen had a hard time of it last week, fighting many big fires which occurred in the district near the water front.

James J. Hill on the Disaster.

James J. Hill, the railroad magnate, who has just returned to New York from the West, said yesterday:

"I was grieved to learn of the disaster in San Francisco. If the calamity is as severe as reported it may retard to some extent the progress that is being made toward the commercial and industrial development of the Pacific Coast."

D. A. R. Expresses Sympathy.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Upon receipt of the news of the disaster which has overtaken San Francisco business was temporarily suspended at the morning session of the Congress of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and resolutions expressing the deepest sympathy of the Daughters for the sufferers were unanimously adopted.

NEW YORK STUNNED BY DISASTER NEWS

Newspapers Besieged for News by Anxious Californians.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE AID

It was with perceptible excitement that New York received news of the earthquake.

The city had just settled into business for the day when the first bulletin arrived at 9:10 o'clock in the morning. All the news it contained was that there had been a severe earthquake in San Francisco and on the coast. Then there appeared a running fire of brief but important dispatches telling of the loss of life and destruction of property.

The newspapers posted bulletins conveying the news of the catastrophe and in an hour the report was all over town. Immediately hundreds of anxious inquiries began to pour into the newspaper offices for details, but the sources of information were so limited that little that was definite could be furnished.

Following the first bulletin came a second nine minutes later, in which it was stated that there was no communication with San Francisco and that all wires were evidently down. Twenty minutes later the Postal Telegraph Company received a dispatch saying that many lives had been lost, several buildings had collapsed, and that San Francisco was panic stricken.

Then the inquiries redoubled and crowds gathered about the bulletin boards of the newspapers for detailed information.

THE TIMES displayed dispatches as they were received and hundreds gathered in Times Square to read them as they were posted. The bulletins attracted many men and women going to the theatres in the afternoon and held them on their return.

Naturally the most anxious of all were the Californians in New York. They besieged the newspapers for particulars. The bulletins were so slow in arriving, however, on account of interruption to the telegraphic service by the earthquake shocks, that it was late at night before anything like a satisfactory report in detail could be given. The following notice from the stricken city, however, served to allay the fears of many who were anxious about relatives or friends in San Francisco:

"Nearly all of those killed or injured were men and women who lived in the cheap lodging houses of the city."

Mayor McClellan was prompt in acting when he heard of the disaster. Learning that the loss of life and destruction of property were great, he sent a dispatch to Mayor Schmitz of San Francisco expressing New York's condolences and asking in what direction New York could be of assistance, and ordered the city flags half-masted.

Simultaneously Morris K. Jesup, President of the Chamber of Commerce, called a special meeting of that body for 12:30 o'clock to-morrow afternoon to take such action as may be deemed advisable for relief.

Then Mr. Jesup went into conference with Col. R. C. Clowry, President of the Western Union Telegraph Company, after which this message was sent to the Mayor of San Francisco:

> Morris K. Jesup, President of the Chamber of Commerce of the City of New York, has just called and desires to know if his association can render you any assistance. Advise exact situation.

The message had the right of way over the Western Union wires. Up to an early hour this morning no reply had been received.

Almost immediately afterward came the first contribution for the relief of sufferers in the stricken city. Sutro Brothers & Co. telegraphed to their San Francisco correspondent the sum of $1,000 to be used for relief purposes. The firm announced incidentally that it would receive and disburse funds.

The first dispatch giving details of the shock came to The Associated Press shortly before 11 o'clock, or 8 o'clock Pacific Coast time. It told at length about the dead, the injured, the fact that buildings were about to be dynamited, and that the Palace Hotel was in danger.

Immediately that this dispatch was published several hundred persons gathered at the offices of the Metropolitan Opera House to make inquiries about members of the Conried Opera Company, who were known to be registered at the Palace. The company arrived in San Francisco on Saturday night. The opera house management had no news, and relatives of performers in the company were in sore distress until a later dispatch was made public saying that none of the guests of the Palace had been injured.

Then came other dispatches in turn, among them this by Postal Telegraph, which was meant as a last message:

> At 11 o'clock we had to leave our office and abandon it. The Palace and Grand Hotels are not yet on fire, but probably will be soon. The militia is in charge.

Shortly after this was received the word "Good-bye" was ticked, and no further communication could be obtained. The good-bye indicated that the last wire had been disconnected.

Later it was learned that this message had been sent by the San Francisco manager of the company, and that he had been ordered to leave the building by men who were in charge of the work of dynamiting buildings to prevent the spread of fire.

Then came this:

> We are having a succession of slight shocks. A heavy southwest wind has sprung up within the last half hour. The Call Building has just burned and the Anglo-California Bank has been destroyed. Every building in the city has been more or less damaged by the shock.

At intervals following, a word came now and then showing that the loss of life would run into the hundreds, and that probably 1,000 or more had been injured.

Meantime, the subject of the disaster was the sole topic of discussion about town. Everybody was eager for news. Larger crowds gathered about the newspaper bulletins awaiting fresh reports. Many persons could not restrain their patience, and waiving ceremony insisted upon seeing city editors and discussing the situation with them personally.

Little was spoken of on the Stock Exchange but the disaster, the effect of which was shown by a break in the United Railway Investment Company. Logan & Bryan, bankers, received a dispatch saying that dynamite was to be used in blowing up buildings, and another firm was advised that fire had broken out in seven districts.

President Calhoun of the United Railroad Company, which embraces the entire railroad system of San Francisco, was particularly anxious to know what news had been received of the disaster. Failing to get satisfaction at this end of the line he telegraphed to Alameda, Cal., and ordered that messengers be sent to San Francisco in automobiles to immediately report to New York by wire upon their return. Late last night Mr. Calhoun's secretary called at THE TIMES office for more details.

At the offices of E. H. Harriman he could only learn that the wires of the Southern Pacific Railroad were down, and that no communication with San Francisco could be obtained.

Mr. Harriman will leave here this morning for San Francisco.

BIG EXCURSIONS AFFECTED.

Shriners and Teachers Had Arranged to Go to San Francisco.

Owing to the disaster to San Francisco much anxiety is being felt among officials of the big trunk lines over the outcome of two large excursions which had been planned for that city this Spring.

The first of the excursions was to be given on the occasion of the National Convention of Shriners, which was scheduled to begin in San Francisco the latter part of this month. It is said that ten thousand Shriners of the Eastern States expected to attend the convention.

It was said last night that the convention probably would be changed to another city, as San Francisco probably would not be able to accommodate so many visitors.

Another large convention scheduled for San Francisco is the annual meeting of the school teachers of the United States in June. The trunk lines have been arranging for an attendance of 60,000 teachers.

V. V. Beard of Mount Vernon, Assistant General Passenger Agent of the New York Central Railroad, said that he could not tell last night what effect the earthquake would have on the plans for the convention. The excursion will go anyway, said Mr. Beard.

"They may have to hold the convention in Los Angeles or Portland," he continued, "but it will not be abandoned, as too much expense has been incurred in making preparations."

CIGAR STORES MEN THERE.

Were in San Francisco to Open New Stores—All Reported Safe.

The United Cigar Stores Company, the general offices of which are in this city, is deeply concerned in the calamity, not only because of its interests in San Francisco, but also because at present a number of its officials are on the coast looking after the extension of its business there. The company has eight stores in operation in San Francisco, being the lessee of a number of buildings in the heart of the city.

The officials there include Frederick A. Whelan, Superintendent of construction, a brother of George J. Whelan, President of the company; David Rosenfeld, Superintendent of stores; his secretary, Eugene Steiner, and Edward Wise, Treasurer of the company. These men are all residents of New York. They went to the coast ten days ago to supervise the opening of eighteen new stores to be established in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Portland, Seattle, and Spokane.

At the offices of the company, at 141 West Seventeenth Street, telegrams had been received last evening giving assurance of the safety of the men, but they said that there was no way to estimate the property loss sustained. Owing to pressure on the wires, the company could not learn to what extent the stores had suffered.

RED CROSS ASKS FUNDS.

Offers to Handle All Funds Intended for San Francisco.

The Red Cross organization announces through Cleveland H. Dodge that it will receive funds for the relief of the San Francisco sufferers and forward them to the Red Cross organization in San Francisco for distribution.

It will handle the subscriptions of either individuals or organizations in this way. Checks should be made payable to Jacob H. Schiff, 500 Fifth Avenue.

There will shortly be a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Red Cross, when it is likely that a large relief committee will be formed in this State. The contributions will be forwarded for distribution by the Red Cross of California.

INSANE PATIENTS KILLED.

Earthquake Demolished San Jose Asylum—Some Inmates at Large.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18.—Supervisor Fred Horner of Oakland, who returned from San José in his automobile this afternoon, reports that the Agnew Insane Asylum, near that city, is a total wreck, that many of the inmates were killed and that the rest are running around and scaring people living nearby. The Superintendent of the institution and his wife were killed.

Shipping Co. Will Carry Supplies Free.

The Export Shipping Company of 11 Broadway writes to THE TIMES that it "will undertake the transportation of all supplies for the relief of San Francisco free of charge." F. G. Bailey is President of the company, which has branch offices in the important cities of the world.

Jersey Bank Gets New President.

Robert S. Ross was yesterday elected President of the Third National Bank, Jersey City, to succeed the late John D. Carscallen.

SENATE REJECTS PUBLICITY CLAUSE

Insurance Work Largely Nullified, Says Armstrong.

EVEN M'CARREN'S ON DECK

Every Member Is Present When Vote is Taken Affecting the Mutual Companies.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 18.—After an eight-hour battle, one of the bitterest that the Senate has ever known, the Malby-Grady-Cassidy-Coggeshall contingent, aided by Horace White of Syracuse, succeeded yesterday against the determined protest of Senator Armstrong in having stricken from the "Big Insurance Bill" which amends the insurance laws generally the publicity feature of the measure, which provides that the list of policy holders of mutual companies shall be filed with the Superintendent of Insurance and copies be kept in the main and branch offices of the companies so that any policy holder may inspect them.

The substitute for this publicity clause was introduced by Mr. White. It was of such a character that the supporters of the bill in its original shape, headed by Armstrong, laughed at it as not possible of being carried, for twenty amendments offered earlier in the day by Grady, had been rejected without even a roll call.

There was evidence, however, that this assault had been carefully planned. White has on other occasions voted for the original bills and against the amendments. When he was put to the fore to-day there was much astonishment. Men who had enjoyed personal interviews with Supt. Hendricks met and compared notes.

It was seen that the attacking party showed a great deal more confidence in its position on this amendment than it had on any of the others, and the final vote showed twenty-six Senators favoring the amendment, a bare majority of two.

Every Senator was present for the first time during the entire season. Even McCarren, who had been excused from attendance by consent of the Senate, dropped in at the critical moment long enough to record his vote for the amendment.

The amendment keeps the list of policy holders securely locked up in the companies as heretofore. Divested of its technical phraseology, it means that if 100 policy holders intending to make a contest will send to the company stamped envelopes and circulars containing the matter the one hundred want the other policy holders to get, the company will address the envelopes and send them out with the enclosed circulars. The lists will never be open to any one except those who now control them. It means, too, that the 100 policy holders must bear the expense of sending out hundreds of thousands of circulars to other policy holders in efforts to get proxies or to get them to the polls to vote for Directors.

As soon as the vote was announced Senator Armstrong moved to reconsider it and that the motion lie on the table. He will call up the motion to-morrow and another hot fight is inevitable. As it is, the bill must go back to the printer and lie three days on the desks of the members before it can be finally considered.

When Senator Armstrong could choke down his wrath and chagrin long enough to talk last night he said:

"I don't know what influences were behind this scheme to make the change in the publicity feature of the bill, but whatever it was it never emanated in the interest of the policy holders or from the policy holders. This action has taken from the bill its most important feature. It nullifies to a large degree the work of the investigating committee, robs the companies of the mutual feature that we and every one, we thought, was trying to inject into them, and makes it impossible to have the untrammeled expression of choice registered by policy holders in mutual companies.

"The action is monstrous. I cannot understand on what plea any Senator could stand for it or even vote for it. It leaves the control of the companies just as firmly tied up with the men who have heretofore controlled them as it ever was."

White contended that as the policy holders were continually changing, the amount of labor entailed in making up the lists of the enormous number of policy holders would be almost impossible of performance. He also contended that it was unfair to domestic corporations to force them to make their lists public and give to foreign companies the advantage of knowing who its competitors' customers were. This was also the line taken by the other supporters of the amendment.

The vote shows that the minority had been cut squarely in half, seven Democrats voting on each side. Nineteen Republicans voted for the amendment and seventeen voted against it. The vote stood:

FOR THE AMENDMENT.

Democrats—Frawley, Grady, Hasenflug, Hawkins, Kehoe, Martin, McCarren—7.

AGAINST THE AMENDMENT.

Republicans—Allds, Armstrong, Barnes, Brackett, Cordts, Elsberg, Goodsell, Lewis, McEwan, Page, Prime, Raines, Saxe, Smith, Stevens, Tully, Warnick—17.

FOOD.

IN MEXICO

Fried Beans and Red Pepper.

"It is a positive pleasure," writes a San Antonio, Texas, man, "to write what follows, and you may use it at your discretion. It may, I hope, serve to set some other unfortunate on the 'Road to Wellville.'

"I am a traveling man, selling dry goods in Texas and Old Mexico. That alone ought to tell a story of a disordered stomach, a sluggish liver—what I once thought was a hopelessly impaired digestion, and all the rest of the ills that go with a stomach completely wrecked.

"Have you ever eaten a meal in a country town in Mexico? To keep it up for three years would break down any decent American constitution, just as it did mine.

"Just figure, Mr. Grape-Nuts man, one is served three times a day with black Mexican beans, cooked semi-hard in grease, and you eat them, too, because you have to. Along with this you must eat (for you can get nothing else) greasy pork cooked in the hottest of hot, peppery juice or grease, and drink coffee black as Hades and strong as aqua fortis.

"Now wouldn't that jar your constitution, even if you are from Michigan?

"Well, it got me, and got me good and plenty. I was so emaciated, weak, hollow-eyed, sallow, and what we here in Texas call 'no count' that I seriously thought of collecting my life insurance. This was a year and a half ago. One doctor gave me liver medicine that made me worse, but the next one I struck was what I then called a 'pure food crank'—I don't call him that any more.

"He ordered me to use Postum for coffee and Grape-Nuts for my meals, and mighty little else. I was desperate and followed his directions implicitly. Then I got well. To-day, after 14 months of this diet, I weigh 34 pounds more, have a clear complexion, a good appetite, a good digestion, attend to my business every day, but never go on a trip without carrying my Postum and Grape-Nuts with me." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

There's a reason.

LOCAL OPTION BILL DELAY.

Measure Amended—Agent Reed Forced to Leave Assembly Floor.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 18.—Legislative Agent T. H. Reed of the Anti-Saloon League was to-day forced to retire from the floor of the Assembly during the debate on the Tully-Wainwright Local Option bill, Mr. Hackett of New York having charged him with lobbying. Mr. O'Neill of Kings moved that the privileges of the floor be granted to him, but Mr. Hackett and Mr. Bohan, also of New York, made such a strenuous protest that the Anti-Saloon League representative was glad to retire from sight for the time. He later came as far as the rail.

The bill was amended by a vote of 82 to 5, on the motion of the introducer, Mr. Wainwright of Westchester, and this will cause a delay of three days, as the measure must now be reprinted. There was no attempt to advance the bill in view of the plan to amend.

Wainwright's amendments include the requirement of a verified petition to determine the question whether the petitioners are voters and the changing of the time of voting on the proposition to general elections.

There was no trouble in passing the amendments, but they afforded an opportunity to a number of members to attack the bill. Some two hours were devoted to this. Other amendments were defeated.

The methods of Wainwright were exasperating to several of his colleagues. Wainwright remarked: "Well, I can't help it. I have been left all alone to make this fight. I must paddle my own canoe without help, and if I make some mistakes I must take the responsibility. I am just as mad as they are."

TWO BOLD BOY ROBBERS.

Attack Broker's Wife in Park—Pursuing Policeman Breaks His Leg.

Five boys tried to rob Mrs. Grace Hepburn, 28 years old, wife of H. G. Hepburn, a broker, of 2 West Ninety-fourth Street, yesterday afternoon, while she was sitting on a bench, with her baby, near the East Drive in Central Park. Her screams brought three policemen.

In the pursuit of the boys Patrolman Dillon of the Central Park Squad broke his right leg in jumping twenty feet from the drive down into a transverse road after the fugitives. The other two policemen, Bergman and Hellman, who were mounted, followed the fugitives to Fifth Avenue and caught two of them. Three others got away. The prisoners—Joseph Underdorfer of 137 West 117th Street and Isador Haber of 18 West 117th Street—were held for further hearing to-morrow.

Mrs. Hepburn was sitting on a bench, embroidering, with her baby in a carriage beside her. She had a large bag containing her work and her purse, in which was $25. When five boys approached her she put her pocketbook under the baby's pillow. The boys lurked about the bench, and when Mrs. Hepburn stooped over the carriage to smooth the baby's clothes they ran up behind, seized her bag, and went through it. When they dropped a heavy article in it on the sidewalk Mrs. Hepburn looked around and screamed. One of the boys swung the bag at her and hit her in the face, bruising her cheek. She screamed again, and Mounted Policeman Bergman appeared. When the boys saw him they fled.

Patrolman Dillon was attended by Dr. Flanagan, a physician in the neighborhood, and was taken to his home.

FOUND METEOR FRAGMENT.

Cemetery Workman Digs Up One Buried for Twelve Years.

Special to The New York Times.

RAHWAY, N. J., April 18.—John Godfrey, in excavating for a monument today in Hazlewood Cemetery, dug up a meteor fragment weighing 25 pounds. It seemed to be composed of fused minerals, glass, stone, and steel. There is a mixture of vari-colored stones intermingled through the otherwise gray mass.

Twelve years ago Keron Kiernan, keeper of the cemetery, while at work one afternoon, heard a whistle, like escaping steam, coming through the clouds overhead. Then came a bright light, an odor or sulphur filled the air, and about fifty feet from where he stood a missile buried itself in the ground scorching the grass about and melting the gravel where it fell. The opening showed the object to have been buried twelve feet deep. Since then it has gradually worked to the surface.

Fire on Train Causes Wreck.

NEW FLORENCE, Penn., April 18.—Nine passengers on the New York express over the Pennsylvania Railroad were injured in a rear-end collision with a freight train near here last night. The express had stopped to extinguish a fire which broke out in the baggage car, when the freight train crashed into it. Among those hurt were Mrs. H. Whiting, New York, and A. O. Captain of New York.

Inventor Ludlow Is Better.

At Roosevelt Hospital last night it was stated that the condition of Israel Ludlow, the aeronaut, was much improved. He passed a very comfortable day, and it is hoped that an operation may be performed to-day.

JURY TRIAL TO PERKINS FOR BIG CAMPAIGN GIFT

Was Without Authority to Make It, Says Justice Greenbaum.

WRIT PETITION DISMISSED

Plain Diversion of Funds, but Jury Must Decide Question of Criminal Intent.

Justice Greenbaum of the Supreme Court dismissed, yesterday, the writ of habeas corpus sued out by George W. Perkins, the former Vice President of the New York Life Insurance Company, after he was arrested on a grand larceny charge, the basis for which was a contribution of $48,000 to the Republican National campaign fund in 1904. Perkins paid the money out of his own pocket, but was reimbursed with interest by the New York Life.

In the opinion of Justice Greenbaum, there is sufficient evidence to hold Perkins, but the question of criminal intent must be determined by a jury. Mr. Perkins is on parole, pending the determination of the issue, in the custody of his counsel, Lewis L. Delafield.

In arriving at his decision, Justice Greenbaum refers at length to similar cases, saying in part:

"It is seriously argued by the learned counsel for the relator that he had not the custody, possession, or control of the money of the corporation, and of necessity, therefore, there could be no appropriation by him of said moneys.

"It is plain that his relation to the transaction was one of mere passivity; that he was an instrument performing the bidding or request of the President of the corporation, his superior officer, and that however negligent he may be found to have been in that behalf, for which he might be civilly liable, he does not come within the meaning of Section 528 of the Penal Code.

"It seems to me that these deductions are fallacious and inconclusive, and based upon a strained and narrow reading of the statute.

"Aside from the provisions of Section 29 of the Penal Code, which makes an accessory before the fact a principal, it is incomprehensible to me how it can be sound legal doctrne to hold that a Trustee and Vice President of a corporation, and in this case a Chairman of its Finance Committee, may deliberately receive and take from another officer of the corporation moneys belonging to it, with full knowledge that the act constitutes an unlawful diversion of funds, and not be deemed to have the 'control' of said moneys.

"As Trustee, an affirmative, active, and vigilant duty devolved upon him. It is well settled that a co-Trustee cannot assume an attitude of passivity when he knows of improprieties of his associates, without coming equally under the judgment of the laws for the consequences of such acts.

"It will, doubtless, be conceded as a correct statement of the law that if a Trustee deliberately appropriates to the use of another trust moneys under his control, with the knowledge that he had no right to so apply them, and that the consequence of his acts is to deprive the trust estate of its property, that a criminal intent to so deprive the estate of property would be inferable from these acts.

"Assuredly, it is not the part of the business of a life insurance company to participate in political questions, and the appropriation of its funds toward a political party striving for the ascendency of its principles in public affairs, and of the elevation of its nominees to public offices, is an unauthorized act.

"Indeed, the only justification for the course pursued which has been urged is that the opinion of the relator and other Trustees of the company was that the success of the Republican Party in 1904 was essential to the maintenance of values of the securities held by the company."

Justice Greenbaum says that the "crime charged must stand or fall under the statutes in force when it is alleged to have been committed."

DOWIE GETS AN INJUNCTION.

ROCKFORD, Ill., April 18.—Following the filing of a bill in chancery, to set aside the conveyance of property in Zion City valued at about $21,000,000, Judge R. Wright of the Circuit Court to-day granted an injunction restraining Wilbur G. Voliva and others from interfering with John Alexander Dowie, or in any way preventing him from going to Zion City and entering his house or barn.

The injunction also gives Dowie the right to hold religious services in the Tabernacle on alternate days. The hearing is set for April 25, and the injunction will continue in effect until that date.

The bill in chancery seeks to nullify the transfer of Zion City property by Overseer Voliva to Deacon Alexander Granger.

As soon as the issuance of the injunction became known in Zion City, factory whistles were blown to call a mass meeting. Some 4,000 Dowieites at once left work and hurried to Shiloh Tabernacle, where they were informed of the legal action.

Almost 2,000 persons who have their money invested in the industries at Zion City signed a petition to Judge Wright, asking him to restore Deacon Alexander Granger to control of the finances of Zion, declaring that Dowie is no longer fit, physically or mentally, to act as trustee of the property owned by the Christian Catholic Church.

Voliva asked the audience what should be done if Dowie tried to hold meetings in Shiloh Tabernacle, and those present agreed to remain away from any such meeting.

CAUSED KEARSARGE DISASTER

WASHINGTON, April 18.—The accident on the Kearsarge was without precedent in the American or any other navy so far as is known.

A cablegram from Rear Admiral Evans, commanding the Atlantic Fleet, dated Caimanera, Cuba, forecasts the probable finding of the court of inquiry which is now ascertaining the cause of the explosion and fixing the responsibility. He says that the accident was probably caused by fused metal from an electric switch, which was short circuited by accidental contact with a shell extractor during the operation of withdrawing a charge from a gun after the completion of target practice.

This extractor is eight feet long, and is never kept in the turret, but is passed in from above only when needed to draw a charge. The accident is therefore regarded as one of the most remarkable in naval records. It would be impossible in the latest type of battleship, owing to the improvement in electrical appliances in the last few years.

SHAW SUSPENDS COLLECTOR.

Frederick O. Murray of Buffalo Relieved from Duty.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—After a conference with the President to-day Secretary Shaw, who has just returned from New York, decided that he would suspend from office Frederick O. Murray, Collector of the Port of Buffalo, N. Y., who a few days ago was indicted in connection with what is known as the graveyard scandals.

The suspension of Mr. Murray from office, it is understood, will not carry with it a loss of salary unless he should subsequently be removed.

FREIGHT TRAIN OVERBOARD.

Cars Sunk by Collision Between Steamship and Floats in Hell Gate.

Six freight cars loaded with valuable merchandise went overboard in a collision in Hell Gate yesterday afternoon between the tramp steamship Werdenfels and a tug of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, towing two steel car floats carrying twenty-two cars.

Float No. 52 had a twenty-five-foot hole torn in her port bow and was beached on the Long Island shore near Astoria to save her from sinking. The steamship, although her nose and bow plates were badly dented, proceeded on her way down the East River and was finally docked. A misunderstanding of signals is said to have caused the accident.

The collision occurred in the mouth of the Gate soon before 3 o'clock. The tug, with Float No. 52 on her port and Float No. 51 on her starboard side, was bound for the Oak Point railroad yards. The Werdenfels was bound south from Boston heavily loaded.

Capt. Isaac Shoomaker, who was in the pilot house of the tug, signaled that he would take the easterly course. There was an answering signal that caused confusion, and, caught in the strong flood tide, the big steamship bore down on the tug and her tow with great speed.

Both Captains, seeing that a collision was inevitable, rang for full speed astern. In spite of their efforts the four vessels came together with a heavy crash. Float No. 52 caught the full force of the collision. She listed to port almost instantly, and this combined with the force of the blow started the six cars on her port side tracks. They tore away the bumpers and plunged overboard under the nose of the steamship, one after the other like water rats diving. The ships soon drifted apart and the steamship proceeded on her way to this city.

The float is damaged to the extent of several thousand dollars, but the loss involved by the sinking of the freights cars could not be estimated last night.

OPERATORS EXPECT A STRIKE.

Think Mitchell Won't Back Down and Are Preparing.

It was learned on good authority yesterday that the anthracite operators are going on in a quiet way with preparations for a strike. Beyond saying that the last proposal of the anthracite operators, or its alternative proposal to continue the agreement under the award of the anthracite Strike Commission for three years longer was still open to the miners, the operators would not discuss the situation.

It became known through other sources, however, that mining has been started in some of the collieries in a small way. Nothing will be attempted on a large scale until a strike is officially declared or President Mitchell of the United Mine Workers backs down. This is not expected, and the men who are now mining coal are old employes, who have returned to work and are tired of the delay in ordering a strike officially. There is a great deal of grumbling also among the rank and file of the miners at being kept in idleness while no official strike has been declared.

All the washeries will soon be running, and as there is little demand for domestic anthracite now this will relieve the situation as to the small steam sizes.

The coal dealers here say that the operators expect nothing but a strike, as they think Mitchell will lose all influence with the union if he backs down.

No change took place in the price of soft coal yesterday, and the dealers said that the market for it was stagnant, as the buyers are waiting to see if an anthracite strike will be officially declared. If it is declared soft coal will be higher in price, but if there is no anthracite strike the price of soft coal will go down. The joint convention of the soft coal miners and operators in the Clearfield district set for next Tuesday, which was postponed twice by the operators, is expected to be postponed again if between now and Tuesday it is not known whether there will be an anthracite strike. An anthracite strike would mean a soft coal settlement, it is believed.

HOSPITALS TO CO-OPERATE.

Thirty-eight City Institutions Organize for Economy and Efficiency.

Representatives of thirty-eight hospitals adopted a permanent organization for the Hospital Conference of the City of New York at a meeting in the Academy of Medicine yesterday. Its purpose is the promotion of economy and efficiency in hospital management by the comparison of methods and results. To effect this the hospitals have been requested to send in detailed statements of their expenditures to the Secretary.

Any hospital with not less than thirty free beds may send two representatives to the conference on payment of $5 annually. The city hospitals have not yet been asked to join, but probably will receive invitations in the near future. Among those that have joined the conference are St. Luke's, Mount Sinai, the New York, Roosevelt, German, Flower, Lincoln, J. Hood Wright, Lebanon, New York Eye and Ear, General Memorial, Seney Hospital, Brooklyn; German Hospital, Brooklyn; the Brooklyn, New York Polyclinic, Smith Infirmary, Hospital for the Ruptured and Crippled, and the Sloane Maternity. The most important absentee is the Presbyterian Hospital.

The following officers have been elected: President, Rev. George F. Clover, St. Luke's; Vice Presidents, Richard H. Townley, J. Hood Wright; Mrs. A. M. Lawson, General Memorial; Secretary, Dr. S. S. Goldwater, Mount Sinai; Treasurer, Dr. A. H. Harrington, New York Eye and Ear Hospital.

An Executive Committee of seven is to be nominated.

FERRYBOAT RAMS ITS SLIP.

Passengers on the Montclair Thrown to the Deck—Two Men Injured.

The Lackawanna ferryboat Montclair on its 12:30 o'clock trip from Hoboken to the foot of Christopher Street, in this city, through some misunderstanding in the signaling arrangements yesterday ran into the bulkhead at the foot of the Christopher Street slip. The shock of the collision was so great that a number of the passengers, many of whom were women, were thrown to the deck of the vessel.

The roadway on the boat was filled with wagons, and all the horses attached to them were thrown down. Stephen Tableaux, 38 years old, of 225 Second Street, and Max Shapiro, 17 years old, of 713 East Fifth Street, who were in charge of a florist's cart, were thrown from their seats on the wagon. Both men were painfully but not seriously injured. The boat was not damaged to any extent.

FRESH AIR CONFERENCE.

Plans for the Coming Season Discussed by the City Societies.

A conference of representatives of fifty organizations interested in fresh-air work was held yesterday afternoon in the Assembly Hall of the United Charities Building, 109 East Twenty-second Street. The following resolution was adopted by the meeting:

Resolved, That this conference considers it desirable to establish a bureau of application, to be composed of representatives of fresh air agencies, and of the public schools, and to establish and maintain a card catalogue to be open to the use of all those interested in fresh-air work; secondly, that the fresh-air agencies communicate with the Public School Principals in the months of May and June, to discover children truly deserving but otherwise not reached.

On motion of Archibald A. Hill, Secretary of the Metropolitan Park Association, a resolution was passed calling on the Mayor to give his sanction to the Saxe bill. Under the provisions of this bill the city would be empowered to appropriate $2,500,000 for the purchase and establishment of a seaside park and home for convalescents.

Dr. Thomas Darlington, President of the Board of Health; Dr. John J. Cronin, Chief Inspector of Schools for the Board of Health, and several other persons addressed the conference.

CORONER IN A FIGHT.

Rival Broker Says Schwannecker Threw Him Out of His Office.

Coroner Albert F. Schwannecke of Bronx Borough was arrested by Detectives Rider and Kidney of the Jefferson Market Court Squad in his office in the Metropolitan Life Insurance Building yesterday on a warrant charging assault. The complainant was Louis S. Grenner, a bond broker of 79 West Forty-fifth Street, who also has an office in the Metropolitan Life building.

Schwannecke is manager of the American Surety Company. Grenner charged that on Monday at noon he went to Schwannecke's office, having been sent for, and upon entering, he says he was berated by the Coroner, and afterward assaulted by him and thrown out of the office.

The two men are in the business of bonding saloons and hotels. Schwannecke asserted that Grenner took over a number of hotels that the American Surety Company formerly bonded and this angered Schwannecke. The case was heard by Magistrate Finn.

Charles Schindler testified that he was passing the door of Schwannecke's office at noon on Monday when he saw Grenner land in the hall. There was much profane language used. Schwannecke admitted that he had thrown Grenner out.

The hearing was continued until Sunday for further examination. The Coroner was paroled.

SPEEDED E. R. THOMAS'S AUTO

William Lutgan of 159 East Fifty-fourth Street and Gustav Schon of 42 East Sixty-second Street were arrested late Tuesday night in Long Island City, charged with running an automobile said to belong to E. R. Thomas at the rate of sixty miles an hour.

Patrolman McHugh of the Astoria Precinct tried to stop the machine, but only succeeded when a fire broke out on Flushing Avenue. The policeman got the firemen to turn a hook and ladder truck across the street. Then the automobile had to stop, and its occupants were placed under arrest. In the Long Island City Court yesterday they were reprimanded and discharged.

One-Arm Billiardist Falls Dead.

Harry F. Wiley, 30 years old, well known as a one-armed billiard and pool player, died yesterday afternoon at Forty-second Street and Seventh Avenue before the arrival of an ambulance. The body was taken to the Morgue. An autopsy will be held to determine the cause of death. Wiley lost his arm in a fire in the Rexford Hotel in Boston. The hotel for a time placed him in charge of its billiard room.

CAUGHT BY MRS. BISHOP.

The Police Arrest in Her House an Alleged Swindler.

After being sought for a long time by the Western Union Telegraph Company on the charge of swindling wealthy people by getting money from them for a bogus messenger boys' dinner, a young man calling himself Edward Short, 24 years old, of 262 Fifty-third Street, Brooklyn, was arrested yesterday in the home of Mrs. Heber R. Bishop, wife of a General Electric Company official, at 36 East Sixty-second Street.

Short had just presented to Mrs. Bishop's butler, to be given to her, a receipt for $5. The money was to be given toward a dinner to the Western Union messengers. Mrs. Bishop had received a warning from the telegraph company, and kept Short waiting until she could communicate with the Western Union office. Benjamin Davies went to the house, taking Roundsman Duane with him. Duane arrested Short.

Short said the envelope was given to him by a dark-complexioned man at Madison Avenue and Sixty-second Street, who asked him to deliver it. A representative of the Western Union said a more serious charge would be made against Short when his case was heard in court to-day. A number of people living on Fifth Avenue are said to have given money to Short.

PRESIDENT ASKS LAW TO LIMIT IMMUNITY

Sends a Message to Congress About Packers' Cases.

SEVERE ON JUDGE HUMPHREY

Thinks Decision Misinterpreted Will of Congress and Made a Farce of the Law.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—President Roosevelt made it very clear to-day that he does not intend to let up in his efforts to secure the conviction of violators of the anti-trust and anti-rebate laws. In a special message to Congress dealing with the recent decision in the Beef Packers' case in Chicago he was unsparing in his criticism of Judge Humprey, who, he declared, had brought about a "miscarriage of justice."

At the same time the President urged upon Congress the necessity of passing an act plainly declaring what its intention was in enacting the existing legislation concerning immunity. He also asked for the passage of an act giving the Government the same right of appeal in criminal cases that the defendant has on questions of law and where the defendant has not been on trial. The House had anticipated him in this, and only yesterday passed just such a bill.

Mr. Roosevelt declares in the plainest sort of language that the difficulty with our criminal procedure nowadays is not that some innocent man may be convicted, but that the guilty may escape, and he is insistent that some amendment shall be made that will make conviction more certain. He does not hesitate to express his own belief that the Chicago packers were guilty, and says the Department of Justice has the evidence to convict them but for the decision of Judge Humphrey, which, he says, "comes measurably near making the law a farce."

After the message had been read in the House Gen. Grosvenor called attention to the fact that yesterday Judge McPherson in the Iowa Circuit had decided a case similar to that which Judge Humphrey decided in exactly the opposite way to the Chicago Judge.

"Thus the way is open at once for an appeal to the Supreme Court," said Gen. Grosvenor, "and in a short time we can have the final interpretation of the law, and know whether Judge Humphrey or Judge McPherson is right. Then we shall be in a position to take such further action in the enactment of legislation as may be indicated to be necessary.

TEXT OF THE MESSAGE.

The text of the President's message is:

"To the Senate and House of Representatives:

"I submit herewith a letter of the Attorney General, inclosing a statement of the proceedings by the United States against the individuals and corporations commonly known as the beef packers and commenting upon the decision of District Judge Humphrey.

"The result has been a miscarriage of justice. It clearly appears from the letter of the Attorney General that no criticism whatever attaches to Commissioner Garfield; what he did was in strict accordance with the law and in pursuance of a duty imposed on him by Congress which could not be avoided, and of course Congress in passing the Martin resolution could not possibly have foreseen the decision of Judge Humphrey.

"But this interpretation by Judge Humphrey of the will of the Congress, as expressed in legislation, is such as to make that will absolutely abortive.

"Unfortunately there is grave doubt whether the Government has the right of appeal from this decision of the district judge. The case well illustrates the desirability of conferring upon the Government the same right of appeal in criminal cases, on questions of law, which the defendant now has, in all cases where the defendant had not been put in jeopardy by a trial upon the merits of the charge made against him. The laws of many of the States, and the law of the District of Columbia, recently enacted by the Congress, give the Government the right of appeal. A general law of the character indicated should certainly be enacted.

Asks Congress for Definition.

"Furthermore it is very desirable to enact a law declaring the true construction of the existing legislation so far as it affects immunity. I can hardly believe that the ruling of Judge Humphrey will be followed by other judges; but if it should be followed, the result would be either completely to nullify very much, and possibly the major part, of the good to be obtained from the Inter-State commerce law and from the law creating the Bureau of Corporations in the Department of Commerce and Labor; or else frequently to obstruct an appeal to the criminal laws by the Department of Justice.

"There seems to be no good reason why the Department of Justice, the Department of Commerce and Labor, and the Inter-State Commerce Commission each should not, for the common good, proceed within in its own powers without undue interference with the functions of the other. It is of course necessary under the Constitution and the laws that persons who give testimony or produce evidence as witnesses should receive immunity from prosecution.

"It has hitherto been supposed that the immunity conferred by existing laws was only upon persons, who, being subpoenaed, had given testimony or produced evidence as witnesses relating to any offense with which they were, or might be, charged.

"But Judge Humphrey's decision is, in effect, that if either the Commissioner of Corporations does his duty, or the Inter-State Commerce Commission does its, by making the investigations by which they are required, to issue no subpoena and receive no testimony or evidence, within the proper meaning of these words, the very fact of the investigation may, of itself, operate to prevent the prosecution of any offender for any offense which may have been developed in even the most indirect manner during the course of the investigation or even for any offense which may have been detected by investigations conducted by the Department of Justice entirely independently of the labors of the Inter-State Commerce Commission or of the Commissioner of Corporations—the only condition of immunity being that the offender should have given, or directed to be given, information which related to the subject out of which the offense has grown.

Danger That Guilty Will Escape.

"In offenses of this kind it is at the best hard enough to execute justice upon offenders. Our system of criminal jurisprudence has descended to us from a period when the danger was lest the accused should not have his rights adequately preserved, and it is admirably framed to meet this danger.

"But at present the danger is just the reverse; that is, the danger nowadays is not that innocent men will be convicted of crime, but that the guilty man will go scot free.

"This is especially the case where the crime is one of greed and cunning perpetrated by a man of wealth in the course of those business operations where the code of conduct is at variance, not merely with the code of humanity and morality, but with the code as established in the law of the land.

"It is much easier, but much less effective, to proceed against a corporation than to proceed against the individuals in that corporation who are themselves responsible for the wrongdoing. Very naturally, outside persons who have no knowledge of the facts, and no responsibility for the success of the proceedings, are apt to clamor for action against the individuals.

A Change to Strike Individuals.

"The Department of Justice has, most wisely, invariably refused thus to proceed against individuals unless it was convinced both that they were in fact guilty, and that there was at least a reasonable chance of establishing this fact of their guilt. These beef-packing cases offered one of the very few instances where there was not only the moral certainty that the accused men were guilty, but what seemed—and now seems—sufficient legal evidence of the fact.

"But in obedience to the explicit order of the Congress the Commissioner of Corporations had investigated the beef-packing business. The counsel for the beef packers explicitly admitted that there was no claim that any promise of immunity had been given by Mr. Garfield; as shown by the following colloquy during the argument of the Attorney General:

"'Mr. Moody—I dismiss almost with a word the claim that Mr. Garfield promised immunity. Whether there is any evidence of such a promise or not, I do not know and I do not care.

"'Mr. Miller, (the counsel for the beef packers)—There is no claim of it.

"'Mr. Moody—Then I was mistaken and I will not even say that word.'

"But Judge Humphrey holds that if the Commissioner of Corporations (and therefore if the Inter-State Commerce Commission) in the course of any investigations prescribed by Congress asks any questions of a person not called as a witness, or asks any questions of an officer of a corporation not called as a witness, with regard to the action of the corporation on a subject out of which prosecutions may subsequently arise, then the fact of such questions having been asked operates as a bar to the prosecution of that person or of that officer of the corporation for his own misdeeds.

"Such interpretation of the law comes measurably near making the law a farce, and I therefore recommend that the Congress pass a declaratory act stating its real intention.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT.
"The White House, April 17, 1906."

MR. MOODY'S ANSWER.

In the letter of the Attorney General referred to by the President, Mr. Moody reviews rather exhaustively the proceedings of the Government against the beef packers. The Attorney General says:

"In inviting the co-operation of the packers in conducting the investigation Mr. Garfield said to them that the detailed figures of cost, profit, and loss that might be obtained would be considered as confidential and would not be published or disclosed as to individual houses, but would be used for the purpose of preparing tables showing general averages. He assured them that he was not co-operating with the Department of Justice, but was acting independently, and that he would not give to that department any evidence obtained from the packers, but would report it only to the President for such use as he should determine to make of it.

"In the opening statements made to the jury it was said that at this time Mr. Garfield promised the defendants immunity from prosecution, but there was no evidence to sustain this statement, and during the argument any such claim was expressly disaffirmed by Mr. Miller, the leading counsel for the defendants."

The Attorney General says the packers finally afforded Mr. Garfield complete access to their records relating to the costs, prices, and profits of the beef business. He then adds:

"Subsequently Mr. Garfield made a partial report to the President which was transmitted to Congress and printed as a public document known as the Garfield report. Before the report was made it was submitted to the officers of the packing companies for the purpose of seeing whether the confidential figures were properly used. Criticisms on minor points were made, and the report corrected accordingly. After its publication the defendants ordered many copies for the purpose of circulation."

As to the information obtained by Mr. Garfield, Mr. Moody says: "It may be said here that not a scrap of evidence obtained by Mr. Garfield, directly or indirectly, from the packers was used before the Grand Jury to obtain the indictment."

In conclusion, the Attorney General suggests to the President the desirability of recommending to Congress the enactment of laws the President proposes in his message.

TORTURER OF RUSSIAN GIRL IS ASSASSINATED

Revolutionists Shoot Mlle. Spiridonovo's Assailant.

FATHER GAPON DISAPPEARS

May Have Been Kidnapped by His Enemies—Woman Kills a Gendarme in a Prison.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 18.—Abramoff, the Cossack officer who treated Maria Spiridonovo, the revolutionist, in an outrageous manner while she was in prison, has been assassinated at Borissogliebsk, Province of Tamboff. He was shot three times with a revolver on Monday and died yesterday.

The crime was committed in the centre of the town, but Abramoff's assassins, whose identity is unknown, succeeded in making their escape.

A woman arrested by a gendarme at Voroneśh to-day was taken to prison, where the gendarme escorted his prisoner to a separate room with the intention of searching her. Several minutes later a pistol shot was heard, and the keepers rushed in and found the gendarme dead on the floor. The woman declared that he attempted to assault her, and that she seized his revolver and killed him.

Father Gapon mysteriously disappeared about a week ago, and his wife is greatly alarmed, fearing foul play on the part of his enemies, as the police insist that he has not been arrested, and that they know nothing of his whereabouts. It is considered possible that Gapon has been kidnapped by his enemies, as was the case a fortnight ago with Urusoff, one of the workmen's delegates, who, being suspected of being in alliance with the Government, was captured by the Social Democrats and conveyed to Helsingfors, where he was subjected to torture.

Mlle. Spiridonovo, who is 17 years old and the daughter of a General, shot and killed Chief of Police Lushenoffsky of Tamboff, and a sentence of death upon her was later commuted to twenty years' imprisonment.

The girl was terribly treated in prison immediately after committing the crime. Abramoff and another Cossack officer subjected her to eleven hours of torment. They kicked her back and forth across a cell, tore her hair, burned her flesh with cigarettes, and threatened her with abandonment to the Cossacks unless she confessed.

Abramoff was tried by a military court at Moscow, and was acquitted. Upon his return to Borissogliebsk he was exceedingly arrogant, declaring he was sorry he had not shot the girl, as then the story would not have been published. He also boasted that he would like to hang Mlle. Spiridonovo with his own hands.

Abramoff was with Lushenoffsky when the latter was terrorizing the population of Borissogliebsk, and all the participants in the repression were marked for execution by the revolutionists.

TAFT URGES CANAL ACTION.

WASHINGTON, April 18.—Secretary Taft to-day told the Senate Committee on Inter-oceanic Canals that the question of the type of canal must be determined for Panama at once or Chief Engineer Stevens would be placed in a position where he will be compelled to suspend work. He did not attempt to discuss the engineering or technical questions, but said that he already is committed to the lock type, as recommended by the minority of the Board of Consulting Engineers and would adhere to his first opinion. He said that if Congress does not settle the question the President would not hesitate to adopt the minority plan.

The Secretary expects to be before the committee in about three days and discuss questions that have been raised by the canal inquiry. He will deal particularly with the legislative needs for the Government of the zone.

APPEAL FOR THE STARVING.

United Hebrew Charities Needs $40,000 to Help Poor Families.

"Ladies, our people are starving," said Mrs. William Einstein at the meeting of the Ladies' Auxiliary Membership Committee of the United Hebrew Charities at a meeting at the house of Mrs. Jefferson Seligman yesterday afternoon. "I beg and pray that you will find some means to help raise $40,000, needed to enable the United Hebrew Charities to carry on its work this year.

"The United Hebrew Charities spend $180,000 in a year," said Joseph L. Buttenweiser, "and I am sure that the Jewish community in New York spends that every week for the theatre, and as much as that every week for its suppers after the theatre. I don't ask you to give up the theatre—or even the Easter bonnets—but I ask you to supplement this with your charitable work. Give your children a pleasure in learning to care for some deserted mother who has to support her little ones, and ask your neighbors to each give a certain sum a month toward the support of a single family."

The Ladies' Committee was augmented from the original twenty-five to fifty members yesterday. It is asking individual families to assist the charities association by giving a certain definite sum each month for the support of a single family.

Among those present yesterday were Mrs. Isador Wormser, Mrs. Daniel Berry, Mrs. Robert Landsburgh, Mrs. Simon Rawitzer, Mrs. Joseph Sulzbacher, Mrs. William Hochster, Mrs. Louis Schloss, Mrs. Charles Israels, Miss Fisher, and Miss Jacobson.

The criminal proceedings which Miss Elise Morosi tried to institute against Victor S. Flechter, a music dealer of 23 Union Square, for the purpose of recovering a valuable violin, said to have once belonged to Congressman Nicholas Longworth, were dropped yesterday. An Assistant District Attorney said it had been established to his complete satisfaction that the violin in question was not the one which had once been in Miss Morosi's possession.

STEERAGE LAW VIOLATIONS.

Captains of Atlantic Liners Brought Before U. S. Commissioner.

Three sea Captains were arraigned before United States Commissioner Shields yesterday afternoon charged with violations of the immigration laws.

There were two charges against Capt. J. B. Ransome of the steamship Celtic. The first concerned the voyage ended March 19, when he had from Italian ports 2,200 steerage passengers, and, it is charged, only 316 seats at dining tables were provided. Capt. Ransome explained that the Italians refuse to eat at the tables and carry their food out on the decks to eat it. On this complaint he was discharged.

The second warrant charged Capt. Ransome with not having given his steerage passengers good and wholesome food, and alleged that the officers and crew of the Celtic were allowed to visit the steerage passengers. On this complaint Capt. Ransome will have a hearing to-morrow afternoon.

Capt. Edward B. Casey of the steamship Maranhense, from Manaos, Brazil, was charged with not having provided proper seats for his steerage passengers. He was released pending examination.

SAN FRANCISCO.

Probably most uninstructed persons who thought at all about the subterranean effects of the unusual eruption of Vesuvius, which has not yet subsided, on the latent forces of the underworld over which humanity and human civilization so precariously swim, took the easy and comfortable view that Vesuvius was a safety valve for those unknown and subterranean forces. This view is contrary to all that we on the surface know of what is going on in the deeps to which we cannot penetrate. The seismologists, the geologists, the astronomers, who are also "cosmogonists," were no nearer than the rest of us to foreseeing that the eruption of Vesuvius, instead of affording a vent to the internal fires of the still liquid core of our planet, was but the symptom of an internal unrest which would show itself in still other disturbances. And yet we historically know that disturbances at one point of any zone have usually been followed by disturbances at other points in the same zone. The destruction of Lisbon, the greatest disaster in human history resulting from the unequal cooling of the crust of the earth, may have been of less geological importance than disturbances which passed unmarked. And yet we historically know that the earth-wave which destroyed Lisbon, and put to death 60,000 persons in six minutes, undulated from Iceland to Africa. We know that the earthquake which from the human point of view was most memorably felt, carried its serpentine undulations into the Indian Ocean, suppressing charted islands here and raising uncharted islands there, to the dismay and discomfiture of navigators. We know that the upheaval which depopulated Martinique by the eruption of Mont Pelée was experienced far away from Martinique, through channels which must have been subterranean. As to the earthquake which, as it were, incidentally destroyed Lisbon, HUMBOLDT, after the fact, estimated its area of operations as four times the extent of Europe. But the point is that none of the specialists deduced any of these sequels before they had actually happened. Since the test of science has very well been defined to be prescience, and since none of the consequences of these convulsions was predicted, we seem to be warranted in saying that seismology is far from being a science. How could it be when the comparative thickness of the crust which we so precariously inhabit, the very first datum of the science, is known only from our assumption that the various upheavals of which we are compelled to take notice operate in the line of least resistance?

Where Ischia smiles

We do know, empirically if not scientifically, that some tracts of earth are more liable to subterranean disturbance than others. The historian BUCKLE founded a disputable national psychology on the superior liability of the shores of the Mediterranean to volcanic and seismic disturbance. And we do empirically know that the coast of California is more liable to that kind of disturbance than any other portion, at least than any other inhabitable portion, of the North American Continent. The shores of the Bay of San Francisco were designated, with a foresight which really attained something like prophetic strain, as the main seat and centre of any possible civilization of the Pacific Coast by RICHARD HENRY DANA, in that classic, "Two Years Before the Mast," for which the materials were gathered ten years before the war with Mexico and twelve years before the discovery of gold in California. To so observant and educated a man that was, even in the thirties, a safe prediction. But, when the actual settlement of San Francisco began, and down to this day, the liability to earthquakes has been recognized as a drawback, not only to the Californian coast in general, but also to the shores of the Bay of San Francisco in particular. It was this liability which induced the early "magnates" of "Nob Hill" to construct their houses of timber rather than of masonry, their theory, founded at least partly on experience, being that a frame building would merely "give" where a building of masonry would completely collapse. In point of fact earthquakes are and have been a much more abiding terror to dwellers on the Pacific Coast than to dwellers on the Atlantic. New Yorkers of mature years, for instance, have experienced but one shock where San Franciscans have experienced a dozen or a score.

As to the loss of life in general, it is plain that the early estimates given are not to be accepted as final. That there has been a lamentable disaster admits of no doubt. But, apart from the irreparable loss of life, the great earthquake of San Francisco of 1906 may be as much a blessing in disguise as the great fire of Chicago in 1871. We may be quite confident that the new San Francisco will bear as improved a relation to the old as that which is no longer, the new Chicago bears to the temporary settlement on the swampy river which was the site of Chicago before the fire.

"A MIGHTY IMPORTANT MATTER."

President ROOSEVELT has made the tardy discovery that too many cooks spoil the broth. He has had the Inter-State Commerce Commission, Mr. GARFIELD of the Department of Commerce and Labor, and the Attorney General merrily stirring away at the pot in which he is stewing the wicked corporations, and, finding that in the case of the beef packers the concoction proved to be altogether unpalatable, he berates, not the cooks, but the partaker of the broth, who in this case happened to be Judge HUMPHREY. Attorney General MOODY earnestly sought to convince the court that Commissioner GARFIELD's antecedent questioning and badgering of the packers did not under the law give them immunity from indictment and prosecution. Judge HUMPHREY took the contrary view. He ruled that as the answers made by the packers were in no case voluntary, their testimony and evidence being in fact extorted from their reluctant lips by Mr. GARFIELD, who was clothed with full authority by the resolution of Congress, immunity was conferred. Therefore Mr. MOODY's well-meant efforts to get these gentlemen in jail were baffled. In the message he sent to Congress yesterday President ROOSEVELT expresses grave doubts whether the Government can appeal from Judge HUMPHREY's decision. Being unable to get the matter before the Supreme Court, he himself overrules the Judge and asks Congress by a declaratory statute to say whether his decision shall stand as a correct interpretation of its purpose.

Judge HUMPHREY's decision, which was printed in full in the Congressional Record of April 5, reads astonishingly like common sense. It has the superficial appearance and even the inward structure of good reasoning. It might have been accepted as sound law had not Mr. ROOSEVELT declared that it is farcical, and that it makes the legislative act of Congress abortive. There is a very considerable body of law, statutory and Judge-made, in regard to the immunity of witnesses. Counsel in the beef packers' case cited profusely, and Judge HUMPHREY asserts that he was at considerable pains to look up the authorities. This again would create the presumption that he was upon solid ground had not Mr. ROOSEVELT taken the contrary view. Attorney General MOODY admitted that the facts obtained by Mr. GARFIELD were of "some assistance" to him in preparing for the prosecution of the packers. Judge HUMPHREY believes that the primary intent of Congress in passing the act under which Commissioner GARFIELD proceeded was to ascertain how the laws in regard to corporations were operating, whether they were being evaded, and how to strengthen them in case they needed strengthening by further legislation. To use testimony obtained for this purpose and under this pretense to enable the prosecuting arm of the Government to strike at the witnesses and their business, in his opinion at once brought into play the immunity provisions of the act relating to testimony thus taken by the Commissioner. He therefore instructed the jury to sustain the immunity pleas as regarded the individual defendants, but to deny that plea as to the corporations. Government counsel intimated that the necessary steps would be taken for appeal. Judge HUMPHREY thereupon remarked that he hoped an appeal would be taken, "because it is a mighty important matter."

Undoubtedly it is of some importance that there should be a determination of the question whether the Government when, in pursuit of its recently adopted policies, it begins the teasing of the corporations by all manner of inquisitory commissions it does not run the risk of conferring upon its victims an unexpected immunity from the pursuit of the Department of Justice.

THE RUSSIAN LOAN.

Estimates as to the net yield of the Russian loan, and the purposes to which it will be devoted, differ considerably. Our St. Petersburg dispatch of yesterday showed pretty plainly, however, that there would not be much of the loan left after this year's expenses and the demand debt are paid. If this be the correct view of the situation the Government cannot meet the Douma with that lightness of heart that is attributed to it. If the reactionaries should assume that it is safe either to dismiss the representative assembly or to disregard its expression of the popular will the error might be found to be serious.

The more reasonable view of the Government's interpretation of the situation is indicated by the statement of The Associated Press:

> The Associated Press is in a position to confirm the report that Count WITTE has now definitely got the upper hand of Minister of the Interior DURNOVO. The downfall of the latter is a matter of days, or weeks at the most, as Emperor NICHOLAS has promised to dismiss him before Parliament meets.

The Emperor has not really given his promise to dismiss DURNOVO except under pressure from Count WITTE, inspired by the Count's conviction that the policy DURNOVO stands for would result in the near paralysis of the empire. The condition of things is the more interesting from the fact that WITTE and DURNOVO are old and intimate friends, that the latter was much trusted by the former, and that WITTE would not have given up his friend had he not thought that it was essential to the safety of the Emperor. The representative principle is slowly but surely working in the dominions of the Czar, and its effects cannot easily be undone.

MR. ODELL AND THE SAVINGS BANKS.

One would say that the people who put their money in savings banks would receive decent attention from politicians. There are more than two and a half millions of them in the State of New York, and their savings amount to over a billion and a quarter. The average deposit is less than $500, showing plainly enough what class are really interested in these institutions. The Republican Party has repeatedly declared against the taxation of any part of these deposits, and the Governor of the State has repeatedly urged on the Legislature the repeal of the tax on the "surplus" of the banks. He sent in a special message recommending the measure that has just been killed in the Senate.

It was killed, according to all reports from Albany, solely to embarrass and humiliate Senator PAGE, who was its sponsor, and gratify the spite of Mr. ODELL, whom Mr. PAGE has been opposing. Incidentally, the snub to the Governor was also agreeable to the irritated nerves of the Chairman of the Republican State Committee. We are at a loss to think of a meaner motive for doing an unjust and wrong thing. It is making the interests of a large body of relatively poor and generally industrious and thrifty people the football of the lowest sort of politics.

THE BAY STATE'S PROGRESS.

The Massachusetts Bureau of Labor Statistics, in its published census of 1905, records fewer manufacturing establishments in that State than in 1900. There is greater organization. The capital invested has increased by 23.54 per cent., to $965,949,000. Wages paid, number of employés, and stock used have increased notably. The value of goods made in factories producing over $500 a year was $1,124,092,051, a gain of 23.85 per cent. over 1900.

Of the twelve principal manufacturing cities in Massachusetts Brockton gained 52 per cent. in value of its output, Cambridge 45.7 per cent., and Springfield 42.44 per cent.—in all $106,058,296, as against $72,102,536 five years previously. The total value of product of the twelve cities was $619,102,235, representing a gain of 21.25 per cent.

MORTGAGE TAX DANGER.

The briefs filed with the Governor afford scant support upon the merits for the report that he intends to veto the bill imposing a single recording tax upon mortgages, instead of an annually recurring tax. There is nothing new to say in favor of the bill, nor is there any need of anything, as it has won its way to the Executive table upon full argument. On the other hand, the criticisms in the briefs filed against the bill do not go to the merits at all, but relate to details which might be endured if not amended, and could be amended if thought necessary in a separate measure as well as by defeating this one and starting anew. For example, no one desires to impose a tax upon the borrowings of charitable institutions, but if this result should follow it would be easy to remedy. It is carrying charitable exemption too far to refuse the benefit to the entire community because of the burden upon a part of it already favored.

The objection that the bill omits mixed mortgages, especially corporation mortgages, is also an objection relating to an exception, and does not invalidate the wholesome rule. If it is desired to include such mortgages in a bill designed to relate to a different class of mortgages, and if, in fact, they are omitted, then they can be included by separate enactment. There is no such tenderness for this sort of exemption as exists in the case of charitable corporations, and there would be no pressure for favoritism in their behalf. But on the other hand, an allegation of that sort ought not to obstruct a measure which, in the judgment of an overwhelming majority, is for the benefit of the entire community.

These considerations are such as would be advanced by those convinced of the bill's merits. But its fate rests with an Executive who will be convinced against his will, and who has a reputation for consistency to maintain. The Legislature has changed its mind, but it remains to be seen whether Gov. HIGGINS is open to arguments which have convinced others. It is quite apart from arguments upon the bill that if he vetoes it he antagonizes both parties and all interested in real estate. That is a serious responsibility for any individual to take in a question of mere expediency where no question of principle necessitates an example of Spartan virtue in a degenerate age. Such an exhibition would fail to command such approval as the demonstrator might assume.

It is a curious comment on the state of mind and morals of the State Legislature that the Corrupt Practices bill which has just passed the Assembly was made practically ineffective as the price of passing it. Mr. WAINWRIGHT was entirely justified in saying that the exemption from publicity of contributions less than $200 and of expenditures less than $10 left the measure "open at both ends," and Mr. PRENTICE in saying that without the amendments proposed on these points by Mr. WAINWRIGHT "the successful operation of the measure will be impossible." We remarked when the matter was first brought before the Legislature that it was extremely improbable that the party in power would enact a self-denying ordinance on the eve of a State election for which they are in many ways so ill prepared. They have managed substantially to emasculate the bill. It has a single merit, that it is a beginning of the policy of publicity, and that is a merit of doubtful value. Still, thorough agitation may yet secure better results. It is a matter of education of public opinion.

Whatever may be the views of Congress on the need of restricting immigration, the slightest knowledge of conditions at this port ought to convince any one that the inspection service is hopelessly undermanned. The officers are working from twelve to fourteen hours a day, and are not able to keep near up with their task. Some sixteen thousand immigrant passengers slept aboard ship on Tuesday night awaiting attention; some of them had already been detained two days, and were not likely to pass for two more. It is obvious that the work of inspection, which at best is difficult, and sometimes delicate, cannot properly be done in these circumstances. It ought to be plain to Congress that the enforcement and administration of the present system should be made as perfect as possible before we proceed to change it, and especially before we extend it.

If Assemblyman MERRITT will examine attentively his map of the Catskills and the projected reservoirs for the use of this city he will discover that the works will not trench upon the State forests. Mr. MERRITT will be pained to learn that his proposed amendment to the Constitution removing the prohibition to flood any State forest, either for the use of reservoirs or for any other purpose, would really give aid and comfort to the inimical power companies. The New York Water Board, in whose behalf Mr. MERRITT has displayed such touching zeal, doesn't want the Constitution amended.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Marriage and Americans. One of our correspondents, thinking, for reasons not quite clear to us, that we were in need of an assurance as to the identity of American and European respect for marriage as an institution, told us in a letter we printed yesterday that "this view of the institution of marriage founded on a legal basis is an old one, acknowledged by all civilized nations, and imported from Europe to America by immigrants who made the United States the great country it is to-day, and that the same view is still held by the majority of the people in Russia." The information is not exactly new, but it is correct, and even if we didn't need it somebody else may, so no harm is done. If we were going to make a guess as to why it was offered we should probably hit upon the theory that our correspondent had been slightly irritated because, in commenting on the Gorky case, recently, we ventured the opinion that the tolerance of marital eccentricities which the Russians apparently expected all of us to show he would find only in a small group of "unassimilated immigrants." With all due respect to our correspondent, we think so still, though we will confess, if he insists, that a few people not included in the group we had in mind have also evidenced a more or less cautious disposition to hint that GORKY's critics were making a great fuss, if not about nothing, at least about something of no momentous importance and but remotely relevant to his cause and to himself as a preacher of that cause. That question is one we do not deem it worth while to argue. However it might be settled, the fact would remain that the Russian has shown himself, by failing to take into account conditions he should have known, a reckless and incompetent leader of any cause. He did not come over here to illustrate his opinions as to the rights of wives and—others, but to tell us about the wrongs of the Russian people at the hands of their oppressors and to get our help for remedying those wrongs. And he deliberately came in company that closed against him all the doors he wanted to open. That it did so may or may not prove us a narrow-minded and fanatical lot, much given to expectoration, and America a "wretched country" from which, as he tells his French friends, he will be glad to escape, but it certainly does prove that GORKY is a man of such bad judgment that he sets about the getting of what he wants in a way that makes success impossible.

Rent Leaves Price Out of Sight. Fifty years ago the late AUGUST BELMONT sold for $35,000 a certain plot of land at the corner of Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fifth Street. There is every reason to suppose that Mr. BELMONT secured what he considered a fair price for the property and none for supposing that he did not exercise in the sale his well-known shrewdness and good judgment. Yet the same land was purchased a year ago for $1,850,000, and now a building is to be erected upon it for which a tenant has already been found at an annual rental of $175,000 for a term of twenty-one years. It is evident that unless Mr. BELMONT had a special need for that $35,000, put it at once to extremely profitable use, and kept it hard at work ever since, it would have been better for him to keep the land and trust to New York to increase its value for him. New York is an amazingly efficient worker along that line, and apparently confidence in the city's future cannot be excessive. Sums like $35,000 will not go far, nowadays, in buying Fifth Avenue property, or property anywhere on Manhattan Island, for that matter, but then sums a good many times larger than $35,000 are in at least as many hands as had that sum fifty years ago, and the chances for securing what some people will insist on calling an unearned increment are probably even better than they were in the legendary period when the whole island was bought for a kettle, presumably brass, and wasn't regarded as a particularly good bargain at that, since it could about as easily have been taken from the then owners for nothing. We always had our doubts as to the truth of that kettle story, but it has a certain simple beauty, and is, as we proved not long ago, extremely interesting and impressive to the child mind—in New York. Whether that fact is more significant in regard to child minds in general or in regard to the local variety is a question to be decided in Boston, say, or in Philadelphia. However that may be, there is interest and impressiveness for us all in the news that a plot of our land now rents for five times what it cost only half a century ago.

Well Ruled Without Any Rules. There is much encouragement in the revelation, made before the Conference of Charities this week, that in one of this city's "homes" for working women—and one of the most successful—the problem of "rules," long supposed to be difficult to the point of insolubility in such institutions, does not make any trouble at all. Starting with the usual number of regulations as to what the tenants of the house should and shouldn't do—especially shouldn't—one rule after another has been found unnecessary and dropped till now they are required only to get up in time for breakfast and to put out their lights at 10:30 o'clock. The Superintendent admits that she isn't very strict in enforcing the second of these rules, and the chances are probably that with reasonable excuse the other, too, can be broken. In other words, there are no rules at all in this institution, but the tenants guard the proprieties because they like them—with a little help from the "suggestion" that they are expected to do so. It looks, therefore, as if the old problem was one wholly imaginary, or at least artificial, and that success in conquering the many difficulties of ancient assumption lay in calmly ignoring them.

Muck-Raking.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Perry Belmont's letter to the Bronx Press Club was a well-deserved tribute to newspaper correspondents, for at the present time they are being subjected to much unjust criticism.

We would have no faith if reports were all fixed up to hide the truth. When men deserve praise they give it to them, and bountifully; when men do wrong they criticise their acts, and tell the facts as they are. That's what the people want and that's what they buy newspapers for—to get facts. The newspapers of these United States have as a whole done nobly by the President, and touched very lightly on his "mistakes." He is the very last person to accuse them of being "Muck-Rake" men.

Wanted—A Word!

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have suffered a great deal of inconvenience because of my inability to find a word which will express exactly the opposite meaning of the word "postpone."

An occasion requiring the use of such a word was presented to me recently when I was called upon to change an engagement for a date some days off to an earlier date, and I was unable to properly and correctly express what I was doing, and I write you to inquire if you are aware of the existence of a word such as I seek.

I have decided to use the word "antepone," which I have "coined," until I learn of the correct one, if it exists. I hope, however, that you can induce some of our philologists to find or construct a word more expressive and euphonious than the one I suggest.

Adventure with a Mad Dentist.

From The London Telegraph.

PARIS, April 2.—"Do not stir. I am going to extract all the defective teeth in your mouth, and you will not have any more to pay than if one was taken out." "But I have only come for one," replied the patient, a young man, who was already suffering horribly. "I tell you that I shall extract the lot, and instead of thanking me you object. You see that revolver. Well, if you move I shall shoot you," and the dentist laid a revolver on a table by him. The luckless patient, perceiving that he had fallen into the hands of a lunatic, resigned himself to his fate, and had an awful time. When, however, it was all over, the dentist was as good as his word. He only asked for a very trifling sum, and after expressing the hope that his victim would send him some customers, and would himself return one day, bade him farewell. As soon as the young man was clear of the place he proceeded to the nearest police station with the story of his woes, and the dentist, who was known to have been in a queer state of mind for some time, has been removed to an asylum. But this will not restore the lost grinders, and the patient has received such a shock to his system that some time must elapse before he can be himself again.

A "Dead Man" Returns.

From The London Mail.

A seaman named Patrick Flynn jumped overboard from the steamer Jura while on a voyage from Hamburg to Cardiff, and was reported by the Captain as dead.

The Captain had, on April 4, just arranged to forward a money order to Flynn's relatives in payment of his wages when he was amazed to see Flynn, very much alive, standing before him.

The meeting took place at the shipping office in Cardiff, where Flynn had gone to demand his wages.

He explained how he had come to life again. When he jumped overboard, he said, he was picked up by a fisherman, who took him back to Hamburg, whence he traveled to Harwich and Barry. From Barry he walked to Cardiff—a distance of ten miles.

This explanation was accepted and Flynn was paid the wages due to him.

Up in the Air.

From The Boston Transcript.

The fine and delicate art of getting one's self noticed has at last reached its zenith. Not illogically, it has soared thither by balloon. In vain do we build grand houses. The houses stand still, and few see them. In vain do we race up and down the seacoast in 1,200-ton oceangoing steam yachts. The vast majority of our compatriots live inland and are thus denied the spectacle of our felicity. In vain do we go snorting across the continent in motor cars. At best the automobile cuts a swath of publicity some 200 feet wide or less. But the balloon—ye gods, what a device! Seven counties gape at you at once, and as you course blithely across the empyrean new counties come hourly within your zone of influence.

LIMITING FORTUNES.

Suggested That Real Property of Decedent Be Redeemed by the State.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Following the suggestion as to taxation or limitation of the fortunes acquired in this country, made by President Roosevelt, may I offer to the readers of THE TIMES what seems to me to be one remedy?

I have had the necessity within the past few weeks to study the inheritance tax law very thoroughly, and have noted that the exceptions to "the right of succession" (which is the basis of the tax, and not the property itself) leave the law almost inoperative in the case of small fortunes. Any bequest or legacy over $10,000, however, is taxable, and the decisions which were rendered at the time of making this law show it to be constitutional to tax inheritable property.

If the Government in some of the States has found it possible to levy a tax on the "right of succession," the rate of taxation can be fixed by law as well, and would bring the matter well within the suggestion of President Roosevelt that large fortunes should be taxed to such an extent that it would limit the amount to be received by any one individual.

What I wish to put forward as a method of taxation is that at the time of death the real property of the decedent be taken over by the State, which, after an appraisal of value that should be conservative, should pay to the heirs in money what it would be considered worth.

As each man dies and leaves his accumulated wealth, the realty would, by the fact of his death, revert to the State, and at the end of the lives now in being the State would be in possession of all the realty. In case of a homestead, the heirs could rent from the State; in the case of tenements or other rent-producing buildings, the rentals would go to the State.

But the State would be in control of the money-producing property, and the great fortunes would be limited to a very large degree, and the vast number of people who spend their days in an ineffectual effort to keep their rent paid would find their rentals gradually decreasing, as the necessity for the property to make the large returns to private gain lessens with governmental control.

Private control of realty makes the few men kings and the many men slaves. Governmental control of the realty is, according to my present point of view, after looking into the inheritance tax law, the safest and most effectual method of producing the result which the President and so many of his followers find to be an increasing need.

G. S. MULLINER.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In to-day's editorial, "Are Great Fortunes Dangerous?" you say: "Upon more mature reflection the President may conclude that it is not wise to undertake to interfere, by governmental operations, with the natural course of our social evolution."

The trouble is that our so-called social evolution has and can have no natural course, being itself unnatural. It is already a jumble of governmental operations, artificial interferences with natural or normal methods of industrial progress. It is not so much an evolution as an involution, to whose disastrous complications the President would add still further complexity.

JOHN SHERWIN CROSBY.

New York, April 18, 1906.

THE NEW TAXATION.

Press Comment on the President's Suggestion Continues.

From The Philadelphia Record.

First, we charter corporations carefully indued with power to rob us.

Then we enact tariffs putting a premium—in the shape of prohibitive duties on imports—upon the plundering of consumers.

Then, the corporations conspire together and form combinations and trusts to destroy competition and enrich themselves by exacting tribute from the people beyond the dreams of avarice.

Then comes President Roosevelt with a remedy. He proposes to rob the robbers.

But the real remedy—the Democratic remedy—is to pare the claws of the corporations, and to reduce the tariff to a simple revenue basis. This digs away the foundation of robbery and restores the rule of live and let live.

From The Buffalo Evening Times.

The President's plan is quite as radical as that of Mr. Bryan for an income tax, which was at first favored by the Supreme Court of the United States, but afterward decided unconstitutional by that court. It will not be indorsed by the leaders of the Republican Party, who are bent to the will of the multi-millionaire heads of the giant trusts. But the common people who are suffering in order that the trusts may accumulate more dishonest millions for their proprietors will regard it with favor.

From The Boston Herald.

The principle and policy of our Government in matters of this sort cannot be altered to meet the wishes or to suit the character of every President. If Congress is to have a law confiscating fortunes that are "swollen beyond all healthy limits," and giving the power of life and death over "all large corporations" to an agent of the President, this principle and policy must prevail under whatever party may succeed in the election and be administered by whomsoever the people may see fit to elect as President. Truly, radicalism is getting very close to the danger line when such propositions are seriously put forth by the recognized leader of the dominant party, holding the office of Chief Magistrate of the Nation.

From The Indianapolis News.

If this is not drawing the line against wealth, we do not know what it is. The President has just said that the important thing was not the size of the fortune, but the way it had been won and the use made of it. Yet he adds that a fortune may be too large, and that we ought to force its dispersion by taxing its transmission.

From The Richmond News-Leader.

With Mr. Roosevelt advocating a graduated income tax and Wall Street clamoring for a flexible currency, we are in a fair way presently to find the country governed on Democratic principles by administrations nominally Republican.

From The Washington Post.

An analysis of the President's astonishing suggestion that the National Government should impose a progressive tax upon the inheritance or transmission of "fortunes swollen beyond all healthy limits" forces the conclusion that he spoke more as an individual than as Chief Magistrate, and that his remarks are to be construed as suggesting an ideal, rather than forecasting an actual effort to secure legislation. When the full effect of the suggestion is understood, we believe that even the President's warmest admirers will confess that he has failed in this instance to strike the popular chord. It will be fortunate, indeed, if the President's suggestion does not do more harm than good. It may increase the discontent that is manifested by the growth of Socialism, without pointing out a practicable method of removing the causes of such discontent.

From The Chicago Daily News.

It is singular that the President should have turned at this time to the evils of inherited wealth, while the public is being made to feel the pinch of high prices for necessities because of the power of industrial combines and other active agencies for the extraction of exorbitant profits. The high tariff still rears its frowning crest and no one at Washington dares to make a determined attack upon its harmful features. It seems rather absurd to enter upon a discussion of the advisability of taking money away from the heirs of men who pile up great fortunes, while the pressing need is to cure injustices by reason of which many of those fortunes are being piled up.

MAXIM GORKY.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The treatment accorded to Maxim Gorky upon his arrival to these shores has been little less than outrageous. The entire proceeding is ridiculous and hypocritical in the extreme, and should make us the laughing stock of the civilized world.

As to the charge against Gorky itself. The slanderers of the writer lay great stress upon his having "deserted" his lawful wife for an actress, with all that "actress" implies to the American mind. Perhaps it was his wife who deserted him. I have no doubt, however, that the separation was due to a mutual understanding, not infrequent in Russia, where divorce laws are very unreasonable and such separations are often a necessity. Besides, Gorky, with his well-known antagonism to the Orthodox Greek Church, would have no chance of securing a divorce.

Gorky and Andreieva have traveled through Europe, and everywhere were received with courtesy and respect. But of course it remained for us, with our superior standards, in a country where divorces are almost as frequent as marriages, to cast the first stone.

It is hardly necessary to defend the famous Russian author. The name and fame of Maxim Gorky will live long after the bones of his defamers will have rotted in their graves.

JACOB B. HORWITT.

New York, April 17, 1906.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I desire to oppose your sentiments in to-day's Topics of the Times, wherein you take the position that Gorky's usefulness to the cause of Russian liberty in this country is ruined because of the "revelations" in his family affairs.

You, in effect, state that he has "impudently insulted" those who were disposed to honor and assist him in having come here in company of the lady he calls his wife, and in introducing her as such, when, according to report, she is not such. You also say that, "being an intellectual," he might, or should have, known that his conduct would give grave offense to American sensibilities.

Gorky's conduct has not been such as to cause all that! Contrary to report, the lady accompanying him is his wife. He states so; she states so; he openly and publicly acknowledges her as such. They have for years lived openly as husband and wife in their home in Russia, and were known and treated as such by all surrounding them. They have never been in conflict with the Russian authorities on that score. What more could make them husband and wife more than they are?

Are we still living in the time of "The Scarlet Letter"?

LEO WEINSTEIN.

Hartford, Conn., April 16, 1906.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

An intellectual giant should at least be met as an intellect; a great and long-suffering hero and humanist should be met with humanity, and a powerful publicist and patriot should be welcomed for his power and purpose, at least by gentlemen and freemen as a gentleman and a freeman.

S. A.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The punishment of Gorky by the aroused conscience of American people will have, in my opinion, a more beneficial effect on the ultimate cause of Russian freedom than any amount of money contributed here for the same purpose.

It will teach the lesson, so needed by Russia, that the enduring liberty of a nation must rest per se upon the immutable and eternal principles of morality. In his domestic kingdom Gorky is guilty of the same offense of which the Czar and his minions are guilty in the domain of State—tyranny over the weak for selfish motives.

A LOVER OF LIBERTY.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Apropos of the Gorky incident, it is interesting to note that the decision of the United States Supreme Court, which was handed down yesterday, places him in the company of some of the foremost families of this country. The social and legal status are identical in both cases. They have no legal right to call the women they live with their wives, and it has been suggested that the immigration authorities deport Gorky because of his assertion that the woman he lives with is his wife. He considered his former ties severed; they thought themselves free to enter into new relations. In both cases the all-essential forms have not been observed.

Concerning The Times.

From The Des Moines Mail and Times.

In the morning newspaper field in New York the great success of the day is THE TIMES, occupying the most magnificent office in America, at Forty-second Street and Broadway, twenty-three stories, all above the eleventh floor being occupied by the newspaper. It is the most modern and effectively as well as comfortably arranged office. THE TIMES is never lurid, never gets excited, and tries never to make a mistake as to facts. It never "fakes." But it does not hesitate to print the facts of life. It prints the news of the world and of the United States, and its work is always done with superior intelligence and discrimination. THE TIMES is never dull. It speaks out plainly on its editorial page, and gives facts with precious little bias in its news columns. It has a very large circulation, and is read by all classes.

Out of a Job.

From The Philadelphia Public Ledger.

"Madam, might I rake your lawn?"

The speaker, albeit he had a furtive eye, did not look like a regular tramp.

"What will you charge me?" the woman asked.

Thinking he was crazy, she slammed the door in his face. How could she know he was a magazine muck-raker out of a job?

The arms that conquered empire. Deep from view
About my base the buried cities lie.
And now immortal rage inflames my soul.

Profane their sanctuaries. Lightnings sheen
Flash swords above me. Round my craters roll

DANCED ASSEMBLY BALL AS IN DAYS OF 1840

HOOPSKIRTS, BEAVER HATS

After nearly threescore years—in fact, since the ball of the Racket Club in 1848, when New York society was still downtown and hoopskirts were worn—the old Astor House, gray pillared, dignified, and a landmark with old Trinity Church, was last night once more a scene of powder and patches, of crinoline and side curls, and its old ballroom a picture of the time of Daniel Webster, of Clay, of Poe, and Willis.

The Assembly Ball at the old Astor House last night was given with the costumes of those who danced in the ancient hostelry in its gay days from 1840 to 1860. An entrance was provided on Vesey Street, across which highway ran the dark shadow of old St. Paul's Church. As carriage after carriage drove up and men and women in costumes of the days of long ago, it seemed as if the guests of Manhattan's ancestry tripped from the vehicles to the spread of carpet leading to the entrance. But the laughter was far from ghostly, and the tripping was literal, for the young women had not the skill of their grandmothers in handling hoop skirts and the carriage doors of to-day are not as wide as those of the coaches built in the forties, when crinoline was to be reckoned with.

Old, and Yet New.

As old as it was, it was all new to the young people, the beaus and the belles of to-day. The men talked self-consciously of their flowered waistcoats and nankeen trousers, and told each other the details of their preservation since grandfather last wore them. Some of the high beavers did not fit well, and they kept scurrying around the heads of their wearers; one athletic descendant of a "Declaration" signer said that he had on his grandfather's suit, and that he dared not attempt a courtly bow because his grandfather did not happen to be as well built in the nether limbs as he.

Some of the young women had rehearsed with the hoop skirts, but that had been in private. They had not rehearsed leaving automobiles in the apparel of the day when an automobile would have been a marvel. The hoop skirt, in fact, caused batches of the young women to come in large vehicles, squeezed in in little uncertain and fearful parties. When the doors of their cabs, cabriolets and electric 'buses were thrown open they spread their white arms an either side of their wide spreading skirts, squeezed their finery out in front and far behind in a much depressed oval and slid to the sidewalk. Going up the stairs of the Astor House was almost as difficult. There was more than one accident as a tiny heel caught in the encircling wires and more than one call for help.

The gentlemen in stocks and blue and bottle green swallowtails, in satin and silk waistcoats and nankeen trousers, with their white stockings gleaming over their low-cut pumps and buckles, rushed to their rescue, hanging to their skyscraping beavers or bending with great gentleness in remarkably tight trousers.

But these accidents were passed off laughingly, the dowagers, the chaperons, and patronesses, in their beflowered, their damasked and proudly floating satins and velvets, advising the young women how to gather their skirts so as to include the wires and helping mightily with their better experience.

Wore Willis's Monocle.

The originator of the costume assembly in the ancient hostelry was Weymer Jay Mills, the author of "Caroline of Cortlandt Street," and a student of old New York. Tucked in his right eye was a monocle once worn by the poet Willis and in the ruffles showing through his waistcoat was an amethyst that an old beau of many years agone had worn to his own great satisfaction. The success of the quaint function was due to his ideas and the help given him by Mrs. Robert Endicott, Mrs. John Hone, Mrs. William M. Chase, Mrs. Phillip Livingston, Mrs. Casimir de Rham Moore, Mrs. Benjamin Nicoll, Mrs. J. Carroll Beckwith, Mrs. Edwin Heeland Blashfield, and other ladies.

In the ballroom there was no trace of the display of wealth that is to be seen to-day in the great ballrooms in private residences and in the magnificent hostelries that have been built in the last twenty years. The old walnut wainscotting that was once considered quite magnificent, old candlesticks from wall and mantelpiece, wreathings of smilax and white flox, calla lilies, and lilies of the valley, and vases of old-fashioned roses such as the "hundred leaf," even the old-fashioned lace curtains, all made the room sweetly fragrant and reminiscent to those present who had passed to the three score year and who had not forgotten the heyday of their youth.

In many years it was the first Assembly Ball when the stranger within the gates and blessed with a "bid," could tell who were the guests and who was the major domo of the occasion. Then men, without a single exception, wore the clothes of their grandfathers becomingly and the Jeems Yellowplushes wore their plushes as become such factotums.

Grandfather's Evening Clothes.

Matthew Astor Wilks wore his own distinguished grandfather's evening clothes—the fine gear of John Jacob Astor. There may have been the must of the years and the dust of a century or two still lingering in them, but the fragrant old-fashioned flowers smothered the faint, ghostly odor of days that are dead.

The quadrille d'honneur was started shortly after 11 o'clock. It was led by Alexander Hadden, and was danced by the Misses Constance Pratt, Gladys Endicott, Helen Gouverneur Hone, Grace Moore, Elsie Nicoll, Beatrice Pratt, Anne Hyde Clarke, Helen Cuyler, and the Messrs. Alexander M. Hadden, Schuyler Schieffelin, Francis Kinnicutt, George Peabody, Alfred Macy, W. Halstead Vanderpoel, Moses Taylor Pyne, Jr., and Carrol Stetson.

The quadrille was danced in the manner of the beaux and belles of 1840, and before it was started the informal dances, all with the music that was popular in the old days, included the old hop waltz of 1838, which one or two couples indifferently essayed.

The supper was preceded by the Sir Roger de Coverley. The lights were dim, and through the wide windows the bells of St. Paul's and of old Trinity tolled 12.

All downtown was dead quiet, save on Vesey Street, which echoed the laughter of the women as they enjoyed the lapse back to a half century ago along with the music that has been forgotten many a decade.

Some Quaint Costumes.

Among the quaintly and effectively gowned women were the following: Mrs. Robert Endicott wore a white brocade gown in the mode of the Court gowns of Louis Philippe.

Miss Angelica Schuyler Church wore a frock of white and yellow muslin, made after a model which was the débutante dress of her grandmother, who was Miss Van Wyck of Albany.

Mrs. Tiffany Dyer wore a court dress and train which had been her mother's, who was Mme. La Bau, a daughter of the late Commodore Vanderbilt, when she was presented at the Tuileries shortly after the wedding of Louis Napoleon and Eugenie.

Mrs. Henry Dimock wore a ball costume of the period of the late fifties in white and silver. Mrs. Charles Melville Dewey was in white and pink changeable silk, with roses.

Miss Carolyn Wells, the writer, went as Carolyn of the (Trelawny) Wells.

Miss Ward McAllister was in a white and lavendar 1850 gown worn by her mother, Mrs. Ward McAllister, as a bride.

Miss Eleanor Hewitt wore a gown of blue shot silk, which was her mother's, when as Miss Cooper she was present at the ball given in honor of the Prince of Wales.

The gown of Miss Hester Gouverneur Hone was copied from an old daguerotype of Miss Hester Gouverneur, an ancestress for whom she was named.

Viscountess Maitland had a most effective 1850 costume.

Miss Minerva Gersen wore a lavendar watered moiré silk trimmed with velvet. Miss Gersen, her sister, was in white. The Misses Gersen represented the old French set, their great grandmother having been a de la Pagerie from Martinique, and a near relative of Empress Josephine.

Miss Edith Van Courtlandt Jay wore a gown copied from a miniature of Mrs. John Jay. This gown and coiffure in the high pompadour style, with a wreath of pink roses, was made after the fashion of the First Empire and seemed to-day, when these styles are being revived, as almost modern. Miss Jay wore jewels belonging to her ancestress, who was one of the notable and beautiful women of the Revolutionary period.

In the costumes the men wore Matthew Astor Wilks wore a costume of the early thirties.

Oswald Jackson wore a Court costume worn by a collateral ancestor at one of the European Courts. The coat was of blue-black brocade heavily embroidered. The trousers were of white cloth.

William Frederick Dix was dressed as Nathaniel P. Willis, the founder of The Mirror and Home Journal. Mr. Dix wore the tight-fitting coat and frilled shirt and wide trousers of the period, and a wig arranged as in portraits of George IV., a style which Mr. Willis affected when young.

WOMAN'S ART CLUB.

Annual Exhibition of a Society of Painting and Sculpting Women.

Paris has several organizations devoted to the exclusive exhibition of woman's work in the fine arts, and the society which shows work by women only is not unknown in London. In this country, outside a few of the largest cities, one often imagines upon entering an exhibition of the arts that it must be run and patronized by the fair sex, because most of the exhibits are from feminine hands. A Woman's Art Club really has a more difficult problem to solve in surviving at all in New York than it would in any other city of the Union.

This, because the number of painters and sculptors here is so large that they naturally set the tone, and so women are more concerned with attempts to gain a foothold in the regular yearly exhibitions managed by men than with the interests of a club of fellow-workwomen.

The Woman's Art Club has opened its annual exhibition in the National Arts' Club, 37 West Thirty-fourth Street, and clothes the walls of the galleries with oil paintings, pastels, and water colors, with here and there a miniature, a colored drawing, or a bit of sculpture.

The portrait of a sculptor by Miss Louise L. Heustis, that of a young Frenchman who holds a bronze statuette in his hand, is handsomely wrought as to the technical side, and displays no small appreciation of character, as well as feeling for the special national traits of the gentleman. The likeness deserves the prominent place it has been given.

Miss Jean McLane follows with "Girl in Gray" and "Child in Brown," largely treated in neutral tones and with a much more ambitious canvas "The People of the Square," in which she tries to include most of the types of poor people. It is a piece of realism very unrealistically treated, but still not idealized; what might be termed a big sketch rather than a picture, and perhaps also a subject better suited to illustration than to canvas and oils on the scale attempted.

Over this canvas hangs a very pleasant little idyl of out of doors, "The Salt Marsh," by Miss Julia M. Wickham, and not far off the finely toned and clever bit, "In a French Courtyard," by Blanche Dillaye, and the broadly brushed shorescape "Long Island Dunes," by Miss Louise Munger. Here are tender flower bits by Mrs. E. M. Scott, (yellow roses and geraniums,) nasturtiums by Miss Elizabeth Hardenbergh, poppies by Miss Frieda Redmond, rhododendrons by Miss Ethel Hore, and roses by Miss Spafford and Mrs. Parrish; but the flower pictures are inconspicuous owing to the number of portraits.

An excellent portrait is that of a lady in violet and mauve by Miss Elizabeth Finley. Notable for the painting of fur muff and tippet is the half-length of a lady, Mrs. Henry Mottet, while a more experienced and technically surer hand does not produce so convincing an impression of character in Miss Helene Pupke's likeness of a seated lady.

In the matter of still life one may note the handiwork on objects in "My Studio," by Miss Emily N. Hatch, such as the green jug and the shadow-laden air of "A Canadian Interior," with one seated and one standing woman, by Miss Content Johnson; in regard to animals observe the camels in Miss Elizabeth Nourse's water colors of Oriental scenes.

An example of Miss Mary Cassatt's work has been lent by Durand-Ruel called "The Cup of Tea," half-length of a young woman, part drawn, part painted. Effective through its masses of color, but not altogether satisfactory in composition and line, is the young girl's figure "When Mother Was a Girl," with the little face in a big poke bonnet, by Miss Florence Carlyle, who shows two other canvases, "The Jewess" and "My Mother." Miss Lydia Field Emmet sends a full-length of "Baby Kate," and Mrs. Ruth Payne Burgess a painting of a painting with the figure of a woman in the foreground looking at the canvas, called "Adoration," also "A Lady of Quality" and a small profile, "Burgomaster." Mrs. Burgess is President of the Woman's Art Club.

Nice bits of tone and good still life are found in "Cornish Kitchen," by Miss Alethia H. Platt; "The Old Bureau," with figure of seated woman overhauling satins and silks, by Miss Ethel Hore; "Knitting," by Miss Susan M. Ketcham; "Courtyard of the Abbey of San Gregorian," by Miss Anna Fisher, and "The Old Chateau," Mrs. Emma L. Cooper. Among the portraits are drawings in color by Miss Mathilde de Cordoba, in water colors by Miss Laura C. Barrett, in oils by Miss Helen Watson Phelps, in pastels by Miss Juliette Thompson. There are good landscapes by Miss A. W. Salisbury, Mrs. A. L. Wyant, Mrs. Timken Fry, Miss Alice M. Simpson, Miss Anna C. Hillman, and Miss Alice C. Cushman, and a marine, "The Wave," by Miss Emma B. King. Only two pieces of statuary appear—"Head of Satyr," by Miss Ellen Lesley, and low relief head, "In Olden Time."

TROLLEY CAR ABLAZE CROSSING NEW BRIDGE

Williamsburg Structure Endangered by Flaming Vehicle.

A MOTORMAN'S BRAVERY

Three Persons Slightly Hurt in a Collision on the Same Bridge Earlier in the Day.

The blowing out of a fuse on a trolley car bound for Brooklyn over the Williamsburg Bridge last night set fire to the car, frightened the passengers, brought out the fire engines and fireboats, and stopped traffic on the bridge from 7:15 until 8:15 o'clock. The car was in charge of Motorman Arthur Blaisdell of 525 Hudson Street and Conductor John Smith, of 107 East Tenth Street.

There were five women and five men in the car when it started across the bridge. At the Manhattan tower there was a loud report like that of a pistol shot. Then came a flash of fire and an electric display which frightened the passengers so that they ran pellmell to the platforms and jumped to the roadway. A minute later a tongue of flame shot up through the floor of the car.

"We've blown out a fuse," the motorman yelled to the conductor, "but I guess we can make Brooklyn before the car sets fire to the bridge."

Blaisdell put on full power. The high speed fanned the flames, so that soon the whole car was on fire. After the car reached the Williamsburg end the fireboats Boody and Van Wyck steamed up under the bridge and tried to get a stream to the fire, but it was too high for them.

Policeman Donlin of the Williamsburg Bridge Squad, who was on duty at the Brooklyn tower, saw the flames eat their way to the bridge planking beneath the car, and fearing that the extreme heat would warp the bridge cables, he had the blazing car boosted down the incline to the Brooklyn plaza. At the foot of Broadway, Brooklyn, some one who had seen the fire on the bridge rang an alarm, bringing the fire engine. All the woodwork of the car was burned away, leaving nothing but the trucks and iron work.

The slight fire which started on the bridge planking near the Brooklyn tower was put out with the aid of the bridge chemical engine. The fire, however, damaged the feed wires of the lighting plant, leaving the bridge in darkness for an hour.

There was a rear-end collision between two cars of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit Company on the incline of the Williamsburg Bridge, near the Manhattan tower, yesterday morning. All the passengers were badly shaken up and three persons were slightly injured. The cars were a bridge local, in charge of Motorman John Miller, and a Broadway car in charge of Motorman P. J. Dodd. The bridge local had about sixty passengers aboard, and the Broadway car about thirty.

The local car was just going down the incline on the Manhattan side when the motorman slowed down. The Broadway car was directly behind, and ran into it before the motorman could check it. Traffic was blocked on the bridge for some time following the accident.

BINGHAM MAKES A SPEECH.

He and Pugilist Sharkey Are Now Post Comrades.

Police Commissioner Bingham, Deputy Commissioner Waldo, and Secretary Slattery went to Whitestone on Tuesday night to be present at an installation by Gen. Theodore A. Bingham, Garrison 35, Regular Army and Navy Union, an organization formed some years ago and composed of soldiers and ex-soldiers and sailors.

Tom Sharkey, the ex-pugilist, occupied a seat with Commissioner Bingham on the stage. The Police Commissioner and his Deputy were among those installed, and they and Secretary Slattery and Sharkey are now all comrades of the same garrison.

After the installation Commissioner Bingham made a speech on loyalty, patriotism, and unselfishness, exemplified in the American soldier, and said that a good soldier was a good Christian as well as a good citizen. Money sometimes does not bring happiness, he said, and newspaper notoriety did not either, but friendship and comradeship did. The Commissioner was warmly applauded.

MR. HUTCHESON'S RECITAL.

Pianist Plays an Interesting Programme in Mendelssohn Hall.

Mr. Ernest Hutcheson, a pianist of Baltimore and of good repute in New York from his previous appearances here, gave a piano recital in Mendelssohn Hall yesterday. His programme was unconventional, containing a number of interesting pieces that pianists have not pursued to the death. The most important was Schumann's F sharp minor sonata. Mr. Hutcheson played artistically, intelligently, with ample technical power to compass all that he undertook. He has a good tone upon the piano and a command of a certain variety in it. His playing is on the whole the outcome of sound musicianship and abundant training. It is in many respects enjoyable and indeed admirable; but it cannot deeply move. It is not exactly dry, but it is not the product of a vigprous imagination or a deeply poetical feeling. It seemed almost as if he attempted to supply this temperamental lack by a certain artificial exaggeration at times, as in the aria of Schumann's sonata, and in some of the episodes elsewhere in the piece as well as in certain of his Chopin selections, where a cantabile theme enters. In such places he seldom failed to put an overemphasis or an excess of rubato. His playing of Busoni's arrangement of a choral prelude by Bach was excellent in its clearness and symmetry. The "Tambourin," by Rameau, from his opera "Dardanus," a charming minuet by Beethoven, and an arrangement by Tausig of Scarlatti's F minor capriccio were played sympathetically. His interpretation of Chopin, if it was not the communion of a kindred poetic soul, was sane and straightforward. So that there was an abundance for the small audience to admire in this post-season recital.

GORKY SURPRISES RUSSIANS.

Not by His Morals, but by His Lack of Diplomacy.

ST. PETERSBURG, April 18.—Much interest has been aroused here by the cabled accounts of Maxim Gorky's fall in public estimation in the United States on account of the disclosure of the fact that the woman who accompanied him to New York was not Mme. Gorky, but the actress, Mme. Andreieva.

Many Russians, among whom quite a different code of morals is accepted from that which prevails in the United States, seem incapable of comprehending the American point of view, and there is much surprise at what is regarded as the intolerance of Americans. Nevertheless, many liberals, even among the novelist's friends, are severe in their criticism of him for his lack of diplomacy in jeopardizing his popularity and the cause which he went to America to plead by taking with him Mme. Andreieva.

The Dewey at Port Said.

PORT SAID, Egypt, April 18.—The United States ry dock Dewey, with her convoys Gaesar, Glacier, and Brutus, arrived off this port to-day.

Death by Milk Or by Earthquake?

Jacob Riis says: "You can kill a man with a tenement as well as with an axe." So babies can be killed by bad milk as well as by earthquakes or volcano. Thousands died last Summer in New York because of inadequate inspection of milk.

You can help reduce this mortality (1) By writing City Controller, 280 Broadway, your request for more inspectors; (2) By supporting Summer charities that work hardest during the hottest weeks to prevent tenements and impure milk from killing mothers and babies.

"BLACK POPE" IS DEAD.

Father Martin Had Been General of the Jesuits Since 1892.

ROME, April 18.—Father Louis Martin, General of the Jesuits, known as the "Black Pope," died shortly before noon to-day. He had been suffering from cancer of the breast.

Father Martin had been head of the Jesuit Order since September, 1892, succeeding Father Anderledy, who died in July of that year. Just before Anderledy died he nominated Martin, who was then one of the Chancellors of the General of the order, to act as temporary head of the Jesuits until a new General was elected.

Father Martin was a Spaniard, and was born in 1846. He became a Jesuit novice when he was 22 years old, and ten years later was made rector of the University of Salamanca. He gained high distinction as a theologian, and in 1886 became Provincial of the Jesuit Order in Castile.

Father Martin was a strenuous opponent of the "Americanization" of the Catholic Church in this country, and about three years ago was sued by an Italian editor for payment for alleged services against that movement. He had been ill for over a year, and his right arm was amputated a year ago.

HARPERS BOOKS

THE SPOILERS

By Rex Beach

Novels are like men: strong personalities, virile emotions, energy and resource forge to the front and are quick to catch the public eye. This same magnetic force in THE SPOILERS—the work of a new writer—has immediately caught the reading world in its grip. They can't let go.

"A tornado of a novel."—N. Y. Globe.

"A story of 'rapid-fire' events which keeps the excitement at fever heat."—Toledo Blade.

"Healthy and a good blood stirrer. The description of the fight between the two principals is worth reading the whole book for."—N. Y. Evening Sun.

"A story of the hunger for gold dug out of the hills and the hunger of man for woman and for woman's love—a story that is true of all men and all real women since time began."—Albany Journal.

"Not often does the reader come upon a story of this virile quality. It will grip the reader's attention until the last page is turned. No better romance of the life of civilized men, reverting under primitive conditions to the master passions of mankind, has been told. Mr. Rex Beach, the author, has scored a brilliant success."—Brooklyn Eagle.

AMERICANS TIE WITH BOSTON

Teams Agree to Quit After Eleven Exciting Innings—Cleveland Shuts Out St. Louis.

Notwithstanding the defeat of Pittsburg yesterday at the hands of Manager Hanlon's Cincinnatians and the non-playing of the Bostons, the victory of the New Yorks did not improve their position in the race, but the contest is so close that a reverse sustained by each of the leaders and a victory for McGraw's men will place the champions at the head of the column. The latter are scheduled to play five more games in succession with the Brooklyns, while at the same time Boston will face the Philadelphias five times and Pittsburg will meet Cincinnati in three additional games and then go to Chicago for three more. The Greater New Yorks and Lajoie's Cleveland team lead the Americans without a defeat, but the champions are a close third.

CHAMPIONS FINISH FIRST.

There was no question as to the better team winning yesterday in the game between the champion New Yorks and the Brooklyns at Washington Park. With Wiltse as pitcher, the world's champions gradually drew away from "Pat" Donovan's team, and finally won by 4 to 1. But what the crowd of more than 5,000 "rooters" could not understand was the vacillating work of the umpires. Strickiett was ordered out of the game by Umpire Emslie because he threw his glove in the air, the sign of a protest, evidently, against giving Devlin a base on called balls, but in the first inning Bresnahan, who made a vigorous objection against calling a strike on him, went unpunished. Furthermore, in the sixth inning, no less than nine New Yorkers surrounded Umpire Conway, and with the most pointed objections protested against the decision declaring "Bill" Dahlen out at first base because he was caught napping.

Dahlen was sent out of the game and Strang substituted. The latter started off so poorly that but for his horrible throw to first base in an effort to make a double play the Brooklyns would not have been able to make a run. A base on balls, Gilbert's out and a hit by Wiltse gave the New Yorks their first run in the third inning; and after the first two were out in the fourth, a single by Mertes and Dahlen's double to left scored the second run. A wild throw by Capt. Casey to first was responsible for the third run in the fifth inning, while Lewis's wild throw, Donlin's steal, and Mertes's sacrifice hit enabled Donlin to cross the plate in the sixth inning. AMERICANS TIE IN BOSTON.

New Yorks Field Poorly and Use Three Pitchers Against Ex-Champions.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, April 18.—Boston and New York fought for eleven innings this afternoon, and then the game was called, with the score at three runs each. It was an exciting contest in many ways, both teams having plenty of chances to win, but the unexpected always intervened. The visitors tried in every way to pull out with the game, but the locals demonstrated a stubborn spirit and refused to surrender. New York got a run in the first inning on Keeler's bunt, a wild throw by Graham, and Harris's wild pitch. The locals tied it up in their half on Selbach's single and Collins's ripping double.

The ex-champions took the lead in the fifth, when Moriarty fumbled Harris's slow grounder, Selbach sacrificed, and Harris scored on Stahl's double to left. There was nothing of moment from then on until the eighth, when Harris gave three men bases on balls, following Conroy's strike-out, but Moriarty was thrown out trying to steal, and Dougherty flied to Selbach. In the ninth Keeler hit to left. Elberfeld bunted to Harris, who threw wild to second. Chase advanced the two New Yorkers with a sacrifice, and Williams brought them home with a hard single to right. In Boston's half the score was tied again. Grimshaw batted out a single and Ferris sacrificed. Graham flied to Dougherty. Godwin batted for Harris, and his grounder carromed off Le Roy's toe, and Selbach brought Dineen, Grimshaw's substitute runner, across the plate with a clean hit. The score:

PHILADELPHIA, April 18.—The American League season was formally opened in this city to-day with a victory for the champions over Washington. Good hitting gave the contest to the home team. Seybold played a star game, batting in two runs and scoring two himself. Prior to the beginning of the game the American League pennant was unfurled by Mayor Weaver in the presence of Ban Johnson, President of the League, and a large number of other baseball officials.

DETROIT, Mich., April 18.—A touch of pathos marked the closing of to-day's contest. Edward Siever, after pitching and winning his game, walked to the bench and received a telegram announcing his father's death at Wichita, Kan. Three hits in a row in the first inning and Walsh's poor fielding in the fourth gave the locals their victory. Score:

CHICAGO, April 18.—An order issued to-day by President Pulliam of the National League suspended Manager-Capt. Chance of the Chicago team for three days because of his verbal attack on Umpire Johnstone during the game yesterday.

BEMAY WON ROSE STAKE BY A HEAD FROM FAY

Filly from Winter Tracks Took the Aqueduct Feature Race.

Fields of moderate quality made the racing at the Aqueduct track yesterday, but the rather commonplace card had no effect on the attendance, which again went up to something like holiday proportions. The track was fast enough to fit in with the other conditions, and the fastest mile of the year was made in the fifth event, won by Yorkshire Lad in 1:39, while in one of the six-furlong races the track record of 1:12 4-5 was equaled by the three-year-old filly Edna Jackson, which, after leading all the way, won, ridden out, before Tommy Waddell, with the favorite, Monet, third.

The racing throughout was interesting, several horses of reputation figuring among the starters, the most notable of the number being the great sprinting mare Lady Amelia, which made her first appearance of the year in the opening event at five furlongs, and won in her most gallant style after making all the pace, doing the five furlongs easily in 0:59 2-5.

The stake feature of the day, the Rose, for fillies two years old, at a half mile, introduced the stake-winning Bemay from New Orleans to the New York public, and Bemay, a favorite on her Winter form, won again, but only after a hard fight with Fay, herself a winner the day before. The race throughout was between Bemay and Fay, the Winter track filly finally getting the decision by a head.

One other race, for two-year-olds, furnished something of a sensation, when the longest chance winner of the day, Brushman, in the colors of J. W. Henning, a new comer on the turf, and trained by the veteran Matt Byrnes, got home at 8 to 1 in the closing race, for which Merrill, from the Bennington stable, was a warm favorite. The clubhouse contingent made a very disastrous plunge on Just So, running in John A. Drake's colors in the fifth race, Just So starting at odds on, but failing by a short head in the race, when his rider, Garner, tried to take him to the rail and so lost ground enough to let Yorkshire Lad, ridden by Radtke, win by a head. Israfel, a cast-off from the H. P. Whitney stable, made a runaway race of the second event, for which he was backed down to the place of favorite. Summaries:

Cornell Elects Football Captain.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., April 18.—George Tandy Cook of Canton, Ohio, a member of the sophomore class of Cornell University, was elected Captain of the football team to-night at a meeting of all the members of last year's 'Varsity. Cook was elected to fill the vacancy caused by the dismissal of Ray Van Orian, who was expelled for cribbing. Cook has played right tackle on the 'Varsity for the past two years, and has made a great record. He also secured second place in the hammer throw at last year's intercollegiate track meet, and is President of the sophomore class.

FENCERS MUST MEET AGAIN.

N. Y. A. C. Did Not Win Championship Trophy—Reception to T. S. Saltus.

W. Scott O'Connor, Secretary of the Amateur Fencers' League, said yesterday that owing to an error discovered in scoring bouts in the team dueling sword championship, that event will be held over again. The championship was competed for last Saturday night at the Fencers Club, and after a close final round the award was given to the New York Athletic Club team by one bout, the New York Turn Verein being second. Owing to the fact that the score was kept by a Turn Verein fencer who is famous for his accuracy, the officials did not examine the record carefully until early this week. The unusual error was then discovered which made the result a tie. Mr. O'Connor said that no date has been set for the contest, but it will not be held until after the individual championships on April 27.

In recognition of the generosity of J. Sanford Saltus, who has given several cups and medals to the league this year, in addition to the offer of a silver international trophy, the Executive Committee decided yesterday to give a reception to Mr. Saltus at the close of the annual meeting of the league, which will be held on May 12 at the New York Athletic Club. A gold medal will be presented to him on behalf of the fencing clubs in the league. A number of informal bouts will be fenced to add to the interest of the affair.

TRIUMPH FOR MISS GILBERT.

BOSTON, April 18.—Miss Gertrude Gilbert of New York won a notable victory to-day at the Boston Horse Show with her harness pair, The Baron and President, defeating both the Jordan and Moore entries. The jumping was a special feature, in which the Myopia Hunt Club carried off the blue ribbon with Torchlight. The Union County Hunt of West Orange, N. J., with women riders, one of whom was Miss Catherine Elkins, was a close second.

Judge Moore won two events in the afternoon, one in the novice pairs for heavyweights. Reginald Vanderbilt scored first in the class for runabout horses, in which he showed Fancy. E. T. Stotesbury of Philadelphia carried off the first and second in the roadsters.

FORDHAM, 3; YALE, 2.

Fordham treated Yale to a surprise at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon by trouncing the New Haven baseball team by a score of 3 to 2. Yale outbatted and outfielded the Fordham lads, but Pratt, who occupied the box for Yale, was too liberal with bases on balls in the opening inning. Two bases on balls and two hits and Yale's only error netted Fordham three runs, which were enough to win the game. After that Pratt settled down and held Fordham to one hit, and although still wild, the local team never had a chance to score.

Rudolph, meantime, was effective when he needed to be. He scattered the hits well, and had he been well supported would have had no trouble in shutting out the New Havenites. The score:

COLUMBIA, 6; RUTGERS, 4.

Columbia's baseball team defeated Rutgers College nine in a mediocre game yesterday afternoon, at South Field, the score being 6 to 4. For seven innings the Columbia boys held the New Jersey team down to one run, although not playing a first-class game. In the eighth inning the visitors squeezed in three runs, while the Blue and White team lost their nerve, and Rutgers almost tallied another before the local nine gathered themselves together. Schoolboys Run at Seward Park.

The annual field day of Public School 34 was held yesterday afternoon at William H. Seward Park and resulted in a victory for Class 6 B 2 for the banner offered for the class championship. In the places of honor were the entire teaching corps, who were keenly alive to the spirited contests between their charges. Miss Hess, who has been a teacher in the school for some time and knows all the boys, was particularly enthusiastic and applauded the victory of Louis Klinkowstein, the proud possessor of the only athletic uniform worn, delightedly. The games were voted a complete success. The summary:

SUTTON BEATS SLOSSON BY SUPERIOR BILLIARDS

"Student" Suffers First Defeat of the Tournament.

FINAL ISSUE VERY DOUBTFUL

George F. Slosson, the leader of the international billiard tournament, went down to defeat last night for the first time before the superior play of George Sutton. There was no repetition of the wonderful nursing by the victor which he had shown the previous night, but he played a sterling game nevertheless, averaging 22 16-22 and running 80 in his best inning. His victory was easy, 500 to 271, and at no time after the tenth inning was Slosson in the race. A great crowd gathered in the concert hall of the Madison Square Garden expecting to see Sutton repeat his record average and runs of the night before. They were disappointed in this respect, but he played brilliantly at times. The result makes the ultimate outcome of the tourney very doubtful.

Both players began poorly, evidently experiencing a strain in the endeavor to coax the ivory globes into position for close range and nursing manipulation. Sutton was the first to turn the hundred-mark, which he accomplished in his tenth inning with a beautifully put together run of 53, his highest count up to that time. The greater part of this accumulation of carroms was attained by Sutton's gently stroking the balls as with a feather and nursing them perfectly along the long line and in the centre panel. At the finish of this run, which was terminated by his overdrawing a two-cushion shot, Sutton's score showed a total of 114 points to 24 for Slosson.

At the beginning of the following inning Slosson took the spheres from a close leave, and by alternately playing the short table game and holding for sparkling bits of nursing, he gathered 80 carroms. His best shot was a three-cushion follow shot, in which his cue ball and the white made the circuit of the table, traveling together so that both rubbed all the way around.

There was an unsteadiness about the cue work of Sutton which prevented his mastery of the balls as upon the night previous. There were only flashes of that incomparable brilliancy in his runs of 64 and 34 for his twelfth and thirteenth turns at the table, which carried him within his third hundred at 212, as against Slosson's 123. In negotiating the smaller of these runs, Sutton provided a spectacular carrom by playing a three-cushion drive around the table as his cue ball lay frozen to the end rail beside the red, while the white touched the side cushion at right angles and a masse of any certainty was impossible. The beauty of the shot was the clever manner in which the globes were brought together, so that Sutton might continue until he missed a long follow to the cushion.

Bad breaking of the balls for Slosson caused him to drop behind at every inning and Sutton continued to count in double figures each time he went to the table. It was by the most persistent use of his cushion carrom shots, which brought out his perfect gauging of difficult angles, that Slosson produced a run of 102 as the result of his seventeenth turn at the green plateau. There were periods during this inning in which Slosson essayed the line nurse. His touch was not attuned to the sensitive ivory, however, and a few shots of this character always resulted in their separation.

The balls dragged heavily for Sutton at the end, and only by the cleverest sort of carromic manipulation was he successful in finishing his last hundred in four innings. The summary:

Sutton—0 1 3 27 4 0 0 5 21 53 0 64 34 50 24 57 33 11 80 4 14 10. Total, 500 points; average, 22 16-22; high runs, 80, 64, and 57.

Slosson—4 0 4 2 0 11 0 3 0 80 7 12 1 3 9 102 8 17 1 7 0. Total, 271 points; average, 12 7-22; high runs, 102, 80, and 17.

Referee—Edward McLaughlin.

In a courageous finish Albert G. Cutler, the Boston ex-amateur, won the matinée game after Louis Cure, the Frenchman, had it within his grasp. The score was 500 points to 439, and the winner's average was 17 7-29. Mark Twain witnessed the contest from his usual seat at one side of the table. He laughed heartily as the French billiardist rubbed along the carroms for fair-sized runs at the beginning until he had obtained a lead of 270 to 193 at the end of the thirteenth inning by cleverly executed ball-to-ball billiards.

The American humorist foresaw the end, however, as he explained to those sitting near him. When once Cutler attained perfect control of the ivories on his short table system similar to the method pursued by Sutton on the previous night, the Bostonian speedily overhauled Cure, passing into the lead with a prettily accumulated cluster of 32 on his twenty-fourth turn at the table. Cutler backed this with 40, and the Frenchman endeavored to retaliate, as the score was 447 to 392 against him. His stroke had deserted him at this critical stage, and he found all of the holes around the balls, Cutler experiencing no difficulty up to the end of his string. The summary:

Cutler—4 0 9 27 0 16 2 1 63 45 1 23 2 59 83 5 8 19 0 0 1 11 1 32 40 0 10 6 37. Total, 500 points; average, 17 7-29; high runs, 83, 63, and 59.

Cure—1 76 3 6 30 1 0 1 1 77 2 38 34 50 8 1 2 1 50 9 0 2 4 0 1 34 0 0 12. Total, 439 points; average, 15 4-29; high runs, 77, 76, and 50.

Referee—Edward McLaughlin.

The matches to-day will bring Morningstar against Sutton in the matinée and Hoppe against Cure in the evening.

In order to avoid a repetition of $15 being charged for $3 seats by the speculators, as was the case at the Slosson-Hoppe match last Saturday night, the sale of seats for the final matches of the tournament will begin this afternoon. It is now certain that there will be ties to be played off and these will be decided at evening sessions next week.

A. G. VANDERBILT WINS AGAIN.

Defeated De Cernea in Park Team Class at Durland's Horse Show.

Another big society crowd attended the second night's judging of the fifteenth annual Spring horse show at Durland's Riding Academy. There was a marked increase over the opening night, and the spectators showed more interest and enthusiasm. Several attractive features were on the programme, all of which were closely contested, the principal being the class for park teams. A. G. Vanderbilt and Albert De Cernea again clashed, but premier honors went to Mr. Vanderbilt for the second time during the show. The polo pony class was unwieldy and was divided into two classes, double awards going to the winners.

It was a representative gathering that filled the boxes and galleries and prominent among those present were:

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred G. Vanderbilt, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Loew, Mr. and Mrs. John Gerken, John R. Hegeman, Major J. R. Hegeman, Jr., the Hon. Hugh J. Grant, the Hon. George C. Clausen, C. K. G. Billings, Gen. J. B. Castleman, Mortimer L. Schiff, Jefferson Seligman, Miss E. H. Bedford, Judge Morgan J. O'Brien, C. E. Chapin, Mrs. C. E. Chapin, Irving Brokaw, Robert L. Gerry, Harvey S. Ladew, Mrs. E. R. Ladew, Fred Gerken, J. Campbell Thompson, Gage E. Tarbell, W. Stanton Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Steel, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Tod, Mr. and Mrs. William Durland, J. Otto Koch, Thomas Carmichael, Robert Maclay, Col. C. L. Railey, Miss Adelaide Doremus, N. J. Hess, C. H. Pierce, Mrs. A. B. Prentice, J. W. Peale, Mr. and Mrs. William Tonne, W. H. Roome, Richard H. Halsted, Mrs. H. M. Rollins, Eugene Schleip, Stanislaus Stange, Mrs. C. F. Hubbs, Baron and Baroness Paul Veltinghoff, F. C. Hilliard, J. Beavor Webb, A. V. Huyler, James R. Keene, Paul A. Sorg, Joseph Larocque, Jr., C. W. Watson, Miss A. Debarry, Count von Chorus, James G. Marshall, R. R. Moore, Mrs. William Orr Barclay, H. S. Borden, Mrs. A. O. Van Heusen, D. Clarence Durland, Mr. and Mrs. William C. Bamber, Malcolm Stevenson, M. M. Sternberger, W. R. H. Martin, and Alfred Maclay.

The first class of the evening furnished a surprise, when The Lion and The Mouse, exhibited by M. L. and A. C. Schwartz, in the pairs of harness horses defeated Mrs. A. O. Van Heusen's prize-winning pair, Saint and Sinner. In the saddle horse class Otto H. Kahn's Elsa scored an unexpected victory over H. G. McIlwaine's Lebanon and Joseph Larocque, Jr.'s Somerset. The latter was one of the best blue-ribbon winners last season, but was not in the best of condition last night. The harness horse class brought out twelve entries, but five were shown the gate before the actual judging began. George D. King's Easter Bell, a spirited chestnut mare, was awarded the blue ribbon, the decision meeting with general approval.

Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt's champion team won the blue ribbon for the best park team. Mr. Vanderbilt drove his own team, and won easily. Fiss, Doerr & Carroll Co.'s team, with Albert De Cernea driving, secured second ribbon. The summary:

Harness Horses over 14.3 and not exceeding 15.1 hands.—Won by H. L. and A. C. Schwartz's b. g. The Lion, 15.1, 6 years, and b. g. The Mouse, 15.1, 6 years; Mrs. A. O. Van Heusen's b. m. Road Drivers' Speedway Parade.

The weekly meeting of the Road Drivers' Association was held last night, when plans for the annual Speedway parade and Horse Show were adopted. It was one of the best-attended meetings of the organization, and the report of the Parade Committee showed a record number of entries. An appeal was made to horsemen outside of the association to send entries for the parade.

FIRE IN REMSEN HOME.

Miss Remsen's Bucket Brigade Failed to Put It Out.

Flames were discovered at 7 o'clock last night in the servants' rooms on the top floor of the five-story residence at 3 East Eightieth Street, occupied by Mrs. R. G. Remsen of the family who are among the owners of the Pacific Mail Steamship Line, by Miss Margaret Remsen. Some painter, it is supposed, left behind a cigarette or cigar after some work in the room, and it set fire to some of the draperies.

Miss Remsen sent the butler to turn in an alarm, and then organized the servants into a bucket brigade. Their efforts failed, and the fire was gaining headway rapidly when the firemen arrived. It required nearly half an hour of hard work by the firemen to put out the blaze. The upper floor of the house was wrecked. The loss is $3,000.

Mrs. Remsen became very much excited during the fire, and was taken into the residence of F. W. Woolworth, adjoining, where she was cared for.

DELANY'S SALARY PLEA.

He Says the City Should Pay Its Law Employes More.

The Bronx Bar Association dined last night at the Bronxland Hotel, at Willis Avenue and 133d Street. About sixty of the members sat down to table and listened to speeches afterwards from Judge Clinch, Corporation Counsel Delany, and others.

Judge Clinch took up the Socratic list of the essentials of the just Judge and declared that in his experience they heard courteously, answered as wisely as they could, pondered soberly, and decided impartially.

Judge Clinch closed with his testimony to the absolute fairness of the bench and a plea for greater opportunities for social intercourse between bench and bar.

Corporation Counsel Delany made a plea for the better remuneration of his staff.

"What we need to impress upon the public," he said, "is that we live under a reign of law, even if at the moment it does not seem to fit into the general plan. I have the honor to preside over the largest general law office in the world, and the men charged with the responsibilities of my assistants should be paid commensurate salaries. The bench is not cleaner than the Corporation Counsel's office. But in a few years some of those who have spent their life in the service of the city will be getting past work.

"New York should pay its officials somewhere near as much as they could get in private practice. Experience of years is needed in their work. Do you suppose we hear of the scheme of a franchise-holding corporation before it has been matured by the best lawyers of the city? Yet we are bidden decide on it, offhand, and once it has been submitted to the Board of Estimate with our approval the city may be bound irrevocably. When you pit a man with a salary of $5,000 or $6,000 against a man earning $100,000, where is the equality?

"My assistants should get sufficient pay to allow them to lay by for their old age."

CHURCH GETS HER PROPERTY.

Mrs. Smith Leaves Large Bequests to Catholic Institutions.

The will of Catharine T. Smith, which was filed in the Surrogates' office yesterday, is believed to dispose of a very large estate, although the realty is estimated at only $14,000.

The will is rather unusual in respect to the bequests. The Rev. Theophile Wucher, rector of the Church of St. Vincent de Paul, receives a picture of the Crucifixion, a statue of the Blessed Virgin, a Holy Land cross, a relic of the St. Catherine, a jeweled decoration of the Pope, and a decoration conferred upon the testatrix by the French Government.

Several cash bequests are mentioned in the will. Mr. Stillwell, one of the executors, gets $2,500, while Mr. Amundeson, another executor, receives $25,000. Father Wucher is the richer by $50,000 under the will. A memorial chapel for the Jeanne d'Arc Home is to be built with $10,000, while $15,000 is left to maintain it. The Sisters of Bon Secours receive a legacy of $10,000.

SUPPER NOT READY—SUICIDE.

East Orange Hatter Kills Himself After Quarrel with His Wife.

After having a quarrel with his wife because his supper was not ready, Timothy Lynch committed suicide at his home, 52 Taylor Street, in East Orange, N. J., last night by taking carbolic acid.

Lynch was a hatter, and when he returned to his home his wife did not have supper ready.

This led to a fierce quarrel, and finally, with a threat that he would stop all the arguments, Lynch went to a nearby drug store and secured the poison. Returning to his home, he drank the acid. He died in the Orange Memorial Hospital shortly afterward. He was fifty years old, and leaves two sons.

No Training Table at Columbia.

Columbia's track team received a severe setback yesterday when it was announced by Gustavus T. Kirby, Graduate Director of the Track Association, that hereafter no training table would be allowed. Mr. Kirby said that the association had not a sufficient amount of money to devote to the purpose. Some time ago the association was about to disband because of lack of funds. Sufficient money was successfully raised, however, and the students now believe that there are funds sufficient to keep things going for some time to come. This lack of money is therefore not at the root of the recent step, the students believe, but it is done in accordance with the desire to abolish training tables in general as advocated by the Faculty Committee.

Rodgers Bailed in Auto Case.

The bench warrants for the arrest of John B. Rodgers, Jr., and his chauffeur, John Johnson, who were indicted for murder in the second degree for running over and killing Mrs. Kuchler and her sister at New Rochelle on Sunday, April 1, were placed in the hands of Sheriff Merritt to-day. The accused men gave bail for $10,000 each, and were not arrested.

AUTOISTS RETALIATE AGAINST JERSEY LAW

Friendly Relations Only Extended to States Doing Likewise.

BAD POLICY, SAYS C. T. TERRY

He Will Oppose the Clause, Although New York State Association Demands Its Adoption.

More trouble is in store for the amended L'Hommedieu Automobile bill. It was stated yesterday by Charles T. Terry, who is acting for the National Association of Automobile Manufacturers, that if the so-called retaliatory clause was retained in the bill he would demand a public hearing on the subject, and if the objectionable clause is not taken out he and other automobilists will oppose the bill.

This retaliatory clause, it is claimed, is practically an attempt on the part of the New York State Automobile Association to punish the New Jersey legislators with their own weapons for the recent New Jersey attitude of compelling automobile owners from other States to secure New Jersey licenses before visiting tourists can use their machines on Jersey roads. Every one using a motor car in that State must obtain a license, paying $3 for machines of thirty horse power or less and $5 for machines of greater horse power. Moreover, only the New Jersey license numbers can be displayed on the car.

For States that recognize the New York law of registration there will be no retaliation. In other words, New Yorkers will do unto other States in automobile matters as those States do unto her. Massachusetts and Connecticut recognize the New York law, and for a certain number of days no additional fee is demanded from New York autoists touring in those States. To autoists from those States New York will extend the same courtesies.

Secretary S. M. Butler, who had a conference in Albany this week with President Quayle of the State Automobile Association and Speaker Wadsworth on the amended L'Hommedieu bill, defended this retaliatory principle yesterday on the ground that New Yorkers had adopted the open policy in the past toward all States, whereas New Jersey has shown a disposition to make additional revenue from New York automobilists by insisting upon a special Jersey fee.

"I do not think this measure will weaken our position at all next year," said Mr. Butler, "if an effort is made by autoists here to secure better reciprocal relations with New Jersey. We have done all we could in the past and it is of no avail."

Mr. Terry said that he believed the moral effect of the principle was bad.

"I know we have not got all we wanted, nor what automobilists from one State ought to receive from other States," he added, "but I believe it would make New York's position strong for all time if we could go before hostile legislators and show them that our policy had always been one of open generosity. I don't like this plan of hitting back unless there is some good reason for it. I understand that the State Association has since insisted that it be placed among the amendments."

Automobile Notes of Interest.

President John Farson of the American Automobile Association, who was expected to come to New York this week, sent word yesterday that business would detain him in Chicago until next week. When he arrives he will probably remain until after the regular meeting of the American Automobile Association Directors, early in May.

Chairman Jefferson De Mont Thompson said yesterday that a number of American automobile manufacturers had written to him promising to enter cars for the Vanderbilt Cup race as soon as the official entry blanks are out. Mr. Thompson had intended to hold a meeting of the Racing Board this week, but owing to the absence of President Farson from the city the meeting will probably be postponed until early next week.

George Robertson, who drove the Christie car in the last Vanderbilt elimination trials, will go to Atlantic City next week with Walter Christie to assist the latter in the handling of his racing car. It is possible that Robertson may pilot the car in some of the fast events. Walter Christie has completely overhauled his machine, and he expects it will make a more creditable performance this season than last year. At Atlantic City it will compete in the free-for-all race against the Darracq car, with which Hemery won the Vanderbilt Cup; a 60 horse power Thomas, and an 80 horse power Napier.

The Contest Committee in charge of the two-gallon efficiency test, to be held on May 5 by the Automobile Club of America, expects to issue the detailed rules of the contest this week, and entries will then be received. Many club members have promised to compete.

The alcohol motor problem has received much attention by some of the instructors in the New York School of Automobile Engineers, 146 West Fifty-sixth Street, and as soon as it becomes possible to use alcohol as a fuel the technical features of alcohol motors will form a part of the regular instruction.

BALLOON TRAVELS 35 MILES.

Special to The New York Times.

WINSTED, Conn., April 18.—Count Henri de la Vaulx, the French aeronaut, and Augustus Post, A. M. Herring, and Alan R. Hawley, all members of the Aero Club of America and residents of New York, who ascended at Pittsfield, Mass., at 12:54 P. M. to-day in the Count's large balloon, the Centaure, landed safely on the farm of C. R. Frits, in North Colebrook, six miles north of here, at 2:21 P. M.

About thirty-five miles were traversed. The party ascended with twelve bags of ballast, and at the end of the journey had four and a half bags left. With a panoramic camera the aeronauts obtained many excellent views. Four small parachutes were dropped in the course of the journey. To each was fastened a postal card with a request that it be sent to the Aero Club by the finder. The parachutes took from six to twelve minutes to land. An empty bottle was dropped from the basket as the highest mountain was being passed.

Mr. Herring said that the balloon could have traveled thirty miles further, but as the party were "out for fun, and not to break any records," when they saw a good spot on which to land, they decided to end the journey.

The car was dragged about 100 feet on the ground, but no one sustained even a scratch after striking terra firma. The aeronauts hastened to Mr. Frits's house and telephoned to friends in New York and Pittsfield. They came here to-night and will go to New York to-morrow morning.

The balloon used was the one in which Count de la Vaulx made the world's long-distance record, from Paris to Kieff, in 1900. At that time he traveled 1,300 miles in thirty-five hours.

BELCHER'S VICTIM FLEES.

Warrants for Loan Association Secretary—Accounts Don't Tally.

Special to The New York Times.

PATERSON, N. J., April 18.—George W. Allee, formerly a School Commissioner and for seventeen years Secretary of the Manchester Building and Loan Association, is missing. Warrants have been issued for his arrest on charges of embezzlement made by Samuel Rogers, President of the association.

State Bank Examiner Conklin discovered pass books calling for $1,597, $3,112, and $3,026, respectively, for which no record appeared on the books of the association. Allee was notified at his home, 473 Union Avenue, of the discrepancy and promised to explain matters. Instead he left town hurriedly.

William H. Belcher, ex-Mayor of Paterson, now a fugitive, forged Allee's name to pass books representing many thousands of dollars and the Secretary was practically impoverished through having to make good these amounts.

Allee was a bookkeeper for the Paterson Brewing and Malting Company.
